THE

DESTRUCTION

OF

TROY,

IN

Three Books.

The I. shewing the Founders and Foundation of the faid City, with the Causes and manner how it was Sacked and first destroyed by Hercules.

The II. How it was re-edified, and how Hercules slew King Laomedon, and destroyed it the second time: And of Hercules his worthy Deeds, and his Death.

The III. How Priamus Son of King Laomedon, rebuilded Troy again, more firong than it was before. And for the ravilhment of Dame Helen, Wife to King Mendaus of Greece, the faid City was utterly destroyed, and Priamus with Heller, and all his Sons slain.

Also mentioning the Rifing and Flourishing of divers Kings and Kingdoms, with the decay and overthrow of others.

With many admirable Acts of Chivalry and Martial proves, effected by valiant Knights, in the defence and love of diffrested Ladies:

The Henth Chirion, Corrected and much amenbed

London, Prince for T. Paffinger, at the Three Bibles on Landon Wide, 1600.

YOAT

Three Books.

The Lifterwing, the Founders and Foundation of the lifter Gift, with the Capter and france how it was Sacked and that delivoyed by Harings.

I will Haw it was re-edified and how Harake flow King

The III how Present Son of King Lementon, cobilided Troy as the control of the faville of the solution is yes before And for the faville free of the cost line. With to king I for large of the cost with the free of the cost with the free of the cost with the cost with Allo meeter and the gaint file tilling of divers King, and Ningdoms, with the needs and overthern of others.

With ready adjoin at a fifth of Churchy and Marini promote, effected by

The a coule Continue I ber des Canta continued des and a Level a Trivial Con T Today, at the Toron biller on the level and a second

The Printer to the Courteous Reader, witheth Health and Happiness.

To the Reader.

S it is, and ever bath been a cuftom, that among all manner of Studies, the reading of Annales, and Histories most delighteth men of all Ages, but especially young men, whose affections are quickly incensed, and their hearts set on fire with an emulation of what soever notable and valorous Enterprizes they shall hear or read of : But principally Gentlemen and Noble-men, are by the viewing of memorable deeds and Martial propers, so enflamed with an approbation of good and famous exploits, and with a detestation of ignominious or cowardly persons and deeds, that their reading and bearing thereof, do as it were kindle in their minds an ardent defire of imitating, if not overgoing the most glorious attempts of the greatest and most excellent. In regard whereof, the memorable sayings, deeds and endeavours of the wifest and most valiant of all Ages, have been still committed to Writing, and left to pofferity, in all civil Countries. to be as Whetstones for the wits of others, and as Spurs to prick forwards unto Fortitude and Magnanimity. And to this end, not only true Histories have 1 2 THE always been published, but many Fictions, of strange yea, and incredible things atchieved by industrious Valour, and constancy in Lovers. If then feigned stories of Martial Men, and Loving Ladies, may be neceffary and delightful; how much more profitable and pleasant may this History be deemed, which comprize eth both rare, and worthy feats of Chivalry? with divers wonderfull events brought to pass by the faithfulness of true Lovers. And this Story in respect of the Subject, is very true, how soever in the circumstances, Some Roetical paintings, and hyperbolical phrases may be found. What faults escaped in the former Impression, are in this corrected and amended. Farewell.

To the Reader.

These Histories following are sold by Thomas Passinger at the three Ribles on London-Bridg.

repairion of good and famous exploits, and with a deself-giren of uncomment or committy enjoys and decab, Mountelien, Knight of the Oracle.

Ralmer in of England of the sould the to manher four

Amadis de Cant, the fifelt party of the same

Clearer on and Chriana

-in With variety of other Histories, where English or Irish Chap men may be well furnished, and have good penworths.

THE

The First Dook of

THE

DESTRUCTION

TROY,

The First Book.

CHAP. I.

The Linage of Saturn, and how for inventing the Sowing of Corn, Planting, &c. He was honoured in Creet as a God.

Den the children of Noah, were spread by the Climates raigus, and strange habitations of the world, by the general division of tongues, made at the foundation of the Lower of Babylon: in those days, that the world was of gold, and the men stedfast as mountains, and rude as beasts, exalting their desires in rare conceits, practising to make Lowns, Citties and Cassles, Scepters and Diadems, and to sozge the cursed seat of Gods among the possessor of the 3se of Creet. There was a man exalted full of Kiches, happy in a benturous enterprise, and very rich with the grace of sortune, some men called this man Celion, and some Uranus, be was lawful Son of Ether, son of Demor Gorgon the old dweller in the Capies of Arcadie, and firft beginner of the falle Banim Bobs: This Uranus bad to wife bis own fifter called Veffa : be lived gloriouffy with ber, and had poffelfion of the most part of the life of Creet, and abounded prosperously in worldly goods. increating in beigniory : and in linage, and was marbellous rich. De bab two fong, to wit Titan and Saturne : and two Daughters, Cibel and Ceres, of whom bereafter : and he hab many other fons and baughters, of whom I make no mention. foral much as they are out of my purpol . What, hall I rebearle more of the glory of this Uranus? Be hab all things as be would, and was fortunate, and nothing went against bim : bis goods multipleed, bis Children increaled, but Titan, the elbeft fon was ill fahoured, and counterfeit, and Saturne was marbellouth fair and amiable : for which cause Velta the Bether lobed much better Saturne than Titan, and that be nature, for naturally, the mothers love better their fair Children than their foul: wherefore Saturn was nourifed moft in the lap of his mother, and Titan was in a manner banifed. And when Saturn was great, what for bis beauty, and for his cunning and other bertues, be bare the whole lobe of all the people.

In this time, whoever found any thing profitable, for the commonwealth, was commonly proclaimed a God, after their foolifb and bark cuffome : wherefore Saturn was fo named, for in bis pouth, and by his cunning begave the first instruction, for tilling and manuring the earth, and for fowing and reaping coan. This inhention was applied to Saturn, with Divine reperence and lobe, not only of Velta and Uranus, and his kinfmen : but above measure, all the people of Creet, and of the marthes and Countries lying thereabout. And thus bis name was renowned, that from all places, men and Chilbren, Pobles and Beafants, came to bis School to learn. In thofe baps that Saturn began thus to flourist, and was twenty years of age, and his beother forty, Uranus their father by a ficknels that be bab. bred. leabing bis wife Vefta endowed with large poffelfions. Dis beath was griebous to Vefta bis wife, and bis fons and baughters alfo: thep bib bis oblequie reberently, abounding with great and bitter fogrow. The oblequie bone (but not their fogrow) Vefta fam that that Titan ber eibeft Con pretenbed to enjoy the Cucceffion of his father : the on a day called ber bear fon Saturn with Titan, and other of the Countrey, and faid, that ber poung fon Saturn fonlo [Hcceed, and babe the beritages of ber Busband. Titan bearing the will of his mother wept, and kneeling to bis mother, faid on this wife: Pother, 3 am right unfortunate, when ye will that mp right patrimony fall be giben from me:and that becaufe & am not to well formed of members, as my brother Saturn is, pou will bepribe me of my fortune, which you map not bo by late oz reafen. 3 am gour first Son, pou babe nourifted mee with the Subftance of pour blood, as pour Child boan in pour bellp nine months. 3 am be that firft inhabited pour feminine chambers : then pou gabe me pour due lobe, and foateb to mee the fucceffion of pour beritages. Aben whence cometh this, that you now feek to befrop me ? every mother is bound to conferbe the right of ber Chilo. Alas, mother, will pe make me a baffarb, was not Uranus my father? am I not be, that pe were To glad foz, when first I was conceiped in the lawful bed of mp father pour Busband? am 3 not be,that you bare, and gabe mee fuck of your breafts, and offentimes, killed me, when my members were foft and tenber? Da mother! acknowledge that 3am Titan, and for as much as I am not fo well abdreffed as my baother Saturn, so much you ought the moze to defire my promotion.

When Vesta heard her Son Titan speak so profoundly, she bad pitty on him: yet that pitty was not of so high vertue, that might surmount the great love she had sor Saturn: then she sast; Titan my son, I beny not, that thou tookest thy substance from mee, I love thee intirely, and I besire thy welfare: but it is evident in every mans sight, that sor the default of thy members, thou art not a man sufficient to desend thy sathers Beritage with labour and pain: sar sist that sor man should make war, thou were not able to resist him, thy brother hash the love of all the people, sor his beauty, and his vertues, every man holdeth him in reperence and thee in derision. Be thou content, thou walt lack nothing, and if thou dost, speak to mee, and I shall remedy it: but never speak sor the beritage, sor Saturn shall obtain it, by the sahour of his wisdom, meekness, and benignity, and alto because the common foat judgeth that be wall be the man.

mbale life fall Dine gloriouffp. 250 02113

Titan was fore troubled with the words of his mother, and began to war red, babing Culpicion, that Saturn bab contribed this matter againft bim : wherenpen be laid to bim : Saturn the ambition to reign above me, bath now ingenbeed in mp beart the mogtal mifchief. Thou knowell well, that 3 am the elbeft for of our father Uranus, who art theu fo bold and prefumptuous, to erait the felf abobe mee ? Therefoze name me from bencefoath the mogtal enemy. When Saturn beard thefe menaces of bis brother Titan, be ercufed bimfelf, and anfwered that be never thought to come to the lucceffion of their father, noz neber had confpired it. Then Vefta their Bother, Cibel, and Ceres, took the words from Saturn, and faib to Titan, that his threatning et Saturn was nothing, foz be tould reign, and be their Load and Baffer. Titan full of enbp, and moze angry than be was befoze, faid plainly, be would not fuffer it. Saturn bab a great part of the people that affifteb bim. And Titan alfo bab ofbers on bis fibe, which began to murmur the one party against the other. All the company was fore troubled, and began to prefs in, and intreated them to ceafe the noife, and appeale Titan : notwithfanbing it was bard to bo, foz be would often babe run upon Saturn, if be bab not been binbreb. In the end, the wife men thewed Titan by great reafon, that be was the moze feeble, and that Saturn, was moze in the favour of the people, and wifed bim to moderate bimfelf a little, and faid, that he thould agree, and grant the reign to Saturn by condition; that if he married, be bould belbound to put to beath all bis children males, that hould be begotten of bis feed, if be had any, for the will of both parties. Vella with ber baughters, and the ancient wife people commended to Titan this condition, and laboured fo to Saturn, that they brought them to the Temple of Mars, that was in the City of Olon, whereof was Lozd , a mighty man called Millifeus, and that before the 3mage of Mars, Saturn Imoze that if he bappened to marry, and that be bad any Chilben males, be would flay them all : and thus was Titan content, that his baother Could enjoy the land of Creet, and peace was made between them. CHAP.

CHAP. II.

How Saturn was crowned King of Creet, found divers Sciences and was honoured as a God.

A fter the peace between Titan and Saturn, Then fat in bimfelf, that he could not with honour abide wer bis pounger Baother : but chofe rather to fearch bis abbentures in other places, than to be a Subject in bis own Countrep. De took bis wife, bis childzen and friends, and beparted at all abbenture into bibers places, where he found fortune fo good and bappp, that by arms and ftrength be made bimfelf Ring of bibers Realms, which be parted unto bis Childzen, and probided certain Cfpies, to oblerbe if bis baother Saturn maerieb, and if bis wife brought forth male children, and whether be put them to beath oz no. During thefe things, Saturn bielled with his mother and his fifters, Cibel and Ceres, and reigned with great magnificence : the people of the Countrep, Caownen bim with great glozp, with a Crown of Lawrel, Saturn accepted this Royal bonour, and took the Scepter in bis band, and bare the Cromn on bis bead, and Reigned wifelp, inducing bis people to like honefilp, and to lobe bertue, and ozdained a naked (mezh to be boan befoge bim, in fign of Juffice. De bio Juffice on male: factors, and eralted them that were good : be also bid build a City which be named Creet, because the 3fle bare the faid name, and he was the first Inhabiter. When behad founded the City. be ozbained bis Walace and owelling place in the middle thereof, as the beart is in the midft of the body, to minister to the members, fo be would infiruct and govern bis people: And after this, be chole an bundred and four wife men, which be inflituted and ezbained Councellogs and Bobernogs of bis Bealm, And then they of Creet, feeing the great wisdom of their King, affembled together feberal times, and named bimla God: and pet moze. thep founded unto bim a Temple, an Altar, and an Tool, bearing in the one band a fickle, in fignification, that be beffrozed the vices in fuch wife, as the fickle cutteth berbs, and bestroveth the weeds : and in the other band, be beld a ferpent, that bid bite bis tait, foralmuch as Saturn faib, that every man thould bite the fail of the Serpent, that is to fay, that every man fould fear and fly the evil end: for the end oftentimes is venemous, as the fail of a Serpent: and that appeareth pet daily, by the end of many epil disposed and invenomed men.

By the means of thefe things, the Benown of King Saturn grem famous. Abere were moze abundance of fruits, than in aup other time. So that the Boets compared the mould at this time to gold, which is most precious of all mettals : wherefore men far that Saturo was the first man that found the manner to melt mettle, and to refine gold, and made bis beffels and utenfils of bis boule, of Dibers mettals. Aben began men, bp the Bottrine of Saturn to use and wear gold, to mine the Bocks, to pierce perillous mountains, to baunt thoung deferts, to fight with Berpents, fierce Dagons, beably Griffons, and bivers monfrous beaffs, and to fuzead abroad their moridin engines. By thefe exercifes. Saturn learned men to take thefe beafis. And first found out the manner of Booting and Daming of the Bow. Df golb, mabe Saturn bis boufe, bis Chambers, and Balls, to thine by marbellous mozking. We was firong and barby, and bid not fear any ferpent of the mountain, noz any Wonfter of the Defert, oz beaft bwelling in Cabes. De knew the beins of gold in the earth, and could difcern them from the being of filber. De edified rich things of Bold, pleafant to the epe fight, and couragious to the beart. In this time of the golden world, the people libed long. And all the woold laboured in edification of Science : Among whom Saturn was neber ible, after be had once labous red in earing and fowing coan. De melted and refined gold and mettals, and inured bis men to beam the Bit. Dee bimfelfe found firft the Bow, and the manner to fail by Sea, and to row with little Boats in the Ribers, and took much pleafure to enbottrine bis people in all thefe things, and be bab great abundance of worldig goods, only be burft not marry, becaufe that be bad Iwogn to put to beath all the men Childgen that Bould come of bis feed. Whereof be was oftentimes griebed, to bis ereat bifpleafure.

CHAP. III.

How Saturn went to Delphos, to the Oracle of Apollo, who answered he should have a Son would chase him out of his Realm. And how he married his Sister Cibel, &cc.

177 Ben Saturn fato bis palace flourifb, and fbine with gold and bis people ober bim, and fam bis gold-fmiths and mozkers break mountains, with their Wick ares and inftruments : law bis Barriners cut the wabes of the Sea with their Bars, fam bis bifciples manure the earth, fam bis Archers Boot and fmite the birds firting in the bigh trees, and flying in the Air : be thought be might imbace great gloap, and exalt on his bigb thaone and bis felicity. But on the other ube, when be remembred the Covenant mabe between bim and bis Brotver Titan, be was like the Beacock that is proud of bis fair feathers Divertip coloured which be spreads round as a wheel, and withall only looking on his feet, be leabeth all bis jop. Saturn likewife by bis treaty, loft all bis jop, bis glory and pleafure. Dee long time led this life, nowglad, now forrowful, growing alway, and increating his Bealm, and baily thought and pendred in himself if be might marry or not, for nothing in the world be would fallifie bis oath : be was juft and true in woad and deed. Rebertbelefs nature mobed bim to babe generation, and to come in company of women, and this moving was at all times refrested, and renewed by a continual fight that be bab baily of a paffing fair maid, to wit bis fifter Cibel, who be famcontinually : in whom was no befault of all the parts of nature appertaining to a woman : the was out of meafure right bumble in fpeaking : wife in her works, boneft in convertation, and flowing And foz this caufe Saturn bebeld ber oft times, in all bertues. and on a time as be bebelb ber affairs and works, be caft bis eyes on ber bertues, that pleased bim so greatly, that in the end be was befirous of ber lobe, whereof bis mother Vefta bab great joy. And the perceibing the befire of Saturn, gabe bim courage and will to marry ber, and folicited the marriage fo effequally, that with great bonour Saturn espouled Cibel bis fifter, after after their manner, and the was the first Aucen of Creet. Pe living with her, paid in such whethe due debt of marriage, that at the end of nine months Cibel had a son, which Saturn did put to death, acquitting himself of the Dath that he had made unto his Brother Titan. And of this Boccace maketh no mention. But they kay together again, and Cibel concessed then of the feed of Saturn, another Son with a Daughter, that by space of time appeared great in the Bothers beilp.

In the time when the law of Pature was in his higour and frength, then men married with their fifters : and in efpecial the Banims, if rhep were not content, and bad fufficient of one wife, they might take moze without reproach. When Saturn knew that his wife was with Child the fecond time, the death of bis firft Son came befoze bim, and be fait in bimfelf, that be would that his wife had been barren. Then be began to be full of dibers fantafies of loze thoughts, and befired to know, what Bould befal of the fruit of the womb of Cibel. Be went himfelf forth to the Afte of Delphos unto the Dracle of Apollo, that gabe animer to the people, that demanded of things that the .. lo. after bappen. And then when be bad done bis Sacrifice, and made his pager, the Waieft of the Temple put bim into a perclos unber the Altar of the afozefaid Tool : and there bee beard a great tobirling-wind that troubled bim, and all his wit and understanding that be was in manner of a fwound, by which be fell to the ground, and when be arofe, be thought that Apollo appeared unto bim with a decadful face, and faid thus unto bim : Saturn. what moveth thee to know thine Chil Deffiny? Thou baff begottena Son, that fall take from thee the Diadem of Creet, and hall banif thre out of the Bealm, and hall be without compare abobe all people, the most fortunate man that ever was boan in Creet. After thefe woods, Saturn came again to bimfelf and remembred bim of his evil Bropbecie, that touched the bottom of bis beart, and being Coze amaged, and right penlibe. be went out of the Daacle with a troubled beart, came to bis Berbants, and went to fbip : and when be was in the fbip bee bung bown bis bead, which be belt not up till be came to Creet. Aben be began to think, and be penfibe. And many right forcomful

Togramful fighs engenties in the root of melancholle, faid in thes wife: Alais Saturd poor king, what equility me, the big-ners to be the first king of Greet? That profess me, these vi-oline restrences? 02 what good bord me my Acience, when Afeel the firstleners of Fortune? D Fortune! fast turning, pring to every wind like a roser at least stay that the wheel that turnery without end, may freak to me Sacurn the finentog and foun-ber of the Common-tocalth. And if thou wife not fend me the clear and taughing vifage, ar leaft lend me the large ears ; Show half giben me eriumph and glose af a Crown, and now thou luffered me to fall from this great honour : and what is this thou hall conferred to my profestry, and note conferred my oberthaote, and Dampful end and intendeft that I thail be manned the unbappy Saturn. If all the life bath been nourissed in bappinels, and the end unbappy and wolul, I shall be called unbappy and all me fortunes shall turn to eprouch and same. Described in what thing have I allowed? Date I sought against these Madas bate I bour, tall me! Described entry to make occause I have been in the Described Apollo, be bath shewed unto me the ruin of my Scepter, the bownfall and break-ing of my Diabem, the eralting of my Child, and the putting met out of my Mealm. Ales tobet remede to this great forents that I have I have flain one of my Sons, and have concluded in mp felf, that never herenter I will to cruelly fpill the life at mp Children, but rather be with them. After this conclution, 3 muft of bery togce continue in my firft unmennel cruelty. foz if my Son that now is in the wamb of my Wife, be fuffered to like be fall exile and put me out of my Bealm, which fall be to me right bard to bear. And therefoge it is better to Ray bim. Alas, and if I flay bim, then it feemeth me: 3 Could refift the will of my Bod, which parabbenture will raife bim again. and that would be more, for then I hould not only be called a bomicibe and man-flager, but an unnatural murtherer, not of a Wpant, noz of a frange man of another land : but of an innocent little Chilo, iffued of mp proper beins, bones and fleth : that after the Wrognoffication of Apollo, is pre-rient, and chofen by the greateff Lrad of Greece, and loberaign of all the Bings in bis time. Saturn

Saturn thus feeling dimitell in great trouble, and alway werke and worke, an abore is laid, began to change his colour and war pale, full of melancholly, and of fentaties, and could not eppeale bis inflaterum, her man vilhate friends, and they there incre mod unitide with him, durft me approach who him, but feeing his forcom, and angry with his auger. He was in flort time for greatly perpleted, that his face was like unto after or as he had been dead and after many foundits, he opened his mourh and ipake laftly thus: I have made an asth unto after of mourh and ipake laftly thus: I have made an asth unto my brother Fican, that I will put all my Children male to death, that field come of my field. Peraddenture the Gods would not luffer that I flouid be fortworn, but have me have knowledge by Apollo, that my luffe hath conceived a son, that fall put we out of my Realm, to the intent that I would have him; foralmuch as I had concluded in my left, to have broken my outle, and have fpared the lives of an Children. And fince it is fo, I will no longer spare them: If it dappen that my son be born altre he flouid to par a man and rebet against mee, and exalting the flouid tour a man and rebet against mee, and exalting the flouid mee by his malice, influrrection, or otherwise.

In this resolution, formatical Saturn returned into his soute.

In this refolution, so robbited Saturn returned into his house, continuing in this estate, in such wise that Cidel durst not come into his presence, nor could get of him a pleasant look: whereupon he got him a surname of sorow, and was named Saturn the Melancholly. And it was so, that when he had been in his house a certain space, and satur the day approach that his wife mould be delivered of Child: to execute his resolute will, her called his wife and said. Dame, it is so apparent, that house though the delivered of the fruit of the womb: If thou he delivered of the fruit of the womb: If thou he delivered of the fruit of the womb: If thou he delivered of a Son, I command they upon pain of death, that thou say him, and that thou send me his heart. So, when Cidel heard the words of this upnatural historic, he fell to the ground in a smound, so, her legs sailed her. And in the recovering of the smound, so her legs sailed her. And in the recovering of the smound, she kneeled before the feet of Saturn and said on this wise, his, half thou no shame, that will be a Bushand to a woman

murber

nurvering her own Chifo: I ther require of mercy and grace, selections there to batte regard, that I am thy wife, and have the batter of a woman, and not a Lerant of Ourtherer. Dame ed Saturn) reginte no more concheng this marter : (; is in a togetern fentence, Wat if thos have a gron be wall seab : for a parte Curoen to to my Brother Tiran e and about mis. I have an wer of Applio, that in the womb is a Son that half call me out of this Bealm : and therefore fee that at his biath be be bead, as theu loveft the life : and alfo as Thave fait. fend me bie beart mingteb with wine, that I may beink it. Die. anfweren Cibel, knows than not that 3 am a woman, that he proper and fingular inclination. I have a love for finall obilozen. D thinkell thou that I babe a beart to bart, as to foile mo bands with the blood of my own son? I pray ther to repoke the fentence, and be propitious to the wife and generation. Thou art wife after the judgment of the people : in this point, thou bewell the felf cruel, for by the path thou set not bound to fine the Son; feeing it is cruel; the art outs made against good manners ought not to be beforn. Jos to flay the Son, it is billainous cafe, and contrary to bonour, realon, pirty, equity and juftice. It is fin against nature, against bertue, and against all good manners. Eben the onth is naught, and thou ourbreff ro pilanul it : thou art King, and upon pain of beath forbibbeff all people to bo murther, or bomicide. By this thouart a mirror and erample to others : therefoze be content. And me feeneth on the other fibe, that thou interpreteft evil the fentence of A. pollo, faving that I babe in my womb a Son, that thall pull thee out of the Kingdom, for by this , it ought to be imperitood. that the Son that I bear hall overline thee, and out thee our of the Bingbom, that is to fay into the Sepulcher, the var that thou half depart out of this world. And if this map not appeale thee: ifit fo bappen, that I babe a Son, thou mapeft babe him kept in a frong Hower, and there fet fuch marb upon bim, that be thall never be of power, to exalt bintelf against the.

Saturn bad then his beart to pasting great, that for compassion Vesta the Dother, Cibel and Ceres wept plenty of tears, and to his likewise all the affishants that were in the place very it could not about the hards commandment of King Saturo. But income clusion, he laid to Cibel, that be hould be bead, and the allowith him. If he did not his commandment Mith this forward contributed him. If he did not his commandment Mith this forward contribution. Cibel beparted from these all in a trance but been, and cefting abood her arms and hands, with great excellent tears, that ran like a Kiper from her tender eyes, ented into a Nother, bee mother that defolate Lady following her. Spee being in her Chamber forcowful, began to fall in travel, and was belivered of a Haughter, and a hon. Also Haughter was born before the Son, and was lent by Cores, to be nourified in the City of Parthenie, and was named Juno : and the Son began to laughter the coming out of his mothers homb, and was named Jupiter.

Biben Cibel and Vefta fam the Childlaugh, their tears began to grow double, what time Cibel overcome with discontent, with a women touble foirit faid to ber mother . Da my mother, will muribee my won by un now : gibe me a harp knife, and immatural errous ageinft my will. and after this hillatnous beed, for my absolution of the great in, 3 will mureber my felf allo. And this is my full purpofe: for after to cruel a deed norwithfranding ampercule, I will no longer libe. The mother of Cibel was then greatly bifmayeb. toben De beard ber Daughter refolue on fuch a cruelty: being afraid, fall to ber my Daughter, art thou out of the wit? ADo Dother, antwered Cibel, pea berilp 3 am out of mp wit, and pet moze, 3am furious mab. Dake me no longer to languid. Sibe me the curfeb mogtal knife, foggeb in an ebil bour, fog of fazte I muft ober Bing Saturn, pour well belobeb Son, mp reboubted Dueband, that bath commandment ober mee, and will. Damefully put me to beath, if Jaccomplift not bis command. ment, in the neath of his Son, which he bath charged mee to kill.

As Veffa confidered was the Baughter laid, and the errour. De was in he took the Child that was in berarms, and plucked it from her by force, while the innocent Child laughed. When Cibel law her Son in the arms of her mother, as a woman energed:

hebenonce ere, that the would flap the Chib. and gibe er again, oreile de would rife out of her bed, and go and tild to a Damolel adule baule, that was there with them, use her that the mount go hap the Child in the prefence Sarum, or in tome other place, out of their fight : the pop pamolel ercufed ber felt, but Vefta gabe ber commanbment. and charged ber with great menaces, that the thouse go foath. and take the Child and flay it. And fo by the commandment of thofetmo Labies, the took the knife many times, and put it to the threat of the Chile, to cut it alimber, and afway the noble Child laughed ar the knife. Ant when the Damofel fam this. that it was imporent, the could not find in ber beart to be it any harm. In this fearow, Vefta, Cibel and the Damotet wept a long time. Pow they judging him to beath, and put-ting the knife to his throat. Cuobenly the Damofel revoked it. and twose that the meuto never be the Purt bereis of to fair a Child. After this they began a little to pacific their bearts, and to turn to motherly piery. Cibol called her that held the Child, and required ber pitioufly, that the would gibe ber ber Son, to kifs and bold in ber arms, promiting that the would be bim nobarme. The Damolel that knew not tobat fauld befal. belivered ber ber tender Chilo : and then when Cibel bebeid ber Child with ber face bebewed with rears. We kiffed bis laugbing mouth moze than a bunbred times, and came again to ber nature acknowledging ber fin, and began to fap; Bo Chilb. Than been bery unfoztunate, if 3 bab taken the life from the, mp. right fweet Son, alas, Gall 3 perfecute thee after the will of the father Bing Saturn? It is bis commanbment, and I otos bim obeplance : if I obep the fin is bis, 3f 3 obep not, 3 make mp felf culpable of beath. Ab what is this, Balt theu bre bp mp bands? by the bands of the own mother? Da, fall the mether be thy erecutioner ? I know not what to fap, but will 3 02 will 3 not thou art mp Son. Ebery mother lobeth ber Chilb : bow map 3 bate thee? It is much better that 3 bpe than thour. I babe libed long enough, and thou art now firft boan. Merily thou Balt not bee at this time, 3 fall fabe the life. 02 3 fall E 3: DPR. bye for the health, requiring mercy for the still will a had a gainst thee, and an in the still a state of the still will a had a constant of the still a state of the still will be a state of the still a state of the state of th

the selection of the and a CHAPA Well being the

How Salars had commanded to flay Jupiter, and how his mother Cibel fent him to King Mellifests, where he was nourified.

" We forrowful Labr. after this came better to ber felf. and killed ber Chilo that bill laughed. And Vella bebeld ber countenance all afreit, and fat botten on the beds fide where her Daughter lap. Abere thep ring began, to fpeak rogether of Saturn, and of the fortune of this Child, and that he had been in great abbenture : and promiled the one unto the other, that they would fave the Child, unto their power. After this promife in the end of dibers purpoles, they concluded to fend this Chilo fecrefty unto the Daughters of Sing Mellileus, the which Vefts had nouri then in her sound sige. De thele two Daughters, the one was named Amachee, the other Millice. After this conclusion, Vella waapped the Child as it ought to be, and belivered if unto Damolel being there prelent, with all things. and gave her charge to bear it fecretly to Almachee and Millifee, The good Damolel enterprised the faid charge, and beparteh out of Creet mith the Thild in fatety to the City of Olon, which the prefented to Almaches and Millilee, rehearfing boto Vella bad fent bim to them, for the great love and truff that thee bad in them, and how Saturn bad commanhed that his mother fould flap it.

Anon, as these two Damosels saw the Child, and understood how Saturn bad judged it to death, they received it with pitty, and in favour of vella, promised to nourish it in the secretest and best wise that they might: and forthwith the same hour, they bare the Child unto a mountain, that was nigh the City, wherein dwelled a Burse, in a deep hole of a Tabe, which was richly carbed with bitters Instruments. And then they sent again the Damosel that brought the Child into Creet. In this manner was the life of the Child saved. Almachee and Millise nourished the Child with the milk of a Boat. Fortune was to im more propitions that Parack. Capar wall g lap, in the comming there was no into the Cave, as his Aurie on a bay the committee of the Proper inclination of Child-haad, because he nor be beard, they took Crampers, Aimpanes and Comof Bers floing about the mountain beard their lound, and wirb this found entered into the Cabe, and took bold of the Child, flying about him without boing him any barm : and per moze, they made their bones, whereof the Child bid ear and was nourifled thereby, which was a marbellous rping. The Damolel that hab boon this Child therber : when the returned rebearled to Dame Chorann Vefta, all ber proceedings, infomuch that the gabe thin went comfort fourbing the Chilo. Then the time Labies by deliberation took an Abelf, which is a precious flone, and brage ed it to powder, and after they had minuted it with mine, in a cup of gold, bame Velta, bere it to ber Son Saturo, and ther a-bounding to birthe tears, tale unto bim : Wo Son, the wife bath tene ther this brink, know then verily that thee this bay bath rendaen and gielbet the fruir of ber womb, a Son and Daughter : the burb fent the Dangbrer 're mourith in the City of Parthenic : but in the obeging of the firait commandment, we babe put to beath the son. De whom the bode, the felb, and the little tender bones, be now tarned into albes, and the bath fent bere to thee, the bear tempered in wine: which I prefent to thee, to the end that thou bo the pleafure, and be no moze in houbt by the Son to be put out of the Bealm.

Mhen Saturn heard the pitious words of his mother, understanding the tidings that the thewed him, began to frown and was greatly displeased, however he death the drink, winking shot it had been bone as his mother had given him to understands and after went into his Chamber, and there began to be exceeding melancholly: and after that time forward, he purposed and trove to abstain himself from paying his Wife the due debt of Wartington

But as there is no forrow that over-pattern not by fpace of time, to be forgot this forrow, and tring with his wife engendeed another Son, which the laved like as Jupiter was laved, (notwith-

I norwithflunding that Saturn threath and this Child was carried to Ather and named Neptune. Bet after this begat another Don and Dauffire, who tobe penanto from their mother bus at this tim ber Son burbie bien from Safurn. to, and the bid keep it in the parts of Theffalle, that afterward mas named Hell. And to content ber Bushand Saturn, when the mas belivered of thefe two Children. We fent to him ber baughter, which was called Galanca, and the byeb in her tenber gears, And thus of all thele Benerations Saturn Suppoled that from hab been referbed but Juno bis Daugbeen, whom be werterf. rentimes to bifit in Parthenie, where be fent it to be nourified with many Roble Wirgins of ber age, and alfo mang ancient Bentlewomen, to teach them Gentlene ffe and bertue. But of all them I will a while pair our canb sign of Jupiter, Nep-ther and Plato. And rain I will bette have perfecus perfects there and Plato. And main I will bette here Derekaus putibis Brother Jafius to beath, for constanting to reger in the City of Corinch': and both he bepareed, out of Gorinch, and how he laid the first stone in the City of Dardane which afterwards was named Troy. checie : de fil las cheche

B. . tiod get dingliot mic

How after the death of King Corinbus of Cerinth, his two fons Dardanus and Fafins, strove which of them should Reign, and how Dordonns flew his brother by treason, wherefore he was forced to depart the Countrey. will drawfill the focust time

Athe time when Creeto began to be a Ringbom, and was in pollettion of their firft Ringcht the fame time in the Cirp of Corinth which flands in Naples, reinned Corinthus their firft B. and Corinthus had to wife one of the Daughters of Bing Atlas of Libic named Electra. They reigned together profperouffp, they left after them two Sons, one was named Dardanus, and the other Jafius : Some Cap, that Dardanus was Son to Jupiter : but Boccace Supposed be was lambul son of Corinthus, (as it appeareth in the firth book of the genealogy of the Gods)

Cobs (then Dardams and Jasus, after the death of their father Corinthus, and their Pother Electra) would succeed in the mealms, and in no wife they could accord. They were both of paughty courage, they argued and firote the one against the other, and conspired in such wife, that Dardamus on a day afsembled all the people be could get, to destroy his Brother Jasus, his friends assembled in secret, to offer their assistance.

Mhen laffus fam bis Brother in arms, bis blood began to change, and beeming this matter would turn to great mifchief, be croed. Alas, what abaileth this Councel, and to feek means of peace between mp Baother and me; we are betraveb. loe bere is mp Baother that cometh upon me all in Arms each man fabe bimfelf that map. With thele woods Dardanus came to the Confiftozo, Imote bis Baother unto beath, and faib. Jafius; Thou haft eralted the felt againft me, but now I will make an end Talius fell bown beab among the feet of bis friends, and their cloarbs mere all bespored with bis blood. Then the friends of Jafius, fam bis Apranny, they fabed themfeites as wellas they could and fled. Then Dardanus returned to the Royal Balace and the friends of Jalius gathered-together, and went to Arms and made to great a noife, that in little foace all the City was ftrangly troubled for the beath of lafius, who was greatly in the grace and fabour of all the people of Corinth. for when they had rebearled the beath of lafius, they took great forrow, and menaced Dardanus to beath. And forthwith in effect, they affembled by great routs in the fireets, and faid one to the other : alas now is beab the love of Corinth, that hab moze amity and love to the common-wealth than Dardanus. Let us go and avenge bis beath; and punit the malefactoz, and let us no longer tarry : foz we thall bo a meritozious work. Tho eber both injuffice and tyranny, is not worthy to be the bead of Juffice. If we fuffer a murtherer to reign ober us, neber Gail good come thereof. There the bead is fick and evil, the members map not be whole noz good. Dardanus bath fain bis Baother Jafius wrongfully. It is bery likely, that be will flap us after bis will. Let us take from bim bis puiffance, and let us them that we be men, befropers of vice, and enemies unto all them fbat that feek and ingenber tyranny. Such were the clamours of the Corinthians : that by continual noife they combined themfelbes, and affembled in one place, and were of ardent apperire. to coarect the malefastos Dardanus and bis complices. In this temped and fwelling furp, they went unto the Balace, where Dardanus put himfelf foz refuge, but they found the gates four. and could not enter into it : toberefoze thep befieged the place. making fo great fir, that Dardanus was abathed, and affembled bis friends, and asked them their councel. Thep anfmered that be and they were in great peril, and that the people fo moved could not lightly be appealed, and for this they faid to bim ; fabe the felf, and us alfo with thee : thou baft flain the Baother Jafius, whom the people loved fog bis benignity; the trefpals is great, feeing it is fo bone, the best way that is to be taken, is, that theu leabe this Haloce, and find means to iffue out, and we hall go with thee, and fearch our abbentures in ather Lands : for it will be great banger, to centent and appeafe this people : for it is fo, that the Corinthians be terrible to all men that they bate.

Dardanus bearing thefe wogbs, began to figh, and confidering that he mult bepart from the City by bis fault and befert. be fmote himfelf on the breaft, and fait : Da, fortune unffebfaft. what is to me befain? De bands be foul and filthe, with the blood ofmy lawful Boother: The infurrection and the rebellion of my people banging befoze mine eyes : it is beft to flee to fabe. mylife and to live of rapine and theft. What mifchance, what evil bap is this? Since it is to, I peeld, and will go awap ar all abbentures. Wiben the friends of Dardanus had unberftond that be was concluded to lave his life, they joyned to bim, and appointed that the next morning at the break of bap, thep would bepart from the Walace, and take the adventure to pale by their enemies, faging that if they might efcape, they would go to Sea, and take the Brings Barge. And they Cmare to belo each other unto the beath. The night paffed, the day appeared. and then Dardanus that had not reffed that night to bis pleafure, but had watched with his armed men, and were ready to take the appendure that the Gods and fortune would give and fend. fend them, issued out of the Palace, and found the most part of his enemies assep: he indeed out among the Massails, and paling toth with little resistance, (that norwithstanding the waking Coriothians) he came to his royal Ship, and took the Sea, and laved bimself, whereof the Coriothians had great forcow-

When Dardanus law that be was quit of the fear of the Corinthians, be failed by Sea, and landed firff at the Boat of Samos, being in Thrace, and there bidualled, and went to Sea again, and arrived in Afia, in a quarter where the land was japued to the Sea of Helefpont ; And finding this Land fruitful to inhabit, be mabe it bis habitation, and there fet the firft fone of a very great City that be began, and after finifed. This City was at that time named Dardane, after the name of Dardanus, but afterward it was called Troy. Dardanus pecpled and filled bis City with men and women, which be got by Imeetness and fair promises : And the other part be conquered by torce, theft, and pillage : De made himself Ring of Dardane, and birched the Citpabout with great birches. Afterlong time be paffed out of this woald, and left a Son of bis wife Candama, that was fecond Ring of Dardane. Abis Bing was named Eruronius and reigned feben pears in augmenting and encreating bis City and people, and at last came to the end of bis pears, and there reigned after him Troos bis Son. This Troos was the third King of Dardane, and was a fireng man, fierce, and barby in Arms; and increafed greatly bis Seigniogy and his Crown, in to much as the Dardanians faid, that there was no Ring but Troyes: and named them Trojans. And thus was Troy exalted more than all the Bealms of Greece, to bigbly, that King Tantalus of Phrige bad great enbp, and gabe bis heart bow be might put bown the name of Troy that was his neighbour. And began to affap to being it bown, as bereafter fall be relateb. this condition, and application throat Lycaon in ferticans

The such and length supering configuration of the control of the depicted to t

CHAP. WI.

Of the great was that was moved between the Pelagiansand Epiriens, and how King Lyeson was deftroyed by Jupiter because of a man put to him for hostage, which he did most cruelly murther, and cause to be roasted.

Uftin rebearfeth : that the wife and fubtile Wirgin Miner va theweb ber fetf in this time by the Brook called Triton. by the greatness and subtilty of ber engine : for the found the manner to fogge and make Arms. And to this purpofe Ovid rebearfeth, that be bab fought againfi a Grant named Pallas, ann flet bim by the flood of Triton. At the fame time, when arms mere founded, and the Sciences of Minerva were pantifed bo all the world, a fierce diffention ingendred between the Epiriens end the Pelagians, that after were named Arcadians. And hereof maketh Boccace mention in the fourth book of the Genealogy of the Gobs. Among the Pelagians reignet that time a Bing named Lycaon, elbeft bon of Titan: The Epiriens then enterpaised upon me Pelagians, whereby arole great troubleg. For which caufe they affailed each other by fears of Arms, fo cruelly, that both parties luffered many moztal broils, amben the wife men of Epire, faw this war to biffolute, and that then of their party bab unjuftly undertaken this war, they acknowledged their fault, and went to the King Lycaon bearing hans thes of Dlibe in fignification of peace, and required bim that be mould condescend to accord the peace of both. Lycaon confibering that his people had as much loft as won, and that the battels were perillous, accorded to the Epiriens, by condition that thep would beliver him one of their most noble men. fuch as be would bemand to be bis ferbant a space of time; in token that they ban unrightfully engendzed this biffention. The Epiriens confented to this condition, and belivered to Bing Lycaon in ferbitube the moft noble man among them : and thus ended the war.

The tearm of time banding over, and that the Epirica hab ferbed Ring Lycaon his due time: and the time was expired, the Epiricas aftembled themselbes together, and by belibera-

sion of councel, fent an Ambaffage to Lycaon, to treat the betiperance of the Epirien. Thele Ambaffabours beparteb from Epire, and came to Pelage and themeb to the Bing, bow their man bab ferbeb as long as bewas bound fog:a required bim that he mould beliver bim, and ratifie the peace, to the end that ever after thep might be friends together. When Lycaon that was hardy of courage, fierce and ebil untoail, and to bis own people. underflood the words and requelts of the Epiriens be bad great anger in bimfelf, and fait to them : (thinking contrary) that on the moarow be would feat them, and bo as thep had bemanded. With these words the Epiriens bepated jogfally from the prefence of Bing Lyacon, and on the mogrow came to the feaft that mas richly ordained, and made for them in great plenteouinels. which was fair at the beginning and in the end foul and abominable : for when it came to the performing of the feaft, Bing Lyacon role from the Table, and went into the Bitchin, and took the body of the Epirien bis ferbant, that he bab murthereb the fame night and all roafted and fobben, brought it in a great platter to the feaft, and paefented it to the Epiriens, faping : loe bere is the Epirien that bath ferbed mee, which was caufe of the efcbewing of the ruin and perdition of Epire. I Taid pefferbar. I would beliber bim this day : take bim who will, 30ifcharge and quir mp bands of bim, and will have been no moze All they that were prefent as will his ferbants as firangers. hab great boarour, when they beard and unberflood the woads of Ring Lycaon : they bab great hame and furp to behold fo fameful and abominable a wook, and outragious finant mere fo froubled that the blood west from their faces, and thep laid their bands befoge their epenias thep that abhogred to beholn the poor martered Epirien. And there was no man knew tobat to fap of the infamp of Bing Lycaon : but toben the Bing fato them fo troubled, and that every man began to frown and grubge apart, be left them, and went from thence into his Chamber: and thenebery man deole from the Kable, abboaring and efchewing the feed water fa bous of the beat man, and thould babe beparted and gone their way all confuled; had not Tupiter the Sonof Saturn been, which the Epiriem hab brompt mith D 3: them:

them in their Legation and sambassage, sopelmuch as he was a fair Child, amiable and gentle. He then, when hee saw that every man drew apart, he put himself in the middest of the Epiricus, and hegan his glorious enterprize, and said: D! what is this? Mere is the blood of the Episicus. Are they handled out of bardiness? he they exist out of valous, and of honests? Middle, he the Episicus, that hy force will expose themselves to the bengeance of so soul and horrible videof. This case is not to be born. And the rerriblemess of the Kerant Lycaon, is not to be bettered, when it absorb unpunished. He see that the Pelagians make their that they be put tapaped with him; he must be punished. If say as sor mee, I shall never have pleasure in my life, till I see him restrained of his Aprama.

At which time the Epiriens conceiving the great courage of Jupicer that was to pound, they thanked their gods for it, that they had brought him with them, and faid to him, with one voice: Child, bleffed be the womb that bare thee, and bleffed be the Bods that fore foring this injury bone to us, bave to intrived us, to bring thee with us. Thee had not been to bold, as to have taken any benneance. Thy words quickned our spirits, which were been and a keep and had passed by the intemp of the Ayrant Lycans. An barbiness bath made us ballant, and lovers of validance and the wisdom bath illuminated us. In this case, then was becombuted of this toogh, and communder: and the will over thee.

Jupier andwered. Mor theifted hords and Sirs, 3 am not wife enough to recrive the bonour that he do mee, nor my tember years hall not accept in Alway by advice of counsel as humbled amount all correction. It will kep to you what is expedient to be done. If he find morning the better, then you whil do by my councel and advices perfect to you, and bear him muto the common place of this Citys: for it is this day Sabbath and Bolybay, the Pelasians being these are great number and multitude, passing their time with a bear him and footes. Then he hall there this poor deal man footes is fall, the rathe Bing is not well beloved by his way people for his uninantly works, and this this tresposs is passing foul: onon, as they wall know what he both done by this foul work: ye shall see if they will take this in pleasure or displeasure. If pleasure, then it were in dain, and folly to speak thereof, sor this present time any more, but we must seek remedy, in our return to Epire. If they take displeasure, ye may plainly discover your courages, and call them to purge this crime that is so cursed, and I know, they shall lightly intend to us: And sor the non-amity that is between him and them, he shall not dominere nor reign over them, by tyranny: hor he shall not dominere nor reign over them, by tyranny: hor is not their natural lord: buthe is the Son of Tican, brother to Saturn. And is not King by election: but by foace.

All they that beard Jupiter thus fpeak, marbailed greatly, and accorded to bis councel, that no man contraried it. And fo they took the murbered Epirien, and bare bim to the common place and there thep fewer bim openly in every mans fight. Taben the Pelagians fam this beat man, of whom the skin was Scozched, the flet roafted, and the finews thrunken : and that the bones appeared by the joyntures : they affembled all about bim in great number, and eafting their eyes upon bim, they bab fo great bogrour, and abathment, that their bearts trembled. complaining each to other: and many went away to 2 compaf-Bon, and wept trembfing for anger, and other took buff and caff into the Air in fign of forrow, cutting their cloarbs, and faving lifting their bands on bigh : D Bobs almighty what veo ple be thefe Epiriens ? they have roufled a mans body, and have brought it before us ? What mean they? Are we eaters of mans flet ? 02 bring they it to us to thew the cruelty of their courage? be come they to eat this bead man among us to fear us mithall?

Jupiter there being awaiting, and laying his ears, and feeing with his eyes the manner of the Pelagians, and their countenances, concerning that they condescended in the condemnation, and enmity of him that wrought this pitious work, taken he had beard their reasons, he addressed himself among them, and said: D ye men of Pelage, markel you not of this unmanly, and unsatural work? Dave he not enough learned and know the tyramies of King Lycaon? Hee hath murthered this man, and this man is the Epirien that was belivered to bim at the treate of peace with you for to ferue bim. Loe this is the remard that be bath bone for bim. Dee bath tpranniged berp much, and bath bone bim enil for good. D what great infamp is it to you, that the folk and people of every other City, babe Reigning ober them Bings, noble and bertuous and thep bee Crownes by election faz their pertuous deeds? pe be far different from them. and of another nature : A Torant is pour Bing, an unjuft man, a finner worth of infamous dearb , confiber under whole bands pe be, and bow nigh you find your felbes in malaby and peril of beath. When the bead aketh, all the other members fuffer pain, then pe map not be whole and found. What thall we now bo. think pe, and countel pe us? we come to pou foz refuge, and to bemand of you bow me ought to be and bebabe us againft one that is to foul a Bing as Lycaon : Well us the berr truth : If pe confels the truth, and that pe be lobers of realon, Juffice and of equity : pe fall judge and condemn bim.ve fall lap pour bands together in correction of bim, and To Spall pe be ribb of bis malice.

As the Pelagians underflood of Jupiter, that Lycaon their Bing bab committed this billainous crime, allo that be bab pre-Cented to the Epiriens the body of their friend fo bead, they being at table : they condemned bis fin, and murmured againft bim, Taging : that they mould no muze be governed under the rob of To perberle and infamous a Aprant, and faid to the Epiriens, that they would abibe by them and fland their friends. Buith thele worde Jupiter put bimfelf among the Pelagians, and abmoni beb them to confpire against their Bing. Wirb which confpiration accorded all they of the City. And the words of Tupiter were lo agreeable unto them, and bis manners, that they put in his band the beath and bestruction of their Bing Lycaon; to the end that be flouid truff and babe affrance in them, they fent for their arms and babiliments of war, and armed themfelbes. After they affembled about Jupicer, and faib to bim, that he fould be their Captain and their conductor to atchieve this faid work.

Jupiter being jogous of fo great an honour and worthip, exand the Polagians ordained him head over them. And he being constituted in his dignite, let his people in order, and after hid them to march toward the Palace. They had not long gone on the way: when they law King Lycaon issued out of his Palace with a great company of his friends all armed as they that had been adhertised of the coaspiration made against Lycaon; and fearing that his enemies came to assail him, to show himself a man of sterce courage, came against them, thinking presumptuously to have overcome them. And as they begun to approach, they challenged each other to beath without other counsel: And strongly moved, making a battel marvellous thatp.

Lycaon baving led bis peaple in agber againft Jupiter. They mingleb themfettes haftily together with little firite of words.

but with great amasement of firokes.

The strife cost much, but most especially to Lycaon: so, bis people were less in puissance than the men of Jupicer, which were strong and of great enterprize: so they sought and sinote upon the Pelaglius many blows amocall them bown by sorce so unmeasurably, that none was able to abide that was before them. Among all other Jupicer did wonders: by his well doing be pur Lycaon, in a passing great distress and nopunce. And in this great annoy, be pursued passing sail, norm upon him. But when the saile Arrant law him tome, and laid his strokes so mightily that all them that he wante were similar his strokes so mightily that all them that he wante were similar to not be other side: and he had not long abiden there, when that Jupicer had overthrown the Pelagians, and made them to the from the place before him, like as if he had been the thimper of temper.

In this manner, when Lycado saw his samplifies in such ex-

In this manner, when Lycain law his emplices in fuch ertremity, he his himfelf, not us a Ring, but as a poor man out of comfort and hope, to desolate us he burlt take none of his Complices with him to help hid story, nor to comfort him. He feared Jupiter us beart to the him a way as is said to work not enter his balace, but it us out of the City and went take a great forest, that was night, and from themselorth he was a thirt, and for this cause the was fair, that has cause the was a wolf, of preses and robbe-

Lycaon fo figing as is lato, fearing to be purfued of Jupiter, pur himlelf in a River or a great Lake, and there laved himlelf: where feeling that the water of that River bad a fingular propertie, that the men that purthemlelbes into that water, bould be turfied into wolves for the rearin of him years, and the nine years expired, if they would put the filter bes in the water again, they hould recover their first likeness. And so it might well be done; for Lycaon pur himself into the water, and was transformed to a Wolf by space above said, and lived of these and pillage in the whole and sorress, waiting off times bow the Pelagians governed rhemselves; and in the kills when he day accomplished his pennance, he returned into the River and took again his mans form, and knowing that the City of Pelage might never be recovered, he returned poor and wretched to his father. Titan, of whom I will lag a little, and that tell, bow Jupiter began to be amorous of Calisto, Dangber of the lag Lycaon.

William and some HAP VII.

How Tupies after the discomfiture of King Lycsen, transformed himfelf into the shape of a Religious Woman, waiting on the Goddels Dians, for the love of Caigle, Daughter to the faid Lycsen, and obtain of her his william; much like and ultiliam.

A feer the billcomfigure of thing Lycaon, which was transA formed into the hape of a Moit, and began to bee a Kaviller of the lubliance of the Countries, sating of their Children, and mir thering of the highests, that he oftentiones a failed by rage of hunger, which configurate him to there him miterable life: when the a purery late that luplies had banquifbed their enemies, and thus he above mafter in the lame place, they brought him with areast Morre to the Mallace, and lought lang for Lycae on first in the place above master by the been, enhance that;
in the Chambers of the Mallace, done they found him naither quick nor beat, nor could have any tibings of him.

And to it happened, that as I witter fought him thus from chamber to chamber, be found in the highest Tower the baugh-ter of King Lycaon, named Califto, which was very fair, poung and fresh efcolour. The Damofel weeping for the loss of her Father which the had newly undection. Then Jupiter saw her to viccomforted, he fat him down do her, and laid: Damofel, comfort pour telf, and speak to me, and ceale pour weeping. Alas (in laid the Damofel) how Gould I comfort my life? the Epiricus have flain the King my Father. Dught I to take confolation in his ruin? Dught I not to be angry? since an hundred thousand missfortunes traderse my body, and trouble me; And I so poor agencie Damofel, Danghter of a King, that I besire death, not life, and m more in besone than in hope.

Pelagic,

Maben Lupiter knew that the was baughter of Ring Lycson, he had moze compaffion of ber than ever be bab befoze, and faid te ber : Damolel, appeale pour beart : I know mell. thatitis of force that nature arquits ber felf : but pe oumbt to confider the micked wasks of pour tarber, which pe are bonne to be wail. De was lels realonable than a Bing oright to be. De is not bead : De bath put bimfelfin tome ferret place to fabe bimfelf : bis fins were too infameus, and who that! bemail and forrow for bim. The Bobs habe luffered the oberthrom, and caffing bown his paide, and tyranny. It is far other wife than pe take it, habe parience in bis righteous abberfity : foz bis bemerits, gibe pou cause to take parience, tobereas parure inclineth gou to impatience : and pet pe ought not to be impatient for bis casting Down : for the lofs of a Lyrant turneth a Country to jop. The outragious fins, and unmanip furies of pour father ball nothing be burtful unto pou, not turn to pour pariubice : no man hall mil ule you in any manner of wife, I affure pour.

Dir, answered the Spaid, I thank you for pour great courtefies, and for the fair words which re proffer, and fay unto me, I know well that my poverty bath made me unworthy: But fince I see the missortune of my father is irrevocable, and his inselicity is past remedy. I renounce the world, and pray you to intreat for me to the Epiriens, that I may go into the ikeligion of Dame Diana the noble Wirgin, bangbret of the wise Japher, sometime King of Actick and boan in this Land. Whereupon aught to be remembred, that right anciently issued out of

Pelagie,a wife noble man named Jupiter, of whom Boocace mabeth mention in the firft book of the Benealogy of the Bobs. which lupiter was Bing of Attick, who fozalmuch as be induced the people to boneff Laws, and bib first og bain and ballow marriage : Befoge thartime the Atticians married them not. but uled women in common, and of this Jupicer came a baurbter named Diana, the which willing to abibe in the fate of dirginity, mabe a Clopfier in the woods of Arcadie, where the af-Tembled many Wirgins that paffed their time with bunting and chaling the wife beaffs. For to turne to our purpole: this mobile Mirgin Diana, libed ar the time of the tubberfion of the reign of Lycaon, when lupiter underfrood of Califio, that the would pield ber fel Arb the Mirgin, be faid unto ber : And bom Damolel be pe belpaired foz a little tribulation, that toucheth not gour perfor Pe be pound and fair, among mone of you that fo go into Beligian, may grow no fruit of Children. Abuile pou well, It were better that re abobe among the people, that replenish the world. Wany women and affo men, enter into Beligion in their poutb, and repent them in their age. bir, faid Califto, fempt me no moze. If there be any Gentlenels in pou. receive the paper and request of to belotate and infortunate a Gentlewoman, moze benrous of the bealth of my foul, than of tempozal pleafures. During thefe bebices, Jupiter bebeld wirb. out ceafing bis Damofels beauty : fozalmuch as the would go into Beligion : when be bab beard ber antwers, and had feen bow fweetly the bad taken it, and would not be turned from ber will : be laid to ber, that ber request bould be accomplited. Then be caffed the Epiriens, and required them that they would be content to fuffer this Mirgin to enter into Beligion. De E. piriens put the request into the will of Jupiter ; and Jupiter gieloed to much that the was conducted into the Beligion of Mirgins. After be fearched all the Balace of Ring Lycaon, and mabe the Epiriens feise bis riches; and there Jupiter abobe a certain time with fo great wor tip, that the Pelagians and the Epiriens would babe Crowned bim to be their King : But be would neber confent thereto : as be that confidered bis poung age, and the pariations of fortune, and faid, that it availeth more to a man man, and is to him moze fure, to be made Ring in his old age, than in his youth, for the dibers perils that may fall. Alway be accorded, that he would be Captain of the Realm, and was a man of great Juffice, sweet and courteous unto all manner of people.

This mas the first coming up of this Boble Thild. Zalien. he had brought in Subjection the Pelagians, be burged the Epirien that Lycson bab murthered, and bid bis oblequie folemnlo, and after he bid burn to aftes the Pelagians, that had been flain in the belp of Lycaon, and after that be fent word, and made all thefe things to be known and the web to the Epiriens that were left at home in Epire, as to the Bing Mellifeus, whereof all the Epiriens and the Bing Mellifeus gabe thanks unto their Gods. Afrer this, be gabe nor his beart and courage fo much to accomplit thefe things, but that otherwhile be gabe himfelf to remember and to rbink on the beauty that be had feen in the religious Califto, whereby the fparkles of lobe entironed frongly bis beart, in fuch wife that bay and night be wifbed ber in bis arms, and repented bim that be bad confented that the went in And folaboured in this manner, that bis reft in to Beligion. the night was taken from bim, and be was not now bis own man, fo encreafed bis lobe and befire to this Mirgin : and for to fee ber, be made bis paffime to baunt the alloods, and continually to bunt the wild Beafts in the forreft Bith Dame Diana. where, by fogtune and adventure otherwhile be encountred and met the Daid Califto. And when be bad once feen ber, that bap Be was overiored. And if be fat ber not, bee bab abundance of many thoughts, that ran ftrangely in bis minb. I may not atall tarry on this matter. De thought fill boto be might come to the grace of this religious Califo, and all thoughts reduced and brought into one, be concluded on a day, that be would put him in the babit of a Religious Moman, and go into the Clopfier of Dame Diana, and require to be receibed with the Wirgins.

This conclusion being ratissed in Jupiter in divers days, be bid make his womans cloathing by a secret workman, which promised him to keep his secrets. When his cloathing was made be assembled the Epiriens, in an evening, and took his leave of them for certain time, faging : that he mould go alone, to bo certain fecret things. The Epiriens were all bifmared and befolate, when they beard the intention of Jupiter : and paared to the W. Ds that they would conduct bim in bis journey requiring bim inftantle, that be would return hoztly again to them. Babich be promifed be would : and then be withdrew bim inte his Chamber, and took the keps of the great Bate, and on the morrow betimes, when be was arraped and breffed in the heflure and clearbing of a Daid, be Departed from thence alone. and entred into the anob, and came to the babitation of the Beligious Daibens. | Jupiter had pet no beard, but was faircoloured in vilage. When be came unto the Clopfter, be knocked at the Bate, and then came to bim a paffing fair Baid named Athalanta, that after was Wife unto the Bing Melcager of Achay. And the demanded of bim, what be would? Jupiter an-Imered : noble Mizgin, I am a poor woman, of a noble boufe: I babe abomed to the Bods my Mirginity : I pan pou prefent me unto the Laby of this place, to the end that I might ferbe the Bobs, and be of the number of theather Mirgins. And ifit pleafe the Gods, 3 will beferbe it at pour bands. moved with compassion to the Daid, accorded bim bis request . and prefented bim to Dame Diana. Jupiter Cpake all fo Twetly and bemurely, and made fo bumble and feminine manners. that be feemed to be a Maid. Diana beheld bim well, and faid : that the bab neber feen fo fair a Daid, noz fo great : and then welcomed bim, and received bim. Aben Jupiter thanked Dame Diana foz ber grace and Athalanta of ber courtelle, and bad goeb bope in bis enterprize, when be faw bimfelf fo foon receibed without knowing. Then Jupiter began to learn to fpinn,and to work in filke, and to bo the erercifes of Maibens. And it became bim as well as if be bad been a Daid. De was bumble and of folitary convertation: be laboured with bis bands, with bis eyes, and his beart: with his bands be made corporal works, and with his eyes be beheld fecretly the beauty of Califto, and with his beart, imagining bow and by what means bee might bequile Califto.

his heart was alway fearful fometimes be was moved with great great beabinets, and otherboffe in comfort, and bope to fpeed well and get knew not what to fag og bo; fogasmuch as fbaine were moze in bim than bardinels. De was long in this pain moze boubtful than bold. Bat in the end be adventured bimfelf and finding on a bay Califto befibe a well, where the refrefted ter as the that teas wearp that bab run long with Dame Diana, chafing then and bunting a wild beaft : be fat bim bown by ber and faid : my Sifter Califto, 3 pield my felfto thee, and to the favour, 3 am a manand no tooman, the beaute bath obercome my courage. for to come to the point where we bee now, Thate charbed me ifte a Daid. Alas I require thee, that thou receive me unto the love, fo hall we live together in the Religion, and we thall take our pleafures. A man barb nothing in this world but bis life. They that babe moze pleafure than that, they be judged fo much moze foztunate and happy. Abeu baft withbeamn thee bitber foz bifpleafure, and lofeff thp flourifbing pouth, Califto, 3 cannot paale thee enough, Thabe been to befirous to find thee in fecret places that the force of mp love bath made me bo this, and that I bave enterprised this adventure, boping in foatune that the fall gibe me grace, and fuffer our pourbs to be uleb together fecretip, for we map commune together the one wirh the other, without knowing of any perfon, not only in the Chambers, but alfo in the bufbes of this wood. D mp Siffer, take beed what 3 fay : and as 3 receibed and furthered of late thy requeft, 3 pany thee receibe and altow the request without distain of him that thou mayest fee is a lover of thee. or Capen Calific Load beard Jupiter, and knew that he was a man, the was atraid, and role up, thinking to have fled, but shee might flot, for Jupiter beld her fast by the cloarhing, and made her to six down by him, clipping her about the neck, and killing her by force, so much that Calific creed out, and said: Dupiter what folly is this? Knowest thou that Jam so to be observed of the statering words? I had much rather the earth would open, and swallow me up in her womb. Op sister (answered Jupiter) there is no remedy that may let my will be accomplished: pe shall do my will and pleasure, be it by force, oz be it by lobe. With these words Calisto began to cry with all ber might: and Jupiter began to accomplish his pleasure on her. There was neither man not woman thereabouts that heard her, and Jupiter did his will of her body, and knew her stelly, and engendzed on her a Son. After he comforted her, and premised to help her in all things, and to take her to his Wife, if the would return to the world with him. But his fair speech, not his promises might not comfort her, not so, nothing that he could do or say, he could not come into the grace of Calisto. And alway the sware great oaths, that the would complain unto her Wistes Diana. Then Jupiter departed from her displeased in her displeasure. And then he went by the Maods, thinking what was him besaln, and also what he had to do.

CHAP. VIII.

How Califlo because the was with Child, the Goddess Diana put her out of the order, and of her company.

A I this time began to rife in the mind of Jupiter many 1 thoughts, and for the better be concluded in bimfelf to return to Pelage, from whence be came. And be was difpleafed with himfelf foz the enfozeing of his Laby Califto by lage, be beparted from the 2000, and fo baffed on bis way that be was on the mozn among the Epiriens in bis firft habit. When the Epiriens fam Jupiter come again, they mabe bim great chear, and great bonour. And the fame bay Jupiter, fained bim, that be would go a bunting, and fo be went, and found means to fpeak with Califto, and required ber that the would be bis Love : but De in no wife would affent unto bim. De returned from the chafe fo griebed, that for to pals bis melancholly, be beparted out of the Country. The fourth day following after that, be ozbained there folk that governed the people, and returned into the boule of Bing Mellifeus, wbo received bim as bis Son, and there be Dwelled a long time without abbentures, whereofanomention is mabe, and alfo Califto Dwelled in peacea tobile : and toben the beard tell, that Jupiter was gone, the was paffing jopous, foz the had rather babe bim far than nigh, alway the time paffeb.

the fruit of her womb unto and the day came that Disna and Achalaptes with other Changes, perceived that the mas with this is when feel they a Cambled all in their Chapter, and called Califor and item feels. Down to be a Califor my daughter, thou but convenient feels and a feel thin the long manufactor for the financial convenient feels and be force for the financial place he force for the financial place he force for the financial place he force for the financial place are also and the first the model of the model of the bear their fellow. Then had ensure that the financial place and later than the financial place and later the first characters are also be made in the first characters are force. The first characters are force for the first characters are force force.

violence the Dens. Mo not to mercy. When to much went the m Departed from theme Lown, City, 02 00 afozetime in the a trebinto the Cail, wirtit is not to be dozgotten, indt baring the time, De was beliveethe Thir Third was great and buge of members. Cal beats, with roots, frairs, beads, with roots, fruits, and beits, and or the proper meats and propes that the etael and terrible beads flued with, and there was forcust and fierce, that at the age of fluen years, when his morper angred or troubled him on a dwylle lifted up himself against her, and would have flain her. Intomuch that Califfo was constrained to flee betege bim by the buibes, and to fffue ontofthe tonen, and

Arches pursued Calife y Langer which is considered and in the Cap of School Arches pursued Calife y Langer which is considered and in the Cap of School Calife y Langer which is considered and in the position of the care of the care of the position of the care of the position of the care of the care of the care of the care of the position of the care of the car

How Tries affailed by was his brother house forafmuch as he had not put to death all his Children

V Pen prime Arches was Embased King of Pelage har V named the City Associativer passame, King Securious so puittent, Charjo attablike and energede the chelchour of his nativity, he usual himself Sature, some of Peacen and Earth. But then as he began to timb how, end by what manner he might small the selections of his felicity, he bitume my-fieres. Softwartumed her back to him. And as there is nother in the earth that mad ablied and endure: to it happened that Titas mare certified, that Musen Cibel had bisers muchilaten that the bill cause to be kept secretly, and thereby had laved their unto their libes. Boscase that atcounters this Billozy, in the fourth book at the Consalogies of the Cobs, laith not by topat means. That beats this thing alway, either by topicion of the entry, that he but of the Glaze of Saturn his Boother, on hy ferrit administration. Almberation coldur he bettermined in his country, to notif Saturn he arms, and for these cause beath assemble all his bonn, and required them, that he would make war against Saturn his Australia that he would make war against Saturn his Austria. And that he would make war against Saturn his Austria: and that he right and full title, he had good cause, to that he had upe but to heath divers mendialized that had the that he had up that to heath divers mendialized that had that he had not full to heath divers he had permised to that he had not full to heath divers he had permised to the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree, like as he had permised and the country of the tree of the country of the tree of the country of the count and fulles of Tien, the our was Lycson, ther he this rime was no littles, a wolf, not king of Accadia, another had to use the still of Ring of Accadia, another had to use a littles, and had king of Nerico, the fourth was numb. Caon and was king of the Alle of Cya, the fifth was numb. Caon and was king of the Alle of Cya, the fifth was numb. Reco. Simulative Asa Eges, and of the Alle belace, and the first and assumed Apirion. Aim of Pliphenos. Alben they had been the will of their fother that had pureaced them all their assumes, that he had conquiered after his departing out of Crue, they believed to be conquiered after his departing out of their ancient because that were then adgress errown, fail to him as by our work, that they have ready to accomplish his good pleafure, and to go into Coset with armed band, and I ware that they hould condituen Saturn to first his home, and perfecute they with his band to death:

The ald Titan ball in his heart great joy, when he beheld the great courages of her home. And they promifed and sware together, that they all Bould employ themselves to the recoverance of their Peritages. After which Communication, they gambered them together at the Poze of Sicil, and sent unto their Lordhips to a sendle men of Arms: Abey went and made such diligence and so exploited, that there were a sembled great store of armour and barnels, and much people at the said Bort. And when the day was come they to neture, they beparted from Sicil with a great Post, and took Sea, that in sem days they saided unto Creet, at the Word arrived, and took kand. And then entring fiencely into the Land, they believed all before them for cruelly, and continued in their war to morally, that they came unto the City of Creet, where King Saturn dwelled and was refident; and then Saturn was obsertifed of their coming and before and Than that might no further pals without a battel or affault, fent to Saturn a Letter whereof the tenor followeth. O Saturn glutted with worldly honour, and covetous of glory, for as much as thou are occupier of the Seigniory that by right belongethed me, Than thy Lord and elder brother: furthermore, because thouart fiffly perjured, for thy wife hath divers men children that thou bast not put to death, in likewise as thou were bound; know that I am come to take possession of thy Kingdome, not appearaining to also, but to me. Wherefore come to mercy, and submit thy fell to grace, or effe make thee sure of thy person, for if it be possible for and I will come and have farisfaction of the set?

Einer Satura Iad reed this Letter, by a man all amoved fent for his affer Civel and room bet apart, and advanced her re lag the truth, and ten him what he dad none with his Children. The paop Lady changed colour, and laid, his from mowelf their 3 amo atoman, the hear of a woman naturally very more of his paper. Dad not 3 bear in mature his advantaged woman, the hear of a woman naturally very more of him him him the children of my woman? I had not do be develoured with the hand the Children of my woman? There is that mother that well multiper her Children? Sop hand was never man layer, nor maker wall be. I have erred against the Commandment, in the tarour of mature, and since it must need be so. I had rather to be murrhered think musticer, and to be named ortions than triel, the murrher is a ruleity appertaining to unreasonable beats, and to Kranic and pity is naturally apperraining to a woman. And therefore 3 confess to bade born three home conceiped at the see, which I have confes to be no not succeed a see the see of the seed of the seed which I have confess to be no not considered as the places to be man map be comented with it is no beath where they be.

Saturn

Saturn bearing thefe words of bis Mife, was to aftonifbed. that be affembled all the wife men of the City, and faib to them. Do breibren and frients, what is beft to be bone; Titan mo Brother barb begun war in this Bealm : mp Mife barb confeffen, that De bary receibed of mee three Sons, which the bath nourifed in a ftrange kind, under the colour that 3 fould not flay them: Titan a Warlerd mee. Cabat fatt we bo? Sir, fan-(mered the Bille men) where any thing is eralted by other great prelumption, there muft be policy to conduct wifely, and to withhand it. Thou ball a ftrong Cite, and many people, thou art wife to govern them : put the felf in arms, and take no regard to the quarrets of Than. A man is not mogthy to be a Ring without berrue and gentle manners. Creet was neber a Realm but now : Than bath beenin all bis life inclined to bicemin which purpote be freheth to come to thy Crawn. If be ertol bimfelt that muft bebute bim. Abis is the remeby, belo the felfe and we Gall belp thee. De that fiverb, cauter bis biemies to chafe bim. Thus now ir may not be efcbewed. Bur the muft withfiand and a fault our enemies, and that couragiously: "fuz what a man may be this day, let him not pur it over fill to moz-

Arm ther then well and lively, and attail from the Cife foine enables. If their to be, how the will the council to be avidanced gestely, and the lightly so be observed by any and to their may sell above tomeropar their patos and participation. At their velocity patos and participation. At their velocity base the left of the will be married and cause to encourage them: upon table their velocity between the participation of their velocity participation. The training than aboutable to a council and hope of council be and lay a make well to affair to become Conquestions (men lay) make well to affair to become Conquestions are and the beautiful bed and fulfilled.

Sature antwered, Beerbren and friends : it were great frome to us ambour City, if we fuller it to be biggopete and best toped. It is of these and beer necessity that the word be beginnend faits apply, that every man bit pate brintelf to take his wordip. Trian a Waileth mine bonour. Since it must be, that of this marter the arms and war muff be judges, we will arm us in this inflant, and pursue the entertainment of the right good abbenture of fortune that Golf come unto us. And me beart telleth me, that as foon as our enemies be entred into this Land, we half make them iffue our again. With this antwer all the wife and nobic men of Creat took great pleature. Aben Saturn gabethe milwer to the Wellenger of Titan, and faid unto bim : that if Tiem returnet not within two bours, be would come and take the barrel against bim. Mith this an-Imer the Weffenger returned to Titan and talo bim the intention of Seturn. Then (wore be mould never return back, till be had abibben the baffel. Saturn was a man of great infourgand Miber the Wellenger of Tican was departed, be bigb Cpicie. made found en Alarm to Arms, at which found both pound and old armed themfelbes, and made them reads. And in the they were mady at the point and topen Sa surn face that his enemies made no appearence to mobe, he wom am aftendeb into bis Chariet (for in this time the Mines went to batte) in Chariots.) after he issued one of this City, our ranges his people about him, and caused them to march spaint his brother Titan.

3. 3

As foon as the Ticanoys fato the Saturnians come, they were riots, in which they were bequant and carried mot by t by the puillance of oe bureb, ent Got failed, the Titanoys, that had great factow to bee fo fernet of the Saturalians, opported themselves again, and some the one to the other, that they would be shough, and came forth and fought hand to band: in which they bedieved themfelbes to ea-gerty, that for the noile and dinn that their fixes and Chifarmo made upon their fricito, it fernetrue it had been thurber. At the encountering the battel tons but: Lycson, Egrop, Caon, Tiphen, Tiphon, Encheladus, mere in the first front : Caon and Tiphon, at the beginning maintained themselves beliently, and confirenes, infamich that whom they mer of the Saturnies, they bear bolon. De their well boing they were kindon, and doubted of their enemies, infomuch that Saturn mabe bis Chariot to bee fead out of the map, for the great bauit and nople that they made about bim. There was great effution of blood, fog the Titanoys bid what they could to have entured in their bauit and cry : but the Saturnies with Satura laboured to abare and break it. to the coming of Sacura was cause of prowels upon prowers, and of many flatu, and they entorced one another so buffly to and of many flain, and they entosced one another to busily to their work, that the mon part of the day they fought to that none might glory of biscory, nor bee troubled tor discominate. Sur in the end, when the Titanoys taim the same decline, as being concrous of glory and worker, at one try that Titan made upon Saturn, Lycson and Egeon, with many other, enclosed about him (he being trom his rampany, his Chartor broken by force of Bollares) and gave him many wounds and finally they took him. And that worth is worse, they were so discouraged; when they understood that Saturn was taken, that they soft the busines and through of their bearts, and the might of their arms and turned their backs and not all out in order, so that the Titanoys entred with them into the City, and took it, without any resiliance, bearing dawn the people with great murther of men homen and Children.

Men women and Children.

At this time were migne the the Ladies and Parrons of Creet, who show, and can it into the air, and run us and dome the firsts eather. In or their little Children crying after from. The wife man of the Cown learned out of their with and the City was to troubled that there could not be more. Among all other, Cibel, Volta, and Ceres, made great forces without reasing. To Titan that never loved them, came then into the Balace and put in Brillon Saturn and his wife, and twose they bould never bepart thence, till they but put to death all their bons that were rooms of them. And furthermore, Titan old came himself to be Crowned Ring of Creet. Do aballed

Titan, in the companion of per bon Saturn, and of Cibel, for their beliverance, nor the fair housing of Ceres, nor their tears were of no value. The more propers they made unto Titan, the more they found him cruel and bard bearted. De did execute and pur to death all them that belo or were appertaining to the party of King Saturn, and by the space of four days, vered and troubled Greet in cobbing and beading the blood of the Citizens, and be prefecuted not only the men, but also women and children, and took their goods and parted among them that belo on his party: when yells saturn and close things happenin the City, and that her hon Titan governed dimention on the people, the came to the pailou where Saturn and Cibel were, and said to them with a mouth boiling bolozous fighs. Also me children what will be not their blood, and with the tays. The Land of Greet is not only promude by the trans and meeping of your best friends, but total their blood, and with the blood of their bitters and children. The special of City is kerter that their butter and obdurate, that we ball by here in milerable grief, or you must pur your bounds beath, hince it is so, it is kerter that their he pur to heath, and that we send to seek them, when so, your till he none other returby.

The anger of Cibel hear their foarowful tebings infomuch that her beart t fo as Can m and ber ther rhought the toomin batte open, ber felf, the caped, and faib. etto heep ours bem to beat beaffice flows the fiffic please the Gots bath a great name, and b upiter mo Epiriens. : all the most of the bolianuelt men in t ll fend to bem, and let bem babe in Sam in, brete Domofel that bare bint, unto the mountain of. Ofon, and Buil require of him fuccour, and Thope that he is a man of high courage, and to fortunate that he thall succour her that bath done him that merit, that is worthy to have his succour, and that saved him in his tender days: and my heart telleth me that he hall receive by this toding great joy, in knowing the place of his Patibity. For more great joy he cannot have come to him, than to know that he is the first Son of the ancient house of Creect: And this shall turn to him a soveraign gladpels, when he shall see that he is required to come and make the recoverance of his sather and Dother, and of his Country.

CHAP. X.

b

n

8

t.

Ò.

How Jupiter with the aid of King Mellifeur of Epire, delivered Saturn his Father and Cibel his Mother out of Prison: and how he slew Titan in battel.

7 Ben Saturn and Vefta bad beard Cibel to Speak, Vefta faid, that ber adbice was berp good, and Saturn was all affoni fed, foz be thought that Jupiter be bad feen at divers times mith Bing Mellifeus Bould in no wife be bis Son, To bardly be could beliebe it, and gibe faith unto the words of Cibel, and Taib if Jupiter could fuccour bim, be were the manto bo it and that be mas content that Cibel Bould fend to fetch bim. Cibel fent for the Damofel that knew all the guibing of Jupiter, and gabe ber charge to go unto bim, to difpatch this bufmels. This Damolet glad of this Embaffage, Departed fecretly, till the came to the boule of Bing Mellifeus, and finding there Jupiter with the King,after reberence mabe, the abbat feb ber fperth to Jupiter, and faid to bim . Jupiter, rejoyce and be glab, 3 baing thee todings of gladnels. foz among other forrows, fortune, that bath beld thee long time ignorant, and not knowing the place of the Poble Patibite, bath now certainly laid open the biscoperp and knowledge of the same, thou art the first son, and Beir of the Bing Saturn, and of Dame Cibel, Bing Saturn thy father, as every man knoweth, made an oath unto bis beother Titan, that be would flap all the Children males that fould come of his feed, for which caute the day of the Matinity.

be commanded that thou Coulded be putte beath : but the Wother bab pity of thee, and for to labe thy life, De fent thee fecret. ip unto this boule, giving the father Saturn to unberftand, that the bab bone erecution on thee: And to to efchem the furioufness of the father, thou ball been bere nouriffed all the bars, and knowell nor the felf what then wert. What jop is this to ther? And thou oughteft to go jopoulle unto the farber and Wother. prefenging the felt unto their grace : if it were not thataffet thefe typings ofjop, I muft needs fbem unto thee other tybings. and that is this. Aby Wother that bath fabed thee, the dincte Titan bolbeth ber in paifon with the father Saturn, for that the barb nourifbed thee, : and be barb obercome and banquifted the father in battle latelp, and taken from bim bis Mealm : and per moze be will put them to beath. Therefoze they pany and require thee, that thou babe pity on them : and will employ the to go and beliber them out of the banger they are in.

Bing Mellifeus and Jupiter bearing the thoings of the Damolel, marbelled at them beep greatly and Jupiter was very jopous when be bad underflood that be was bon of Bing Saturn: and on the other fibe, be was fore bered at the troubling of Creet and thanked the Damofel. And afrer be turned bim unto the King, and fails bir, ve may now know what I am, and of what boule, as the Damolel wirneteth. : Pa farber and my Worber be in the bands of their enemies : 3 pag pourin their fabour, that pe will belo me to Inccour them : and that wee go haffilp oppgeffing bim marbarb oppreffet them : and I have a lingular boge and truft in fortune, that be will belp us. fair Son (answered Melifeus) know that I have moze jop in the remembrance of the Linage than I can bew 02 make fembiance of and in fign of this I promife to belp thee as much as in mee is poffible. Then Jupiter affureb the Damolel, and froze unto ber hat be would pur bim in Arms againft Titan : and bib ber run unto Saturn and Cibel, and comfort them in bope of bery Spoat luccour. "The Damolel beparted from thence, with the words of Jupites, and returned into Creet, and told Saturn and Gibel all the bad bome. After the Damofel was beparteb. Tupiter fent for Archas bis Son baffilp with the Arcadians, and alfo

fent

fent for the Epiricas and the Parthenians, with them of the City of Analore. All these people loved Jupiter with great love, and came at his commandment in great number, Jupiter welcomed them no well as be could, and rold them the cause why he had sent for them, at hat he was Don unto King Saturn. After these things be did cause to be made ready all things that were nevels are unto his Post; and so they departed from the City of Office, with a fair company of men of arms, unto the number of six thousand sighting men; and so well sped, that in short time he brought them within a mile of Creek.

And there lupiter would tarry upon the top of a mountain. and called to bim be Son Archasthar then was bur thirteen pears of age, but be was wife and well befpoken, and tabe bim in charge, that be bould go into Creet to give fummons unto Bing Titan, that be Sould go out of the City, end beliber to him his father Saturn, with his Wother Cibel. Boung Archas (that was barby and had his beart higheralted) with the mozes of his father, went unto Creet to Bing Titan, to whom be got to be paelented and foid unto bim : Titan, I come tinto thee in the obepfance of my father Jupiter, firft son of Ring' Saturn. that thou bolbeft in captibity. De bath been abbertifeb of op. prefien that thou best bone on the person of his father, and of bis Bother, and the beath of their bons : be figniffeth to thee by mee, that be is Son of Saturn, and that be is as much thine enemp, as thou to bis Some art enemp. Apon which I Cummon thee as a legate, once, twice, thrice, that thou vield this Cito unto bis father Bing Saturn, and that as baffilp as thou baff entreb therein likewife that then bepart : Chilo (anfwered Titair) thou telleft me tibings that be full of pleafure, and of eruftation, by the which, I know by the words that Saturn Bath a Son get libing : foz by this means & fee cleurle, and fo feeth all the woold that by good and fuft quarrel 3 am made Bing of this City. Let Jupices the farter know that 3 boube bim not nos fee nothing at all by bis coming : and affe that 3 mill Do nothing a fter this commandment. Titan (faib Archas) forafmuch as thou abibeft in thy will. I will no moze at this time trouble thee. Bake good warch : Jupiter is bere by, and farriefo for none ofher cause but answer from thee, for to be his enbeatour to recover this Cite.

delith this most Archas beparted from the prefence of Titan. and returned again to bis farbeid amben | Tupiterheart the and Trees he than full of gladneis, for he befired working but to be is arms and concluded with his people, that he mould affault the City. Anon were their Tents mabe of boughs and leabes. and Habernacles : the Ofoniens, the Arcadiens, and the Epiriens, las upon the green berbue, and mabe their boll to match : Titan was then in Creet. And when Archas was beparted from bis prefence, be a ffembied all bis Sons and told them thefe tobinos which were to them pleafant and agmeable. foz thep befired nothing but Debate : and affured themfelbes to babe bictorp of Jupiter, as well as they had of Saturn, in the fame bour they fent four Spies, to efpp the number of their enemies, and mane ready their parnels, thefe fpies went to far, that they fam the boff of Jupiter, and made their report to Titan of the place where his enemies were, and of what number of people thep were : after the report of the Spies, Tian concluded forafmuch as bis enemies were but a mile from the Cito, that thep thould make them ready, and go to the battel againft them, in the morning early. And then about the fun-rifing. Titan mount ed upon bis Chair, that was very rich, and mabe bis Titanovs to range in battel, and left an banbaed mithin the Cito, to keep it from Bebellion, and took all the other with him under his con-Duct, and of bis Sons, and efpies.

Josicer that was not idle, but the kame hour ken all his misn in oxder : and brought all his meninto a tric plant hoping for battel. And this Tican bud not far rivden, but he law the hop of Jupiter, for this plain was covered over, and as for as each might fee other, each of them full of joy enforced to make thouse and cries, and with great courage they marched the one against the other. Appen Jupiter put himselfin the front of the battel, and having his Bow in his badd, and his Arrows by his stocky his shouting began a shirmish that was very sierce. For on both sides there good Archers, and many Casters of polity'd stones that sale never : and that was the eause of the death of many.

meditte

miben the for and calling of flones failed, they begin with forers and then began a moztal fighting banb to banb, that mas To Barp, that the breaking of Speats and the fbieles, refounten unto the walls of Cicer, and came to the cars of Satura, and of Cibel, at the norfe whereof they began to reropce, for they bab a good bope that Jupiter would obtain the bictory against Titan. This bour Vefta went up noon a bigh Lower that the might fee into the field, and there the fato the battel. Aben beld Jupiter bis Smood in one band, and bis Shiele in the other, and wirh bis Smozd be fmote into the thickeft of bis enemies : and with bis Shiefd be fabed bimfelf from the firohes. And mirtr one fireke of his (word be bibibed the boby of Enceladus, one of the Sens of Titan, and caft them on the ground at the feet of the Tiranovs. Jupiter affailed them tharply, and one creed flap. flep. but be that to creed was flain by the bands of fupiter, that beffroved bis doperfaries. Dawas flrong and poung, and of high enterpalve. De befenbeb bim bigozoufly as a Lion, mightilp as an Glepbant, and eagerly as a Toger, and fought not only the defence of his body, but to labe and refcue all them that were in peril under bis charge : be bid marvailous things on all fibes, the hofe and bemir poubled and revenbled about him The Thanovs begen to be oberthiolen begrent routs : onefell on his thoulbers, another on his Shielb, and he charges fo foze upon them that his frokes might not be fullamed of men, they mere fo ffreng.

Expise battel was cruel and bardy at beginning for both parties, and there were many of the Triancys, of Arcadians and the Epitiens harf, bead and each underfoot, Archas was there accompained with fifty Arcadians, appointed for the gnard of his body, foral many as he was roung per he pur himself to arms, Mellifeus sailed not, nor Trians, Lycaon, Egeon on the other, we used upon the ground, nor both often one set upon the ather but there was nothing to him impossible. Deadercame the operconners, he see the sagers, he simple sound the limiters, he pur himself nothe south, and in so many places in the bartel of the Titancys rbat he came and found Titan in his Chair, that overthrew the Episiens with flunes and cound plummets, that he cast on them, and creed, Titan, Titan, foral much as he supposed, he fought well. When Jupiter knew that Titan was there, he drein toward him, and as Titan advanced his arm to swife an Episien, Jupiter lifted up his brook, and charged upon his arm, that he smote it off, and parted it from his body, whereof he had great jog, and creed, Jupiter, Jupiter, and Titan so burt fell down wirbin bis Chair.

1.831000

Ar this time the Epiriens beganto courage themfelbes, and the Titanoys were discouraged. Lycaon and Egeon were by, where they fam their fathers arm fip into the fieto : then then began to affail Jupiter, as men delpaired, and began a new combate, where much blood was spilled. But norwithflanding the fiercentle of Lycson that Japace bablong time in batreb, foratmach as be bed taken from bim his Lozolbip, Japiter follower to to eagerly to put Titan to the forl, that he brake his Chair in pieces, by the belp of the Epiriens, and with the Dword that be Imote off his arm, be parted the life from the body of Titan, by a moztal arabe that he gave to his beart, : and then bent be his endeahour to perfecute Lycaon and Egeon, that had given to him many firekes, and he finete with his binozd upon the bear of Lycaon, whereat Egeon fed, and shed him from the shirmish in which skirmish the Ticanoys so unmeasurable had the worff, that all were put to flight in the fields : one of the Sons of Titan named Tiphon, leging the discomfiture, came unto Jupiter, and foid : Jupiter, lee bere chins enemp: die not after them that fip a it will be unto thee more bonourable to fight againft me, than to rem after the Sugitibes : Reber pet was 3 found figing befoze mine enemies, noz pet will 3. Thou balt flain Titan my father, and My Brother is flain and banquifbeb by force and firength, and to it behover that this Mealm muft be fuint or mine : and now let us fee who hall bo beft : Af 3 map I will hanquil thee ; and if I obercome thee, certainly, thou Walt not bye by my Sweed, but by the water of the flood that funnerly red, and Deed by the blood of my kindaed, to the end, that thou baink of the blood that thou ball made run out of their bobies, bobies. whereof Binbe great forrow, for by the courfe of Pature Jought to take hispleasure, and to turn to great bespite the hispleasure than hall bone unto me.

CHAP. XD

How Jupiner sanguished in the field, Typhon, and cast him into was full of prefumption and pribe 7 Den Typhon In pat fait all ther was in his heart, Jupiter fait anrobim, manail, ban thou no briowledge what reafen and right the Gods and fortune pake bone for the Thou are firing of members: and there proceeds from the beart tooods mor ourragious than wife, and fordimuch as mounemanbell bartel, thou art melcome: make thee traop, und do the ben thou cann. Maith this word, Typhon findte Jahren to rud, a apon his thield, that he bart away a great quarret, and made Jupiter to flaop with the right ley. Where were many Episiens that fering Jopiter to fmitren,ran and came to refeue bim : but fapiter would not futfer them, but bab Mellifeus and Archas that they fould follow the chafe of them char flett And then he began to affait Typhon be great rigium and totee, in fuch wife that he gave bim many wounds in his bode, and row began the battel of Typhon and Jupiter : they were both from and able in the craft of arms, they charged one another hercely. Some frokes the one gave the other : but Jupiter finete bis enemp, that be rook from bim bis Sword and Shieldine when he was in at that point be catsieb bim upon bis Bonfoers by togee of arms, ont bare bim to the Kiver that was beeb with the blood of Bead men : and there be call bim into the flood with the bead downmard, fozafmuch as behab menwer Jupiter wirb fuch'a beath. After the beath of Typhon, Jupiter went again to the purfuit of his enemies, until the Sun began to beeline into the Bueft, and followed on wirb great flaughter ? Pat Titan and the mot people were fo feeble and bifperfed in the fields, that mep might ne ber rife again, be founded the retreat, and affembleb bis felk, and took the right way to the City, babing great fop of bis bictozp. And be he hed not tarried long, bur that four Citizens of Creer came unto him, and told him, that they of the party of Than were fled, and that they had taken out of Pailon his father.

CHAR XIL

How Jupiter and Saturn reconciled themselves together, and how Jupiter by commandment of his Father, went to destroy King Apollo of Papher, and of the Medicine of Esculapius.

Upites receibed these Cativens and their tybings in great glabness, and bestring with elibis beart to be with his father and Borbes, bid so much speed him that be entred into Creer, Sature and Cibel with Vella were at the Gate, which received him bonography, and bacogut him to the Palace, where he was teated with the Wang Mallifens and Assiss, in such fathion that is could be no later. At accoming of Jopics many teats were went too lays by Dame Cabel and Vella, Cibel his and beclipt oftentimes her son : and all they of the Countrey came thirtee into the Walace to feel and woodhip Jupiter, and also they gave him, many great gifts. And this not to be forgot ten, both Saturd recognises bimfall unto him, and gave him a flate as to bis from Euging their things, the bopp of Tital was learched among the orab bodies, by the commandment of Saturn, and there was made for bim a foleme Dbfequie, as it appertained to a Bing, and likewife unto bis Dans that were found dead in the Writel, Mil the Song of Then were not per rithed and bead in the battel; for among all other, Jopetus and Briarius were left alive and fleton that is to lay, Brigrius was fled into the fle cf Greece, named Nericos, and Jopetus den into a part of Libie where he inhabited and be had with him three bons, whereof the eibelt mas named atlas, the ferond Helperus, and the third muned himfelt Prometheus, Atla divelleb in Libie, and Helperus reigned in Spain, and were both banquithed by Hercules, as that be repearfed in the fecond books Juben Saturnand Jupiter bab bone the oblequies of the Ti-tanoys, tybings came to Jupiter that Apollo Ring of Paphos had taken part with them that fled from the battel of the Tire.

g.

ht

.

to re-

re

-

100

9:00

f.

.

in of

íŧ

S

de

Di

.

11

m

D

te

b

14

25

Ġ.

caneys. This fait Apollo bat mate alliances with Satura and mas bon of Jupiter of Attick. When Jupiter and Saturn beard thefe tybings, Saturn required Jupiter that be would take bengeance on Apollo that was bis Allie, and that be would befire bis enemies. At the request of Saturo be enterpaised the war . and in balle went and belieged the City of Paphos, and took it withaffault, and put to swood all the fugitibes that be could find : and mozeover, be spoiled Apollo of all his riches and of bis Lozd bips, leaving bim fo nakedly, that be beparted from Paphos, notas a Bing, but as a poor beygar : and fortune was to bim to confrare that be was confirmined to keep the theep of Bing Admetus of Theffaly. In this place fome men fap, that in the time that lupiter began to mount in bis Reign and to embrace benour, Efculapius Son of Apollo, which was expert in Dedicine, and fearching on a day his absentures, as be went by a wood fibabe fam from far, wherean Berolman with bis little boan, fought against a Bafilisk, that of bis nature flew the people only with his fight. Then Esculapius fam this, be greatly marbelled, be bad not long abidden, but that the Berdiman had obercome the Bafflisk, and confirained bim to withbeam bim upon a Bock that was there bard bp. Esculapius was amaged with this thing. To that be knew not what to fap : foz be thought it was impossible for any man to obercome so mortal a Beaff. When the Bafilish was withdawn upon the Bock, Elculapius went baftilp unto the Derbiman, and finding that be had on his bead a Chaplet oz Barland made of bibers berbs and flowers, be judged incontinently, that in this afogelaid Warland was an berb of fuch bertue that kept bim from beath, and alfo from the fubtil benome of the Bafflisk. Then be entreateb to that the Berbiman oz Shepberd, gabe bim bis Chaplet 62 Barland, as ignorant of the bertue thereof : and then, the faib Berbiman went again to affail the Bafilisk : and fubbenip with one paoper fight of bis eyes, the poor Shepberd fell beab to the earth. STEP OUR : R

Esculapius tons then well affured, that he had well thought that in the Chaplet was an herb that sufficed to withstam against the malicious intorication of the benemous eyes of

Beans: and with the fair Chaplet he want to the Rock, and fought against the Basilisk that he sew him. Then he had thus bone, he went unto the Pearosiman, and hading pite on him took all the herbs one after another, whereof the Chaplet was made, and put them severally each be himself in his mouth. And at last he touched the leaves of the vertuous perh, and brussed it in his mouth, so putting it in the dead mans mouth, suddenly he rose from to death life. Desarthous bertue of an herb: men read that he the same herb, Hippolicus (which came unto his death by the means of his shep-morpes, who accused him falsty) afterward was raised to life again, and after he had been long dead and death theology busses, bedges, mountains and though, when his body was found, and they that found him said him in a Pedow upon a plat of herbs, like unto the herb whereof was spoken before, by the vertue of the same his wounds were beeseled.

and his life was given and pielbed to him agains and

When Elcolapius had railed the Bertiman of Sheoherd. he took the bert and the Ballish, and bare them unto the City of Paphos, relling his abbent are and from thenceforth he raifen men from hearh to life. buthe bertue of the berb. And for this caufe be got bim fo bigb a name, that Jupices was delpleafet at bis glozp, and flem birm stabbereal bis farter Apollo foob fo great fearon to himfelf, that he entermised the may auding Twoiter but Tupiter obereamt bin, anbeontteamen bem to frief an ertzemite that to bibe bis name, be went and ferbeb Bing Admetus of Theffelie. And thus when Jupiter bab banquifbed Apollo, be returned unto Creet with great glozy and themb there Neptune and Plato bis Bretbren, and Juno bis fifter. 118 Mbis Tist no was the most beauriful woman and fairest Warn in all the Country. After the return of Jupicer the converfed wirb bim & certain fpace op time, albeit thep bifcovered nor their minbs at this time. And in paocels of time Juno returned into Parthenie. mith the other Wirgins which the hab been nourithen with, and abobe in many thoughts and befires : and mabe neber other peavers unto the Gobs, but that they only would give her drace to be wife unto ber brother. And it is not to be forgorten, that as the was ficongly fet in love with her Boother Tupiter, as much the e.

Ù

Ø

a

n

g

)

g

5,

n

9

),

D

g

B

6 in i

g

16 βĺ

ò

P

b

r

t

much as more was Jupiter in love with her. For to her anely after that he had tent home all his men of war into their own Countries, and that he had established his Father Saturn in his seignizette, and Lordhip) under the colour of Depotion he went aftentimes into the City of Parthenie, and took pleasure to be with her.

CHAP. XIII.

How Jupiter with great joy Spouled his Sifter June. And how King Seturn began War against Jupiter his ion.

. For he had be over his Son outsitely at that time A Boas Jupiter was buffe to Colicite the Hirgin Juno in Parthenie, to babe the better occasion to abide there, be builded a Temple and dedicated it to bis mother Cibel, and bid make an Image oz Statue of a moman in Kopal attpre, that gave meat oton many finall Amages, of little Children, in remembrance th at Bebab fa bed the life of ber Chilbren. And mben this Kemple was perfected and made unto the Debication, Saturn and Cibel came thether with all the Robles of the Countro, and made a great folemnito, that bured fifteen baies in great glabnels. And at this great featt and merriment failed mot lupiter and Juno, for about theend of this falemnito, the Sables of the Country treated their marriage, and the Briefie of the Temple of Cibel affured and betrothed them together. In the fame Memple their Spoulais were mabe and celebzated with great glosp, not pollible to be rebearled. And Jupiter and Juno lap together, and engenbzeb a Daughter, that thep nameb Phebe. The Parthenians for memory of this marriage, formbell a Memple, wherein they fet the Image of Juno: And after Jupiter married Juno, they made in that Temple an Anniverfary feaft, which was beld in manner of a webbing. After thefe things, Saturn returned into Creet, and Pluto into a part of Theffaly, where be founded the City of Hell, whereof fall be Spoken in the Second book, and Neptune returned into Athens. where the Athenians made bim Ring, as well for his hertues as that be was bon of Saturn at that time the most renowned Ring of the mosile. La of diradilad ad

In those baps, when Saturn lam bimlelf quit of Titan, and that be fam his chilbren mount from low places to Beign in high Chairs, all his forrows banibed away, and then began the clearnels of this Beign to be peaceable : all boubts, and breads were puraway : We had of goods of fortune as much as be bould : Pone was to barby that burft compire againft bis bominion : be found bimfelf in peace generally. And it is tobe gathered out of the Beigns of this time, that he was in fo great peace and tranquillity, that be might habe finifet and ended bis days in the fame if bimfelf bab nor lought to begin and threaten war : foz be bab lupiter bis son unto belp, at that time the most paliant in arms that was in all the world. And when Bing Saturn fam bimfelf thus in peace, it came to bis mind that Apollo Baggnofficated, that this Jupice thould put bim out of bis Realm , Cubbenly there began to ingenber in bim a moztal bate against lupiter that bab bone bim fo many good deeds. And feeing every man beld bim in love, and was to buffe to pleafe bim, be was the moze incenfed, and gabe crebence unto this curfed Baognoffication : and be returned unto bis ancient forrows, and fantafies, in fuch wife that be made them appear Outward . It insmires one has rear sid in Call

Biben they of Creet fato Saturn to troubled, bis fecret conn-Cil enbeapoured to comfast himt but it beloed nought, for they tout not get from his mouth the caute of his melancholly, till be had determined that be would perfecute bis Son Jupiter. And then be bio affemble bis Brinces and Councellozs, and fait to -them : I charge and ablues pou all, by the names of all our Coborthat pe abbife mee what walkor ought a thing to be with a man that be houseed, by a bittine animer that bath been faid to bim, that this man Gall out bim out of bis Beign and Bing-Then thep of Creet bab unberftood the charge and a biuration of the Bing, they appointed one, to give this answer: Dir, the Council knowerb rharge bat antwer of your Gob, that re hab engenbred a Son that bould put wou out of pour Bealm and that Dame Cibel was then engentred of Jupiter : the Counsil prayeth you that we will confider, both pe were depribed of weur Crown and bad loft it,and be belibered gau,and quit pou of POUL your enemies. If the cause of your charge and adjuration touch not this matter, the Council is of opinion, that if the Ming have puillance and might over him that he doubterh, and that he have cause enthent, he ought to make him sure from that man, and free from bangers.

30

15

11

Ė

n

9

n

ut of 8

D

0

0

t

r

PI

D

.

ż

Û

-

ŀ

r:

ıt

Said Saturn, the abbice of the Council is reafonable enough : fozalmuch an 3 muft beclare to you, what 3 mean : 3am rhe Bing that I fpeak of, and the man that I boubt, is fupiter, mp bon : bim I fear and bread much more than beath, infomuch that I map not enbure, noz take reft foz bim : foz fleeping 3 bream that be rifeth againft mee, and affaileth mee in arms, mith a great multitute of Arcadians and Epiriens, and reftetb conquerous and bictozious ober me : and waking, I babe alway mine ears open to bearken, if be be about to come on me with men of arms : and thus 3 can babe no reft. 3 am a man loft. This confidered , I will that be bead : and I take the blame and fin upon me. And, I will that pe know that Jam pour Bing. and that ge to me owe obeplance, for that I command you upon pain of beath, that there be not one man that is fo barby to gainfap any thing contrary to my will, that each of you be to mozrow found ready in arms befoge this Walace.

CHAP. XIV.

How they of Creet, when they heard the commandment of Saturn were fore troubled: and how he gathered his forces against Jupiter his Son.

Then they of Creet had beard the resolution of Saturn, they were greatly assamed: and he was a terrible man to offend: and they knew that wrongfully he willed the dearh of his Son Jupiter, that had restozed him to his Lozoship: Pauthere were that went into another Kingdom because they would not be with the Father against the Son, not with the Son against the Father. But there was no man that durst be so hardy to reply against Saturn not say that he didebil, for they dreaded moze his ire, than to offendiustice. After the commandment of Saturn, each man withdrew him to his house, full of grief and foarow in beart. And there was not one man, but bab bis face charged with grief and beabinels.

9 3

The day then drew past: and on the morn, Saturn Armed himself and sounded Arumpets to arms. They of Creet arose this morning, and many there were of them that knew the intention of Saturn: And also there were many that marballed at that, what the King would do, and could find no reason wherefore he made this Army: for all Creet was in peace, and all the Titanoys were dispersed, and put unto destruction for ever. Among all other, Cibel knew not what to think: Seeing that Saturn sent not soy Jupiter, the demanded of him offentimes whither he would go, and soy what reason be took not Jupiter with him in his company? Jupiter was at that time in Parthenic with his wife Juno.

When Saturn had heard the demand of his wife Cibel, all his blood began to change, and he said, that the should know the place that he would go to. Cibel was wife and subtil: when the heard the answer of the Ring, and sate the sastion of his countenance, her heart gave her that he had some ill will: and the had sulpicion that he would do harm to Jupiter. Therefore the went into her Chamber very pensive, and at all adventure sent hassily into Parthenic, and signified to Jupiter, that he should depart hassily from thence: and that the imagined that Saturn his father would do him displeasure, for he made a very great assembly of men of Arms, and there was no man that could tell the cause thereof.

CHAP. XV.

How King Saturn with all his Hoft came before the City of Areadia against Jupiter his son.

I Cre is to be noted, that Jupiter had his heart very displeafant when he dad received these tydings from his Pother, and although the warned him by supposing, as the that knew not verily the will of the King: yet when he considered that he was not sent for unto his army, he boubted him, and departed from thence, and said to his wife Juno, that he would go unto Arcadia.

dia, concluding in himself, that by this means he hould see the behaviour of his father, and to what place he employed his Armie. But he was not far on his way, when he rested upon a Pountain, and looked behind him, that he saw the City of Partheole, full of the men of Arms of King Saturn: that gave to him a great proof of the advertisment of his Pother. And to see what way he bent his course, he tarried still on the Pountain, having his eyes always unto the City. And anon he saw his father Saturn mount into his Chair, and all his Armie is see out of the same Bate where he came from and took the same way that he had taken: And that gave him berily to understand and know that his father sought him. And so be departed from this Pountain, and went to Arcadia, and told his Son, and to the Arcadians the cause wherefore he was come, and prayed them, that they would furnish him with good Armours, to the end be might befend their City if need mere.

D

D

(e n-

d

2-

H

r.

11

g

er ie

is

3

D

-

g

r

The Arcadians at the request of Jupiter, made ready thetr Arms and their City, and fent out fpies upon the bap. non, after thep were come from the Walace the fpies affirmed to Japiter and Archas, that they had feen the Champain country, and the ways of Arcadia all full of men of Arms. Anon there was proclaimed in the City in the name of their fobergion Lozb Jupiter, thar every man bould make good watch, and keep bis warb. With this cry, the Arcadians armed them with Delmets and arms of leather : and went upon the Malls, baying in their bambs Ares, Swezds, Builarms, Oleabes, and Waces. And thep law come from far two men of Creer, which came to the Bate, and asked of the Bogters if Jupiter were within? The Worter, when be unberftood what thep asked, anfwered them, that Jupiter was in the City: and if they bad any thingto do with him, they bould find him in the Walace, where he palled the time with his son Archas : and that be was newly come unto the Town to billt bim. Aben they of Creet beard this, they were fore troubled : for they fought him that they would not find. Priwithflanding they went in and patter for the wird up to the Walace, where they finding Jupiter with the Mobles of Arcadia, after Due reberence mabe, one of them fpake.

and faid: Aft, we feek thee: and we have no will to find the, for we come against our will, to execute a commission, by the which may sooner come ruine and trouble than peace to Creet and us. Saturn the father commandeth thee that thou alone come speak with him, he bath sought thee, in all the places of Parthenic. His Daughter Jund the wise (not thinking shil) hath ascertained him that thou are come bither. He is come after thee in arms, and we know not whathe thinketh to do: so he was never so angry, nor sorrowful, as he is now. The be his servants sorce hath constrained us to his obestance, and sor this same bour, all excufations ferapart.

When Jupiter hab confidered and well ponbied in bis mind the abitrement of fummons, with his eyes full of tears, be made this answer. I marvel of the right frange bemeanour of my father : and perabbenture it is not without great caufe: Dis Bealm is in peace. I babe put bim and fet bim again in bis Realm, be putteth bimfelf in arms without my knowledge, and now be lenderh for me, that I would alone come fpeak with bim : that is too ftrange a thing unto me. And be behabeth bimfelf not as be ought to bo: for men ought to praise them that babe beferbed it and be of balue. I have abailed bim as much as his Bealm is worth : and he bath at other times fent for me to make war. I know not what enil befire be bath or map babe towards me. But bere be is come with his Army, where be bath nothing to bo. And being come be demanderh nothing but me only. All things confibered I babe no reason to obey his commandment notwithfianding, that be is my father : fozalmuch as the fulpicion is too much apparent. But 3 am content, if be babe to bo with me, to ferbe bim, and to come to bim, upon condition that I hall be accompained with all mp friends that I can get and not otherwife.

The two Commissaries, with this word returned unto Saturn, and told him the intention of Jupiter, Saturn fook impatiently the answer of Jupiter, and approached unto Arcadia, making his abow unto his Bods, that if he may have Jupiter, he with his hands would make sacrifice of him. And then he sent for his mos

The Destruction of Tro.

het,

the cet

ano of (li afbe bis big me nb be of le. lis nb th n.

15 ch' ne

g TE u CP.

10 a. g

2.

1

.

6

most wife men, and willed them, that with cruel menares they footly go fummen the Ring Acchas and the Accadians, to pieto and officer unto bim Jupicer: occineran openie and plainty, that he was more his enemy than his Ron.

son deliber unto bill Judice de la periode and platingspar pe das moze his enemy rom his bon.

Epe toile mendepacted from the Volt, al refecommandment of Satura and did perform their dedopts to lummon the Arcadians and faid to the Bing and people of Arcadia; die be come to good, foreintely as setting in proper a topical results for mine Satura policeto an enemy, reliting four is setting this units Satura pe hall be his friends; and if nacturbely give you to wor, spat as so keep good benefit measure. The sole wone in the coordinate make people of general properties and the setting and make the setting of the setting and the setting of the setting and the setting of the sett to affection. But the error because the particle of Career, and there approaches the process of Career, and there approaches the process of Career, and there are process of the process of Career, and the proces eine Agir and south prome a letter freir Arie onthe reter col-tage. A River was that some on derent and make a trone call, and many bearing and hurr, as well within an dithout of there was no Gens. Bombards, the great arriver in the sealms. They set she City biblioch was their entailes turning by ands and opin, and universe begingsoit, after 1602 and 1203 and and sels and indices topling tolly affect in a first of the Arcadian people, men and touten, that when they of Creet came most Areng to the affault, and Cuppoling to bale mireb the City, they were charged with fire,opls, and fealbring waters, which of force confirmined them to go but he with ground of all people; and to found the retreats Sacuro tabling matt foare to, top that by the Malls lap moge than four bumbpeb of bis men beab, effurning unto bis Ment, after the affoult, paffing forrimful : hab fo great GREEN CONTRACTOR TO THE STATE OF THE STATE O

arief at bis beart, thet be rould meither eat noz baink. But foz all this normithianding berhought well on his burt people, and went to their Lents, and bib caule, Diplitians to minifter medicine unto them that were burt the Julier fenting Amballedorsto his Father Saturn for peace: and how Saturn would not confent to peace. the re the t be bis friends : and if nor. Whorn gibe toute wor.

The Arrahians were give toward begin to bow they of Creco cealed with hame their manie, and after the retreat on both lives Sauce appleed to beat and give medicines unto bis burt men: Alle Accedians then affemblet a Council, and by great beliberation ther fent faurs of their bonourable Counfelipps in Am balloge to Saturn; of achiem the one faid, Saturn, then knowed that every bing student delicum to live in peace for the most fairlibent in the most appears; by peace are profe pered men i Motons, und Cities, ar united and knit together by charify and withere one by smodolal communication : by peace. Realms profit, indespriment and building fair boules, and in length of difeit projects one bedies be subdision dulet said it. is that, the country a summed demands openingness ab Security it fremath then then their reported vertical good because of a particular ing impeare ond tranquility were in no Ting, nor Brince that bare them bimielf againt thee. Thou baft not only troubled the Realm, but artianiabufen of war : to babe pente, a man. ought to other the war. Whou perfeat otherwife: and regarden not that the hen Jupiten bath delettered thee from the hands of thine enemies, and ball fer the Diabemin a futere of peace. which thou mighteft not be withouthim? Stell thou not, that by making bim war, thou canft not babe peace : and that thou Deftroped aub brenken this peace, feelt thou not that this is the Son by marring apaint tohom thou art a Sonfteriri Bature? The fathers naturally love their Children: and the irine and bruit Bealis keep and boto this condition of Bature? Thou feekeft and wouldeft beffrog the San. From tobentecometh this unnatural appetite ? Dight it not fuffice the cruel purpofe and dia old terrour to think on the goodness and benefit that thou basi received lately by his restoring thee to Reign? Be thine interiour rancours permanent? Shall the fantaties never cease? Milt thou be in age more faolish than a Child? The more men grow in age, the more they be wise. About ast less knowledge now than thou had in the wildest youth. From whence cometh this befault? Is this by the Deapenly induence? If it he thus, where is reason? where is equity? where is the love of the Father to the Son? and knowest thou not, that had not supicer thy Son been, thou had been in great darkness, languishing: I signifie to thee, as the advocate of supicer, that he lover the as his own Father: and turthermore, I proposed that thou will be in peace. Anoif thou will will him no good, per ar least will bim no barm.

n

8

14

H

11

È.

1

H

£.

D.

W.

ft

f

IÈ:

u.

g

3

O

Ú

g

0

I fould foon pield to pour bemand (antwered Saturn) if the erperience of the life of Jupiter come not to mp fight. See 3 not, bow be eralteth bimfelf the moft be can? See I not, bom the people by his fair and fawning mozds, ome bim moze fabour than mee? See 3 not, that be flyeth from me? If be be not culpable wherefoze flyeth be? De will lay to the people, that be is innocent. Say pe that be bath nothing bone againft me? I know not bow the Arcadians take it : but if I map once fer my band on them, there was never fuch a great beffruction as thail come unto Arcadia, and I babe not as now any purpole to bepart from this place, till I babe utterly raced the City, that rebelleth against me and my commandments. Sir (an-Imered the Arcadians) fince that fair Treethes map not reffrain the great ire, not refirsin the war, bewate, thou keep the felf from us, and us frim thee, for the matter that he berided by war. Bod fpeeb the right and foreune, we will not long brain forth time : it is concluded, that the Arcadians and Jupiter will iffue to morrow out of the City: and if they find any affail them they must and will befend their lives.

This speech ended, Saturn turned his back to the Arcadians, waking his bead, and the Arcadians returned into their City, and repearled from the beginning to the end all that they had done: and by their report, it was confirmed, that the bay fol-

T 2

Toffine

rowing they would iffue our ofthe City,as they bab purpofeba-mong themfelbes.

Jupiter had great displeature in himself, that he saw bis kather was so grieved, and would not be content, yet notwithstanding he doubted not so much, but took contage, and said: he was more holden to keep his life, than to obey the evil will of his kather, that hated him at his birth. Ahis night passed over. About the third bour of the day, Archas, Jupiter, and the men of war of the City, went into the field in good order: and they were not so soon issued out of the Gates, but they were seen of the Saturnians, that waited for them by the commandment of Saturniand then began each against other, so great noise and trie, that it resounded unto the Dountains and Malls. And then they began to assist the Arcadians by Got and stones, so eagerly that when Jupiter saw there was no other remedy, but to sight, be put him south foremost in the front, so began to say to them that so ught him, crying with an high boyce, loe here is Jupiter each man bo to bim what be map.

Mbus began the bologous battel of Saturn and Jupiter. Mbere was the father againft the Son, there toft nature ber fair and commendable paoperties. The father lought to fpill the blood he had engendred : and promifed great gifte unto them that might take bim. The battel was rigozous and cruel : and then to20ught and fought well both Jupiter and Archas, and above all the noble Jupiter employed la banbely bis Iwood tempered with Sreel that be fmete boten both Shields and Belmets, and cut off beads and arms, and there was no man might refift bis intincible paewels. De mape to tremble the bardieft that were there : be mabe them retire and to go back, that had advanced themfelbes moze than they had power and firength to maintain. De banke the wings of the battel : and in their moft ffrength be met and encountered many times Saturn bis father, and it was often in bis power to grieve bim : but though Saturn laib on bim, and gape bim griebous wounds, per bee would never fmite again, but fait to bim oftentimes : Alas , my father, toberefozefeekell thou the effution of my bloob? I am thy Son, and the Sertaut : Thou haff no caufe to perfecute mee, 3 will 10n nor lay my band upon thee; but beware and put not affrance in the Arcadians, for if they may get thee in their power; thou thalt find in them little pirp oz mercy.

f

Saturn normithftanbing wonto not refrain bis ire! but fmote ever upon Jupiter as fiercely as be could. Jupiter of all bis firokes took no beed, and fer little thereby, and though be had occasion to fight and Imite bis gather, be turned bis ftrokes.and hab no confrience to occupy his tharp Swood upon them of Creet.pst Cometimes be Totalb on, that every froke wirbout fail was bred with new blood. And this be bid, meaning to them Saturn that be fought againft bim in bain, and that to bim was norbing impossible. All these things nothing bismareb Saturg. The crp was great about Jupiter, the arms were greatly erercifeb. the ground was all covered with the effution of blood, and the bead bodies lap one upon another bebeabeb and fmitten in pieces. D cruel and foze battel, Saturn was fo foze entampled in his Dbflinger, that the blod of his men wetting their arms be the course of the large wounds that Jupiter made in them. might not moberate bis ire noz beat. And bis epes were fo blind in bis ice that be faw not bis ebibent bamage : noz bow be lought the paoper mean, by which be was put out of his Bealm. that he boubred, and against which be intended to make resiflance,and elibem it with bis might.

CHAP. XVII.

How Jupiter vanquished in battel Seturn his Father: and Saturn fled by sea.

Is this battel, Jupiter oftentimes labed Saturn among the Swoods of the Arcadians, and bid good against evil, many of them of Creek fought against their will, knowing that Saturn was cause of the war: and notwith sanding they put their bands to wook, get the faint-beartedness that they had among themselves, was cause of the loss of a great number of people. They banded Jupiter, and had no power to fight so well as they would bake done, if they had known the quartel to be good: and by this manner was the battel demeaned, to the great prejudice of the Saturnians. Jupiter submitted himself to his Father, and oftentimes erzed in his ear that he should wirbblad him, or the bactel would be worse. De withstood his strokes a great solite, waiting that he would canbert himself from his evil opinion. But then at last when jupiter took heed, and sate that he would in no wife hear him, he displayed his valour, and the great might of his arms, and of his Dword, and made such a stray upon his Advertaries, breaking their Pelms, and bewing their Parnels, not in manner of a man, having all day sustained the sear of great strokes and consists of the Saturnians; but in the manner of a Champion fresh and new, of whom the strokes redoubled.

3 3

Thus then it feemed unto the Saturnians, that in multiplying of the Arokes, the firength and puillance of Jupiter began to rebibe. Dis well boing and baliantnels, gave unto the Arcadians trength upon trength : and unto bis enemies great lofs of blood, and also of life. The ground was bedewed with new blood : The dead bodies cohered with new dead men. Abere was the Chair of Saturn Tmitten into pieces, Saturn belba long while the battel, as long as his firength would endure : and in no wife would fip. But in conclusion when his men faw that the war went with them from evil to woofe, they began to retyze, and turned their backs and fled : and Saturo turned and fled in person: then they were followed in the chase so sharply, that fome were flain in the way, and fome faved themfelbes bere and there. Among all other, Saturn was fo nigh purfued by Archas and some of the Arcadians, that be bad no leisure to return into Creet, but was baiben by foace till be came unto a Boat of the Sea there by, where be labed himfelf by means of a Ship that he there found ; and he went unto the Sea, with fome of them that fled, le penfibe that be might not fpeak.

Thus this battel ended, both of the Father and the Son. when Archas law that Saturn was lawed in the Sea, he returned to Jupiter his Father, and allembled again his people, and told them these tyding, and also be assembled his Council, to know what Jupiter hould be. And they of the Councel were all of the opinion, that Jupiter hould go into Creet, and that they mould

ren-

batbile.

ion.

olute

teat

up-

brir

the

t in

BES

pipgan

rca-

lofs

tem

Row

ona

D in

bat

TE-

md

dp,

bes

150

STE

ate

of

itb

HI.

TI-

nd

to

Ili

ep

would make him King, saping, that the Bods had shewed clearly that he should succeed as King in the Kealm, when his hather was sted to cast much as they had then no head. No this countel accorded jupices, and went to Creet, where he was received, King, the Cicisens durft not say against it, And strhough Chel, and Vesta made great sorrow for the missourm of Saturn, pet they turned their sorrow into gladness at the Coronation of Jupicer, and sent for Juno. Aben began Jupicer to Keign, in much buting and parting unto the Arcadians the treasures of his father, whereof they had great joy, and sor this cause (say the Boets) supicer was gelded, and rast his genitors into the Sea, of whom was engended venus: That is to say, he cast the treasure of his sather into the bellies of his men, whereof engended all voluptuousness, which is compared and likened unto Venus.

rigan tegit dillegranger dan ... xyiii.

How Actrifies had a daughter named Danse, which he did cause to be shut in a Tower because he had an answer that she should have a son which should turn him into a stone.

18 Hole bays buen Jopiter of Creer flourifted in beneur, and Maliance, in the City of Argos reigned Bing Achrifius, that caufed bis Daughter Danae to be kept in a Romer. To know the: Genealogie of this King, it is to be noted, that of Japiter and of a Damofel named Ifis, came a Son named Ecophus : this Epophus engendzed a Son and a Daughter, the Son was named Belus, and reigned in Egypt, and the Daughter named Lubia; and owelt in Affrick, where de conerived a son named Bufris, that was an unbumane Appant, as hall be repearled hereafter in the beebs of Hercules. Belus theurengenbaeb timo Sons. Danaus and Egyptus, Danaus bad fifty Daughters, and Egy. ptus had as many Sons. And thele Sons and Doughters were conformed together by Barriage. Egyptus bebing married bis: Song was bereibet in his knowledge, for Danaus for entrand coperoulnels to babe the fucceffion, mabe bis Dambters traiteroully murther all the fifty Sons of Egyptus, the night of their

their Ciponfals, as they flept. And all confented to this berrible crime ercept Hyperneitra, which had a fiedfall bears of piete : for when the bould have perfecued ber husband Linceus, the laved his life mercifully, and also conceived of his feed, in Son that was named Abas, that after was Bing of Argos : and be engendzed the Ring Achrifius : whereof is made mention in the beginning of this Chapter. Thele were the Warents and Brogenirozs of hing Acheifius, he was bery puissant in riches, but be named bimtelf popa: for be bad no ebilbren but one baughteronig, which be named Danac : and to have a Son be went bay by bap, to the Bracles of the Bobs : and there move prapers and farritices, alms and other fuffrages. All thele things might not belp noz bring to pals the accomplifment of bis befire. Dis wife tame unto ber barren rears, and be was out of all bope to have any Child male, and then be comfarted bimfelf in Danae bis Daughter, and fet his lobe fo greatinon ber, that be bab no pleature, but only to behold her : and be purpoted that never men hould babe ber, errept be were the mon noble and baliantell man in the world. But fozalmuchas in this world is nothing ourable, this lose was of little enduring, and that by the procuring of the Ring Achrifius : for that the labe be bad in Denac, grem of natural jealoufie, be went to the Dracle of Belus his old Grandfather, and fearthing tobat fould be the belling of his Daughter be dibeaufe bim to be aufmered that of ber bould come a Son that Gould turn bim inton fione.

Berbis answer. Achrisius began to fall from the great labe that he had to ber returning sorowful into his house, and became very melantholis, intrhout taking iop or pleasure in any thing that he saw, his Dangbier was then poung a he saw her observationes, otherwhile in cruelty, and sometime in pits. The remorded that, that he looked to be transformed into a stone, by him that hould be born of his Daughter, moved him to cruelty that oftentimes he betermined to put her to death, and spill her blood, to remode his missortume. But when he had taken his hand the Sward wherewith he intended to say her, Arture began to put her self between them: and from this cruelty made him to condestend to plty, and put away his Sward.

This King Achrifius from thencefeath took bis reft. croffed mith many fighs, and could not be affured of bimfelf. Dis baughter grew and became a woman : De was berp fair, and manp Bings and great Logos befired to babe ber in Barriage, and mould babe endowed ber with noble Crowns. But the Bing Achrifius refuled all them that required ber, and imagined, that his Daughter, foz ber great beauty, might be taken awap and rabifbed, by which the might by adbenture babe a Son that thould turn bim into a flone. And to the end, toefchem this peril and banger, be thought, that be would make a Momer the frongeft in the woalb,and in the fame Lower tould bis Daughter Danae be thut buring ber life, without coming of any man to ber : fez be was fo jealous of ber, that be beliebed ber not mell when be fam ber. In the end be fent foz wookmen, and forgers of Steel and Copper, from all parts, and brought them unto a firong place, all environed with waters, where was no entry but in one place.

ing,

3(4

ab

fits nh

28,

b-tnt

ers

de de

015 nae

no

rec

Ili-

0-

be

1.

us

of

lþ

be 12-er er

be le.

U-

8.

r,

-

D.

is

Miben be bad brought thither all bis werkmen, be laid to them, that be would habe a Lower made all of Copper, with a Bate feberal from the Mower, to put in four and twenty men of Arms, to keep the Lower if it were need. The Mogkmen agreed with Ring Achrifius, to make the Tower and the Bate. and fet on band to the work : the Lower was mabe in Bozt time : and when all was atchiebed, Achrifius bzought thither bis Daughter without letting ber know bis intention. And as foon as the was in the Mower, be fait unto ber : Pp onlp Daughter it is come unto my knowledge, that in fearching the profperite to my God Belus, I babe been abbertifeb that of thee hall come a son which hall convert and turn me into a flone. Thou knoweft that every man naturally coveteth to libe I love thee pasting well, and nothing in the world in bis lite. fo much ercepting mylife. But certainly my life toucheth me nearer to my beart, than thy love : wherefore I feeking and requiring the remedies against my paedeffinate mif-foatume, would never gibe thee in marriage to any man that bath required thee. Alfo, to the end, that generation befcend not of the body, and that thou houldest babe no knowledge of man buring my life,

I have made to be framed this Kower of Copper, and will that thou be closed and that therein, and that no man see thee. I pape thee my Daughter, accord thee unto my will and befire; and take patience in this place so, to pass the time. I will provide to accompany thee with many noble Airgins, that shall give unto thee all that thou canst or mayest think needful.

When the noble Damofel Danae underftood the mill of ber father, the bebeld the Lower of Copper made to keep ber thur faft therein. And further, when the confidered that the thould neher marry buring the life of ber father the King, the was fore troubled about thefe things, and by great bitternels the began to weep, and faid : Alas mp father, am 3 boan under fo unhappy a Confiellation to be a martyres and Waisoner not in the end of mp years, but in mp poung time? Por in a Bailen of Hone butin a Momer of Copper, in fuch wife as I Chould biell therein perpetually? Thou enterpretest evil the fentence of the Bob Belus, faping that of me thall be boan a son that fhall turn thee into a flone : by this Centence ought no other thing to be unberftood but that 3 hati babe a Son that hall reign after thee, and hall turn thee into a fone. Abaris fap, inte the Sepulcher. Bebold then, what simpleness thail it be to thee to bebold me thus inclosed, and thut in this Momer. ADo Daughter (anfwered Achrifius) thouenterpzeteff the Bzognoffication of our God Belue, after what liketh thee to the joy and profit. It troubleth me, that if thou babe a Son, be fball but me to beath, and that is my jubament and fear. Baip-fap no moze to me, 3 am the father, Lozd, and Wafter ober the, that that abibe bere, either by love og otherwife. At this conclusion, when Danae fam that the might not content bet fearful father, as wife and lage as the was, the agreed, to bobis pleafure, pielving to it with the mouth, but not with the beart. End then the King fent for Wirains and allo old Watrons in all the Bealm about : and belivered his Daughter unto them. to accompany and keep her, and made them all to be but in with ber. After be took bis leave of them, commanding them upon pain of beath; that thep bould not fuffer any man to come and Treak with Die Daugbrer without bisknowledge: Miben be #

3

.

0-

H

er

id

en.

38

of 30

11

g.

m

61

of

q

g-.

קו

H

ap.

R,

n-

r-

is

ct.

in

m,

in

m

me

en

be

he had thus bone, he returned into the City of Argos, and alterabled forty firong women, which he gave wages to, and link them to keep the Gate, at the entry of the Rower. And then foread the renown of these things, in so great a sound and noise, that all Creek was full of the tydings, and there was no King may Prince, but complained so, the loss of fair Danae, named the most fair of all the Greekith Paidens, Daughter to the King.

CHAP. XIX.

How Jupiter, in guile of a Meffenger, brought unto the Tower of Dardan, to the Damosels, and to Danae, many Jewels, seigning that he came from Jupiter.

DP this Tower, and by this means Achrifius thought to ohercome this prebeffinate mil-fortune, and was well pleafen that his Daughter was in fo fure and fafe a place. mozid fpake of ber, and ber Aower, by compation they complained of ber effate, and it was fo much fpoken of this cause, that Jupiter bab bis ears full thereof : and not only bis ears, but also bis beart : for in bearing the recommendation of the ercelfibe perfection of this Wirgin Danae, be was eneamoured ofher greatly and befiroufly, as foon as the marriage of bim and Juno was confumated. And then be began with all bis beart, to think bow and when oz in what manner be might come to fee the Damolel Danae. And fo much be thought and fludied in this matter, that there was none other thing that be would bear of, noz no conferences of his men, labe only of them that fpake of the Baifon of Danae. And be fpake of it chearfully and talked with all biligence, cobeting instantly to be with ber, and that as well in the presence of Juno, as otherwise, faging many times, that be would that the gods would give him grace and power to being this Damolel Danae out of the Nower.

Bythele speeches Juno began to feel the first sparkle offealouse, casting infinite curses and maleditions upon Danae, and upon all them that had sown these tydings before her husband. This the Gewed not only in secret and in her stomach, but more ovenly in the prefence of ber Dusband, fewing ebidently, than the bad the attaint of jealoufie. Botwithftanbing, Tupiter mas neverthelels befirous to fee Danae moze than be mas before. The maledictions nog curles might not lett nog withdam bis affections which grew moze and moze. In the end be found himfelf fo ravisted with ber love, that there was no moze contimence found in him. To conclude, be purpoled to go unto the Buardians of the Damofel Danae, and that be would bear unto them fo many Bacelets of Bold and Jewels, with money of Wold, that be would turn them with his gifts, to accord with bim, and let bim enter into the Mower of Danae. Abenbe fent tog the Jewellers, that were wont to ferbe bis father Saturn, and made them make the most rich Jewels and Branches, that were eber feen og thought. Then the workmen hab mabe a' part, Tapiter took them, and being cloathed like as be bad been a ferbant, be alone beparted from Creet, and brem bin to Argos. feeking the Lower of Dardan, which be found in an ebening . and fato the walls thining, and came unto the Bate, where be found many of the Patrons fitting at the book for recreation.

THE PROPERTY

When Jupiter came, be fainted the Watrons, and faid unto them : Poble Dames the good night come to you. That Tower. is this, of to noble and to frange a fathion? Fair Son faid the elden, pe be not of this Country, fazalmuch as ye know not the name of this Mower. Know pe certainly that it is named the Mower of Dardan, and this is the proper place that the King Achrifius bath caufed to make to keep bis Daughter the Mirgin Danae in, which is a Damofel to furnithed with all bertues and boneurable manners, that ber like is not in all this mozlo : but the poor Daid is fo much infortunate, that ber father Achriffus holderb ber in this Hower But, foz that be bath an animer of his Bobs, that of bis Daughter Danae Bould be bozn'a Chilo that Bould turn bim into a ftone. This is the caufe wherefoze we kep ber that no man may converte with ber: and ber father is the Bing Achrifius, which is to foze fmitten to the beart with jealoufie, that if be knew of pour being bere, be would fend to bestrop you. And therefore withdraw you, and no forth on your way. Jupiter bearing the animer of the ano-

ļ

mair.

foztb

man, gabe no regard unto ber woods, fabing that be beard thirb his ears: for be employed his eyes unto the marking of the Momer : and feeing that it was impregnable for any affault, as for that it was nigh the City of Argos, which was right firong: he confidered in himfelt, that for to come and fee this wait be could not obtain but by the means of thefe women, Then thusbe answered the old Moman : I thank pou of pour good abbertifement : 3 am much beholden unto pou, but 3 fall pet fap moze unto pou, if it pleale pou, 3 am fent unto the Damofeis of this place from the mighty Ming Jupiter of Creet, for to Deliver unto them certain prefente on his bebalt Amberefoze I prap von that it pleale you to gibe me your affiffance to fpeak with them. When the old Marron unberftood of Jupiter, that he bab baonabt prefents unto the Damofels : the made bim toenter into a fittle Chamber f tibith was by the Bate, for to fpeak therein to their triends when they came to bilit them.) And then the went into the Chamber of Danae, and there affemblen all the women of the place, and faid unto them : mp fellows. the Bing Tupiter of Creet, greeterb pour well by one of bis ferhante, wbom 3 baue put into the Chamber of the Bate : be faid to me, that be bath brought certain prefents. Dee pe now whethet ve will receive them og not : and what I mill antwer to the Bellenger.

The Damosels were jostul when they beard these tydings, and took their Councel together, and concluded, that they hould receive these presents of Bing Jupices. Then they bestended unto the Chamber and seased the Pessenger, which his them reberence, and said to them: Ladies and Damosels, your renown is so great, that it bath moved the Bing Jupicer to desire your sover some Jupicer, and which, he hath sem to you all these Jewels, and prayeth you to receive them in good part, and be recommendeth him unto the right noble grace of your Pisses the Bings: Daughter. While these wards, Jupicer opened his sack of leather wherein were his Jewels, and delivered them unto the Damosels. When they had received them and sate what they were, they were all abased for to see things so precious, and said, that they would go and Dew them to their Pisses. And forth they went up into the Kower, and fewed their prefents unto Dange : fignifping to ber, that the Bing Jupiter hab recommended bim unto ber noble grace. Do foon as this famous Mirgin bad feen thefe Bewels, the fait, that it muft needs be. that lupiter was niche and liberal : and faid mozeober, that the gift that be bad giben was moze of balue than all the Realm of Argos: and alfo, that the would that the man that had brought thefe Jewels, were featted as it appertaineth, and also willed that Ring Jupiter found be thanked in ber name. Then the Damofels by the commandment of Danae, went to featt the Deflenger of King fupiter in the beft wife they might; fpending the most part of the night in eating and beinking. Aud then came the aged woman that bad first spoken with him, and faid to him: Ap Son, the Paiden Danac thanketh the King Jupiter of the courtefie that it bath pleased bim to bo ber Damolels : and the thinkerh ber felf greatly bebolben to him, and to you that babe taken the pains to bying them: and if there may please you

any thing berein, spare not this boules

Dame (antwered Jupiter) pe do me ton much bonour by the one balf : If there be any thing in Creet for pour pleafure, ask you it, and certainly you hall bave it. And thus they talked fo long that it was time to mith-draw bim thence. Jupiter took leave of the Damolels, and concluded that be would return into his Countrep on the morrow early. So Jupiter took this night as much reft as be could, but bad bis beart fo furpailed, that be awoke more than be needed : for the bour was not come that be attended to fpeak to Dange. De returned fecretip into Creet, and cauled to be made new Jewels, much moze rich and moze precious than the others were, for to go again, and prefent to the Damofeis. And as foon as it was possible, be loaded an boafe with thefe Jewels, and without meeting of any perfon, with the same be came to the Nower, and there affembled the Damofels, faving to them, Labies and Damofels, the Bing Jupiter bath you to in grace, that knowing by the report of me, what feaffing and welcome pe made lately for bis Jewels, be bath fent unto pou other, and in bis name, I prefent uuto pou thele Jewels that I babe now brought : praying that the pre-Cent

its

re-

be,

the

lm

)ā_

ef-

ng

me n:

be

be

be

u

be

ik Co

k

to

B

1-30

t,

35

0

e

b

.

2

u

ent may be acceptable and well thought of : and that it pleale pou to bo to much unto your Piffrels that I might a little speak with her, too to abbite her, it it pleale her, of certain lecret things that touch her nigh, and wherewith I am charged by Jupices.

CHAP. XX.

How Jupiter in the guise of a Messenger, with many jewels came the second time to see Danae: and how he spake, and gave her knowledge what he was: and how he lay with her that night.

11/ Den Jupiter had atchiebed bis purpofe, be fbewed foath bis merchandife, and when the Watrons underflood. that be defired to fpeak with Danae, they went unto the Baid. by the councel of the old woman, for to have her opinion : and coming to ber the old woman fpake for theen all, and faid : mp Daughter, Bing Topiter bath fent bitber the burthen of an bogle, of the moft faireft twels that eber pou fam. Aruly it is a gallant light to fee them : Porwithftanbing we burft not rereibe them fogalmuch as the Deffenger requireth to fpeak with pou, which is fozbidden us by pour father. Confider, what we shall bo : we be greatly beholden unto Ring Jupiter foz bis courtefies, but when we think on the firit commandment of pour father, we know not what to bo. Then the Baid Danae had beard thefe woods, the was bery penfine : but for all that the thus answered : Mp mother, pe know well, and it needeth not to tell pou, that be that both them lobe and courtefie ought to be thanked by kindnels. The Ring Jupiter (as pe babe faid) bath oftentimes done foz us. And feeing the firft good cometh from bim, mee thinketh, under all corrections, that mee may well luffer bim to fpeak with mee. It is a fmail matter for bis ferbant to fpeaka word with mee. Abe Bing mp father thall never know it: it is no need that he know all that thall enfue : but firft them to him bow it is charged pou upon beath, that no man fpeak with me. And make bim promife and fwear that be Wall keep this matter fecret.

The Damolels and the old woman, joyful of the answer, went down from the Adwer to the Bate, and sinding Jupiter busie to open abroad, and unbind his Lewels, the old Moman said unto him: Fair son, King Jupiter bath found more grace amongst the Paids of Danac, than all the men in the world. Pevertheles, you must know, that upon pain of death it is to you forbidden, and to others by us: And we be also charged upon the same pain by King Achrisus, that we shall let no man strong speak with her. The Commandment of the King is so great and your request is not little. We dare not bring you unto her all things considered: Hor if it were known, without fail we should be all put into the sire. And peradventure, if ye were found here within, by the King, that cometh often times hither, he would put you to death. Therefore we pray pou ercule us againft pour Paffer.

At bearing of this answer, Jupiter found not that be lought foz, and then be beld bim moze near in belpair, than be bib in bope : But be remembred, that a Beggar Bould not go away for once warning, and faid unto the old woman, Dame, ve bo well if pe fear the King, which is to me no marbel; pet bis commanoment is not to frait, but that ge may enlarge it if you please : We hath commanded that none thall speak with ber, Bing Jupiter requireth that bis ferbant map fap to ber certain things in fecret, touching ber bonour, and in truth if pe grant bim bis requeft, the accord thall not be prejudicial to you in any thing. for King Jupiter is no pratter, and knowerb to much of the world, that unto you be had not fent me, if be bad not found me fecret. And thus if pe will bo to him any pleature, pe babe none excufation reasonable, for none knoweth thereof but 3. 3f 3 fpeak unto the Baid by pour confent, who then thall accuse us? it thall not be pe, for that the matter toucheth pou. And furely it thall not be 3. noz Ring Jupiter, foz certainly, we bab rather bee than bifclofe it.

fair Son, answered the old Moman, pe speak so sweetly that we may not refuse pour request. We dare well affic and trust you. Alas Dame (answered Jupiter) boubt you? When posted

I fail fault againft pou og any other, Twift to be finitten wirb the Abunder, and Aempeft, I would berity that you had the presegative to know my inward thoughts, to the end, that in induing of the mind, he might be affured of me, not to baile by any caule any incombenience : with thefe words, Jupiter, barin robis will the old woman, and all the Domofels, as well uphis lubtil language, as bis riches. for to ufe Boat pacrefs, the old moman accorded to Jupiter, that he fould have the grace to freak with the Paid, and brought bim before ber with all bis prefents : Jupiter bab then maze joy thun Scan togife.

T.

cr

III ce

D.

te

eb.

ne

Co

110

111

if

n.

20

bt

ib

ape

et ge ik

to

th

Í-

O

nt

10

12

g

12

į, [-

p

D

n 3

find toben be was thus abobe in the Komer of Dardan, in beholding the beauty of Danac, his joy boubled, and be kneto ber well by ber beauth one mabe unto ber reberence, Taying: Right noble and acco Deb Damalel, Ring Jupiter faluteth pour by me, and femant that the momen of this boule, offich goods as fortuna the plan : if it be your pleafure thep hall receibe th er I will lay unto you certain things in fecret which pour ferbant bath charged me to fap unto pou. The antwered Danae, fatting pour honour, the King Jupiter ferbant, but 3 mp felf am bis, and thank bim foz bis it feemerh, as be bab rained gold in this place. It is accept tome, that the women of this Xomer babe pour prefents. And it pleafeth me well alfo to bear pour tharge, to the end that Ring Jupiter Could not far that I mere unkind.

The Batrons and the Damolels were prefent at this an-Imer, Jupiter belibereb unto them the Jewels, tobich they receibed with great glabnels. After that, Danae, took the Delfenger by the band, and led bim apart unto the beds fibe, where the made him to lean by ber. And when Jupicer found bim all alone with Dange, be fait unto ber : noble Damofel 3 no moze call pou Damofel but Lady : for you are my Lady and only Diffrels, which bath Waftered my beart, and allo bath overcome me unber the found of pour glozious repozts. foz to abbertife pou, perily 3 am Japiter, of whom now 3 bave fpoken to you at the prefentation of the Jewels, and it is truth, that it is not long fince; when I was in my Mealm, for to bear reposted the manner bam pone father beid pou fur up within this Lower with little good the may accord unto your borout) as well for roger your grace, as the pitpeleremith, I proceed liberated toich my beautaire employing felfrunte gode belitemour. "And for tooks rance and also for to attenue rentethis veliberation, I bese token pare of my erestures, and fo pare of my erestures, and Departed : and of new am come again in bape to babe pour lour. giving thanks to mercy and fortunted Silas, Departiff & be fo hardy as for to babe Purmy felf in abbedture of mig life, to them the great moethat 3 babe to pou : Ercufe me, if 3 babe enter-priet a thing to high, that 3 need hald morthy to obtain; butin ogthe to obtain butin the affiance of fortune, and infomuch will favour in this party. Dadam then in confideration of abs. pe map fee mp life, or mp beath, bub pe de the judgment. IC paur bemilitoren ebge of pulp that I have but af pen, erpette I might be fure, I am new nigh ger, tobere which pour man fate, and if not, 3 mult viell -jeaner. Motwithflanding, the Bining Cutenbe whee Beauty, incomparable Greellency bath en triumph of your beart and brought me bither inte the poilon of pour will. Rius Pabam, behalb and fee with your open full of fineetnels, and of clemency, me which fee not att bis time, but languit foz want of red. in continual forrow, infuries reboubled, and figbe upon figbs. which may not be purged of remety, but by pour beplanity and amorous good will and the second second second second

At the baginning of the art recommendation that was made of you in my presence, I enterprized to deliver you out of this Lower, and beleto my self happy, because of to high an enterprize; but seeing the perils that I sind my self in since, I know never what I may say of my self. For by moneth upon moneth, week upon week, and ap upon day, your name hat had bomination on me. And oftentimes bash confirmed weeks to be radiated, and yet more in a trance by besire to speak to you, and to imagine how I should come to the point whereat know am, and natenipilithis, but also to find morce in you. And Appar you nighthamble, that out of the amorous gift of mercy pe will to me accord, ambin this being, pe hall be mercy to your felf. and have pite of your poung bays, which you have confented to tole, be the fool & Cantakes of the King von Father. De know well (that during his life beleft) not fuller you to be married to any man. It is not impossible that your father may troons long as you, for be in firing a bootterous. Allo pe outhe to conceibeif pe will beliebe me; that gone life bath no wealth moz plea fure. Only the pleafures come unto the people by the fight, and by beholding of diveratings. The women fingularly babe their principal pleatures in their Dusbands, and in their Deneration and linages. De may some bieberto, but ellen pou must bave mer-cy on your felf. Is trace in your conceit and knowledge that no man bath but his life in this mould. forafmuch as re ober the foolith commanderent of poor freber the fing Achrifur as Seper the Sing Achriffus, pe foolite comma diffing unted poing beart, to be Sail be a torne stor partient. The Constant of Arting inters young beart, to be greine palonisation to be bout I know the homaine offections, and another than the factorally easily occuliant loveth his posit before the profit of another. This is against your prosperity and untility of from topics or be Out here to One. Pow may you and utilite from the pe be Out bere within. Dow may gou panel over and bim while for a ule of the estil Ale fels etil into beapoles, lines that has been the point of the combined bere mito the end of the bays of cont fother, bombt you not but his end is oft beffred for your tokes and bis beath may not be effecteb without great thange of confrience. De thinketh that betterit were for you to find way to iffue out of this place, and to tenene bus band fome noble and puttant man, that would enter-Mi this means sou Gall be beligered from the prin that you be in gou may elchem the beath of your father, and lels thil you Gall Do in breaking his fooli & commanoment, than to abide in thepeint where be bath put you. (3 babe laid unto pou) 3 am pour ferbant, land if it plate pour to Depart from this place, pour Beil fich na man etabier than I am, for to fabe pou: I gibe mp felf unto your nable commandments, to nourid pour will

eub:

7

i

to my power as he that heareth alway the remembrance of you in the most beepen place of my mind : in fleeping & fee you and making I fbink on you. I habe had no reft in my felt, not neber hall habe, but if it pleate not. Pp fortune, my beffing, comes of me, If you reke me with pour marcy, and that I find grace with you. I fall be the mod happies of all happy. And if pe do otherwile, is may be fait that among all unbappy, none thall go befoge me. But if fuch fortune wall come unto mee by your rigour, 3 will take it in patience, for the noblemele that 3 fee in you olway, 3 require you that my beart be not bepatbed, nos pre from pour beart, fo salmuch and toucheth me nearconques of men cannot expects the quantity of the love that I have for you, no more than mer proper name all the Brans of Beaben. The way in thoughts, labours, in this, large to can monunce by ris lotte 3 am oi. and oftentimes in great fear. At this bour. Alibe oz not. becaule mee thinkerb 3 am ber oz a mon ial lentence. Abele ihingo confi him in your grace, that for io bele not bal erep,ba abanboned and abbentural bis le leabing big Mopal effate, the better to been b alato an beart well understanding, few tooghe fuffice. you : and that re commen from beneaforth the the filt concretive now bein, after the common indument to an activity to the collection the ill conceit pe duth this Jupicer held his peace, and ienthis ears to to bear what hould be the saliner of Dance. Etheright noble Damoel, when the law that he dad given her leace to speak, the was recalled and changed colour and substants him. Dir ning class know he well, what would be the remountable would be the remountable would die propless? House make beines pour council Most would die propless? House mailwest Jupice, the most that they now lay, that wen will name you associat unto the tooks come apoment of your father, which as all men knowethand bert you fondly in this Bailon. And if he will thus knie your self and combey your self away, wen tooks but least, for panic youth would excuse your being and ye hould be reposed to have base describes deed by great wisdom. The bit, said Danke, pe go about inductive me by pour sair woods: I know the specities of the Argians, and also know that I am bound to obey my father: Sucherwage, I am not so ignorant, but that I would well have some node monto my bushond. So as mine bonous mere sairly: and also, I consess that I am greatly behelven to bem that hath souls is inversible and so largely of his treasures and I wools, and in likewise unto you, if it be truth, that ye be him that he say that ge are. This when I have considered, and unboration and seen his him, and that the Angiene would insame me to perpetuize, and that my father would seen manufere mine happen should brongly a whater and the unbarbod, by some proper declaration. I would not wise deal backly with you, neither that you have any declarating for my cause. But I pray you to think on the other that a mine bonour, unbefore ye suffer me alone with my common and transfer.

paint fraction to the first in doubt of me there are not lapler than the first and the lapler than the first and the lapler than the first and the first confound me, and the first and the first of the

this night.

Ave noble Paid Danae had then her blood to moved, that the burst not behold Jupiter: so, thamse smote her in the eyes. This notwithstanding, her beat commanded her to try what man he was, and whether he had the state of a Poble man oza king, at last the took day of adhice, and accorded to him that the would speak main to him on the morrow. After this, she commanded the Ladies to be cohered by the Damosels, and said, that the would feast the Pessenger of the King Jupiter. The Damosels hearing that, answered they were all much bound to feast him, and bewed to her the riches that they had all along in the Chamber, whereof the walls home and were bright: The Damosels.

matels arrayed their the Jewels of Jupites, gandhar the was bles foigh mouts. Dariae and Judices were teerde one against the other schools was great the rich, and they but anough to entry see Judices not Danisegund likely face or eather. Judices ear sell bookly chair sufferingly, he tout in creation, in boudie and fearer: The but drant her by which se toutonot guther and thing to his posit; Tabe only that he hoped that Danse bouild discover is unto the Damosels, as the romy Pordeus be of eu-from to discover the ago to the other, and as soben any requi-sesh them office, there wer Bourd them althous to him, the more too his unto In this share was ming support to his part. The plant of a gettier in gette fine late. grent effite, aut above eff erer. Den giben caute to be pentite, ent appear countenance, his getture und les und to lato tails and ar new mobile and a Tupiter, upon bis seel to fonciles del en old feel be begen to feel to fonciles del en old feel bet bet bette ben fin the boute. But the boute bette bente b fetteb, pet ber mind tone enterlaced to Coundant thoughts. Pany noble men bas required ber to betoge time, that the was But in the Adver, and could never turn ber beart, nor cause per once to ligh so think on their requests. The only words of Jupiter were to effectual and happy, that they confirmined her to bear them, and to become pentibe, breaking all bother and contrary opinions.

The agranded the Sale CHAP XXI

t

è

1

9

P

9

which shot and the third bear sone

How Japiter came from his Chamber by night, and lay in the Tower of Darden, with the Damofel Danse, on whom he begat the noble Perseur.

So long dured the Feeding of Jupiter that it was time to withdraw from thence. Then Danie took leave of Jupiter and bid convey him into a terrer Chamber by hir Bamolels. Then Jupiter was departed, the entred into her Chamber, accompanied

12

è

....

L. e. e. e

0 ŧ.

ž.

companies only with the old woman ibnt was her Wiftrels, and us from us the old woman had ber privile in her Chamber as The first was turpictops! this to ber, my Braughter, tell me of your typicies, Amin meds know what thing this spellinger of your troiges. I mun needs and what thing this Wellenger hand thus to you. Dame and wered Danac, will se know, yes rail the old mourant : then onlinered Danac, he mut come bimfelt and make the report, for be bath laid to me le many things ther the tenth part is not in my mind. Aby Daughter (laid the Dia Milian) I think well be is not come bither methout cause. Schae burth he laid. If pe pune nat all in mind tell me at lens (the abibeth and reflets in pour mittle. Dume (univered Dame) de arrowment that I never mistrution both, and that the feerer of mine bears burth alway bear open : I will now make no new enthances for to Borren this matter, be that namery pintels (groups d'appies, to funice himtels (de cenost mery pintels (groups d'appies, to funice de particule) mod par matégores d'appe d'appe d'appe de matégores de la particule addigités (or de particular d'appell, pe de la most de method d'appell, pe de la matégores de la matégo which I baux not the contented, but babe taken time for to give bim of animer, button to take your councel, and therefore I proposid, that poir commercial in rival Applie to bound inhat and therefore A commercial in the Applie to bound inhat any office to be used to be supplied to be used to be a commercial in the commercial inference of the commercial interests of the commer

The wild Moman bad been befaretime in the bonfe of King Mellifeus; and there bad teen japiter in the time of his return from his conquest of Arcadle, and had partiz knownhim since the first day that he came thirther. So this had not him the doubted of his person, sandmuch as men diversations be like one to anotheriand we had her eve although upon him. When then she had understood by Danae, she was fire that it was he in person, and had great foy, saying: App Daughter, certainly I know him that we speak of, and have talked with him a long time pass. And so his person, I assure you, that it is he that hath given you to understand this. But so, to personde, or councel you, if ye take him unto your Pusband, I can say none otherwise to post but that he is one of the most valiantess merres the woold.

and bis enterprifes be great. And if I bab a Daughter the mon belt mannered of the woold, there is no man living, that I would give her fooner unco than to him. We fee that notwithtianding his simple attice, he is a goodly man, be in noble, cich, and wife, he is a King. If pun will uleand ablerue the commandment of your father, you may not with him bold confiftorie oz Warffament. If pou will ablent pou from this place be good means, there is no man but Jupiter that may belo pou. ? councel pos neither to the ane not the other, but chule post, and take the beft was you think fitting.

Ab my Pother (faid Dianae) bom Could a chulemy felf? there is in me mither toit, not reason, to take that I hould chuse not to differn the good from the ent. And as for me, 3 that one it all into your beliberation, with will that pe know, that out of this Lawer would I fain be (mine bonour labed, them, all the Mamoiels of the baute, and er, that thep bab mabe right good chear to their @ this failed the fecret conference of Danae and the agen be The Damofels went and fetch their Jewels newly ed to them. and parted to each of them ber postion, some and to Bing Jupiter was none like, but that he was among an other the most housetful, and not honourable King of Lings. The Paid Danac took great pleature with all thele things : when the Damolels had parted among them their Jewels of gold with great joy, they brought Danae to beb : and beparteb from ber Chamber, tobich they left open by forgetting; as they that had fer all their mino and thought on their riches, and to went to their bebs. Iupiter lying in bis bed at this bour, found bimfelf to surpaised with covereonfinels of love, that be was confirmined to arife, and to look out at a window, to behold if the day approached lifting bis eyes again to the Stars of Beaben, and was ravifed in his beart, by the remembrance of fair Danae, faid : D noble Danac, that bath moze beauty than the Stars Gining : alas, where be perhis bour, the pain that I endure for pour cause, ve know not, not the great jeopardy, and the perillous cafe that I baue put me in, to attain your lobe. Unkindnels map De babe place in pou, with difdain and derernefs, which be mine enemies, en penomed with mostal venome. D Danac, remember pour felf of me. And those foatume that hall forceaured me in all my affairs, belp me in this prefent with a fairs, belp me in this prefent with the fairs belong the most of the complaint ceased: This thought was

ín

2

1

b

ò

great and touching a right adventurous enterprise. When all was bone, be betermined in himfelf to a nay if be could come to the end of his thought, and clearbed bimfelf, and went out of his Chamber unto the Lower; where be fate the boog open to his feeming, and finding it true that it was open, he went up as se rauld that he fould not be beard, and came to the Chamber of Danie, whereof the 8002 begroven, in which chamber was a komp burnen, Jupiter bein all at gladnels put his beed into the Char ver to lexif any Damolels were with Da-nae, and he live that there was some, but ther Danae was a-tone under him. It described himfelf to go unto her, where he found her books per by killing. Danae was Jupicer brew nearer to that to open-to per, toperant Deturing afraid, openthe crept within bered ber face co C bered per tace to the per, where the using atraid, o period ber eyes, and an arrange that it was Jupice by the bedfide, the gabe a bary real Ories and try. And on jupice bears this ey, he was much trackled, neverthelets, he purposed to adjust the confidence ber to his, and to interfug per up his freet freaking, he because he has no touchet it much needs be that the much as but his force. And to long he belo ber in such talls, that he wellowford himself, and in freeze her her her her that he wellowford himself, and in freeze her her her her the such talls. talk that he unelouthed himfelt, and in speaking to her, he speaking into the use. And say by her side, notwithkanding that she withstood it with all her might. Then sare the Baid that he was betrayed. And verying renderly he shought so have sled, and did her less, to have some a bay. But Jupiter rock good had, and did her less, to have some a bay: But Jupiter rock good had, and at the leap that the apported to make, caught ber by the arm' and make ber to be baton again; and be clipt ber, and his ber again, and lo appealed per in fueb falbion, that the left ber weeping. And on the morzoto when be arole up from ber, be lefe ber with Child of a young Son, Jupiter by this barbinels at-thiesed his purpose, and had his wird on fair Danae, and made the peace for his offence. The night passed over, and the day came, that Jupicer must needs arise and depact from her, and then by necessive constaining him to keep the bonour of Danac, he arose, and took up his cloathing trusted together, and returned into his Chamber, where he went to bed, and slept so fast and surely, that he did not awake till the hour and time to go to Dinner.

At the bour of Dinner, Danac asked where was the Peffenger of Ring Jupiter? and faid, that the would eat with him, and that they bould being him up into the Names feccests.

Bith the moad of Dange, two Damolels went bown out of the Nower into the Chamber of Lupiter, and finding bim afferd, awoke bim, whereof be was amaged and afbamed. for the Sun mas at that time mounted bigb. And then bearofe, when be knew that Danie had fent for him to come speak with her. And so came to ber, which began to war reb, and to lake colour when the law bim : And the reberence mabe, wep went to eat together and mobe great chear : pet Dane was albamed, and was firongly furpaised for the cause that was happened to ber and the might not abliain to fet her eyes on the beauty of Jupi. tor, which also failed not on his one to be bold her by so arbent defire, that the eyes of the one and the other, pierced each other oftentimes. In this beholding they passed part of the time of Taben thep bab taken their refection, Jupiter and the binner. Dance brem themfelbes apart, and belba long Wartiament of their work. And it was concluded between them, that Tupiter thould go into the Countrep, and that he fould return thither with a certain number of Beople, to take away the fair Danac. And with this conclusion, Jupiter beparted and returned into Creet, leabing Danae in the Hower, of whom 3 will ceafe for this prefent, and return to fpeak both Tantalus the Bing of Phrigie fought against the Trojans, and hat battel against them, which was the first battel that ther was in Trove

CHAP XXII.

ap

nd ac,

fle

to!

n.

nb

of

un

be no

ur

185

nd

r:

nt

of

nd

cr

13

to

ĎŽ

n,

How King Tamalus of Phrigh affailed the King Trees of Troy:
and how Ilies and Genimeder his Sons discomfitted him in battel, to the day of the state of the sons discomfitted him in

TT 7 Den Bing Troos bab named his City Troy, and was eralted in fo bigb renewn, that the Bings bis neighbours, as to bis regard, were but in little reperence, and lefs gloap: many thus lofing their bonours, by bis great woafbip, began to muemie againff bith in beeb, and alfo in thought, and among all other, Ring Pantalus of Phrigie Son of the Arcadian Jupiter, Bing of Atrick, took in great belpight the ercellency of Troos, and combered against bim, and made a great affembly of mon of Arms, and to beparted out of his Bealm, with intention to believe King Troos and his City of Troy. This Tantalus hab a fon in Die company named Pelops : and left a Son at home named Thieftes, togafmuch as be was poung. And this Thieftes ball a Son named Phileftines the Jarber of Menalaus that reigned in the time of the third beftrugion of Troy. But to return to our purpole, this Tantalus behaved bimfelf fo, that beconducted und baought an Boff upon the tertitory of Troy, and Die beftrey all things that was in their pur-Mance, unto plain beffruction. Abberewith the cry and clamours of them that fleb tous lo great, that in fort time Bing Troos was abbertiled of it, whereof be was not afraid : for be had the City well garnifed with people. Also be made ready to refift his adverlaries, and that by fuch biligence, that when be had beard the todings in the morning, within four bours after be iffued out of Troy with thirty thouland fighting men, and Diem unto the place where the Phrigians were entred.

This noble king Troos bad in his company two Sons, of whom the eldest was called Ilion, to whom came down from Beaven the Paladium. And the pounger was called Ganimedes. These two Sons baliantly came into the field, and required their father Troos to parthis Army in two: and that he would grant to them his Command, to prove their might upon their enemies.

Troos confidering that by feparation of his people, they that mere beaten oz put back might be luccoured when it hould come to frekes be granted the request of bis two Sons, and gabe emto them rwelve thousand fighting men, Ilion and Ganimedes. thanked Bing Troos their farber, and took leabe ofbim and went forth wirb their fighting men, in fuch wife, that thep were a mile befoze the Battel of the Bing. | And fo Bing Troos followed the Bartel of bis Two Sons, Hion and Ganimedes. And he had certain Biders between both, appointed for to repost to Bing Troos, when his bons had found Tantalus their enemp : and alfo the two noble Sons bab befoge them bibers Cipies, and Marches that were fent out into Others places, to fee and difcober the flate, and oaber of their enemies, which found them about the ebening : and after, they returned unto Ilion and Ganimedes, and bid them make chear, and that then bab feen the enemies of Troy, in a certain place that they nameb, and that there they had feen them lobged and that they might well be numbred be effimation about thirte thousand figbting men.

De thefe todings bad the Trojans greation, it was that time about mid-night, and they were lodged in the end of a Malley: Ilion and Ganimedes, the fame bour affembled oil the Poblemen of their company, and told them what the dipies bad reported, and bemanbed of them councel. All were of opinion that they bould fuffer their boff to reft pet a good bour, and after that they fould break their faft a little and lightly to the end to babe the better and longer there breath, and alfo to be the moze couragious, and to caufe them to be the better amaked. and this done they bould depart, to go and affay their enemies. This opinion feemed good unto the Sons of the Bing. And thep fignified their intention by the Ribers unto their father Troos. After this they withbrew them to taken little their reft. and gabe charge to them that kept the watch, to awake them when they faw their time : and fo they had but tittle refled. when they were awaked and called, and that each man thoula take his arms and follow on; the Trojans obesed, and knew well it was time to make ready feedily. They were never fo

glab

16

ne

be cs

nb

ep

05

5.

20

ir

2

to.

b

.

-

p

D

2

giad as they were when they knew they houlding to battel, they eat and drunk temperately all with one good will, they garniched them with their arms : and thewed theone to the other, how they would fight the battel, and confound their enemies, and memoral them, of an evil conflict with them.

At this bour, the Moon fone bright : bp which light, Ilion and Ganimedes put their people in good array. When they bab took the Boat refection, they began to march toward them, and put themfelbes befoge ail othen; they came fo nigh by Doonhight and by their guibes, that they were beard of them that kept the march of their enemies that they fought athe which ned into the Ments of King Fantalus, and awake bim, and rold bim that the Trojans were come to glail them : and that then had feen them in grene number. But Tantalos beliebeb not lightly bis warch, and beferreb bis ariling moze than need was. De bab not long bibben, but the Trojans came upon bis Boft and laid load upon the Phrigians to unmeafurable, that the refounding of their flevakes fell into the care of Tantalus, tobich arofe terribly afrait. Mith this fray were awaked all the Phris gians in general : fome by moztal wounds, and fome by their cries, and fome burngriebouffe. In coming on thus, the Trojans Damaged greatly their enemies : and the moze, because many of them were not furnited with their arms, which were Imitten bown by the Smoots of the Trojans, and they were beaten bown, matmed moztaily, and wallowing in their bloob. This notwithflanding, thoughthat the coming on of the Trojans was tharp, and that Ilion and Ganimedes approbed themfelbes . harply in their work. Tantalus and his Sons Pelops, gathereb their weople that withbrew them about their Ment, and there munered them together, and when they found them in number fufficient to enter into battel, Tantalus creto Phrigie, Phrigie : and after be bib caufe bis people to march againft the Trojansthat beat down all befoze them in the place where thep were arribed, and then began the noife to be great : foz on all fices were crees made, and at the joining, the skirmif was to bozrible, that it feemed the world bould end in the lame place.

Ganimedes and Pelops encountered together, being full of great courages, they fought together a great while, by the wounds that were feen upon their beabs, they were like the one. to flap the other, and the one was flain the other bad not Tantalus and Mion been bp. Fog Tantalus (mote upon Ganimedes, and Ilion (mote Pelops , and the Trojans and Phrigians mebles the one with the other: and there began the Hanghter and murther. there was fighting as Champions, hewing each man bis ber tue and his promets to frongly, foratmuch as they law the Boon no boton. And ver was not the bay come, when thep found in the Borning the place all covered with bloods heads of men Deat : but the number of the Phrigians, that there were pur ro the worft, was the much greater number, ten againft one, than of them of Troy. As long as the Boon gabeber light, there was no fault on the one five, now on the other, each man bid bis part, the Moon chancing into a bark cloud, and then the midble began to ceafe fighting and the retreat was creed. The Phrigians wirhbrem themfelbes at the cry of Tantalus, and the Trojans at the cry of Hion and Ganimedes. And there was none but would babe abioden the end of this skirmid and fight.

CHAP. XXIII.

How King Trees chased in battel King Tantalns, and how Saturn came by Sea, failing to the Port of Trees, and how King Trees received him worthipfully.

A free this afozesaid battel, when totalus was withd zawn be began to cast his eyes upon his people, which were all on a Hill, to know how they were in number, and how they had born themselves, and how much people be had lost; and he went all about them with his Son Pelops, and to him seemed well that his power was madeless than he had thought, whereof he had in his heart beaughts foleasure, and visiting his Post in this faltion, the day began to arise, and in the dawning two things appeared a came to the knowledge of the people of Tantalus; one was the great loss of the people and the other was the battel with King Troos, that they saw him sar discovered and approach. But when Tantalus considered his evident damage, and

and fair that his enemies, because of the fuccours that came to them, were firminer than he was, he found nothing in the resolution of his enterpaize but despair and hameful end, and all biscomfaired, he called his Bon and his paincipal friends, and demanded of them what was best to do.  They countelled him that he should labour to save himself, and save to him if he above and aftended the Trojans, that would because of his destruction, and of all them that were left of his people.

ri.

1

0

g!

.

6

ţÌ

Mitten-Tantalus underftood this, and knew that be was befperate and migh bis fameful end and Hight, and abobe that, that he might not extinguit and put boton the name of Troy : be took himfelf by the beard that was long, and impariently faid. Imiting bimfelf wirb bis fift : D curfed enby, thou bibft promife me of late to put Troy under my feet, and baft made me to rife prefamprioully against ber : Pow fee 3 well the confrarp, and that by me Troy that fouriff, and that is more, by me cause ber name Wall grow and Bait be eralted, and that all Bings Ball fremble befoge ber, in my fight and beholbing. D falfe traiterous fogtune, accurled be thou, that I eber beliebed on thee. Abele wogds finifeb, be laid to bis Son and to other of bis Council, that they fould caufe bis people to withdam a litrie and little. At laft be commanded that each man Bould fabe bimfelf, and then they put them all to flight. Ilion and Gani. medes took beeb and ran after, and chafeb them out of the territozies of Troy, with great occition, and flaughter of the people of the Phrigians. And after that they hab chafed them, they faid that they had bone them fhame enough, and left perfuing them and returned; and came and met Bing Troos their father, that followed them : who had greation, when he faw that then had quit them to mell upon his enemies, by the good conduct of bis two Dons.

The joy that Troos made Ilion and Ganimedes after the battel, was great and of good love. Troos brought them again unto Troy with great wordip. The Trojans, men and women received them wordipfully, and bleffed the womb that had born them and the breaths that gave them luck. These were two noble sons of the Bing, of whom the names were born into all the Barches thereabouts, with le great a bauit and noife, that not only the neighbours of Troos came to make alliance with Ring Troos and the Trojans : but there came allo Rings of many far countries of the Caft, which could not magnific enough

the purffance of the Birng, and of the City of Troy.

In these bays when Troy heined the rayes of her purffance and nobienels through the univertal woold; Saturn late King of Creet, failed by the Seas with little company, noras a Ring and Boffeffoz of the Beatin, but as banifed and bifpurbepeb of all Land and Country, fo poor that he had no place to withbram bim to, nog knew nerwhither to go, but only by befarts and by the bepth of the bea. When he had been in this point a great while, thinking without end bow be might perfecute his Son Jupiter, foztune brought bim into the Sen of Hellefpont. and then behalding about him he elpred Troy, which was a City paffing fair and rich and at marvellous greatness. And then be thought to take a little reft, and to put a way his melancholly and to rebittual bis thip, and people, be faile into the City and landed at the post. Then the Trojans had feen the Ship of Saturn, that thas better and mogent balue than all the Ships. that they had ever feen the Mafters of the Ships of Troy, went. baftilp unto the Ring Troos, and faib . Sir, be of good cheer, and make ready the boufe, Jaffure pou, that there is come right now unto your Boat, the most rich Ship that eber was feen on the ben, andit feemeth this confibered, that in to noble a Dip. muft be fome Poble oz great earthly Lozd that comerbunto Pou.

g

b

C

a

0

9

Anonas Bing Troos beard thefe tpbings of the Baffer Barriner, be befired to fee fo fair a thip, and accompanied with his two Some weat to lee it af the Boat: This Bing Troos was courteons and bonourable. Tobben be came to the Boat, he found that Saturn mabe ready bis bbip, and bilpoled bim to go unto the City. And feeing the Ship, be marbellet much : faz the utenfils that were within were richly made : furthermoze, Saturn and his companions were armed and bab no Marriners. De bebeld their behaviour at his coming, and knew that thep were men of war : fo be thought in bimfelf, at the beginning to arm arm himfelf, and to lend for the Trojans : But afterward, toben be bab feen their little number, and that no thip followed noz came after thefe firangers from the coatt, be changed bis purpole, biewed and approached unto the bin, and called Saturn that was better arrayed than any of the other, and asked him what be lought, both be and his fellows, and of what fation they were, and from whence they came. And Satura laid, Sir, albeit I kuow not at what Bogt Jam arribed ; fogalmuch as my beart giberh me that ge are courteous of pour nature. 3 will not bibe noz cober any thing touching pour requelt : I was late Bing of Creet named Saturn : now 3 am but Saturn, toz mp Son barb put me out forrowfully, fo that of all the riches of mp people, and all my goods tempozal, there is nothing left me but this only Ship that pe now fee, wherefore I pray and require pou, that it please pou to birect me to some Lozd of this Country, to the end that I map require licente and leabe to enter in to bis Lozo Gip, and to take that that thall be necessary for the relieving of meand my company.

When king Troos heard the cale of Saturn conspired, in brief words, he said to him in compassion, thing Saturn you are welcome into the house of Troos: I have great grief in my self for your sich annopance, sor your glorious rendun, and for the goodness that is in you, as offensines I have heard it recounted. But with this eniopance, two things glad and roy my heart, the one proceeding of the accomplishment of bette, sor I have besired many days only to see you, and this better is now accomplished in me: and the other proceedesh of hope, and in this part I say to you, that I king of this Country base an intention to comfort and to counted you, so my power, and also to give you see good aid, that ye shall correct your Son, and shall punifbbis perfon, asit thall apperfain for bis offence.

Saturn began to ligh, and to take a little comfort of the great proffer and good chear that the King Troos made to him, and thanked him for to high and noble offers, and at the coming out of his hip, be beclipt himself in his arms, and kin his band. The King Troos brought him into his Palace with all his men, and feathed them as it appertained, for the love of Saturn.

be that found the manner of labouring of the earth, of melting of mettals, and of Gilling and rowing by Sea, they made to great and plentiful leads at his coming, that they could be no more. At that time buring this feating, when Saturn felt him in the gracious favour of the Trojans, on a day be called Troos and his two Soms and addressed his two do to them, taying: Lords of Troy, be have been to much for me, that I can never before it: but as I have fail to you, my Son is exalted and lift above me, and bath taken from the my Kegal Dignity, I interest you, as much as I may, that ye will councel me to bat thing is most convenient for me to bo. And both I will luffer and bear the injury bone to me.

By Brother (antwered Bing Troos) this is againff nature. toz a Son bimfelf to rebel againft bis father : the fin and crime is foul and worthe reprebenfion, for every Son is bounden by all Laws to ferbe, worthip, bread and ober bis father. And it is not reason, that any man would apprope or bold with a Son bifebedient. Pour son is in this condition, curled and beep ebil : and am of opinion, that pe walf not beferbe well. untels pe bo to pour power, to mafter and obercome his enil manners. And to the end re that that excule his epibent harms and toffes, when re will, I will beliber you my Son Gani. medes accompanied wird twenty thouland Trojans that thail fuccour you, and thall fet you again in your Ropal Aribunal. Saturn was well recomforted, when he knew the labe that Ring Troos feweb to him : and after many thanks, concludes, that he mould return into Creer with Ganimedes, and would begin again the pinious war of him wat of his Son. And fellowin this conclusion from them etozito on) be nib caule to appoint the Shipping of Troy, and all things appertaining, and gathered together men of arms with great pullance, by the introduction of Canimedes. And when all the affembly has muffred he took trave of Ring Troos and of Hion, and went to Sea, and Shipper all his Many, and knowing the lituation of the Countrees by the Beas, be birected bis Doft into the Bea Rece inbereas was figeus Son of Titan the great Bozate, which burff not bate pate to be with them in no wife : and from this her of Egec, be travelled, and scribed at the first post and Baven of Creet.

CHAP. XXIV.

O.

10

m

OS.

131

nh.

100

nb

re.

me

en

ind

b a

he.

ell:

bil

me ni.

all

日の神に田田

28

00

中中で

How Saturn, by the aid of Ganimedes, and of the Trojans, returned into Crees, to fight against Jupicer, where he was overcome and vanquished, and Ganimedes taken.

A E that bour, when Saturn arribed in Creet, the bun was rurned into the Weft, and on the Beaben began to appear the Stars. Saturn knew the Boat : and took Land, bouing to enter the Country fecretly, and went a little way, and lobged his people in a place convenient, and mabe them reft and eat and paink by the fpace of four bours, and then be awoke the Doft. and mabe foe Trojans arm them, and enter into the Mesim. Bur file were nor far gone, but approaching & ffraight pa flage. the GI Wand Difcoverers, came unte Saturn and Ganimedes haffilp and told them, that they bab feen Bing Tupiter fronalp accompaniet, which kept the paffage. Apon this place it was that toben Jupiter tous beparted from Dinse, and from the Tower of Dardan, and was come inte Creet, befring to accomplit bis promite to Dance, be bib caute to affemble bis men of mar concluding in bimlett, that faithfully be would go fetch the fair Danae, and bring ber into the Country by force of arms. Dis army was all ready, and came the fame night, where on the morrow be hoved to babe beparted, but as he was in his ben that night in his City of Parchenie, tobings came to bim, of the arriving of the Projans. Wherefore be mas confrained by force to change bis purpofe of which be was marbellous pasting beaby. Potwithfianbing, lubbenly as theferbbings were frethip brought unto bim, bearafe and took bis men ofarms that he bad affembleb, and baffilpbrought fbent unto the firait inbereof abobe is written, and there above bes enemies. Ain it is not to be forgetten, that in this Army among bis men was the Bing of Molofs, which had lase found the industry and craft to tame and break Booles for to be rioben und faribe them. And there was come be and bis men, to farbe Bing Jupiter for his good Benomn.

Benown, accompanied with an hundred with that ran as the wind. And for this saule they were called Centaures: and these Centaures were so terrible, and couel, that they doubted not the puissance of any Ring, they of none other what sover they were.

Then Saturn knew that the passage waskept, and that Jupiter was then advertised of his coming, he caused his host to stay, and said unto them: Py Children, it behoved that this morning ye so do in Creet your endeabour, not only in mustring and shewing your courages: but above all that perhereboubted and dreaded time the Abunder. Assure your selves of your quartel, Jupiter mine enemy is here, where he abideth our coming of the battel ordained: if we will come to the end of our Enterprize, it is necessary that we draw thither. Let me hear what we will say,

Then entwered Ganimedes . we be come into Creet foz to searest pour Son, and to fet pou up again on pour Thank. The will be the best me can by your power, and fight freeling ithout boubting or fear. And to the end that no reproach may be laid on us. I will fend and fummon pour Son befoge any Swood is brawn, to the end that be pielo bimfelf to pour obeplance : and that be come and amend bis mil-beeds: Then Ganimedes called forth bis Trojans by the confent of Saturn, and fet them in order of battel in and when be bad-fo bone, be fent one of bis Aniabts a foble-man unto fupiter, and gabe bim charge to make the fummons, fuch as is befoze faib. The Trojan Departed from the Boff at the commandment of Ganimedes and came befose lupiter, and faib unto bims Jupiter than oughteft to know that eberp Son ometh buty to bis father thom boeft rentrary to thefe things, and heweft that thou art not Son to a King, but of perdition, for thou befpileft thy father inflead ofreberence, thou hateft him and makeft bim war where thou houlbeft bonour bim ; and thou putted bim to great bifonour the felf. tibere theu art bound only to bonour bim-

D Jupiter, who wall give ther absolution of the life, living in envelopment with wall excuse the sind Ahon art the Kathers enemy. The case is so grievaus, that there is no merce not excusation, unless it proceed from the natural chemency of the Ka-

ther_

ther. Behold Jupiter, behold a period of the pride. All law potitive, and all law written, condemns thee. It is a great pity, thou art a goodly young man: Know that the Reign may not long endure, and that thou that more tharply be punished, than thou knowest peradoenture at this time. Hor Ganimedes one of the Sons of Troy is here by, in the aid of Saturn the Father with twenty thousand fighting men, which summoneth thee by me; that thou return to the mercy of the Father, and yield him his Regal Dignity, all excufes fet apart.

Apestenger (answered Jupiter) if I were such a one as you say, with just reason you and others might give sentence and condemnation upon me: I were then guilty so, both parties. And I thinkis Ganimedes, (of whom ye have spoken) had understood and heard my excuse, he would not be mine enemy. I answer you that I love my father Saturn, in as much as he is my father. But I say to you on the other part, that he hath oftentimes sought to put me to death, he thewing himself my moztal enemy, and not my father. (for every father naturally loveth his Son) and so, that regard I will keep me from him, as from mine enemy: And therefore let the Trojans understand, that if they come and availme, I will besend me with all my outstance.

my pui ffance.

be

18

be:

19.

Ú.

to

is 10

Ø

r-

pr

11

te.

31

io

O

33

g

38

90

17

0 ıŧ

24

-

g

.

ě.

Contract of

Mith this answer, the Trojan returned to Saturn and Ganimedes, and told them the answer of Jupiter. Saturn and Ganimedes then swoze the death of Jupiter, and approached so night the strait, that they came within a Bow-that of each other, and from as far as they saw each one night he other, they make great cries and bouts. Jupiter had set his puissance in two Mings, whereas he was chief in the foremost, and sxion, and his Centaures, were governours of the second. Mhen Jupiter saw there was no way but to skirmish, he said he would begin the battel: and after that he had encouraged his people, he pricked his Poole forth and then happened a most marbellous accident. For from the high Clouds above, came down an Eagle upon his bead, and after began to sig about him, making him greatly rejoyce, and beparted not nor lest him during the battel.

By the flying of this Eagle, Jupiter and bis people received a hope of good fuccels. Aud Saturn and the Trojans fell in a fear and boubt, which they could not baibe out of their conceits. Buben Jupiter fam the Cagle, be rejopced greatly in bis beart, and as a man well affured of bictozp, be entreb among the Archers of the Trojans, that thot thick at him, and flying like a tempeft paffet by their Arrows, and tarried not fog refiftance of for, till be came amongft the men of Arms of the Trojans.

The Trojans bad neber feen man on boale-back befoge, and inben thep fam Jupiter, they thought it hab been balf a man and halfa boafe : and there were fome that fled at his coming, and fome abode and fought baliantly againft bim : thus began the battel of that bay. They of Creet followed Jupiter with a great noile of Mabors, and Clarions, and began to skirmift with the Trojans, they bib their beft on both fibes. Jupiter bare to the ground many Trojans, and well employed bis beafe on which be robe. Ganimedes and Saturn, on the other fibe faileh Always Jupiter probed bimfelf in arms the moff erpert And adventured his body and life in fight with abobe all other. bis enemies, and there was no merchat durft abide bis froakes. but was flain or put to flight, by the halour and promets of this marthy Chambion.

Cruel and fierce was this Battel, the Trojans, were without fear, and bib great promeffes, and manip, by the leading of Saturn and Ganimedes. Saturn met Jupiter oftentimes. as be that fought bis life : but Jupiter that knew bim well, would never abide bim, faying that be would never lap bank on his perfon, but efchemeb and fleb bis beath. Wet notwithflanbing, be fought the death of his belpers, and mabe no fparing of their Barnels, noz armour of Leather, of their beads, noz of their lives, of young, noz of oit, of baliant noz of barby, it was to bim all one : be vielded neither to one fibe noz to other, for froke of Sword, of Dace, noz of Buifarme. Dethe hab oft remembrance of the fair Danze, and befired to be quit of his enemies, for to go about ber beliberance, like as be bab promifed unto ber, be fmote off beads and arms. Anto bim mas nothing impossible: At there froke be beebbis Smoot mith with new blood, and the Gagle did fly always about him, sometimes low, otherwhites high. Therefoze the Trojans were greatly perpleyeb in their mints.

g.

t,

1-

.

ce

di

10

10

be 18

8

TE

m ds

rt

tb

£,

ig

tg

g,

1,

-

١,

ít

D

Ganimedes the noble Trojan was of little flature, pet notmithitanbing be was of greater courage than any other, higoroully be fought against them of Creet, as be that minbeb nothing but to win bonour and renown. That thall I fap? they fought manfully on both parts, from the morning till the eben. ing, not getting any abbantage one of the other, then Saturn. withbrew bis people on the one fide, and Jupiter returned with Ring Ixion, and the Centaures, and fiftl followed bim alwayes the Cagle, and fat upon bis Tent, which was made of boughs and green Rubes. foz at that time, Ments and Wabilions of Cloth were not inbented, howbeit the making of linnen Cloth. and Cloth of gold, and Silk was found befoze this time. In this night they of Troy, and also of Creet made great chear in their Ments, and prepared themfelbes to begin the battel anew in the morning, each one per l'wading bimfelt with bope of The wounded men were breffed, and the barnels broken was made again and ammoed : they (pake largely of the halours of each other, but principally they beld their fpeeches of the Wagte, and fpate fo much of bim, that Jupiter the fame night took a piece of Crimfon Satten containing a parb and a balf Tquare, and mabe therein the refemblance of an Gagle of gold and fer it on a Spear, and made a Banner, faping, that be would bear that banner in all Battels eper after. And that further that he underflood by the Eagle, that it was a token to bim, that be bould triumph ober bis enemies. And that be Would be the Boberaign King of Creer, like as the Gagle is Bing of all fowis.

CHAP. XXV.

How Japiter discomfitted again King Soturn in battel and how Soturn was put to flight by Sea.

Pele were the foreches of Ring Jupiter in this night, which be passed as merrily as he could : he visited the wounded

p

g

r

8 ſ

fo

ni

th

m

T

C

ba

m

ED

TH

m tu

be

h2

bin

CO

bii mí

the

of 1112

30 pa

1xi

tog

me

Die

FISHI.

men and comforted them, and concluded with Ixion, that the day following the Centaures bould have the battel, and they that had fought the day before bould rest them. After this, he sleept on the green, and rested until the time the Centaures put them in array, and went to horse-back. And so did jupiter, for he had rather have tree, than to be idle. At this time Sacura sleept not, nor was there any more slackness found in him and Ganimedes, than was in Jupiter, for they were sure they should be met withal, and assailed of their enemies again. They prespared and arrayed them the best sheep could, and about Sun-rising they went unto the host of Jupiter, encouraging each other to sight victoriously, and assail their mortal enemies harbily, so to avenge the blood of their fellows, that were read in the battel the bap before.

To make fort, the Trojans were fage enflamed with befire rebenge, and were the first in the field, wherefoze then rejorced greatly in their bearts, and mabe an extraogdinary fout. but this joy was anon abated unto them: for fubbenip as Jupi. ter and the Centaures heard their cry they took the Banner with the Engle of golb, and their Spens and Shields, and with a joyful found of Arumpets, Clerions, and Sabours, pricket forth their boales, which ran fwiftly through the air, and running an they that beld not of Benben nog of earth, upon their enemies deben the Trojans fato the Centaures mounted on Poglebuck, running as the mind, they were loze amageb. Beberthelefs, they took courage and withflood them, and the Centaures fought fo baliantly that each of them boze to theearth a Trojan with the point of his Spear. And among other, Ganimedes was alfo boan boton to the earth : and lome were burt. others reliebed after burting, and fome wirbout burt. Then Ganimedes felt himfelfamong the Dogfes feet, be faib, that be would be foarly revengeb. And be arole fubbenip, and took bis Smoot and feeing the Centaure that had operthrown bim. bo. ing marbellous feats of arms among a great many of bis men. who mightily withfrood bis ummeaftrable firokes, be gave bim a froke (as be was leaning on the right fibe to babe fmitten a Trojan) that he beeply wounded bim, by which be was fo aftoni Ges nished, that he fell from off his house, and he himself leapt up into the laddle. This Centaure was named Kon, and being young, was afterward hather to Jason, that conquered the golden fleece. When he had received the stroke that Ganimee des gave him, he made to great acry, that ten Centaures cause running and befended him from the press. And casting down one another, they beat the Trojans and overthrew them and so sprinkled their blood, that all the place was doed red: then they found Kon and Ganimedes one night the other, and beheld Ganimedes practife to manage and govern his Porse: and sking their fellow had less house, they were greatly surprized with mortal hate, that they pursued Ganimedes with great strength. The Trojans approached and sought mansuling against, the Centaures, and the Centaures still pursued Ganimedes.

The Centaures were strong, huge, and losty: the Trojans had more courage than strength of body. In this place Ganismedes shewed enough of prowels and balour and well desended him a while: but in the end fortune was to him adherse, in such wise, that after he had suffered many assaults, and had not more than a shouland. Trojans, he looked about and beheld Saturn retire in plain discomfiture: after he saw his Trojans driven back and sain, without turning or resisting, and thar all brake and turned their back: also he saw them that were about him, turned their backs and sed: and then knowing in this discomfiture that he had no remedy nor recoverance he between himself to slight, and sed after the other, and sustained as he might the pursuit that the Centaures made upon his men, and in the end he guided them unto the 1902t where the shipping was.

Saturn then in despairentred into his dip, with great loss of Trojans, and Ganimedes entred into another, so full of beath and anger that I cannot rehearse. At the entry of the Ships, part of the Trojans that were lest perished in the Sea, part by the Swood, and the other took hipping. Jupiter and Ixion thanked the Gods greatly for this victory, and concluded together, to pursue their enemies by sea, forasmuch as they were pet great in number. And Ixion said, that it was expedient to bring them to utter destruction, forasmuch as they had Fortume with them, and to the end that they would never gather force more against them. Jupicer yielded to this pursuit, greatly grieved, because he had tarried too long, and yet would tarry longer, if he put forth to Sea, that he would not be with Danac, at the day that he had promited her. This notwithstanding, hoping always to excuse himself unto her, he made him seady hastily to go to the pursuit of his enemies, and fent for the Parriners and after went into a Temple that was there by bedicated unto the God Mars.

CHAP. XXVI.

How Jupiter after he had facrificed the Eagle, pursued the Iro-

I upicer was no fooner in the Aemple, but the Cagle entred also, and sate upon the Altar. When Jupicer sate that, after many thoughts be took the Cagle, and made socitice: and amon after came tydings, that his Pariners were ready: so he went out of the Aemple, after he had paid his Drisons to Mars, and came to his Pariners that had made all things ready, and went to hes, accompanied with the Centaures, and two thousand Cretans, and sailed after his enemies as he delired: so, the Trojans are apare, and made all the sail they could. In these two ways Jupicer oftentimes withen him with his fair Danae and thought that his long tarrying would be irksome upto her.

The third day about three of the clock, they of Creet and Troy began to meet together upon the Sea. They of Troy were forwheld, but they of Creet rejoyced greatly. At this time Saturn was not with the Trojans, as he that durk not return with them for his hame that was befallen, and was utterly discomforted and in despair, and thying from Creet, sailed towards the Gatt. When Ganimedes espied the Ships of Creet from far, he supposed first, that it had been Saturn, and tarryed a while at Anthor: but when Ganimedes saw the Ships approach mearer him, and saw the banner of King Jupiter appear, he knew sor certain that it was Jupiter and his enemies, and not Saturn that he abode sor.

Then was Ganimedes foze troubled, and called bis companies, and Geweb them the Banner with the Gagle of gold, and aghen them what was beft to bo ? Abegantmered bim and faite That Saturn hab abanboned them and given ober, and that they ought not to abide and tarry, but only every man to fave bimfelf by flight. Ganimedes would fain babe trped a battel, fo prope if thep were as fortunate and happy on the Sea as theo mere on Land : but when he knew the mind of the Troians that they befired nothing but reft, be made to weigh up anchoza and fait forth, flying and withdrawing from them of Creet, as much as in them was postible. Jupiter and his Centaures then feeing the Trojans lying at anchoz, began to furnith and fit them for the fight : and when thep faw their enemies take up their anchozs they began to hout and follow. The purfuit was firong, and dured three bapes and three nights : and the fourth bap in the mouning, Ganimedes and his company efpring Land (which was Troy) they been to the Hoat with great jop, but that was foon mingled with forrow. for when they had taken land, they looked back and faw their enemies follow them, and came to the Boat all provided and ready for battels This frame and lofs french Ganimedes unto the beart, in luch manner, that be called unto his men, and laid as followeth : 11 18070 :

Op Beethren, and my fellows, feetune bath done to us a grace, by which we are brought and conducted hither, but this grace is to us little profit as we may plainly perceive. For here is King Jupiter, which hath done to us great hame, for to chase us intoduce adon territory and what hame will it be so him that will mote dig? and moreover, who is he that now will not hold the baidle by the teeth? now it behaveth us not to dig, but to fight. It is meet and necessary for to revenge our losses and blood, and to recover out bonour. De succour we cannot fail, for now the Trojans be upon the Malis and go upon the high Chiffichaufthe City, and behave our landing. And many there are that make them ready to welcome us. And who that now is noticell couragious, never fair he well: let every man ensore the between in pieces. I will no more dee: Apray you that

pe take courage and abibe with me. 1 20 mil

Awo things bappened while be fpake and uttered thefe forches unto bis people, the Frojans were abbertifeb of the coming of their men, and of the following and landing of their anberfaries, they bifpofed them to refift and withftand them. And Jupiter and his men approached the Boat, and with that Ganimedes left warning bis fellows, and ran unto the Boat, bolding in bis band a frong fpear : Dis company took erample bo bis bigb courage, and followed bim. Then began both the parties to make their crees, that were upinto the air. Jupiter anh bis Centaures enforced them to take Land. Ganimedes and the Trojans enfaced them to befend, and to put them from the Land. Great and Toge ftroaks were giben : Many of them were perifted in the Sea, and many there were that their blood was thed on the Land. Jupiter that had no fellow in the place. not Land in a little space, and sustained the fierceness of the okirmit, by belo of fome of the Centaures, fo that be mabe Ga. nimedes to retire back to bis fellows, and fo exploited by the bewing of bis tharp Swood, that made all bis men to take Lond and bab lightly put Ganimedes and bis men to the forle. if out of Trovibat not iffued King Troos and his Son Ilion. with a great multirude of people that ran unto the refcue and help of the paliant Ganimedes, who to fabe bis men, offered and put his body to the incredible perils ... said

Ring Troos and his Son Ilion, then made a fally out of Troy in fair order, and expoled them to bear a part in the travail of their blood. Jupiter with Ixion and the Centawes, left then them that he effective banquiched and overcome, and birected their forces against King Troos and Ilion, and them that followed them, notwithstanding that they had been feedled by the air, and being on the Sea, which vid them little good. The Centaures were great and buge, and stronge as Clephants. It this time the weather was fair and clear, the sim direct bright, when they began to skirmid: it was a brave light to behold the bickerings; and a great noise to hear the cryes: There was many a Spear broken, and many a brass and Guisarm shivered, Films enough cruster, and many a brass and Guisarm shivered, Films enough cruster, and many a brass and Guisarm shivered, Films enough cruster, and many a brass and Guisarm shivered, Portes smitten and torn in pieces. Troos and Ilion were fierce in the rescue of Ganimedes, Jupiter and Ixion were baliant and bestrous to get honour, and so fought, and laid on the Trojans on the right side, and on the lest, that before them was no resistance,noz ogber bolben.

The Banner of the Gagle of gold was alwaies in the moff harpnels and furp of the battel. Bing Troos that bab neber feen Banner uled in battel, greatly marbelled what it fould fignifie, and oftentimes bid what he could to fight against them that beld it, and would fain babe put it bown and lmitten it in pieces, but always be found there fo great frokes, and fo well taid on, that be was conftrained to retire as far back as be came nigh. De was baliant for bis perfon, and well knew the art of bar. Jupiter approbed bim many times and often, and fought with bim in many places, and noted bim in bis mind foz a nosable man : there was in bim no fear noz bread, noz alfo in both bis Sons Ilion and Genimedes : thep vielded unto arms their devopres. They bid worthipfully deal with their bodys, unte their puiffance without end. They fought with their enemies, making their fwoods red in the blood of the Cretansi They followed with great furp, that they fought all that Dan. other whiles afore, and Cometimes behind. And it was to in the end, that when the fun began to go Down, Ganimedes thinking on his great loffes, and befiring to recover his bonour; took a terrible and mighty are, and enflamed with a noble courage; fought about the Banner of the Gagle of gold where was moft frength; and fmote bown on the one fibe and on the oiver, fo unmeafurably, that his are changed colour, and be creed with an bigb boice, Troy, Troy.

Jupiced had alway an eye on the Banner. When he heard the cry of Canimedes and faw his behaviour, he knew him, whereof he had greative, for he lought no man but him; he gave over the place where he was in; and iopoully addressed him unto him, and said, D baliant Trojan, thou hast the meditive yearness all the day, and now thou manifested and wewelf the self by haughty feats of arms, and of great Bouts. Thou art only he hat I feek among the baliants of Troy; not onely that I prefume to be more valiant in arms than thou, but forefmuch as thou art be that half affailed Creet, and that I have purfued thee hither. Thou has affailed and fought with me army against army, and note let us fight body against body, and iet bim take it that map get it.

Ganimedes with this wood lifted up bis Areand caffing bis eres on Jupiter, made bim this animer : Bappy Bing of Creet. I know that thou art weathy to habe grace of fortune. and that then art moze wife than frong. Thou feeen that fortune is with thee, neverthelels now thou enhantelt not the felf abobe me. I allow and parife thee: in as much as thou boeff morthip and bonour to thine enemp, and difpraifest bim not, but imagineft that be barb courage at his beart, know thou that thou boff the felf bonour and wor bip. for to bifp zaife, and blame another man, no man ought to advance bimfelf. I would that it pleafed the Gods that the father Saturn which is manbeing on the Sea, were now bere, for fris mine intent, that by bis belp we would have reason of thee, and I will come thereto. if it be for me politible, for 3 hould be latisfied for all my burts and loffes.if I might conquer and obercome thee. And without moze mozds, Ganimedes fet fig his Are, and fmote on Jupiter, Jupiter copered bim with bis Shield, which was Imitten in two pieces by the cutting of the Are, then Jupiter beffirred bimfelf, who all that bay bad abffained and fpared from fight and the feats of Arms : and commanded his folk that thep hould let bim alone with Ganimedes, fogalmuch as be mas alone. And now be befenbeb bemfelt againft the Are of Gaminedes, and belaboured bim wirt bis Swood, the beft wife to bim was posible.

Thus began the battel of the two Champions of Creet and of Troy. They were both right expert, to do the feats of Arms, the crees were high and fierce, they Imate each other fiercely, the fire lyraing out of their belies by the might of their fredes. But when fortune was on the part of Jupiter, what might Ganimedes do? his firehes were great, and gave unto Ganimedes many wounds: and indeed took away his Are, by the mean of a great wound that he had in the right arm, and might

babe

babe put him to beath, if he would. But he had pite on him, and faved his life, and caused him to be kept by four Centaures: Anon after it began to war bark, the Trojans withdrew them into their City, and they of Creek unto the Boat of the Sea.

CHAP. XXVII.

How King Trees and Ilien his Son, made great forrow for Ganimedes for they wift not where he was. And how Jupiter went to the Sea to go to Arges:

Then Troos and Illon were withdrawn, they above at the Bate until the time that all the Trojans were come again into the City, as they that knew not where Ganimedes was become, whom they fore befired to babe found. All they that were in the battel of the Trojans were entred, and there was no man could rell the Bing where Ganimedes was. And when he fato be had no moze men left in the field : be re. turned into bis Palace Togrowing, and fent for them that were come again from Creet, and enquired of them all the tobings. and what they bab bone wirb bis son. As touching bis son. they answered that in the evening be was in the press among his enemies, but they knew nor what was become of bim. And as touching the redings of Creet, they told bim bow they bad foed in their Journey against them : and bow the Cagle appearen unto Jupiter: and bow they were obercome by the firemeth of the Centaures. And how they knew not where Saturn was become.

n

b

t

-

Û

D

e

it

Abele tydings gave into King Troes forrow apon lorrow, and to Ilion. And the rears fell down from their eyes, and in special Uion wept sore, bewaiting his Brother in this manner: Alas my Brother, alas Ganimedes, where is become the glory of Troy by the unfortunate and unbappy Saturn, which bath failed there in thy need. At the least, it thou bath come again, we together would have done out best, to have been abenged of this loss, we would have allayed our bodies, by fraternal love, sor to have recovered thine honour. Down is it, art thou perished by benturing what hard grief or sorowis to thee betain.

befain, for to les est the mis-adventure and mis-hap is to prejudicial unto the house of Troy. Him, fair son, answered Troos for one advertite it behover not to be ababed in the war in any wise, but to have siem courage: war giveth this day victory to one, and on the morn taketh away, and giveth it to another, and so putteth each out. A virtuous and a manly man unto his death, ought not to be afraid. If Ganimedes be dead in the battel, or if he be taken, what remedy? it is then expedient, either to abenge his death, or to succour him: but our enemies be in little number, we will to morrow fight with them again: and let the Gods do their wills of us, and if I fail berein, 3 Call be quite biscourageb.

Ilian and the Bobles of Troy comfazted them with thefe words of Bing Troos, and confirmed his resolution, to go on the morreto to affail bis enemies; while thefe things were in parlepin the City, Jupiter was in the field and made great chear with Ixion and the Centaures : and being fet at Supper upon the ground, all about a great fione, Jupiter lent to ferch Ganimedes, and made bim to fup with them. Ganimedes were foze mobed, and bad in bis beart great trouble : per be took a hoat refection with them, for be felt great ach and fmart in bis wounds. And there Jupiter communed with bim Caping, tharbe was the balianteft man that eber was feen among the mon balianteft of Troy, and foralmuch as be was in his merce, and that it was be that fat with bis father, befrended into Creet. where be bad gladly planted bis name in woathip, if fortune would babe fuffered bim : therefoze (fait be) 3 will no more war before Troy, but I will enter again to morrow unto the bes, and will go and put in erecution, a thing that lett ine now foge at the beart: And I will gibe you to know; that I babe intention to go into the Bealm of Argos, unto the Lower of Dardan, for to beliber, according to mp promife paff, out of the fame Rower the fair Danae, tobom the Miny Achrifius boldeth faft thut in, without any reafon. This conclution pleafed Bing Ixion and the Centaures, fozalmuch as they bad beard Speak of the Kower of Dardan : and they thought well that the Argiens might not bold against their Arength. When that thep bah bad eaten, they entred into their ships, and thought among other things, on the Mounds of them that were burt, and also of Ganimedes. And after they laid them down on the firaw to flere, and about two bours befoze day they weighed Anchoz, and departed so secretly, that the Trojans had no knowledge thereof. And on the mozrow betimes, when King Troos and llion issued out of Troy to battel, they ranged in good ozder, and found no man to bave to do withal, noz they could not see noz perceive their enemies on no coast of the Sea, soz they had so far sailed from the Pozt, that by that time they were out of sight. Thus they had great sozrow marbellously, and came unto the place where the battel had been, and buried the Dead men. But now I will leave speaking of them, and of Jupiter, and will turn unto the Pistozy of Danac.

CHAP. XXVIII.

How King Achrifius when he saw his Daughter with child, sent her to exile, and put her in a little Vessel into the Sea, at the adventure of Fortune.

Then the noble Damofel Danae above with Thild by Jupiter, as it is faid befoze. After that Jupiter mas returned into bis Country, the abode long in bope, that be would come and fetch ber by firength of people, and would lead ber into bis Bealm, as be bab promifeb. In this bope the mounted oft times into bigh windows of the Lower, and casting ber eres, now hither, now thither, upon the mountains, ways and firets, for to look if be came, or that the might fe bis men of Arms, and bis people of war, and without end, the bad always ber ears a. pen to liften if the might bear the Arumpets, Mabours, and Clarions. Abis bope dured long, unto the laft day that Jupiter bad promifed : and fore the complained in this time of his abiding : and faid unto ber felf, that be would come. evening was come of the day be had fet, and the beard no tydings of bim, and that the fruit of ber bellv appeared: the went down from the window of the high Tower, and all furpzized with befpair, to behold ber great belly, fato : poor belly, 3 map no longer longer bibe thee, I have copered thee unto this time, boping the coming of Jupiter : the bay is come and past that be thould babe come, and there is no troings of bim. Alafs, and barb bealfo fozgotten mee, abere art thou Jupiter ? Art thou bead og alibe? If thou be bead, fpeak to mee in fpirit, in ercufing thee of the Default. Hell me what thall I bo with the feed? And if thou be alibe, what mifebiebous ebil abbenture boldeth thee? Art thou wearp of Danae, that thou enforceoft by raining gold? of ber that thou fo much befirebit ? Alas, thon promifebit me the lobe, and gabeft it unto mee: and I receibed the gift in own Part, and gabe unto thee mine beart. And what Wall this be lupiter, my love and friend? Art thou of the nature of falle men, an bypocrites that go about to beceibe poor Momen, and then leave them in Difonour? Alas, thou artone berilp, thou haft brought meinte perpetual fbame, and baft abandoned and given me ober. D mischiebeus man, D falle lpar, be thou curfed with the riches, and accurred be the bour that ever 3 fam thee. 3 am for eber by thee put to thame : and map no longer bite the works. Where thall me child become? every man thall fee and know my trefpals. Alas, my father will put me to bearb. I may not fail of it : and as for bearb it Wall not griebe me. fabe for the fruit that I bear, ret fall I heep it as mellas mp feif, at all abbenture, come what map come thereof.

In these and such like wazds, Danae passed over this night, without rest : from thencesozth she began to be all melancholious, and took this so soze to heart, that she sell into a griebous malady. When the Paidens that knew nothing of this cause, saw her so viil disposed they signified it unto the King Achrisius, and then came the King to visit his Daughter, and betook her to the cure of his Physicians and cunning men, and demanded of them what malady she had. Abey answered him in the presence of Danae, that she was great with Childsand that in short time she should be delivered. Danae answered that they failed to say the truth, and that she had never known man, and denyed her fast as much as in her was possible, beging alway to tive for the well knew that her father would condemn her to death if he knew that she were with Childs. And about this all the Paidens, Maibens of the boule arobe with the Pilirels, laying: that they had well and lurely kept the Lower, that no manifa be the Ring had spoken to ber; (unless he had come invisible) little that they had received ber into their governance. Metat the King was greatly ababed, and some wonded.

Men the King heard these woods, and saw the state of his Haughter, he was soze troubled, for he experience he saw well, and it appeared that Danac was with child. And to know the truth, he sent all the Maidens of the plate into Waison to Argos, and betook Danac in keeping to other women, and commanded them upon pain of beath, that they should tell him if the were, or bappened to be belibered of Child or no.

30

2.

u

of

g

e,

e

D

u

D

D

r

I

0 e

ŝ

,

8

Mithin a certain time, when Danac fam ber felf in this cafe. the began to fall into weeping. Bing Achrifius, from this bay forth, came eberg bay to know bow be bib. She wept without ceafing : the fpake not, but unto berbeart : and the bemailed ber lobe, and complained en faztune fogre bfully. But when the hab laboured long in thefe weepings, and that her fair eyes were made great and red, about fifteen bars, befoze the time of ber childing, the began to remember the cause who the was put into the Lower. And that the Bobs had prognofficated that the fould babe a Son, that fould be Bing of Argos. In this remembrance the was comforted little : and when the rime came that nine monthe was erpired, the baought foath a paffing fair son. which the Labies and Momen received and named bim Perfeus: And after that fignified it unto the Bing. But at the birth of this Chilo, the excused and put out of blame all the Damolels, and faid that they were all innecent of ber fact.

Amon then, as the Bing Achrifius knew the verity of his Daughter, and that the had a fair Son, he had in his beart moze of fozrow than of joy, and condemned her to beath indeed, and commanded two of his Pariners, that they hould take the mother and the Child, and put them in a little Boat both together, and that they hould carry them far into the high Sea, that after that, never hould men fee them noz have knowledge of them. The Pariners durff not refuse the commandment of the Bing: but went to the Tower Dardan, and took Danae, and ber Son Perfeus, and faid unto the Damofel all that ther bab charge to bo, paging ber bumbly that the would parbon them : and this was about midnight, when Danae underflood that the thould be caft into the Sea, and ber Son with ber. Det fbe bah hope to escape this peril, by the means of the fortune of ber This notwithftanbing, the tears ran bown from ber epes, and weeping tenberly, the took ber leave of the Ladies and Damofels that bab ber in keeping : and thep let ber be carried upon the Sea. making complaint and pitious bewailings. When the Bariners bad brought ber upon the Sea, thep left ber in a little Boat, and put in ber lap Perfeus ber fair Son, and as baffily as they might, they conducted ber into the beep Sea without meat og baink, and without flerne og gobernail, and gabe ber ober to all winds. Then was there many a tear wept among the Mariners. The Mariners bemailed with great compaffion to fee fuch a Damofel abandoned to peril of beatly. Danae wept in confidering the rigour of ber father, and the fault that Jupiter had bone to ber, and alfo for the peril which the might not relift : and Perfeus wept foz the blowing of the wind and for the grofs apr of the Sea, that his tendernels might not well fuffer to enbure. In this fathion the Bariners returned to Argos, and Danae went forth upon the water of the Bea, at the agreement and will of the winds. The wates were fearful, and lifted themfelbes into the apr as mountains. the winds blem by great fleams, the little Boat was boan and caft upon the wabes, and oftentime Danae fuppofed to habe perited , but the had alway hope in fortune. And fo well it bappened, that in this abberfity and trouble, the was caft into the Sea of Apulia oz Naples. And there was found by abbenture of a fifter, that for pitpand charity took ber into bis thip and her Son, and baught ber on Land.

10 2

At this time the noble Danae was as a dead body, and half gone: when the Fisher-man had brought her on Land, the took a King of Gold that the wore on her singer, and gave it unto the good man, praying him, that he would bring her into some bouse, where the might warm and cherish her, with her Child, so he was nigh dead with cold, and was all in a trance. The

fifber.

ab

n: Be

ab PE

er

nb Da

en

in 28

êã DI

ot

11

b.

96

b

e

g

8

f

S 1,

e

fifter-man took the Gold Ring, and brought the Damofel, and the little Chilbinto bis boule, and made them a good fire, and brought them meat and brink. As foon as Perfeus felt the apr of the fire, bis beart came to bim again, and be began to laugh on his 49 other. Then the fato that, all ber forrows turned to jop, and the took hope of good fortune. She then mabe ready and arraped ber Son, and ber colour came again : the fifber-man feeing in ber fo much beauty, that the like to ber be faw never none, be went unto the Court of the Ring of Naples, and told him his abbenture, praising to certainly ber beaute, that the Bing fent baffilp foz to fetch ber : this Bing was named Pilonus, and was Son to the ancient Jupiter. And when Danae mas come befoze bim, fubdenly be wared amozous of ber, and bemanbed ber name, ber Country, and the cause tobe the mas adventured on the Sea. At beginning the ereused ber felf pfall thefe things, unwitting to tellall, and began to weep. Then the Bing fam that, he comforted ber and faid, that be would take her for bis wife for ber beauty : and fpake fo fair to ber, and fo gracioufly, that the told him all ber life, bow the was Daughter of Bing Achrifius, andibote the was thut in the Momer, and bow Jupiter bad beceibed ber, and bow ber father bad put ber Taben the Bing Pilonus beard all thefe fortunes of the Damolel, be bab pity on ber, and webbed ber with great bonour, and bib put to nurle Perfeus, and got on ber a Son. which was named Danaus : but of this matter & will ceafe, and turn again to the Biftory of Jupiter.

CHAP. XXIX.

How Jupiter returning from Troy by Sea, Encountered the great Thief Egeon; which he fought with, and overcame; and of the tydings that he had of Danae, whereof he was palling forrowful.

7 Ben Jupiter was beparted from Troy, be made bis 903riners to fail and row with all diligence, to with baam from the Boat, and to appaoach Creet, for he knew well that the time of his promife made to Danae was expired, and that vispleased him greatly. His mariners vid all that they could be by the space of a day natural, but the day being past, there arose a tempest in the Sea so terrible, and out of measure, that it bare many Ships with their furniture under water, beake their sterns and beins, and decimed all the Ships, save only that Ship which Jupiter was in: wherefoze he wept outragiously. The tempest dured three days and three nights, They saw not that time in the Beaven, Sun, Poon, noe Stars. Jupiter and they that were with him thought never to have dyed other heath, yet they escaped the death, and took Land the third day when the Tempest was eased, not in Creet, noe in the Sea of Europe, but in the Becan so far, that they knew not the language of them that inhabited the Poet where they came to An-choz.

Difpleafed

The lupiter faw the frangenels of the people dwelling in this Boat, be knew they were far from their Begion, and then mas lupiter bifcomfited, that be wifted be bab not been there. noz come on the Sea, fozalmuch as be knew well that be might not accomplit bis premile made unto Danze bis Lobe. made many great bewaitings touching this matter, and moze than I can fay: and alfo made complaint foz bis men that be had loft in the floam and tempeft, as well as be complained for the befault of bis promife. But when his companions, Ixion, and the Centaures and Ganimedes, bad refreibed and bictualled them, and bad well put alt things in oaber, they weighed Anchoz, and departed from the Boat, and took their way into the Gaff : and fo laboured day by day, that they entred into the Sra And they had not long failed when they met with Egeon Egee. the great Thiefand Bover, which beld at his will all this bea : then they bifanchozed from the Boat of the Mie of Defart, and be accompanied with fir Balleps, and with a thouland men of erms, came befoze Jupiter, paobiding them to battet, in purpofe to have beffroped them.

When Jupiter and the Centaures, saw the behaviour of the Abief, they knew straight ways that they might not fail of battel, and saying each to other they would befond themselbes unto beath. They had not long held Parliament among them, but they furnished themselbes with their Arms, and displayed the Banner with the Eagle of Gold. And in the displaying they made great a joy, as they had been in Baradise. At this time had Ganimedes his wounds healed. Then he saw that each man prepared himself to fight saving he, which was prisoner, he came and kneeled down on his knees before Jupiter, and equired him right humbly, that he would command to deliver him his Barness, for to help to maintain his bonour, and also to besend his life, promising to do his true enseavour.

Jupiter rook up Ganimedes, when he fam him fibmit him felf, and began to fer his love on him, that if endured eben unto the beath: and that moze is, his Parnels and Arms were dielbed unto him, faying that from thenceforth they would be brethren and fellows in Arms, and Ganimedes and weren to him that he would alway abide and owell bis ferbant.

During thele speeches, Egeon and his Gallehs Garbed the Shie of Jupicer, and songht with them? Becon was in the front before as Captain. Jupicer beheld him and know him by his arms that he bare, and ere that any stroke was smitten, hecalled to him, and said. After and kover: Pow durk thou pursue to death him that made there to tremble, and sie before him at the batter of Creek, by seeing of his Bwood dyed and made red with the blood of the unhappy Fitzardys? Behold and see mer, I am Jupicer, the mortal enemy of all thy Linage. Thou in likewise art my enemy, and now art come in battel against me. It may be well said that we shall run each upon other, by great socie, and that this constit shall be damageable sor the or so, me, and let the Gods do their pleasure.

Then Egeon unberstood what Jupicer had said to him, and that he was the destroyer of his Linage, he had his heart so incensed with ire and imparience, that he could not answer one word: And grinning with his teeth, he began to smite so hard toward Jupicer, that is the stroke of his Are had been right, there had never been remedy of his life. But Jupicer knew the seats of war, and when he saw the stroke he adopted it : and lifted up his Swood, and charged it upon Egeon so surely, that he could not about the stroke, which was so societie, that he was so asso-nied that it made him fall down upon the planks of the Balley. Then made the Wyrates and Thiefs a great cry, and furiously fell upon Jupicer and his company. Ganimedes held his Are win his bands, and was not then idle: he fought and wrought most valiantly after his power, and so did the Centaures. The shirmish was great, and many were strucken down, not of the party of Jupicer, but of the Pyrates, and then laboured the Centaures, so that they doed the Balleys with the blood of their enemies: And that the Pyrates, albeit they were ten against one.

thep neither could, noz might not abide befoze them.

Thus began the moztal battel of the Borates, and of the Centaures, when the one Walley bad fought as long as they might. another came on. Abus Jupiter and Ganimedes bab enough to Do to fight, and they failed not what to bo, for the more then fmote, the moze bifpleafure bab the Byrates. Cach of their frokes was the beath of a lagrate. In process of time, Egeon came again into the peels bifmaged, and filed full with impatience, be put bimtelf forth to fight, in the moft ffrength, all befperately, to win all, og to lofe all. At this time the battel was fo deadly , that all the Balleys cloted the Ship of Jupicer and (mote on it: but this was to their mil-bap andill fare, for the most part of them were flain : then Ganimedes and Jupiter. entred into the Walley of Bing Egeon, where be tought to fore on the one fibe and on the other, for enby who bould bo beff, that of all them that were within, there was not left one man, but be was flain or caff into the Bea, ercepting only Egeon, which Tupiter took with bis bands, and bound bim with an bundzed chains of Tron.

Mith these chains of Iron Egeon had a custom for to bind his Prisoners, until the time they had bone his will. When the Oprates saw the mischiefthat came upon them, and that their master was overcome and bound with the chains, they intended to save themselves, and withdrew from the Ship of Jupiter, saying, that those that they had sought withal, were no men, but Devils, and that they were unhappy that came into their hands. Jupiter had but one hip. The Oprates dispersed abroad one here, another there. And when the Centaures saw that,

that, they said to Jupiter, that it ought to suffice to have this victory over his enemy, and that it was no need to make purfinit after the unhappy Ahreves. Jupiter accorded to the same, and entred again into his Ship with Ganimedes and Egeon, and after made his Pariners to take their course again. And alway he had in his memory Danac. He was a year long sailing by the Sea: and in the end of the year, he arrived in his Kealm, and there sound sour hundred Porses, which they of Creet precented unto bim foz bis welcom.

91

10

9

.

The Dueen Juno bis Mife, made great chear, foz the lobed him with all ber beart, wherefore the featted bim, and them that prefented to bim the Borles. And be put in prifon Egeon, and let Ganimedes go free where be would ; thep lobed then toge. ther ever after as two bzethren. Ahben Jupiter bab been there three bays, be took four bundzed of bis men of the most puiffant, and made them Bnights, gibing to each of them one of his Bogles : and perfected them in the fears of Arms, after the niscipline of Ixion and the Centaures. And when they had bone this, be affembled a thouland foot-men, and two bundzed Ar. chers, and with them be detreed from Creet fifteen daps after bis return : and fent not for Pluto, noz for Neptune, and took bis way unto the City of Argos, meaning to babe taken amay the fair Danae. But be bad not far gone, when be met one of the Citisens of Argos, a Bentleman and mez fipful, that recounted and told him all the life of Danae, fozasmuch as bedemanbed of bim tobings. And affured bim on bis life, that the Ring Achrifius bad fet ber on the Sea, fazalmuch as the bab brought forth a little Sonagainft bis commandment.

Then Jupiter heard the case and missoztune of Danae, he began to sigh soze: the sweat came into his face, and tears into his eyes, he called Ganimedes and Ixion and told them, that his boyage was broken: and that the King Achrisius had cast her into the Sea, sor whom he made this Army. Ganimedes and Ixion comforted him the best they could, and brought him again to Creet, he held him there solitary a while: and lay by his wife Juno, and Juno and her Aunt Ceres made him good chear oftentimes. And so oftenme Ceres, that once the asked the cause of his forrow. We beheld the beauty of her: and for that he was alone, he used the matter so that he had to be with her and knew her stelling and after he had determined in his mind, that he would go into Sicil: and taking leads of King Ixion and of the Contaures, his shipping was made ready, and he went to Sea, and came into Sicil, and conquered it unto the Ase of Lemnos. And when he had so done, he went into Italy, and came into the house of King Janus, which received him, and made him great chear, and told him that his Father Saturn was newly come to dwell thereby, and that he was singularly loved of all the people, so assumed as he taught them to labour the vines, and to sow come.

æ

All the blood changed in Jupiter, when he heard that Janus Spake to bim of bis father Saturn : neperthelefe be went to fee bim, and faw bim, and found bis father making and founding of a new City, in the place where now flambs the Capitol of And in fuch wile be fubmitteb bim to bis farber, that Saturn took bim to bis grace, and made peace with bim : and alfo accorded to bim that be thould enjoy from thenceforth his Meatm of Creet : At the account of making of this peace were Bing Janus and Bing Evander, and thep dwelled the one nigh the other, that is to wit, Janus ina City named Laurence, and Evander in a City being migh the mount Aventine: and fo was there Bing Italus of Syracufe, that made in this time a new Cito named Albe, upon the Riber of Tyber. All thefe Bings made dreat cheat foz the agreement of the father and the Son: and thus Jupiter, abiding there be acquainted bimfelf wirb the amife of Bing Evander named Nicoftrate, fozalmuch as the was right erpert in the fcience of Bigromance, and of ber be tearned this frience. Tupiter after this took leave of ber, and of his father Saturn, and of his neighbours, and left there Satorn, that was married again to a Moman called Philiris, by mbom be bab a Son called Picus, that was father of Ring Fanus, Busband to the Ducen Fatua, of whom Hercules was a. mozous, and returned into Creet, and there found that his wife mas pelipered of bis Son Vulcan, and that bis beloned Annt Ceres mas belibered of a Daughter, named Proferpina, where-nf

no be

be a,

S. be at to

e,

w

ÚS.

to

1. of 11

g

0

b

U

of Juno bar bifplealed and Difcontent, and complained to Jupiter of the Difonour that be bad bone tober. But Jupiter fet nought thereby, but laughed and was moze jopous of bis daughter, than of bis bon : for bis Daughter was marbellous fair, and Vulcan bis Bon was foul and crook-backed. Barwithftanbing, to live in peace with Juno, be married Ceres to another man named Siccam, and gabe to them the Realm of Sicil and the City of Syracule, and fent them to bwell there with Profer, pina. And it was not long after that, but be fent bes ton Vulcan into the 3fle of Lemnos, whom he berook to be Govert so by three men, named Berotes, Scropes, Pyragmon : and kept him fo well that be came to age : and that be was a man of a noble mind, and learned all Sciences, in efpecial Rigromanty, Weomancy, and Bezomancy, and made many marvellous thinge, that be patt credit to fpeak : wherefoge I will tart rp now of him, and of Jupiter. And will treat of his Son Perfeus, fozalmuch as of bim came Alcumena.

CHAP, XXX.

How Queen Medufa came to Athens, to worthip in the Temple of the Goddels Pallar. And how King Neprane waxed amorous of her : and how the deceived him.

If this time when Jupiter lived peaceable thing of Creet. and that his Son Vulcan wared great, and learned the craft of Bigromancy, in the Land of Helperie, there paged out of the Mozio a Ring named Porcus, a man of great balour, which the Hefperiens called Wood of the Sea of Spain, antiently called Helperi, as is laid. Abis Bing left'three Daughters,lobers of the earth, fozalmuch as they intended unto vices, that bold of earthip things. Dithete Daughters one was named Medufa, the other Euriale, and the third Senno. Medufa, that was the elbeft of all the other fucceeded in the Realm. And the Boets Cap, that the bad the bead of a Berpent, giving by this to understand, that the was wonderful wife and fubril. After the beath of King Porcus, this Medula goberned mightilp ber Bealm, and maintained Byzats and men of war, and inber beginning ginning the occupped and haunted the Sea of Europe, at pleafure, and with great tryumph. And landing on a dap at the Bost of Athens, the fent unto King Neptune to require him that the might enter into his City, for to worthip in the Aemple of the Goddels Pallas, which was newly made. Neptune did great honour unto the Petfengers of Medula, and accorded unto her, that the fhould enter into his City, and into the Aemple, upon condition that the hould have none with her but her Damosels. When Medusa heard the answer of King Neptune, the concluded that the would go into the Aemple. And the mas accompanied with many Damosels so richly arrayed, that it was a gallant fight to see. She entred into the Aemple, and into the City, and there she turned into stones not only the men that beheld her, but also the Ammen, and among all other especially a Ducen that was named Ida.

Esthis it is to be understood that this Medusa was of so excellent beauty, and so passing rich, that all they that beheld her gave themselves over wholly to covet her beauty, and her riches. And therefore write the Poets that they were turned into kones: for they that dispose themselves, and give them to the delights of the world, be likened and compared unto hard sones, whereof may no good come. Thus then Medusa entering into Athens, converted and turned into stones many men: insomuch, that Neptune heard these tydings, and desiring to sethis Augen, he went into the Temple, where the was incontemplation. And he had not song beheld her, but he said to himself, that the should be his Misse, and that the should never escape from bim.

This Medula was long space in contemplation, during which Neptune desired her beauty moze and moze, and his heart gave him, that he should obtain his purposa. And after, he a little pauled, considering the excellency of her; grief, and thoughts traversed, and arose in his mind, that constrained him to say these words that follow: Alas, in what matter, and in what endaming pain be they that are burning in love, by long space of time, that 3 already begin to sind me in so many great sighs and pains, that I know not how I may in time come unto this

E

le

c

D

r

t

Laby, to require ber to be my wife. She is fining in all beautp, and in right abundant riches. This is it that 3 lack : fhe beholdeth me otherwhiles in ber pagers ; it may bappen fo mell, that lobe may turn ber beart, to make alliance betwirt her and me. And tobat is this? men fap that lobe burteth ne man, but by bisepes. If the eres be not made to fee, 3 will fap that my befire hall hap well. Mhere am 3? where am 3? put me out. Where is my heart? where is my befire ? I know not what I think, my thought may be abufed, and my abufe map mell be reperfed : mine eyes parabbenture think thep fee that thep fee not. Dine ears imagine, to bear and pet thep be beaf. 3 find mp felf in a great perplexity and bery attainder : and per moze, in a fuperfluous erroz, moze than any man may habe : for when I fee this Lady moze excellent iban all other, in riches and brauty, reafon telleth me, that the is not come hither for me : and when 3 behold that theis alone michaut men in mp City, tho fall gain-lap mp will? 3 will require ber to be mp Bife, after that the bath bone ber Debotion: and if the accord to my requelt, my labour hall bo well. And if the gain-fay and withfrand it, then I must be of force and authority Bopal.

Thus, toben Neptune came to this conclusion, Medula arole from ber contemplation, and Neptune went to ber, and did ber reberence, and after paged ber, that the would go to bis Ropal Walace to refrest ber. Medula thanket bim foz bis courtefie, and faid, that the might not well tarry there at that time. When Neptune underfrood that the was to return, without flap. ing longer in bis City, be was displeafed in bis beart, pet be held ber in parler, and beem ber apart, and faid unto ber Ccban. ging colour:) Dabam, I am foarp that pe refule to take barbour in my boule. 3am Bing of this City, the Wobs babe not giben me fo great bap, that I babe per any Mite, ang Laby og Damofel: it is now to bappened that the Bods and fortung bate infpired pou to come bither. Certainly it is pour beauto bath prepared the epe of my beart, and bath made me fo befirous of you, that I give unto you, beart, boby, and goods, and all that a Lover may give unto bis Love of Lady, of any Bing bis Aucen. Therefore I pray you that pe will go unto my malore, to the end that I may have communication more fecretby there, and tell you of the great love that I have to you.

As Medufa unberflood the requefts of the Bing, the began to from and not willing to be otherwife entreateb, fbe anfwered to bini. Royal Sien thit were to that my beart befired acquaintairce and communication with one man moze than with another, in fruth, 36 Ho found me bilpofed, would bold my felf haupp, finding mp felf in the grace of your epes : but the matter goeth with me far otherwife, 3 lobe as much one man as another. 3 base a purpose to abide and continue in mp birainiro : De be a Bing : pour babe given to me fafe conduct to perform mp Wilgrimage. 3 befire that pou bear pour felf in fuch wife, as if ge had neber feen me. Babam (faid Neptune) how thall 3 bo that you fap, when my beart is all giben unto pou? Dir (anfwered Medula) it behoveth firft to know, and after that to love; I babe told pourbere, that I babe a purpofe to abide a Wirgin, what may it phofit pou to fap, that pou habe giben me pour beart? thefe be butdoft mozds. Dame (faib Neptune) the Diamond hineth not tillit be polited : pe mere neper perabbenture befired og requefted of lobe befoge nom : thierefoze pou babe no meze love to one man than to another. Theretoze poul muff unberftand that acquaintance bzeeberh lobe:and if pout willcome and abibe with me, 3 make no boubt but that pour mind will change. Sir (antwered Medufa) mp will is unchangeable. Botwirbftanding (faid Neptune) it muft change be nor abalbeb. | bir (antwered Medula) 3 fee norbing that gipeth me caule of abalbment, foz I feel my beartfirm and fable in bis operations. Bou be a Bing, and babe given me fafe conduct to finith my Devotion at the Temple of the Bob. bels of pour City. Bealon and bonour theuld govern pour courage. Dame (faib Neptune) if pour beauty furmounteb not the beauty of other women, I would willingly confent to your return : But when I conceive how pou are formed in to biah a begres of Mature that nothing lacketh in you. And further. when Tree that the great Bobbels Pallas bath infpired pou to come to this my City, reason may babe no place: bowfoeber it be by love or by force, pe hall be my Mife: A bad rather doe na run into all the bilbonours of the world, than for to fail to have your tobe. a al a matabald to milage sin day in mayen Medufa that was wife, bad underffood the woods of Neptane, and fam weil that be was couragiouffpenflamed with ber amozous befire, and that the might not escape bis power, foz her beauty, unlefs it were by an abbenture : then the changed her bair into colours : that is to fap, that where foace reigned, the wrought by lubtilty, and faid unto the Ring; Sir, Iknow pou are a great and putfant Lozd, and that love bath moved pour by foace to take me to pour Mife. Since pour pleafure is luch, 4 am content to bo all as you have demanded, and that this fame dap be folomnized the marriage between pot and me : but the moze folemnip to aboan the feast of our Medbing, I require of you two things : First, that I map return unto the Boat, to my Beople, for to array and orefs me with my coffly Jewels, foz 3 cannot employ them to moze great glozp, than to ule this day of my marriage : and Secondie, that pe will caufe to array and drefs the Ladies of this Tity, to ceceibe me as it appertainerh : for I will that ge well know, that in all the remnant of the Lodies of the world, pe thall not find any that bath moze moveable goods and riches than I babe.

0

Neptune was then as one all rapifed with jop, when be beart this answer of Medula : and be fent again this Medula unto the Ballers, hoping that the would return again to be bis Mife : but wben the by the fubtilty of ber wit, was belibered again at the Boat tobere Neptune bab nothing to bo : inflead to return to the City, the caufed to weigh Anchozs all ber fbips, and hopft fail, and in all baft withozew them from the Boat : and inflead to amay berin beftments nuptial, the tob ber arms, and made all beinen to Arm thent. And thus fbe efcaped from Neptune, who was in great forrow, and in great anger faid. that the had the bead of a Berpent, and that ber bairs were turned into colours, to the end to bide moze gracioufly the matice of ber beart : be repeated the manner bot the bad beceibed and be-quiled bim.

Thus then escaped Medusa the bands of Neptune by the means, means of her head ferpentine: and Neptune abode conherted and turned into a fione: of this thing ran the renown through all Greece. And the heauty of Medula was so commended, that from those parts went every day many knights to see her, and many of them were turned into stones, and many lost their treafures: innumerable ensorcing themselves, by arms to conquer this Lade, who withstood alway their assaults and endeabours and alway abobe conquerour of them.

Medula fer nought by King noz Kzince, that would have her to Mife: he was all fer toget and gather the treasures of the Mozld. Whe eas her Father had been very covetous, yet was he moze covitous: and coming again from Athens unto her own kealm, after that he had brought under subjection the Greeks that revelled against her, he was so plunged in the deep swallow of coverousness and avarice, that he made war against all her neighbours, and conquered them, constraining them to pay her yearly large tributes. Thereby her state and name arose, and was so great, that the same thereof ran-into many far kegions.

In the time that the renown of Medula was in this credit, Perseus Son of Danae and Jupiter was in the balour and prime of his strength: and he daily required his mother and the Bing, that they would give him leave to seek his adventure. When then Pilonus heard speech of the mightiness of Medula, of her rapines and abarice, he thought that his Son in saw hould do a vertuous work, if he might correct her: so be told to Perseus that he would send him thither. Perseus thanked him and said, he would employ thereto all his puissance. Then Bing Pilonus sent for men of Arms, and made ready thirty Walleys for the Army of Perseus, and dubbed him Enight, so the order of chibalty began that time to be used in all the work. And it was decreed that same day Perseus should go to Sea.

Aud when the King had accomplifted all the Ceremony to the case required, Perseus took leave of the King Pilonus, and of his mother Danac, and of the Damosels, and entred into his Galley: afterward they weighed Anchozs, and departed from the Pozt of Naples with a great noise of Trumpets and with

Banners

Banners Difplaged, and Tailed into the beep Sen. There was many a tear wept : every body loved Perfeus for he mas humbleand courteous. The Apulians beparted not as long as theo might fee bim : and then after they returned bome, paaping unto the Bobs, that good and happy might be the fortune of Per-Custo and the noble Enight went by the Bea coaffe at all and De fo balled on bis way that be came to Affrick fist mas named Lybia at that time, and there would babe refrethed bim at a pozt, befibe the ffrait of Gibralter where was Bing Atlas the great Aftrologian. But this Bing putbim from tanping at this Woot, and came in Arms against him, and Brebet by figns a far off , that be would keep bis Country with bis Smoab. Then Perfeus which would not there employ bis Army but mitbozem bim from the Boat, meaning to abenge bimanother time of that bard ulage, if foatune would belp bim. De palfeb the firait, and fought fo long the Bealm of Medula; that after be found it, and bad tobings by certain Werchants that the and ber Sifters fojourned in a City which flood on the Sea Coaft.

Great was the joy of Perfeus, when he underflood thale tobings: bis folk bab great need of biggal, where fore be called them all, and babe that they fould make them ready, for they mere nigh the place that they fought : and then, as they failed away forth about three bours before the evening they fam the City where Medula was, and mozeober they fam Medula and her fifters with a great number of men of war, that were traineb on the Boat, richle arraged and furmifbeb. 1 20 pen Perfeus fam this, be bibibed his Army in three equal battels, sert had ten Galleys, and oabsined and put in Captains of iperic an wifely informed them bow they bould come night no approach the Boat: And after be put himfelf in the firft battel. and the Boets fap, that the Bobbels Palles gabe to bim then a Di of Chrolial: that be approached beffelpete Bort that was moust the great bea of Spain, and that be conducted himle for fach printence which is likened to Chrofial, that he came and fought band to band against the purificace of Medula: and that by the wining of the clear Shield of bis paubence in receiping and dilli athing infinite firokes, he got Land and confirained Medula to return to her City, by force of Arms, and with a good ordering and fighting of his Souldiers. At that time the head Serpent-like of Medula might not withfland his first fortunes, for the that was accustomed to put under foot and obsercome all them that exposed them in Arms against her, at this time was put to the same extremity, that she had put others unto.

CHAP. XXXI.

How Perfens vanguished in battel the Queen Medufa : and how Tow fuch was the beginning of the war that was between Perfeus and Medufa, where the Gorgons which Medufa bab cherifted bearly, fell bown from the appeel of fortune which wheel had confented that the prubence of Perfeus though he coule of their bembling. This notwithflanding, Medufa took courage in ber felt, and ite-entred inte ber City, and gate charge to one of ber men, to go unto ber enemies, and to enpuire of them tobo was chief and Captain of them, and what thing be lought in ber Country! The Helperian Departeb from The Ger, and combte the Boff of the Apulians, that were buffe to longe them dost might : and be balteb to much that be came to Perfeus tobo took bis refoction upon a Lable that be bab mabe of a great fone of marble, and fait to bim in this wife : bir. the conquerels of men barb fent me to thee, to enquire mbat roing then wilt to im ber Conutry, to the end the map know will pole to entrainchife with make tree all men from the fertitue The stip spiniers betoer betom in ! and to make ber that bath ben out epel that the conbert and turn men no moze into flomes. Simplifier bereiches Wall not beno more the coilles of the lots and wells from or Children Shuich Would page ber in marriage. For a aring ber intince of the Serpent! I'bett be armed with pen-14 9 3 HA H be with the the City, in ente the come not a garial ine in bartel? "90114 和证

Ga

-

r-

02

m

èn

fa

ilo

be

n-

18

m

fie

nė

DE

at

Division of that

andth this answet the Helperian returned unto Medufa, and recounted unte ber all that be had beard. Medufa affembleb then all ber men at war, and fait unto them : it is nomerhel though I babe mp beart fo reoubled, when after that I habe hanquifee great companies of men of Arms, I fee that thamefully we are briben back and with-brawn into this City, by the promets of a bandful of men. D what grief is this to them that babe been accustomed to triumph in all manner of mars? Miliere be the bigh enterprises, by which me make all the Meffern Sens to fear ? Mibere be the Subbabs that have been vielbeb to us by the Rings our Aributaries : Where be the Armies and firengths that habe made to tremble the mountains and Books of Lybia? There be they that this ban babe taken fear for Browels, breat for Barbinels, belbonour for hondur At least fince this thing is to bandled, it behaveth to heat the Beff wife we may! but thou it befourth alfa, that them man encourage and their Dimitel ballant, and that to morrow ir be recobered, that Up us this Day is loft. Theenemies of the City to morroto will give as affault, if we furnit not them with battel. And fozalmuellass they! be trabelledien the Air of the Ben, it is much better that we furnit them with battel at this true; than that we would a bibe longer. Dur enemies be frangers, bere leeft our frytimph, oz eber moztal milabben-If the obertome them, if Wall be a memozo for us fat and nigh in all honour. If the calego contrary, we wall run with the foly of our lines into breifion and morkery of all peo-And what is this, all the blood be spread abroad of them that have made the ground red with the blood of others? Shall the bonour be walled and toff, and also the name that me babe gotten with fo great labour? All the woold take to them couthe and bosts there thorebings be an notolistin war, as the Arms and withous from theil move mamatrainto the count of billogpe Ab their rake heart to poin and make rood prour basmele and Arme: to morrote mult bethe begibet pe must ente make to think your beeds the best will be which into that for to kep pour remotors and pour titles of benograble bronels: Babam (ambered one of the Captains) it is great pity.

H 2

that re were not a man, for if it bad been fo, it is apparent that pour mouit babe bacutt under all the Wonarchy of men. As pe fap, me muft neebskeep our renown, if fartune barb been to us this pay fromard, to morrow the thail turn to profit. The toounds that he made in our bonours and blood, me muft bear it. and take it in good part. And our promets and bonour fall to morrow put from us all notes and Came, we will fo behave our felhes. Can ve not arefe fo early that we might be in the front of them melliarraved and probed to fight for the profperity of pour Land? ane will to pour requelt. Then Medula beard the good will of ber Captain, the was joyous and concluded with them, that the with all ber puillance, would affail their enemies at Mib-nighthin bope to come upon them unamares. This conclusion man thought good untotally and each man withbrew. to take their reft and to make ready their Barnels. Medula flept not much this night as the that had the beart alman great and fore charged with greedy befire of bengeance : and at mibnight: the founded to Arms, and made them to be ready. She took ber Banners that were rich, and her men were biligent enound to Arm them, for in that art then were well infructed. Sind when they were all ready and affembled before the Walace Ropal : Medula and ber fifters iffaed out of the Bate in rich C-Buteand gitting good morrow to ber folk with as little noise as the could, the bivibro them into two sampanies, whereof the made ber company to bepart by one of the Water of the City. and flener felf tonbured the other by the Bate that was against And what is thir, all the blood be framatade course of son

At this time the Afectode pure and clear, and the Stars twinkled: and anon the Afectodone, and put away the darkness of the night according to her celetical office. When Media was in the field, be twentalong by the Sea hose, and improfed to bate taken be wone and his folk, but the failed, for as foun as his fitted out of her City, it was perceived by the worth-men of the Path of Perfeus, and they fignified their coming to Portion and his men that flept in their Parnets. And thus, when he approached unto be enemies, and had supposed to bate his fire them. Defound them ready furnished, where

na

with there arole a great cry on both parties, and with this cry there grew a great skirmith, to eager and fierce, that it was need unto all men of balour, to them footh their prowelles and their firengths. There was many a man call down dead upon the Sand. Then began the second battel of Medula, making a great noise in joyning the battel, and then had they of Naples a frong party for to mafter.

In this Tempett Perfeus gabe bimfelf no reft : be bab almaphis epes open, bis ears bent to bear, bis arms ready to fmite: he was quick in his green pouth, bis Swood flathed and cut betperately : be fmote no man noz Shield, but be baake if. and few all bown right. Medula, that alway put ber in the most frength and affairs, and moft poels, by mighty courage, to entertain and bold together ber men : freing oftentimes the paarices and the noble feats of Arms of her enemy Perfeus, bab great forrow, for with his only balour, be beld the Apulians in effate and rap, and there was none that might reuft his frength og at leaft that bab might to refift bim. Abis thing turned to great difpleafure unto Medufa, pet the corrected it, and ufeb ber promets the best the might. She bib great burt to ber themies; and (more boton bere and there to baliantly, that the fremet much betten to be a man thana maman: and it better became ber to brandif a Swood, than to fpin og turn a fpindle.

CHAP. XXXII.

How Perfects in this battel flew the thighty fifter of Medafes and various hed ber in the battel. The direction of the many experience of the control and the

This skirmich then dured long, the ends that Medula had at the valour of Perseus, gave to ber Arms more force and Artigity, than nature had given her; the was full of maker, and get the could keep her well from the Iword of Perseus. And altias the was environed with the best metrifiched. Aber fought in this faction until the bay, before that any knew to whom he dould affer the victory: but even as the sun began to thew his beams and capes in like manner, Perseus began to thew the rages of his printence, and brandished his sword. And swing on the one five the Banner Boyal, he thronged into the press, and drew to that part, caking men down head to the Sands, more than an hundred. This Banner was square four foot, move of Crimson Satten, and in the middle was an image painted whereof the body was a figure and fathion of a woman, and the bead was of a Serpent.

Modula was never far from this Banner, too she brew her alway thither for rescue. Appen Perseus was come thither with a great company of his folk, he orged Perseus, Perseus, And litting his Dword that was reimpered with blood from one end to the other, it happened that the sirst stroke that he gade in this place, sell upon one of the Dissers of Medula, that she fell down bead. Then they of Naples smore on the Hesperians with all their force. Abert more Perseus long and overthwart; his strokes were so mortal, that they alrayed not only the most seedle of his enemies, but all the wost strongest, and also the most cours.

nious Medufa.

Breat mas the flaughter: and being at that point. Medula enforced ber power to withfrand the great force of Berleus. Ootwithflanbing, the that befoze hab obercome many men man then obercome: and babing late the greatest courses, and the heart moze fierce than any man, he was banquilled with befpair, by the only chipatrous bealing of Perfeus that hat broken ber Banner, that be bab fmitten ber men in pieces, partly flain with bis 5 wood, and partly fled. And be bat not only made red bis Stood and right band with ber blood, but the Sea ber [mail gutters was mabe red with warm blood: through which. Medufa loft ber ferocity, all ber prefumption, all ber frength, and all ber bigood : The enil went the game on berfibe, that loben the hap frember Barmer befisoped, toben the bab fenthe moff biaconomic of lier Anights confounded by Sabe, and her, men of Armin lea pe the battle and flee befoge Perferes as befoge the 3. minge of beath. Minathe factoto all benguifance turn into be Armitionigeneral, whereof the end was the trach mangabeit overy and etero man that might abe bimlet fates bim be capes. and bulled here one, and there another, falaze afraid, that is toas a vifrous think to bear their crits : and many fabeb them in the City, and many were flain in flying, by Perseus and his men.

CHAP. XXXIII.

How Perseus conquered Medusa, and her City, and smote off her head. And how he went to fight against the King Atlas of Septe, a mighty and puissant Gyant.

D

n

ir

E

.

t-

2

g

H

ft

į

11

I this Discomfiture, Perfeus purfued Medufa, firing into ber City, and entred wirh ber, and the moft part of bis people with bim, that faited bim neber to put to beath all the men befentible that they found, but they fpared the blood of momen and little Children, by the commandment of Perfcus: And among others, Perfeus found Medula bib in a Ciffern and Smote off ber bead. And of the blood that iffued out, there engenbed Pegalus the flying Bogle. By the beat that Perfeus Imote from Medula, is umberflood, rhat be took from ber ber Bealm, and beprived per of it, and banifed ber poor and naked. And by the flying Boale that was engendeed of the blood that iffued from ber bead, is meant, that of her riches iffuing of that Bealm he made a thip named Pegale, that is as much as to lay Good Renown: and this hip was likened unto an Bogle figing, foralmuch as the good Benown of Perfeus was then born from region to region, as upon a Dogle flying. And fogalmuch as Per-Leus went in this fhip, into Divers Countries, where be got bim a great name.

By this fathion Perseus conquered the head of Medule, and bid make Pegale, the most swift thip that was in all the world, and about there a certain number of bays, seeking the treasures of Medule, and the riches on which the and her litters had set their belights.

There found Persons kones precious, and things marbellous.
Then his thip was made, he filled it, with choice pronuments and leading in this City, men to quide it, he went to Sea, and rook to, his Arms those of Medula, and refled not till be come to the Port of the City, where raigned Arlas, laying that he would subsuching hefore be returned into his Country.

This City had to name Septe. Atlas knew well the Arms to Medula, and from as far as he saw Pegale the wip, he knew the Arms that were within: and he thought that Medula had been banquished by these strangers, and doubted soze their coming, parwithstanding he did put his men in Arms, and bewailed much Philotes his Brother, otherwise named Helperus, he that kept the garden with Apples of gold, with his Daughters. Then his folk were Armed, he trained them in good order, and after came to the Port, where he was assaulted with divers and that consists. Atlas was young, strong of body, and puissant of people, he desended him baliantly, and kept the Port with the point of his Sword, that by this assault Perseus conquered nothing on him in two days that the assault endured, but that was more by the strong-nature of the Port, than by the strength ofthe Smozd.

The

Then when Perleus fam that be bad not folk enough to rake this Wort, be withbrew bim into the deep Sea, and fent into Naples unto Bing Pilonus balf the treafures of Medula, fignifoing to bim bis bigb abbenture, and required bim, that be mould fend bim a thousand souldiers: the Bing and Danac bab wrent joy of thele tpbings: and at the request of Perfeus affembled fifteen bundzed fighting men, which thep fent into Lybia with bis Son Danaus, whom they ogbained chief and Captain of the Army : when Perfeus fam come thele fifteen bundzed fighting men, be knew that it was flying fuccours that came to him; and took bis flying Bogle and went to meet them, and found there Danaus bis Brother, to whom be mabe the moft great chear in the world, and entred into his Ship, and there abobe all that Day featling bim : and after when it came to be night, be commanded bis Bariners, that they fould fail toward Septe: And they faid to bim, that on the mogrow they would beliber bim at the Most. Mith that the Mariners laboured to bo their beff cumning: fo that after the night was paft, about the bun rifing then themen to Perfeus the Dairen und Wort of Septe.
Then mas Perfeus full of glabnels, and calling Danaus, faib, mg Berfeus full of gladnets, and calling Danaus, faib, mg Beother, we are now come to the Boot, where thou that get this day bonout it it please the Gods, for if the good sopenture belpius, the bomour fall appertain to thee before me that burft not enterpaise this alone bp mp puiffance. Then in the name of our Bots let us employ bere the beab of Medufa. for mp mind giverb me, then of this Cien fanbing befoge us. will be confirmined to boundon their lobar, and fier befmen the gone Malle of their City. Spp. Brother (anfmeted! Danaus) 3 have good hope in foatune, that the mili be the belser: but for the bonout and woalbip of this work, it hall not turn to mp nante but unto thine, that art the Author of fo bonourable a mozk: and I befire norbing in this part but the name of a foul. pier: for as the foulder, moved only bethe love of our fraternity, 3 come to ferte thee, And as for the riches of Medula. hab they not come into Naples with thy good fame, thefe Warriers bab not come into Lybia. Aben foz conclusion, it is to be fait, if in this work be bonour, that it muft tuen unto the gloen and praife: butthis notwirbftanding, 3 will not fail thee : but for the love and bomone, & will endeabour to affault all that I map, and will ferbeand obep thee as my lead and natural Baother. And Ipan befrow on me the oaber of Enightboob.

1

Danaus the oeder of Anighthoods, and afterwards gammanded that each man Hould furni Phiet with his Armoues, and they made to display the Bainers, Ensigns, Benous, and other Cognizances and Ensigns of war. After he did cause to sound his Armopets, and their pepared all his Galleys, and set them ingood oeder, and failed so wush that became to the Boet, which was all full and environed with Lydians, that they were ready to cast on them Depars, Darta and somes: for they were ready to cast on them Depars, Darta and somes: for they do that Country were expert in war. And to come a Shore at this Boet there was a grievous consist. Persons was in Pegale, and assauch the Lydians at one end, and Danaus was in the Galley and assauch them both in the work danger of the assault, they had great Shields and large.

wherehit they copered them.

They dreaded no firoke of Blave noz Swozd, but they fut themfelbes into the midft of the Boat, and there they gave the

n

Ò

'n

D

b

D

it

b

'n

D

2

2

E

t

h

essault i tobert many were dead on the one part, and on the other, there were plenty of fighters in such wife, that at the entry their were many Applians overthrown and put back, so, they were then botand edger that after this, when they had gotten Land, Perfousant Dinaus began the smite so unmeasurably upon the Lybrans, that they beat them down without remody. Also Perseus gave so great a stroke with his Swood unto Aclas, that purposed to have come and broken their ranks, that never after Atlas had no hope, nor burth not come among the strokes, though he was strong and pussion.

- Hoe much constous of bistop wert Berfeus and Danaks: the Lybians bab her been accuftomed to find fo fierce and mortal armes, as them of Perfeus. Bing Atlas knew not what to fave be encouraged bis people the beft be could. Portwithflanbing. he fair them besten boron of his enemies without number, and fartiferther ther thep of Naples won al way. ... And when be bab. feen all this, une alfo bebeib that thefe then has handuited the mieen Medula, be inbutet in bimtelf ibat be was not poiffant. enough to relift their firengeb, and that the barbinels of this battel fould be to bim moze bangerous than abailable . To found men be the retreat and fied, not into this City, but into a perp high Pointrain that was there bye therefore laythe Weets, that wellas by the Reperof the bear of Michaila was juried into a Boun rain: Deb from thenceforth was this Bill called Atlas, and bears the name unto this bay. And fogalimuch as Aclas fateb him among the ffones, be formbed afterward a Caftle there. where be Dwelleb until the time of Hescules was all full end endiconed wird Lyblaus, that theo.

to call on them Beautixxitage mid to had to

How Perfeus turned King Aslar into a flone: and how Queen
Auria, Wife to King Pricus waxed amorous of the Kinght
Bellerophen that refuled her, wherefore he had much pain;

VIPEN Perkus and Danaus law Aclas, and all his following put to flight, first be chaled them unto the Pountain, being with their blood the Caves, Buthes, Mays and Parks. And secondly when they had put them unto utter foil, as much as they could, they drew to the City, and entering in, they found none but a little number of Patrons, and poung children, which made a terrible lamentation. All the pound men and homes were fied unto the fields, and had abandoned the City foild their folk and goods: when Perseus and Danaus were within, and saw that it was left to them and their people, they took all that they found, and passed that night with greatiop and gladness, making great chear, and thanking the Godgsat the bigget that they had given to them: and on the morrows. Reasons made to be bearen down the Gates of this City, where he commanded that every man Goods take his spool, and when they were laden with all. Perseus and Danaus went to the free into their Galleys, and tailed south, leading Aclasius the mountain, where he gate him. Self to their they of Altronomy.

p:

B.

ú

0 ď.

Ja this time Jupiter made alliance with Bing Troop, by the menne of Ganimodes sant in fign of lope and friendibip, be unte unto Illion a picture of gota, which was fet in the Balace of Illion, as it thall be fait in the third Book. And it was not long after that Bing Troos came to the course and end of his Reien and bis ob fequie was ballo web, And hept Colemnia at Troy. And then Illion wantenward King of the fitter where be lived in amplification, anderereating of his hoggings, and Leabhip, and webben a noble Lady of the City of whom phereteinen a Bon namen Laomedon. Jozafmuch as I find not that Illion bib any thing after bis Coconation, sner mate ather thing. fane that be ani Debano mater ber Walser, & will forak benceforth of Laomedon bis Son, that Beignen after bim, Sinb bere I will leave the noble beeby of this Illion and pet ere I write of Laomedon, I will purfaceup matter of Perfeus. And to come thereto, 3 will recount an Diffogy that fell after that Perfeus bab rurned Bing Atlas into a Sountain

In this time then that Persons began to give; his life unto morthy beets, and though of make same: Achrifius Grandfather of this Person, and natural Father of Dance, was put out of his Ringdom and nearly, and also the Seigniogy of Argos, by a conspiration that Persons his Brother had made against him, and there was left unto Achrifius of all his Realm, no more but only

9 2

only the College of Dardan, where to be fied for refuge. This Achrifius and Prycus, were notated hand of Abas, lateful hon of Lincolns, that was only lettentine, but the fifty house of Eginus, by the metry of the Maria Hypermanus, Manghter of Darans.

Prycus then be being uturpes from his Baother Achrifius the Beignioap of the Realm of Argos, bab a wife named Aurea that was to breight up, as of cultom the bab no belight, but to The in hal nit two lines sommona bay the bebeib among ber ferbattes to comere a tringer, that nature ben forgottenmorbing in bim touching his book of whom he was enamoureb. She bes roung, and ber Dusband Procus was ancient and much lefs belired carnal concupifcence than bis wife bib, though thep were both bery near one age. Abis knight thus beloted with manien Bellerophon, Juhen Aureshab begun to lone this Baint. The forfered bin mith for epe glances, and with her counter nances. Brawing bim to belight and flethly luft. But the true Brighty that bad bis beart firm and fable, which perceibed meil ber comifenance, billembleb, andefeignet that be was blind in this partie that in the end when the Labplaw, that by counter hower not more me seus that the thenet beremploped bim unt once. to bledte per, but des per company: in the moff will wife that the might die intended to finit ber love into bate, and ber fair tountenances into fiery matice, fo emenomed, that for to mille lifth fo beet Deaconfebbim befoge ber Busband the Ring Pricus affirme that be would be twenforced ber, wherefore the Proute of Language his Son, that Reighthanis sithe Come and

Ar this acculation made, Bellerophon was prelent, and being attoinified at the beginning, but pearing the kady speak, as length becleared himself, and excused him, saying: Madam, never please mannet the Gods, that so, cover mine bandur, I be viscosed the first was beyond that of enother in Let: never mail abounce himselfully becausing another; I will so, the truth; and if there be any man that may wouthip papes this against mee; I will finand to the judgment of all Poble men that have known updehaviour. Alias kady, from whence is come this acculation, for so charge one that I house have willed so enforce

pou ?

pou? Then or in what place was it done, or where be the witnesses of the cry that you made at the affray, where he the proofs that hall say that ever in my life I was with you alone? It maketh me to marvel from what heart departed this difference, that he note in me? and for what cause it is imaginate against me? for I will well that all the world know, that I have served you truly and loyally, and that I never thought dishonour to you nor what thing, to whom I pray that he will take and make information upon my living, and to undernant in likewise yours. And if it can be proved and appear that I was trespassed, that I may be punished: but I pray also, if I be found innocent, that I may have speedy absolution.

bir, faib the Laby, that figongly was obffinate in ber errour, 3 make me party againft bim. 3f then 3 accuse bim, it is truth, it ought nor to bemand witnettes of bis folly. In this wied am worth roo wirneffes : foz all the world knoweth. that when an ill man will bisonour a woman, be callett no mitneffes noz no paoofs thereto, but both bis bamnable will the molt fecretly that in bim is poffible. And fo thought Bellero. phon to babe bone with me, wherefore I require fentence and indument of bim. Mith thele words, Prycus affembled his Council, and it was hoged that the Lapp (bould be beliebed, and that Bellerophon Bould be culpable of beath. Then Coake Percus to Bellerophon, and faid. fair Son, thou knowell and be found that I have to bed and nourifled thee lovingly s thou unberflandeft the accufation of the Labe, the cafe is fo foul that it map not be purged by benging. for if it were lo, the ebil Boys and bad fellows, would all bay bithonour as many of our momen as thep could find. In this cafe the Ladies babe a pas rogatibe for to be beliebed, and need not to bring forth witneffes. And fozafmuch as the Wiffrels barb banquifted thee. and required judgment of the trefpals, thou art condemned to been But fore much as that I know thee a ballant man of the boby, I will mitigate this Centence in this wife, that thou halryofight againft the Chimereof Sicil, and if thou mayeft obercome ber. I will gibe thee thy life, and the plain absolution of all, upon condition, that never after thou renew, noe rebearle this trefpafs ...

Sir (antwered Bellerophon) fith that fortune confente, that I be attainted of any infelicity: and that the paibileoge of the Labies take place and go abobe reafon : I bad much rather be banqui heb by torong caufe and ebil, than by just and good caufe. and thank you of the moderation of your judgment, and make hom bere, that in all baft, 3 will go into Sicil, to probe me a. gainft the Chimere, and will fee if fortune will belp me to get again mp life, which the bath made me lofe by pour indge-Then the Roble Knight beparteb, and rook leabe of the Bing, be took alfo bis Armour, and bargained with certain Da. riners, to bring bim to Sicil. When they were a greed, be went to the Sea, with little company, and was epilat eale in bis beart, when be faw that fortune was to bim fo contrarp, pet be comforted bimfelf in bis good quarrel: and failing on a bay on the bea of Hellespont, bis Pariners looked into the well. and fam come a great float of hips of Mar, and they a woke Bellerophon that at that time flept, and faid, that they were but bead and caff away.

Bellerophon comfazted bis Bariners, and told them that hiscomfort could not bely them : and as be was thus speaking. a Ballep of abbantage went out afoze bis fellows, and flying on the Sealike unto a birb, abbreffeb ber unto the fbip, wherein mas Bellerophon, and boarded it. And who that will beman what the name was of that Galley, and what men were therein: I will fap to them that this was Pegale, and that Perfeus As foon as be might fpeak to the Bariners was within it. that carried Bellerophon to Sicil, be asked of them, tobat the were, and into what region they would go? auben Bellerophon beard Perfeus fpeak, be bebeld bis behaviour and countenance and judged in himfelf that be was of a good boufe? and faid to bim : Dir, I babe great jop, foz rhat I fee the thip and soriners be fo well abbaeffeb, and in fo good readinels as yours be top pe feem well a Anight of a noble boule, and therefore] tell pou my cafe after that pou babe made pour asking. Firt then, where pe enquired what we be, know pe that in Argos we habe raken our birth : and as to the fecond, 3 anfwer pou that we babe a purpole to go frait into Sicil, to the which I sm confirmed by the rigour of a mortal judgement, cast upon me at the instance of a Lady called Aurea, that unjustly and untruly both complained upon me, saying that I would have ensorted her. This Lady that I speak of, is white to King Pricus, which newly and of late both banished and exists his Brother Achrisms out of his Kealm, and this King, sor to please and satisfie the accusations of his Wife, both condemned me to be put to death, yet sor the good and the acceptable service that I bate done to him, he hard granted me to live, if so it please the Gods, that I may be possibility danquishand observeme a Chimere that is in Sicil, unto the which I go, so I pray you that in our missortume, we be not let by you, neither by none of your sompany.

Maliant Bright (answered Perseus) it is true that the heart of a noble man taketh pity and compassion in the distress and passion of his equal: the weighing of your case bath pierced mine heart, with a charitable mercy, by which pe may surely probersiand, not to have by us any hindrance during your informate life. And forasmuch as the hearts of them that would be induced at calling to the deeds of Arms, singularly delight them in abbentures of great worth and weight to get credit by. I will accompany you for two caufes.

at sd

fe,

ke.

46 5

to ge-

the Da.

ent

bis

pet

Day

eft.

okt

but

bat

ing.

ing

ere-

and err.

Ceus

IÈTS

ther

hon

nce,

n te

pa-

be.

283

First

rgos

POU.

cb 3

C.

The first is, to expose my felf to the diffoutation and beffruction of the Chimere, if it bappen that pou obercome ber not which 3 Suppose pe cannot. And the second is that after the Chimere be banquifed, I may be guided by you unto the Bealm of Argos. For from now forth I will be enemy unto King Pricus, for the Take of the Kather of my Pother, Bing Achrifius. And to let pou hate greater knowledge of this marter, I will tell pour bat I am son to Danae: that bery fame son that was conceived in the Lower Dardan, of the feed of Jupiter and that fame in per fon that Bing Achrifius made caft into the Bea. But notwithflanding, I hall take no bengeance on his Demerits, but for the honour of the blood, and of the womb of whom I iffued, I fall fuccour and aid bim, and page pour that pe will be my fellow and Biother in Atms, and that pe will come into mp Gallep, and fend bome again pour Wariners into their Countries, if it please pou Mben

When Bellerophon bad beard the good woods and animer of Perfeus, be made alliance with bim, and entred into bis Gal. lep, and gabe leabe to bis Pariners, and accompanied bim with Perfeus and Danaus, that for love of bim took their map into Sicil: where they Moztly arribed: and the fame day Bellerophon armed bim, beliring to find the Chimere, and took leabe of Perfcus, in fuch wife, that be put bim in peril of Dearh. The Boets waite that this Chimere, bad the bead of a Loon. the momb of a Boat, and the tail of a Serpent, but foz truth, it mas a mountain inhabitable, that bad in beight abobe, a paffing great Cabe of Lyons, and in the middle of the Bill it was full And at the foot beneath, it was enbironed and fet of Boats. round about with Serpents. Thefe I pons and Serpents were paffing Bangerous and nopfome unto the Countrep about. When Bellerophon fam the Mountain, be went thirber, and Perfeus and Danaus followed bim. They bad not long marched, when they fam moze than a thousand little Berpents, with many great Bragons, of whom fome came about Bellerophon and caft out their benome, and the other paffed forth, and came running upon Perfeus and Danaus, who had promifet to Bellero. phon, that they would there perform nothing, unless they were confirmined to defend themfelbes.

When as these three valiant knights saw these cursed Beasts, they took their Swozds, and smote upon them, and be-beaded many of them, but with this they had great pain and travail, so these Beasts were cruel and full of paide, and hardned them eagerly to them, and if they had not been well provided with habitiments of War, they had there sooner sound beath than life. Bellerophon went alway before, and smote in pieces many. Perseus nor his Brother Danaus sought not, but with the Beasts only that came upon them. When Bellerophon had a little ceased the sight against these Mermine, and had sound it more harp and more biring, (for the point of his Sword was made terrible blunt, with Ariking against their bard scales, and skins) then there leapt down, and out of their boles the Goats, and the Lyons, and came down so to assail

n

n

n

£

the Anight in to great number, that he was environed with

Some of thefe Beafts efcaped from bim and came to Perfeus, and gabe bim bis bands full to employ bis firength and paowels: the Lyons leapt about the neck of Bellerophon, fometime in fuch number, that in no part be might be feen. Det bp his ability be could well fabe himfelf, but be bad never escaped, there came fo much benom upon bim there, and beafts, and on Perfeus and Danaus, which to fiercelp affailed them : and if be bad not won a Bock, upon which begot up with great pain. for to go upon this Bock, there was but one frait wap, then compassed him the Lyons, and with them the other beasts, which staged on the way of the Bock, and at the foot, roaring and making great notfe abont bim, fo that Perfeus and Danaus bad none other bope of the Unight, but that it had been bis laft bap, for be bab fo many beafts about bim, that it was likely that the edge and cutting of his fwozd might not long endure, without it were woan og broken. Then the Lyons when thep might not touch his body bit the stones, and did tear them with their claws : the Serpents flew up into the apr, and lifted up their bodies upon their tails, and caft fire and fmoke out of their throats unto the Bock. And the moft bardieft of the Lyons, one after another, trained themselbes in battel against bim, and bewing their teeth, received bis ftrokes foutly: And they fed not, but abobe as beafts familiar, and foze coverous of mans blood, in whom reigned exceeding great fiercenefs, as much as in any wild beaff at that time.

Pard and marbellous was the battel as Percus and Danaus beheld, and thought in what faction they might fuccour Bellerophon. The noble Knight defended him to his power, and seking how he might save him from this peril he cast his eyes upon a great stone that hanged over the way of the rock, whereupon he was mounted, and then he thought if he might make that stone to sall down, that he Pould kill the most part of the beasts. Then he began a little and a little to move the stone, and to seek the jountures that held it, and so much laboured, that in the end be made it to fall upon the Lyons, Servents, and Goats, in such wife, as in the falling he made all the works to tremble and feared in general these unhappy Beasts, so that they were there all bruised, like as the Ahunder had come upon them, and yet that more is, with the tumbling down, it made the Rock that Bellerophon stood on, so hake, that he tumbled bown thereon, and was so associated, that he knew not take.

7

ther it was day or night.

The stone was great, and brought down many stones with it. Perseus and Danaus thought at the beginning that all the Pountains had tumbled down, and were not very well assured in themselves. This notwithstanding, they beheld plainly in the end, and seeing after the noise of the Tempest, that their fellow lay upright all along upon the Rock, they supposed, that behad been dead. Then they made great sorrow, and approached the Rock, where they found the Beass lying under the stones dead, and they went upon the Pountain, and then knew that Bellerophon was not dead: whereof they recovered great joy, and ceasing their sorrow, they took the Knight between their arms, and Perseus demanded how it stood with him, and how be selt himself.

CHAP. XXXV.

How Perfeur vanquished the Monster of the Sea, and exposed himself against him for the love of Andromeda.

Then Perseus and Danaus waited gladly the answer of Bellerophon, and beld him for the most accomplished knight that ever they saw. Perseus and Danaus searched this Pountain, and went into the Caves of the Beasts, but they found none, and still sate Bellerophon upon the Bock, for he might not go for the hurt of his foot. And then as the two Unights had setched a compass and gone about the Pill, they returned to Bellerophon, and then Perseus said to him: And Brother, bow well art thou worthy to have of me praise and commendation: Thou has this day bone a good and help work, by the worthy behaviour, thou has gotten unto the name the Crown of glorious same, thou has passed the strait way and passage

to

bat

1100

308

del

bedith

the red pin

Deir

bat

cb.

the war

tas

neen

and

ofed

Bel-

ight

nur.

und

ight

the rned

tber,

men-

the

nwo

Tage of

of mif-fortune, from tobence thou art iffued clearas the Sun: and not only thou haft laboured for the weal and utility, but foz the good and paofit of this Region ; foz thou baft flain the Marbers of the Berpent, and the Bogters of the Lyons, that kept this country uninhabitable, which hall from bencefoz warb be inhabited, and occupied with people. Bellerophon was all abathen, when be beard the glozy that Perfeus gabe unto bim . by meeknels and bumility that was in bim; and anfwered, 36 there be any worthip in this work, that it thail turn as well unto them as unto him, and they began to praife each other, and they eat upon this Bill the fame night, after they bad mabe Sacrifice unto their Bobs. And thither came all the Apulians. where they made great chear. Afterward they took all the skins of the Lyons, and the beads of the Berpents that were bead, in fign of bictozp, and laded them in their Ballen, and they bare them with them into their Balley with Bellerophon, finally thep went unto the sea, and failed toward the Wort of Athames, but when they thought to babe brawn unto this Boat. fubbenip there arofe a tempeft on the Sea, that they were confirained to abandon them unto the Mind, and paffed forth by the Baben, and their fortune was luch, that they were brought into Syria, upon the Sea of Paleftine; And thep came into the Boztand Baben of Joppe, where reignes Amon, and in Pale-Aine reigned Cepheus and Phineus.

The same time that Perseus arrived there by means of this Kempest, the Bozt was full of Den, Momen, and Thildzen, that it seemed that all the world had been assembled. Perseus came thither alone, for his folk were dispersed upon the Sea. When the Syrians saw him arrive by force of the Mind, they assembled in a great number about his siging Porse. And King Amon seeing that it was laden with the heads of Lrons, he was sore abashed. For to know from whence was the Balley come, been quired who was the Waster? At which inquisition answered Perseus, and demanded of the King in what Country he was arrived? The King told him, that he was in Syria, and that the Kealm appertained to him. When Perseus knew that he spake to the King, he said, Sir, J am driven unto this Bort

by diffress of weather, also my men are sozetrabelled, by the tempeft of the Sea, that bath been long troublous unto them; I require thee that thou be content, that I and they may come and Land bere foz to refret us. And if it bappen bereafter, that thou or any of thine babe need of like courtefie in Naples, which is the place of our Dominion. I promife thee, by the promife and word of a Poble-man, that the like merit and thanks fall be rendzed unto thee. The Bing answered; Bobie Bnight, there be fo many Spies now adays failing by Bealms and Countries, that a man map not well know to whom be map gibe credit oz truft : Det notwithftanding, 3 fee well be pour behabiour, that I truft pe will not gibe us to unberffand ano other thing than truth. I tender to pou the ule of my Country, and pag you that re will come and refreft pou in my Balace : Furthermoze I countel pou, that you come forth of pour bip : foz if pe flap there long, pe tall be in great peril; fozafmuch as we know into this Boat will come anon a Wonfter of the Sea, that will bebour a right fair Mirgin and Paid, which is. bere-by bound unto a ftone, foz the crime of ber Dother, and by my fentence; and if ye tarry bere till bis coming, it is to be feared pe mill basard pour libes. Boccace in the Benealogy of the Gobs toucheth not otherwife the caufe why this Bail mas thus erpoled to the Monfter. Wherefoge I pals it ober: And the faid Mirgin (as Boccace faith) was known by the name of Andromeda.

Then Persons had understood the hard fortune of the damosel, he desired to see her, for the marvellous judgment that was given upon her: and arrayed him with rich bestements, and then issued out of the Balley, and took out also Bellerophon, which might not pet help himself, and after he went unto Andromeda.
There were her Parents and Courens, in a great number, which laboured in sorrow and great plenty of tears. Then Perseus saw this Mirgin, that was passing fair, which never saw her like, he had great pity of her and said to himself, that if it were possible, he would beliver her from this peril. Then he called her friends, and said unto them in the presence of Amon, have certainly great pity and compassion of this fair Domo-

Pland also am amazed how the Gods suffer that the hould fall into this peril in her tender years. And if it chance that the hould have a knight of Poble-man that would unbind her, and for charity expose his body against the Ponster for the love of her, hould she be quit? Ahey answered yea: Ah then, said Perseus, if I would for her sake adventure my self in this work; and if it so fortune that I had the grace to obsercome the Ponster, will ye be content that the Paid be my Wife? they answered, yea, yea: And I promise you, said Perseus and swear, that the hath sound me a knight that shall put his body and life.

in jeopardy foz ber.

15

15 h (B

II

t,

Ó

g

IC

g

p,

e

Mith this wood Perfeus fent to fetch bis Arms; and after ment to the Damolel and unbound ber from the fione, and be. libered ber to ber friends and kinfmen. Saint Augustine in the Book of the City of Bod, repearled, that pet in the fame Hoge. is the frone that Andromeda was bound upon, that they of Joppe kept for a fign and memory of the bictory that Perfeus bab. of the Monfter. All they that were there, marbeiled greatly at the entepaige of the Bnight, and knowing the Wonffer, then judged him to be but dead, allowing his bardine's to them that feemed was too great. Dne and another Coake of this marter. Perfeus armed bimjopfully : When be was armed, be came to Andromeda, and kiff bar, taking leabe of ber, and faid; fair Baid, paap pe unto the Bods for your Champion, that for pour love submitteth bimfelf unto the peril of beath, to theend that by pour only means 3 may come to the enjoying of Love, that me together map be jopned in Barriage, which I bup at the paice of mp life. Roble Unight, answered the Baid, 3 am moze beholding to you than to all my kinimen : know ve that if mp papers map obtain of the Bods, pe fall return fate from this enterpaire: then Perfeus went befoze the flone, and Andromeda kneeled with great humility, with both ber knees upon the earth; in calling on ber Bobs to belp ber Champion, and there were many Patrons upon the bank of the Sea, that for compaffion put them in contemplation, and by this example of. them, all the Syrians began to pap for the prosperity of the Bnight, excepting only the Bing Phineus, which panged for bis. his beath; and that for this cause, forasmuch as before this judgment given on Andromeda, he had affianced and betroathed him to ber, so as he wished that the Ponsier might debour Perscus, to the end, that the marriage of him, and of her might have been ended: When Perscus had put himself forth by the stone, he looked toward the Sea, and held in his hand a strong Sword, and he had not long beheld the Situation, and taken leisure to see the place, when there sprang out of a swallow or depth of the Sea, a Ponsier so horrible, and so breadful, that it seemed he had been made for to bestroy all the world, he was rough and went on four feet like a Beast, and his form was so dissigured, that none could tell whereto he might be likened.

When as the Syrians law him put his head out of the day, there was none to well affured, but he trembled for fear. And many were so afraid, that they fled into their houses, notwith-flanding, Perseus as soon as he saw him rose up, he came to him right well affured, and smote him with the point of his smood, so full upon the right eye, that on that side he made him blind, whereat the Ponster came out of the Sea with an open mouth, and thought to have swallowed Perseus. And Perseus went back a little, and put his Swood between his jaws into his throat, so far forth, that he could not draw it out again, and so of force it abobe in bis throat more than four foot.

At the second firole, the Ponsier made a marbellous cry, lifting up his head, and thought to have cast out the piece of the Swozd, but it could not be. Alway the Ponsier assailed Perseus, and thought to have swallowed him into his theoat: and Perseus alway stroke athim with his Swozd, and put him at desence, and strock alway at his theoat, and about, nigh his other eye, and so well intended the work, that after he had giten him many wounds, he made him blind on the left eye, like as he did on the right. And then as the Ponsier went here and there, and made many walks without seeing or knowing where he went, pursuing his enemy, Perseus gabe him twenty wounds, searching his heart, and at last he found it. And finally he bestirted him, so that he pierced the heart, with which stroke he made him sall down dead.

CHAP. XXXVI.

1-11

bt

be ng

ā-

1-

0.

D,

m

30

D

n

k

f

How Phineus would have had Andromeda: and how Perfeus answered him the should be his Wife.

Li the Syrians were paffing jopous, and affonifted, when they fam the good fortune of Perfeus, and faid one to another, that fuch a Enight ought to be paaifed abobe all other men. Bing Amon took great pleafure to fee bis bealing, and feeing the Bonfter labouring in bis beath, be went bown to him, embracing bim and faib, Sir, the Bobs govern the foztune. and fince they have receibed thee in their fabour and grace . there is none that may annoy thee : In a good bour wert thou bere arrived, bemand what thou wilt, and I will caufe the to babe it. Sir, Anfwered Perfeus. Ibabe preferbed from beath the Damofel: 3 befire none other thing but ber. D valiant Bnight, faib Phineus, then boft much glorife the felf: fez thou haft gotten in a balf bay moze bonour, than any other Enight fball get in a bundgeb pear. But beware that the beauty of this Paid Deceive thee not : know thou that I babe betroathed ber, and by right fe ought to be my Wife. And that in the paefence of our Biftop, we promifeb to take each other in Darriege. Abis mistoztune is affer come to ber, thou baft reliebed ber, and wouldft therefoze babe ber. The beginning is fair . but the end is foul. And if fo chance, that theu bo me torong. I let thee know that I will not luffer it, fog in this Country am a Bing, and babe great powers : all the glozy that thou haff gotten, fail bere be quencheb : toberefoge I paar thee that thou foabear in this cafe, and that thou fuffer me to take that which is mine.

During these words, Perseus looked toward the Sea, and saw from far his Galleys coming one after another, directing them towards the Boat. Thereofbe had great joy, and said unto Phineus, King, I make no boubt but thy power is great in this Country, but know thou, that I know no man living that Wall cause me to leave that which belongeth me. Then I came hither, I found this Paid condemned unto death. As that time the was free from all men by her sentence: I have saved her: and I say to thee the shall be mine: But if thou will combate, and fight foz her, assemble thy power, and make thee ready in thy battel. Lo here come my Balleys ready foz to receive thee: and although I have not people enough, yet I have in my Coffers the most part of the treasures of Medusa, foz to send foz men of Arms in all places where I may get them.

that

Amben Phineus knew that he was the Enight that hab hanquited Medula, whereof the renown was bery great, be could not otherwife answer to Perfeus, but that be might bo bis pleafure. All the Binimen of Andromeda were angry with Phineus foz bis folly, and made bim fo afhamed, that be departed thence, and went into the City. After they went to behold the Monfter, and then came failing and rewing the Apulians unto the Boat, and being come they brought Perfeus and Andromeda into Joppa with great triumph : and Perfeus and Andromeda were efpoused that fame dap, and lap toegther. And the folemnity of their webbing endured fifteen baps. During which time the Syrians came to the Wort baily, for to fee and bebold this Monfter. Plinius repearleth, that of this Monfter was bogn te Rome, a bone of fortp feet long, as big as an Elephant. Let them then that read this Biftozp, fearch bow great and buge this Monfter was, when only one of his bones was fo great. The Romans kept that bone in bonour, of this marhéllous Exploit. At the end and expiration of this feaft of the med-Ding of Perfeus and Andromeda, Perfeus took lease of the Syrians. and furnifed bis Balleys with victuals, and beparted from Joppa, and went to the Sea, leading with bim bis Wife An. And foztune was to bim fo good, that ina little dromeda. time be paffed the Seas of Syria and came to Land at the Boat and Baben of Thebes. Where be was received courteouffp of Ring-Creon, that then reigned a young Child.

atelled what take at the and mouse Real

ke

02

19

D

Ď.

30

to

e-

e-

)-

b

D

t.

D

o

n

.

Ê

t

them-

CHAP. XXXVII.

How Perfeus re-established in his Realm the King Achrifius, and how he slew the King by missfortune.

TA Thebes there refrethed them thele Apulians, and mabe alliance with the King, after they beparted from thence, and rook their way by land towards Argos, under and by the conbut of Bellerophon, that then was bealed of his foot, who knew mell the Country. When Bellerophon had guided them fo nigh Argos, that in an bour they might run befoze the Bates, be fignified it unto Perfeus : and then Perfeus made bis Boft to tarry in a Balley, and fent Danaus unto Bing Prycus, to fummon bim that be bould pield the Realm unto Bing Achrifius. Danaus went to Argos and accomplished the fummons : Bing Pryous answered to bim, that be was Bing, and that be would keep that title. Danaus returned unto the Boff of Perfeus with this answer, and made to him the report. Perfeus then hoped that King Prycus would come to bim, and gibe bim battel, and had thereof great joy and pleasure, for be befired nothing in the world more than to be in Arms: and for to be the better able to withfrand bis foe, be ozdained that night that be would part bis battel in three, whereof be gabe charge of the firft battel to Bellerophon, and be bimfelf beld the fecond battel; and to Danaus be betook the third : and thus when be began to fet forth Bellerophon on bis war, be bad not far gone, when be fat from far Bing Prycus, that knew of their coming by his Efpies, and bad fer battel in good ogber.

Bellerophon had with him but two thousand sighting men. When King Prycus saw him come with so little a company, be supposed that it had been Perseus, and thought to have utterly overthrown them at the sirst encounter, and made his people to set against them, by which within short space began a cruel and hard battel. And of this battel was Prycus right joyful at the assembly, and well employed his Arms and Swood, but at that time as be supposed by soace to remain victorious, be cast his eyes towards Thebes, and saw Perseus and his battel, that shewed themfelbes : toberein bis foztune was fuch, that in the beboin. ing the beab of Medula, which be bare painted in bis Shield of Chapital, be and all his folk, in a moment, were turned into flones; that is to fap, that be and all bismen had foft their firength and courages, and that they might no moze lift their Smozde, than might a Statue og Jmage. Aben Prycus fieb. and all they that could feb, fome into the City, and fome into the fields at all abbenture. Perfeus would not follow the chafe. because of their poor cale. And thes Prycus escaped beath. and abandoned and gabe oper the Country, and went with them that fed into Calidonia, where he was afterward put to Death by Hercules, And Pefeus went into the City, of Argos. the Water whereof mere open, and there was no man relifted. When be was in the City, be made an Chia, charging upon pain of beath, that none be fo bardy to use any biolence Oafoace there. After that be fent to feek bis Grandfather Achri. hus, and told bim who be was, and fo belibered to bim again bis Cito and Bealm.

for this courteffe Achrifius beld himfelf greatly bebolding unto Perfeus, and asked bim, and enquired of bis baughter Danac. and of their abbentures. Perfeus told bim all that be knem. and then Achrifius was forp at that bard ulage that be bab tone. and for to amendall, be adopted Perfeus to be bis fon, and gabe bim the full power to gobern the City, and himfelf withbaem him into the Hower of Dardan, and then fent again unto Naples Dardanus bis Baother, with whom went Bellerophon, and he gave unto them, and to their company, great treasures at Perfeus fent many Argiens into Lybia, and their departing. made them to inhabit the Country. And thus abobe Perfeus in Argos with his wife Andromeda, of whom be got many chilben; that is to fap, Sthelenus, Blache, Demon, Ericeus, and Gorgophon, which all became men, and betook wives, Ring A. chrifius pet reigning. And among all other, Gorgophon bad one wife, of whom be had two fons, Alceus and Electrion, Alceus engendzed Amphitrion, und Electrion engendzed Alcumena, of whom came Hercules. 3 will not fay much of the facts and of the generations of this Perfcus; be governed paffing well the Realm.

to

Realm, and loved much King Achrifius: but there fell an hard foztune unto him, foz as he went on a night alone unto the Aower of Durdan to go visit the King, the Guarders of the Aower knew him not, and fell upon him, and hart him; when he felt him smitten, he put himself to defence. The noise waxed great, the King beard the noise, and came running down to part the frap, thrusted into the pzels, in such wise that Perseus knew him not, and with his Swood he smote him, that he slew him, and all the people with him: and anonaster, when he came in, and sound him dead, he remembred and rhought he had put him to death, after the Prognossication of the Gods, and made great sorrow, and did ordain his Obsequie right solemnly. And it this Obsequie happened to be there, Jupiter and his Son vulcan, which at that time practiced together the Science of Magick,and Bigromancp.

O

r

t

3,

8

e,

b,

b.

0

D.

ġ

2

n

D.

1È

m

1-

D

11

B.

n

1.

iÒ

18 19

of

of 18

n,

At this time Vulcan forged and wrought the Ablinders unto Jupiter; that is to fay, be bulied himfelf wirh troubling by fire and Swood, the Bealms of his neighbours : Perfeus then bib great bonour and wog fbip unto bis father Jupiter, and likewife bib Jupiter unto Perfeus : and each rebearfed to other their abbentures : but when the Doftquie of Bing Achrifius was performeb. and Jupiter fate Perfeus fo beaby that be could babe no jop, be returned into Creet unto bis wife Jano, and there be erercifed bimfelf in the Art of Pagick. And then when Perfens found bimfelt alone in Argos, and fam that be could babe no ion, be beparted from thence and went to the City of Milene, but be reigned there not long, fozalmuch at the beath of Achrifius reneweb always, and be could not put it out of his mind . and fo beparted thence, and withbrew bim with agreat Boff into the Dzient, where be got and conquered by Arms a great Country, which be named Perfiz, after bis own name, and there founded the City called Perfepolis, after that be bad banquifbeband put to beath Liber Pater which made bim war. And then when be bad fo bone, be probibed for bis children. that his two Sons Alceus and Electrion, with Amphitrion and Alcumena. Dwelled in Thebes, and Brachman refigned in Perfia. Ericeus upon the red Sen, and Stelenus in Mitche: But to speak of them all I will cease at this time, and will tell only of Amphitrion and Alcumena, that loved so well together, that they were contented to wed one the other. And the cause that moveth me to waite of these two, is, soasmuch as of Alcumena came Hercules, who first destroyed Troy.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

How Jupiter lay with Alcumena, and how Queen June sent two Serpents to say Hercules, and how Hercules strangled the two Serpents.

I fo this time when lopiter came again into Creet, and that tewith Vulcan bis fon, and Juno practifed the Art of Bagick. after that Vulcan bab forged the Ahunders of Jupiter, Amphitrion webbed the fair Alcumenain the City of Thebes, with a great company of Bings. Dieens, and Labies. The featt of this Medding was great. Iupiter King of Creet, and Queen Juno were there. During the featt, Jupiter continually bebeid Alcumena for ber great beaute, (for Alcumena was the moff fair momantbat entriban feen Jallbis belight, and buffe care was in beholding: the Labire of De befired nothing but to be always, smeng the Ladies, and always bad his eyes firt on them sibutin the end be bebeid. Alcumena feriousle, in tobom be bad fingular, pleafure. De to fore fired bis ere on ber Ercellenen, that bis beart began to be troubled. fo that be was amozous of berlobs, An this his greedy cobetoufnels, be let pals the folemnity of the Medding, and returned into Creet; but be bad not long ferourned, when the faid cobetouinels. to aught to bebementty in bim, that on a day be began to fpeak of Alcumena in the prefence of Juno, and faib unto Ganimedes. bis Elquire, Ganimedes, what think pou of the beauty of Alcumena & Sie fait Ganimedes, I think the fbineth in all manner of Ercellence, and to compaige all ber Mertues, there is no. thing fo great, but be map be of alliance with one that is of lefs. beaurp than the is.

Acuticas at that lame time be was loze moved with new lp

15

at

na

70 0

ß.

n

e

2

û

Ď.

icaloufie : for the bad oftentimes been jealous of Jupiter and thought in ber felf, that if the might, the would caufe to flap and put to death Alcumena. Jupiter found himfelf foze entangled and obercome with love, and to over-maffer it, he took his Bow and Arrows, in purpele to go to the wood for to flap fome wild Beaft, and went forth accompanied only with Ganimedes ; but as foon as be was iffued out of the Wate, there met him one of the Bnights of Thebes, and bid reberence unto the Bing and faid unto bim, that Bing Creon of Thebes fent bim unto bim, and required bim that be would aid and belp bim to mar againft King Thelhpolis, that had trefpaffed againft bim. Mhen Ring Jupiter had beard the meffage of the Bing, be was perp glad of the request of the Bing of Thebes and took the Bnight bothe band, and brought bim to bis Watace, and there feafied bim, and after be faid, that with bery good heart and will be would fuccour and belp Bing Creon in his war. The Bnight of Thebes with this anfuer tock leave of Bing Jupiter, and returned unto Thebes, where preparation and Dibinance was mabe to go unto Thellipolis. It was not long after, that Bing lopiter made bis Army, and made as much baff as poffible be could, that floatly after be might come to the beufe of Thebes; where be boped to find Alcumena. Then all things were ready be took his way, and fped him in his journey, that he came to Thebes, where he was bonourably received of the Bing, the Queen, and the Ladies. Bing Jupiter at bis coming forget not to look if be might fee Alcumena, but be fato ber mor, wherefore be was in great grief, and knew not what to bo. And be looked after Amphitrion, but be could no tobere fre bim, whereof be was moze abatted than be was befoge. In this abathment be approached to Bing Creon, and bemanbed of bim, tobere Amphitrion was? Bing Creon answered bim, that be would hoatly come, and that be affembled bis men of Arms ar the Caffle of Arciancy, which be bad given bim. Abis Caffle flood between Thebes and Athens upon the Riber, and was a paffing fair place. Anon as Tupiter bab underfloed, that Hing Creon bab giben Arciancy to Amphitrion, be imagined that Alcumena was in that place, and was minded to have gone thither, if it M 3 bab.

bad not been he dzeaded the talking of the people, and also he feared to make Amphicion jealous. This considered, Bing Jupiter abode in Thebes, and passed there the time the best wise he could, till Amphicion and other were come. Ahen they beparted from Thebes, and went to lapsiege to the City Thellipolis, accompanied with Bing Jupiter, and many other. During the siege, they of the City assailed off times by battel against their enemies, but they of Thebes had alway so good fozume, that in the end, they of Thellipolis yeilded them in all points to the will of Bing Creon. And thus when the Bing of Thebes had obercome and subdued the City, he returned unto bis Country with great jop.

When Amphitrion fam that their enemies were obercome. and that there was no moze peril, be bad great befire to go fee his wife Alcumena : and to haft him the fooner to be with ber, be beparted from the Boft, with leave of the King, accompa. nied with an Elquire only. When Jupiter fam Amphitrion To bepart upon bis way, be began to think of a great fubtilty, to come to bis intent. And be beparted from the Boft with Ga. nimedes only; and as foon as be was in the field on the toap. they two being together, Jupiter entred into conference with Ganimedes, and faib to bim, I babe great affiance in pou, and moze than in any man that libeth, wherefoge 3 will tell pour thing fecret, which 3 hall accomplife as 3 bope : and ve muft ker it fecret. Aruthitis, that 3am amozous terribly of Dame Alcumena; by no means in the woold I may pet forget ber, noz put ber from my befire. She knoweth not the pain that for ber love aboundeth in me, for 3 was never fo barby to Discoper to ber my cale, noz neber burft hem it to ber, fozalmuch as I know ber wife, chaft, and vertuous. This confidered. I confels my folly, fog I am in a manner in befpair, fearing I thall not find the like antwer of love in Alcumena. But the fubben beparture of Amphitrion, pet gibeth me in a manner an bope, for at the time that I fam bim bepart from the Boff, to go fee bis Mife, accompanied with bis Cfquire, I imagined that in all baft I would go unto Arciancy, by a moze near and Shorter map; for I know the passage long fince, and that ? mould

ber.

would transfigure my self into the foam of Amphiction, and you into the foam of his Esquire, for to go unto Alcumena, and to make her understand that Jam Amphiction. Ganimedes, upon this intention, Jam come on the way, togo thirher with you, we must needs win upon Amphiction, this way, a night and day, and therefore let us go now merrily: Pethinketh that Love should belp me; and when Alcumena shall see me transformed into the shape of Amphiction, and you as his Esquire, the shall not be so wife to perceive my enchantment.

ft

ep

1-

4

a.

2-

H

of

to iė,

EE

er,

ã.

n

2.

th

a

of

et

at

to

[-

Ð,

g

16

n

0

D

3

Ganimedes bearkento biligently to the will and purpofe of lupiter, and paomifed that be would employ bim in this affair as much as in him was politible, and fo they robe with great be. fire the readieft was, and in riding Jupiter went about bis enchantments, and fped bim fo, that be arribed in an ebening at the Caftle of Arciancy. When be was there arrived, be tranffoured bimfelf and Ganimedes. as be bad befoze purpofed, and then at the fame bour that Alcumena flept, and that each man was abed, they came to the Caffle, and fo knocked at the Bate, that they a woke the Boster. The Boster-came to the window. and looked down beneath, and faw Jupiter and Ganimedes by the Boon-light, and it feemed to bim to be Amphitrion, and his Efquire, wherefoze be opened the Wate and received bim, as it had been bis Logo Amphitrion. After, be brought him unto the booz of the Chamber where Alcumena flept, and awaked ber, faving, that ber Lozd mas come. After be returned to keep the gate, by the commandment of Jupiter, and Alcumena opened bec Chamber unto Jupiter, tobo entred in with great jop, and at the entry into this Camber, Jupiter and Alcumena took each other in their Arms, and kiffed, Alcumena thinking it bad been Amphitrion : and when thep lap fofbed in each others arms, Alcumena bemanded from whence be came : Jupiter anfwered; became from Thellipolis; and after the giving over of the Town, and gielding of their enemies, be beparted from the Boff, for the love of ber, accompanied only with his Efquire, to come baffily to ber : then Alcumena was well content with the words of Jupiter, and asked bim, if he would eat or brink : Ispiter answered, that he would nothing but go to bed with

So be lap with ber : and Jupiter had neber fo great jon in bimfelf. And going to bed-ward, be bade Ganimedes go to the Chamber booz, and abide there without. And Jupiter ap. proached to Alcumena with great lobe, and rejorced in his heart, with ercels of pleafure. In this manner came Jupiter unto the fecrets and joy of love, fo that to acquaint bimfelf with this Lady, it feemed expedient to Enchantall them that bwelt in the place. And then be flept with Alcumena, and afterward be arofe and came unto Ganimedes, which kept the Match at the booz, and told him, that for to do this matter fecretie, be moft enchant all them of that place, in fuch a manner, that they Bould not awake untill the coming of Amphitrion. And be befired Ganimedes to go unto the Bate, to wait if Amphitrion And if (laid be) it bappen that be come by the day light 3 Wall beliber to you a powder, that pe fail caft in the apr againft bim, and this powder bath fuch bertue, that it hall keep Amphitrion from approaching this place as long as the dap enbureib: and then when it is night, and be knock at the Bate. pe thall come to me, and we will open the Bate, and baing him to bis Mife, and after that we will return from bence.

The King Jupiter with thefe woods waought in bis Science. and made bis Charms fo, that all that were in the place could not awake, without a remedy againft bis enchantment. When be bod fo bone, be transformed Ganimedes into the likenels of a Bozter, and appointed bim to keep the Bate. After be returned into the Chamber of Alcumena, and But faft the minboms, that no light might come in, and went to bed, and lan mith the Laby, and there fpent all the relique of the night, and all the day following, taking his pleafure with ber fo long that be begat on ber a fair son, conceived under the reign of the beff conffellation of Beaven. In the end, when Bing Jupiter had been mitb ber a night and a dap, and that be thought Amphitrion mould come, be made bybis Art Alcumena to fleep. After be arofe up, and attired himfelf like one of the ferhants of the place, and be bad not tarried long, but Amphitrion and his Clauire came knocking at the Bate, foz it was then night. EMben Ganimedes beard bim knock, be came to the Gate and opened

09

to

pig

er

th

ale

rb

at

gg

e-

bt

a-

p

1-m

e,

D

n.

8

3(

1-

p

D

ıt

E.

T

).

g

D

B

opened it, Amphitrion thought it bab been bis Boater; To be faluted bim, and bemanded of bim where bis Mife was : Abe baliant Woater faid to bim, that the flept, and fo baought bim into ber Chamber: and Jupiter following, charmed bim that be had no befire to eat noz to baink. When be came into the Chamber be awaked Alcumena, that was all abathed when the fam Amphitrion, for the berilp fuppoled for truth, that the bad feenhim a good while befoze, and Begroped about ber in the bed, and when the found no person there, then the was moze amaged than befoge. Potwithftanbing, the arole and came to Amphitrion, faging to berfelf, that the bab fuppofed to babe feen bim befoge; notwithffanbing fbe made chear to ber busband, faving to him, that the had all the night breamed of his coming. ter they talked of many things. finally, be went to bed with ber, and lap with ber that fame bour, and then Alcumena conceived pet a fon of Amphitrion. Jupiter and Ganimedes Departed then from the Caffle, and there left all fleeping, that were within the place, that none awaked till it was mozning, and they had thought they flept but one night, but they flept a bay and two nights, and this matter was bandled fo fecretly, that no person could ever espyit. By these means the fair Alcumena conceibed two fons, the one of Jupiter, and the other of Amphitrion.

By space of time, the fruit of her Momb began to appear, the tydings were born all about, and also into Creet, to the ears of King Jupiter, and of Aueen Juno. Jupiter hearing this, was passing joyful, in the presence of Aueen Juno. De beheld Ganimedes, and began to war red, and after shewed a good countenance, and gave praises to the Gods, for the conception of Alcumens, and spake much good of her, so that the jealousie of this old Aueen renewed, and she planted in her heart a great enbp, and beably batred against Alcumena.

Mith the renewing of this enby, Juno, concluded, (being debilibly jealous) that the would flay and cause to dee Alcumena, by enchantment of socery: for in that craft the was an experienced Diffres. Dolb cursed woman, the held musing in her heart her cursed jealouse, and laid her ears to hear In-piter fpeak of Alcumena, without any thing replying again But finally, when the knew the time of the delibery of Alcumena, the beparted fecretly from Creet, and told Jupiter, that the monto go bifguifed on certain fecret Welgrimages : then ment the unto Arciancy, where was a Temple ftanbing nigh the Caftle, and was erected in remembaance of the Bobbels Diana. Aben Juno entred into the Memple, not fog bebotion. but to efpp if any came from the Caftle, of whom the might enquite the fate of Alcumena. She was biffigured by ber craft. This Craft ufeb afterward Simon Magus in the time of Saint Peter, and of the Emperour Nero. When the bab been there a little, Galantis that governed Alcumena, was there a long time at ber Daigons befoge the Image of the Wobbefs. and when the had bone, the arole from ber contemplation, and returning, this old Queen came and faluted ber, and to come to ber purpote, the faib to ber faintly: Dame, 3 prap pou what bo poucall this place? It is (faid Galantis) Arciancy, and this Temple belongeth to the Caftle, and ftanbeth between Thebes and Athens. 3s not this (faid Juno) the place that Amphitrion and Alcumena bwell in? Des fait Galantis: And hom fare they fait Juno? Dy Load Amphitrion (fait Galantis) is in good bealth, and my Lady Alcumena is ready to baing foath a Child, this is the laft bay of ber expectation, and therefoze & may no longer tarry: It is time that 3 return to ber. Bobs protect pou.

Galantis with this word went to Alcumena, which began to fall intravail, and Juno remained in the Temple with intent to murther Alcumena. Then instead of saying her Drisons, she began to make certain devilish Enchantments. This done, she laid her legs cross, one over the other and sate in that manner, and then the same moment and time that she had so done, Alcumena by the socce of soccery, began in the same manner, as Juno did. In such sock, that there was no man or woman that might make her do otherwise: The poor Alcumena selt then the most grievous and starp pains in the world, sor her fruit would come out, but it might not in no wise, for samuch as her legs and thighs were so cross one over the other: she creed

112

u-

at

en

gb

(g

m,

bt

190

of

ns

a

g.

nd

to

tai

)is

oes-

hi-

one

ís.

th

3

be

to mt

the

the

er,

u.

14-pat

nac

uit

ner"

da

ind

and complained pitioully, and was in griebous Parterbom. The Didwibes could find no remedy; fe was three days bolben in this pain, alway ber legs croffed one over another. Diring thefe three bays, Galantis and the Ladies, and Momen. one after another, came to the Temple of Diana, for to prap for the beliverance of Alcumena, and alway they found Juno with ber tegs croffed, and one over another. But thep found ber neber in one likenels. foz at each time fbe transformed ber into bivers likeneffes, and figures, of Beaffs, 02 of women. to the end that they bould not perceive ber, noz ber Craft. Beherthelels, the could not transfoam ber felf, but Galantis coming oft into the Temple, perceived ber, and found always there a beatt oz a woman, fet in the fame manner as Alcu. mena bib. Alcumena bab been then three baps in pain. The fourth bap, Galantis wared angry at that the fam in the Temple; then he affembled the women, and faib to them. fair Dames, it muft needs be, the pain that mp Lado fufferetb. comety by Mitchcraft, for the cause of all ber sufferings, is becaufe the cannot unfold ber legs. This is mine advice, and I councel pou speedily to put in practice : for I bave feen in the Temple at all times that I have been there for this three bars, a woman, og a Beaft, with legs croffed og folded, as mp Laby bath bers: and trulg I think, it is fome epil creature. that beareth ill will to my Lady, and by ber Sozceries confraineth ber to fit as the both. If it be Co, I will beceive ber : for one of you and I will go into the Temple, feigning our felbes right jogful, and glad, and will thank the B. odels Diana, faping all on bigb, that my Lady is delibered of a fair fon. And then when the creature that always is there, and changeth ber into Dibers foams, bath beard our Daifons, if it be fo that the beareth any ill to my Lady, I boubt not but the will change countenance, and troubled in mind will depart, thinking the bath failed of ber enchantment. And then ifit be truth that I fuppole,my Laby may babe fome manner of beliberance from ber pain.

The women bearing thefe woods, remembred them that they had feen in the Temple, the Momen and Beafts that Galantis fooke of, and were of opinion that Galantis fould be as De bad fuppoled. Aben Galantis and one of the women went to the Temple, and entring therein, they faw on the one fine where Juno fate, as the bad wont to bo, and bad transformen ber felt into the quife and foam of a Com. They paffed foath confidently, without making any thew of forrow, or other thing fave only joy: and when they were come befoze the Altar. they kneeled bown, and joyned their bands together, and faid: Diana, Coberaign Godbels, the name be paaifed in Beaben, and mearth, for thou baft given this bonour to my Laby Alcumena. and belped ber to being forth into this world, the most faireft Child in the world. With thefe words thep arofe up and returned again: and as they went, they fam the Com Suddenly bepart out of the Temple, and ran up to the fields, and in the fame time and inflance Alcumena arofe, and was belibered of two fair fons, before Galantis and ber fellow were come into the Chamber.

When Galantis was come unto Alcumena, and found there two fair fons, the was full of jop, for that the bad beceibed the talfe old Juno. She tolb then unto the Labies, and to Alcumena, bow fbe bad feen the Cow, and bow the was beparted from the Temple, and affured them that it was fome ebil perfon, and that the bad beld Alcumena in this banger by fozcerp. The Ladies fent after to feek the Cow, but thep beard meber epdings of ber: Df thefe twain, the one of them was great and fair, and of erceeding excellency, and the other was little and feebie: The great Chilo was the firft that was boan, and was named Hercules, and the other bad to name Ypecleus. Hercules as fome fap, was the fon of Jupiter, and was like unto bim, and Ypecleus was the fon of Amphitrion. The troings of this Pativity was prefently foread all about, and all them that beard thereof, were glab, fabe only Juno : for the bad neber jop in ber beatt after fbe bad beard it in the Temple that Alcumena was belivered, and had brought forth a fon.

Die beported from the Remple, as is laid in the foam of a Copy of the fair in her heart the Goddels Diana, and was losses the bad meither wit noz understanding, and thus forrom-

30

OS

th

ıg

r,

1:

O

ft

٤.

g

36

of 30

90

1-0

r

p.

r

it

12

Ó

s.

Ô

g

H

36

2

1.

S

foarowing, toben the was a little withdanton from the Temple. the took again ber own foam of a woman : and went upon the Bountain of Olympus, there the wared penlibe, and began to think what the fould do: then the Imote ber felf on the break and faid : What auxilethit me to be boan of the Boyal blood of Saturn? What abaileth me my Batrimony of the World of Golo: what abaileth me the Diabem of Creet, and what abaileth me the fcience of the Mogio, that I habe learned bo great fludg and labour, when the Bods be againft, and contra. rp me in all things. The Bing my Busband careth not foz me, no moze in my old days, than be did in my pouth. D foztune wilt thou neber turn thy wheel? I behold of all my defires. there is not one that magattain to effet, all frame aud beration redoubleth in me, and I am fo put in delpair, that mp miffortune mut needs be caufe of hortning and leffening the natural course of my days: With these woods the beheld the Carth, and not the Beaben, and pauled a while, and faib : And am 3 not well infogtunate, and bogn in an ebil bour ? mpcraft and forcery abaileth not against mine enemy Alcumena, I babe failed againft ber, but furely I will probe mp felf againft ber Son, to the end, that his Wother may be my fetiow, and beac me company to make forrow. for 3 will flapber Son, and by that means, the being the Bother, 3 hall gine ber caufe of grief and difpleafure:

D cursed old Virago, conspiring then against the poer innocent: then the imagined that the would take two Serpents charmed to work the death of the Son of her Enemy, and that the would some night put them into his Thamber, to the end that they hould strangle him. With this Conclusion, the departed from the Dountain, and returned into Crect. Abere being. The so laboured by her science, that the did assemble on a day secretly, all the Serpents of the Country. When she had assembled them all, the chose two of the most felloneous, and most envenomed, and put them in her lap, and have them home, and after waited a day when King Jupiter had gone into a far boyage: and then seigning that the would go on some Wilgrimage, the departed from Greet, and in distruise.

£ 3

the Castle of Arciancy. The King Eugeus of Athens, and King Euristeus of Attick, were at the same time come into the Castle to make good chear: And it was in the evening when Juno entred. He made her self invitable by her Crast, and sought all about to find the Chamber, wherein was the Son of Alcumena. He sought long, till the came to the Wooz of the Chamber, where there was a Window open. He went to the Waindow, and saw two Hurses, and two Sons whereat the was all ababed. Thus as the was pensive, Alcumena came to see her Sons, and feased them in such saying, that Juno perceived and knew that both of them were her Sons, whereof the had great joy. Hog Obe concluded in her false and evil mind, that the would franche them both bp the Serpents.

. Alcumena Departed from the Chamber, by the fpace of time. and Juno let the night war bark. The Burles laid the Chil-Dzen in their Crables to fleep, and thep flept. And after then laid themfelbes boton and flept, leaving a Lamp burning in the Chamber. Then when they were alleep, at that time that luno would accomplift ber work, the opened be lap, and made to leap out the two Serpents, charmed and inchanted to wook the beath of the two Children, and put them by a bole into the Chamber. Inben thep were within, thep lifted up their beads, and fmelling the two Children, made unto them, gibing the first affault unto Ypecleus, that they murthered bim. Afrer the beath of Ypecleus, thefe two Serpents came to the Cradle of Hercules, that was awake the fame time. When the Ber. pents were come to the Crable, they went the one on the one fide, and the other on the other libe, and mounted on the cradle. but this was to their ebil cafe : foz as foon as they came up. Hercules perceived them, and was afraid, because thep were fierce and dzeabful, be then bestirred bimfelf, and bis Arms with fuch might and foace, that he banke the bands in whichhe was fwabled, and fo laboured that be had his hands at large. and then teben the Serpents ran upon bim, be put them back by natural firength and force many times, and fought with them with bis fift right long : but at laft, when Hercules fam that the ferpents oppzelled bim moze and moze, and cealed not to affail bim, be took in each band one, making agreat crp.

and belb them fo faff,that be ftrangled them both.

P

o

D.

111

be

re

nd

0:

Of

at

02 gie

ne, il-

qst

the

u-

to 28

to eic

ng

191 ole

er.

ano

ole,

up,

ms

bbt

rge,

ack

oith

aw fed

not

The Burfes awaked at the cry that Hercules mabe, and went to the Erables to fee their, Thildzen, and thep found Ypecleus bead, and they found that Hercules belo pet the two Serpents, in his bands. Suddenly as thep faw the marbail. they croed pitioufly. Mith that Juno the faife Mitch and bozcerefs, bad feen all, fled ber may foge troubled and terribly angreat that, that the Serpents had not woought and atthieved ber purpole, as well on Heroules, as they bad done on Ypecleus. And Amphitrion with Alcumena awaked, and came into the Chamber where the two Burfes were, which made forowful and pitious cryes : and entering therein thep fam Heroules at the one fide fill beibing the Serpente, and on the other fine they beheld Precleus all fwoln with benome and dead : then beep and griebous fogroms entred into the bottom of their bearts, Alcumena to wrep by natural pity, and Amphitrion was all afraid. Pany Damofels and other folk came to the Chamber, which were all afraid to take away the Serpents tog fear of burt: And there was none fe barby that burft approach to Hercules, for the Serpents that be beld in bis bands which were fwoln with benome. Alway Hercules make no heady noz woafe chear, but laughed to one and other, and was there in that cafe fo long that Phyficians and Chirurgeons came. and by their Science took from bis bands thefe benemous Migen Amphitrion fam Hercules belibered from the berpents, be recomfozted Alcumena, that was nigh Dead foa forrow, and made to burn and bury Ypecleus. All they that were there had paffing great marbel of the power and frength of Hercules , that was fo poung a Child, that by erceffibe frength and might bab ftrangled them.

. The Bight passed in this fashion and manner that I have rehearled. On the morrow betime, Amphitrion would be mand manifest his marbellous and glorious history, wherefore he did cause to take Hercules, and made him to be born to Athens, into the Temple of the God Mars, with the two Serpents: And he in person went accompained with King Euri-

fleus;

feus. The faile old Mitch Juno, followed afar after ina biffembling form and hape. Then Amphitrion wascome into the Temple, be fent for Ring Egeus, and affembled the people, and after took Hercules paelenting bim unto the Bod Mars, thanking bim for the bictory that be bab fent to Hercules againft the Berpents. After this be lifted bim up, and fbemen Hereules unto the people, recounting and telling to them bis marbellous abbenture. And thus when Hercules was Chemen in the biem and fight of the people, and that every mangane bim land and pasife: the falle old Juno being in the prels with others, after the bad long bebeld the noble Chilo, that in all his members be recembled and was like to Bing Jupiter, for to put Amphitrion injealoufie of bis dife, the faid unto them that were about ber; Certes Amphitrion is a pery fool if be thinketh that Hercules is bis fon : behold the members of Bing Jupiter. and the members of this Child, pe hall find no difference. This Child and Jupiter be both of one femblance, and babe like fabours and hape. And ebery man faith, that this child is the Son of Jupiter, and none other. When this old Juno bad fown thefe curfed words, the withbrew berapart, and took another shape to the end the hould not be known: and then these woods were foon abroad, and told forth of them that beard them, in Inch wife, that a great murmuring arofe touching Amphitrion. And it was reported to bim, that men faid fo by the adbertifement of old Juno; when Amphitrion heard those new todings, be beganto bebold the Chilo, and in the bebolding bim thought verily that this Chilo hab wholly the bery refemblance and like. nels of Bing Jupiter. And then began to enter into bis beart a great fogrow, and thus after be entred into a jealoufie : per be kept filence, made as good countenance as be could to efchem And after that the people were withdzawn be called Bing Earifteus and praped bim that be would bring up Hercules faying, that never after be would fee bim, and that be believed berilo that be was the fon of Jupiter. Eurifteus comfort. ed Amphitrion the beft wife be could, meaning to babe put this fealoufie out of bis mind, but be could not. Eurifteus enterprifed to keep and nourif Hercules, and made bim to be born inte into his boule: Amphirion returned into Arciancie, where be found Alcumena foze discomfozted foz these todings which the had received; and soz to excelle her self to Amphirion, and the false his Dunn Juno, the went unto Exter. De which matter will stay now, and will come to speak of the first adventures of Hercales.

CHAP. XXXIX.

How Hercules began the Olympiades, and how he waxed amorous of Magara, the Daughter of the King of Thebes, and how he shewed his strength in all manner of Games and Exercises.

t

2

r

g

n

ti

2-

t

9

n

.

.

2-1 nt

1-

u

Ĥ

Thefe tydings of this Abbenture of Hercules were foread through all the Parvinces of Greece: Some fair that be mas a Baffard, and the Son of Jupiter; and fo recounted Plautus in his first Comedy, and other beld that he was the bery fon of Amphitrion, as recountery Boccace in his Book of the Benealogy of Bobs : but whole fon foeber be was, Eurifteus bab bim in keeping, and nourifed bim bardly, and not tenberly, without the City of Artick: for the King, and the Citizens, and Totonimen, in their time, made their children to be notiritted out of good Towns, and made them to lee upon the bare earth, and naked, for to be more firong, without entring into Cities, until the time that they had power and firength to erereife arms. Lycurgus bad ozdained this Law, and many other that follow. First, he ordained that the people thanto over their Maince, and that the Maince thould be firmin Juffice, and libe Coberly, and that Werchants hould no their Werchandise, gibing one ware toz another without any money, and that each man Pould revenge bimtelf openly, and that a poung man hould bave in a pear but one gown, and that one man fould not be moze gallant and brabe than another, and that no man thould renew the memozy of wrong paffed; and that men of Arms hould have no wives, to the end that they might be moze tager and herce in the war : and to content the fragility of men, be ozbained, that in the night in the Boffs, Contobe certain

tain women common, in places called Fornices, whereof comerb fognication. Thele were the Laws that the Breeks ulen in the time of the beginning and coming of Hercules. And for to come again to mp purpole : Hercules was nourifed in an boufe that flood in the plain fields, and was oftentimes put out into the rain and wind, and lap the most part of that time upon the earth, without any other bed : be lay offner fo than upon bay 02 bry frat. Birb this nourifment be wared and grem in all beauty, firength and wisdom : be was bumble, courteous and gentle. All good manners began to grow and fine inbim: be was fober in eating and bainking: be ffept gladly in the fields : be for and daem the Bow. When Bing Egens of A. thens bad beard fpech of him, be commanded that his son Could be nourifed with bim, that was named Thefeus. Hercules and Thefeus trere both of one age, and loved right well togeiber. Thefeus was firong and migbry, and a fair Child, and be bad wir enough. Hercules paffed bim, and Gone as far a. bove bim, as the fun finerh above the ftars. When be was feben rears old, be exercifed wreffling, and oberthaet and caft the greateft and frongeft that came to bim. Botone and one at once, but fibe og fir, og as many as be might fet bis bands on: and bib fo great feats of firength, that out of Thebes, Athens. and Attick baffy came men, women and Children to fee bim. The moze and elder be grew, the moze enfozced be bis frength. mben be was ten pears old there might no man fiand og abibe in bis band? at thirten years of age be began to bandle and ule Arms, and of bis proper motion, be thought be would ge to the Bount Olympus, and there be would abide and anliber all mouner of men thither coming for the fpace of fiften baps, and receibe them in Arms, og in wrefling, og at anp other papof og sflap of frength : and fog to come to the effect of this Entervaige, be waited a bap when Eurificus came foz to fæ bim. and faib to bim : Sir, pe babe nourifbed me unto this time. like as if I were pour o'en Son, if foztune were come as contrary as Barure, 3 acknowledge that 3 Could be the mol emfortunate Child eber was born. for fome fap, that' am Son to Jupiter, and others fap of Amphitrion, hombeit have no father but you only, that babe nourifed me with pour fubfiance. Therefoge 3 pield unto pou as mp father, and advertife pou, bow that Jam purpofed for to be en the Bount Olympus, in as foat time as I well mar, and there I mill abide all them that thirber hall come, fiften bars fullo together : and for to beal with them at the Spear, at Sword. at wreftling, and at running, alway fogefæn, that it be by pour licence, and leabe, and that it please gou of pour courtefie to give unto bim that thall do beft fome paige, to the end, for to encourage the bearts of noble men unto valiantnels, that they might attain to renown. Eurifteus anfmered and faib : Herculcs fair bon, re can require of me nothing that is boneft and mozibipful, but I mill te thereto agreable. De be young and pet re are frong and puiffant, and I know well that there is no man that is able to fland againft pout. Since it is fo, that ve habe the will to to bo, I am bery well content that you hall make the proof, and them the firength of pour pourb : and for to effect and being this Enterpaise unto pour credit, 3 will arrap pours richly asif you were mp paoper Son. mp father. (answered Hercules) I thank you of this grace and kir Oness. and fince it is To pour pleafure, it behoveth vou to chufea man of great underftanbing and authozire, that thaligo unto all the Bealms of thefe Coufis, foz to thew unto the Bings, Bainces, and Bentlemen, the purpofe and Enterpaige that 3 babe taken in band : fair Son (faid Eurifteus) pou fap the truth, pou that! make pour Letters containing pour intention, and fend them to me, and then when 3 babe receibeb them, 3 will ufe fo good diligence, that pe of reason thall be content.

After thefe fpeeches and mane other, Bing Eurikeus went bome, and Hercules took ink and Warchment, and ferhim to waite in Letters the foam of a Waoclamation, which he made, that contained in this wife.

mfo2

ān

tuo

noo

noc

ew and

m: the

A.

noe

cr.

to-

OFFE

a-

250 taf

one

m:

ns,

m.

tb.

ide

dn

gè

130

g,

pet dis

m,

ne,

88

non

11

Greeting be to all Kings, Princes. Knights, Gentlemen, Ladles and Gentlewomen, from the Esquire unknown, and well Fortuned. We let you have knowledge, That the first day of the Month of May next following the Esquire Unknown, will be on the Mount Olympus, for to shew himself in habiliments convenient unto Arms, at the pleasure of the Gods and Fortune, and for to receive all them that be of noble houses and name that will and shall come thit her to try masteries in the manner as followeth. In the beginning of the fielt three days, he shall hold exercise of wreftling, and he that that do beft, by the judgment of the ludges thereto committed; thall win an Elephant of fine Gold. The fourth day he will run a furlong or more against all them that will run, and he that best runneth shall win a fair Courser. At the fifth and fixt days he will shoot with the hand Bow, first at the moft firaight and nigh marks, and after at the moft long marks. and he that thooteth most fraight and nigh at thort marks, shall win a Glove of Gold: and he that is best at long marks, shall have a Bow and a sheaf of Arrows. At the seventh, he will cast a stone against all men, and he that doth best thereat, shall have a right good Diamond. At the eight day, and other following to the tifteenth he will exercise Arms: and if any will prove himself one alone against him, he shall be received Cforefeen that during the first fix days he shall come and prelent himself unto the Judges) and he that so doth best shall have a rich Sword. And if it happen that they that shall come to this Feast will Turney together in enanner of Battel, in Justing with Lances or Spears, and fighting with Swords or Barriers, the Judges thall ordain Captains, Ibch as shall feem convenient, and who that belt doth in this exercise or fight, shall win a Garland of Lawrel.

Y 2

All these things before written, the said Riquire unknown promiseth to accomplish and prayeth unto all Mobie men. Ladies and Gentlewomen, that they will mouthlate to come and see this meeting of Nobles, which shall be performed by the pleasure of the immortal Gods, who will give unto the accepters of this worthy Challenge, multipliance of honour, and encreasing of good Fortune, and encreasing

When Hercules had insitten this Proclamation, and engrowed it, the least it to Epsificus, who restains and it to push to bim that the inheation of the Author and maker was good, and bery worthy to be kept in memary, and called one of his Anights, and

nd

ill

th.

of

g-

he

ill

he

he

15:

all

ve

ne

ht

he

ne

he

)

0-

in

g

3,5

r

e

۹

f

B

and gave him the charge and office to go publift this Beacla-

The knight enterprized with right good heart to be the said effice: (and this was the first Officer of Arms that ever was) he went to Thebes, Argos, Lacedemonia, Arcadia, Perelie, Magnesie, Creet, Ephese, Pepos, Tripoly, and Thessay and all about he published the Proclamation, without declaring who it was that should keep the Exercise: They that heard speak of the Aquire unknown, and understood his Enterprize, judged him that this came of a noble courage, and that he might not sail to get Honour and Jame. The knight so to sinish this bopage, had sour months time to accomplish it.

During this time, Hercules difpoled bim foz to furnifb bis probition for the Exercises, and so did the Kings and Poblemen, for to come thirter. When the even before the first day of the Exercise was come, Bing Enristeus brought Hercules upon the Dount Olympus, and from all parts came thither fo many Poble men, Ladies, and Bentlewamen, that the number might not be esteemed; the mount was full on all sides. this night there was great ado, and noise of one and other, for to make their Aents and Lodges of Boughs and Leaves, and to pitch their papilions. And it ought not to be foggotten, when the even was come, bow the knight that had published the Challenge, affembled in a common Hent, all the Unights that were come thither, and required them in the name and on the behalf of the Elquire unknown, that they would chufe at mong them fuch as thould be Judges, and give the paise ! when the Kings that were there, beard and understood the request of the Poble Efquire, they thanked bim; and they chofe thee Rings to be their Judges, that is to fay, the King of Thebes, talled Creon, the King of Argos, named Gorgophon, and the Ring of Myrmidon, named Elon, which was father of Jason, they were wife and different, they enterpaised the office with a god with; and that night they passed over with great lop, foz they affembled in a Ment which was made for to bance in, and the Bings with the Enights roung and old went together: and thus began the feaft, which endured till midnight in Dances and Songra 19 3 The

The King Tupiter and Amphitrion were not at this affem. bly by the Councel of Bing Euriticus, that let them babe know. lenge fecretip, that Hercules was be that hould bold this fport oz exercife, for to efchem all words and languages, that might grow og rife up becaufe of the Batibity of Hercules : for Am. phitrion on the one fine beliebed not that he was his Son, and Impiter on the other five faid that be appertained not to bim. De fent them word therefore, that they could do no better than not for to come to the folemnity, which was a most special thing, and the most firange that eber was spoken of befoze that time : the firft dap of May, at the bour what time the bun caffs bis beat upon the Carth, Hercules bib caufe to found a Trumpet, to make the Ladies go up into the Scaffold and places appointed : and after thep being mounted and fet, Hercules leapt out of the Ment apparelled to waefile, and came into the mide of the place of field, making reberence unto the Judges, Bings. and to the Ladies : De was then fourten pears old full accom. plifted : and as be bad bone the reberence, the Enight that was Difficer of Arms, made a cry and faid : High and Excellent Judges, We let you have knowledge, with all Kings, Knights, and Gentlemen of Arms, Ladies and Gentlewomen, that here is the Squire Unknown ready present in his person, upon the Mount O. lympus, and offereth himself to fulfil the Contents of his Challenge, by order, and after the manner that the particulars thereof Wherefore if there be any man that will prove make mention. and affay him at Wreftling, let him come, and he shall be received.

Theseus of Athens, at the end of this Proclamstion, and at the commandment of king Egeus his Father, entred then into the field: be was a patting fair Thild and a Gentle, at his coming he saluted Hercules, and said to him: Paster of all bodily Exercise, I am come hiber, not of presumption, but for to learn those things that I have need of, and therefore I recommend me unto your Grace. Programs and therefore thereuses, I may more learn of you, than you of me: wherefore let us endeadour to win the prize, it must be begun by some body. These words accomplished, the two solle Esquires approached proached, and feiged each other. Thefeus employed bis puiffance, and Hercules fuffered bim to bo as much as be would oz could, without thewing and putting-out his force and might a-And fo they thook and lugged each other, but in the end Hercules caft Thefeus, the most foftig and fabourable Obbereat the laughter was great among the that be could. Labies and Bentlewomen. Thefeus then beparted from the place, and went among the Labies and Wentlewomen, paging them that they would take in good part what be bad bone : then came unto the place many poung Squires, of whom I know not the names, and thependeavoured and travelled all that thep might for to get bonour and worftip, but their labour profited little unto them, in regard-of getting the paige : foz Hercules raft and forled all them that came, and the wrefiling bured four bours continually : At the laft, at the request of the Labies, the Bubyes mabe the maeffling to ceafe fog that bap, becaufe that they fam that Hercules was goung, and that be had bone a great mozk:

When Hercules had understood that the Judges had made cease the wrestling, he was sorrowful, for in his wrestling he had a singular pleasure. The Judges then with Euristeus came to him, and made him do on his cloaths and array him. After they brought him into the Common Pall, whereas the Ladies were dancing and singing joyously: and it was said to him, that he must dance and sing like as others did. Hercules excused him much, but his excuse might not abail. He was set on to dance in hand with Megara a fair Gentlewoman, of young age, being the was well furnished with understanding: and the was daughter of Bing Creon.

m.

m-

021

bt

m-

nd

m.

an ial

at fts.

m-

p.

iqi

Dñ

Is,

m.

nt

nd

he 0.

al-

Ve

-51

at

to 17

to

n.

When Hercules law him in the hand of so noble a Bentlewoman, he was soze abalbed and allamed. The Bentlewoman on the other side was also shame fac'd: foz as soon as the had san Hercules wzestle, the had set all her love on him. And they knew none of them both what to sap: howbit instead of words, they used pring and covert countenances. Hercules took a singular pleasure to behold the Bentlewoman; and the moze near the Bentlewoman was to Hercules, the moze the serber beart:

beart on him. Love in this night enforced and confirmined them to love each other without speaking, and their beauty was cause thereof: men could not have found in all Greece so fair Children, nor of better qualities. They were enough beholden and looked on, and in especially Hercules for his Prowess; and ebery man marbelled atbim, and at bis behabiour.

By fpace of time, when Hercules was brought from the feat into bis Tent. Dis Tent, and the Tent of the Kings, and of the Ladies, were made but of banches, with leaves and perbs, gibing god opour and fabour. It was not known bow to make Hents of cloth, noz of filk then. Hercules paffed this night, moze intending to think on the beauty of Megara, than foz to fleep. The bap following, at bour conbenient, the came to the foozt, and there were many poung men firong and actibe. the firongest of all Greece, but Hercules with one arm threw and caff them; and that bar, and the bar following, be caft and flung to the earth, moze than the bundzed, and there could not fo many come to bim, but be caft them down, and put them to foil , without any chafing bimfelf og griebing ; and at that time be got bery great glozy and bonour there. Megara oftentimes bebelo bim, and in likewife did the Ladies and Bentlewomen, and many there were that fet their lobe on bim. thus be paffed the exercise of wreftling to bis bonour them At the fourth day be affembled all them that were Davs. come thither for to run, and be made them that were moft ferble to ribe upon the Courfers that were in Greece, and after be fewed them the furlong og fabe, and mabe them take their wap and run, and be runafter the Bogfe and men, but be paffed all them that ran, and without taking once his breath be ran the furlong, and came thereto befoge all the ribers and runners ; wherefoze be was greatly paaifed, and bad a great laub; and fome fap, that be ran as fwiftlpas a Bart. Derhis course that Hercules mabe, all the world wondzed, and held it for a marbellous thing, and wrote it in Boks, among other things woathy to be put in memozp.

At the fift and firt days following, Hercules took bis Bow and his Arrows, and went unto the place that was ordained for to hoot in with the Bow, and the Ladies and the Gentlewomen were there. Hercules and many other hot at most straight, and near mark, but that by that he exceeded all the nighest: foz be that always in a little ring of Gold, and as foz hooting at a long mark he passed the furthest in the field twenty four strides:
his Bow was so great that it was the burthen of a man. Ho man could bend it but himself. It was a pleasure to see him, foz begot great peaise and same two days, and yet be got moze the day following, which was the seventh day of the Spozts:
so when it came to the cassing of the stone a sar, one after another, then he cass it employing his strength in such wise that he passed for paces surther than any man that at that time employed himself in that Exercise.

Then they that were come to this feast cryed with a high boice, the Esquire unknown is neither the son of Amphirion, not the Son of Jupiter, but he is the Son of the God of Pature, which both garnished him with double soze and redubled it an hundred fold: in his intancy he vanquished the serpents, and in his youth he surmounted in wit, soze, and valour all the world. Blessed be the womb that conceived him and bare him, so to glozisie Greece: for certainly the time shall come once that he shall be the glozy of the Greeks, and their try-

umph, and well fall belp them if thep babe net.

Ò

v

g

n

E

D

10

0 ıt

D

æ

É

-5

15

ir

.

9

D

it

g

1

t

Such were the woods of the Bings, of the Ladies, and of the Damolels, of the Bobles, and of the Maliant, each man pagifeb bim in bis quife. The fair Megara beard gladly the commenbation, and praifing that men gabe bim, but pet fbe fam bim moze gladly bo bis feats and baliancies, and it is no marbel though the fate bim gladly, and gave ber to bebold bim : foz in Hercules was that, that was not in other : bis beauty fur mounted the measure, and the great postion and quantity of his fosce and ffrengtb. After that each man that would caft the ffone bad done, be went into the common Tent, where many an amozous man was with his Lady, and there be began to put bimfelf forth a little, and bis speech with one and other became bim: foz be bab a right bigh and clear boice. Megara and Hercules in this ebening oftentimes beheld each other fecretly, and tbeir their countenances were fixed on each other often, and then of force they changed colour. In this changing of colour there was not a bein in them but was moved. And by this moving arem amorous in abundance, with deep fighs, which were nourifed in the Abilms and bottoms of their bearts.

Among all other things, for to fpeed the matter, the Rings and ancient Enights affembled them in council, for as much as they had many young Enights that were come, and had a. hidden from the beginning of the feath, for to bo feats of Arms against Hercules. The puissance and firength of Hercules. mas well confidered of in this Council, and forafmuch as it was berp likely, that no man might fand against bim, it mas ozbained, that be fould do no beds of Arms band to band, and that the days that were pet to come of the relique of the feaf from two bays to two bays, they hould Turney in manner of battel, whereof bould be Captains two Kings that mere there. to wit. Tandarus that was father of Mencalus, Busbann of fair Helen, and Ixion that was King of Theffaly. Thefe two Bings took on them with a good will this charge, and it mas ozdained, that Hercules Could let them all Turnep until the time that the one party were at worfe, and that then be might belo that party of fuffering the morfe, unto the time that he had brought them to match their betters. This ordinance mas Bemeb in the Ment by the Officers of Arms : They that mere afoze named to fight man foz man against Hercules, were right lopous of the new ordinance. The featt then ceafed and one and other withbrew them unto their Ments : on the magning they came to the fields for to begin the first Murney, and there were fibe bundgeb Gignires, and three bundgeb Brights all Armed as to go into battel, lating that their Swoods were reinteres and not Barp, and that their Spears bab Kochers of tree. 02 of word: The Bing Tandarus and the Bing Ixion were richly arrayed, and well boxfed, and armed well with boffed smets, and ran in the most bardieft place of this affembly:there was no moze but an bundgeb Bnights on bogfeback, fog bogfes at that time take but little known moz used : all they on boaletack, and they on four mere parted into the companies and be-Liberth -ianie

beaps

libered to Tandarus and Ixion, and baball they bught to have; they that bab boales, at the found of the Trumpet were ready to juft, and ran one against another, so couragiously, that they troubled all the Air with Duff and Bowber that arofe by their At the bickering each met with other oftentime. and there were fome oberthrown under the borfe, and tumbled up fibe bewn at joyning : and fome there were that bake their Spears Anightly and Chibalroufly, fog there were plenty of But in the end when the Bnights on boglebaliant Anights. back bab bone their endeabours, and that they fet their bands on their Two20s, the footmen began to renew the Aurney with to great a ffir and noife, that all the Wount redounded, on the one fibe, and on the other, there were many fpears broken, and Shields unjoynted , they jopned with their Spears eagerly, their frokes and fornes were great : each man Dewed the quantity of his force, it was joyous to fee the spears flyin the Air by pieces, there were great crees, none fpared other, ancient noz The ancient fought with the poung : the poung men by great courage learned and themed the old men: Then their Spears were broken they took their Iwozds, wherewith began a new ado, jopous and pleafant, they cutting their Belms, and bewing on their Shields fo couragioufly, and in efpecial they of the part of Ixion, that they of the part of Ring Tandasus were configained to call for Hercules unto their refcue.

g

g

D

ff

of

DE

19

bt

92

IS

re

bt

ne

ng

T

all

0

of

rt

eb

rt

es

re-

-30

th

Amben Hercules heard that they creed after him, he was passing joyous, for it was a grief to him to be idle, and to see others labour. De was nigh by the Aurney beholding them that did best: he had also his swood in his sist. At the cre of them that were put to the worse, he went unto their aid, and began to Aurney on the side where were the greatest strokes given, so pleasantly, that it was joy to behold. The King Ixion came against him to maintain his propels, and to hold together his folk: but for his welcome Hercules smotehim on the Hield, that all associed he bare him to the Garth, and down from his horse. Ahen began there a great hout, and laughter, and as well one as the other began to apply them to the rescue of Ixion. Hercules put himself into the press, and made

Z 2

beaus on all fibes, fo great that Tandarus and his folk recobered, entred into the battel with their counter party. At that time began again the Aurney frong and farp: they that fleb. took beart, force and bertue to them again, by the well bo. ing of Hercules, and recovered vigour and firength. Hercules of all them that were there was taken beed of, bis frokes furmounted all other without all meafure, and be brought again Tandarus to match bis betters with a little labour. bid them to great promets that day, and in the days following. that be was commended above all the men in the world. Abere mere them great Aurnegs and notable, at each Aurney, as foon as it happened that one party was put back, and to the morfe. Hercules by his well boing recovered them, and put them up again. Po man took berd but to bis glozp : eberp man faib. mell of him at bances and at feafts, every man loved him, every man moz fhipped bim. There was no tonque of noble, noz of bafe. but that dabehim land and praife, whereof the conclusion was fuch, that all the prizes above with bim, and also there were giben unto bim many gifts of the Bings that were there. The days of this folemnity drew over, and the laft night the Bings and the Ladies, and Pobles affembled in the common Tent. and of one common accord they mould that from year to year. they and their beirs hould bold and renew the feast that Hercules had begun and Effablifed, for they fam that it mas the moff honograble paffime that ever was mabe in Greece, and named the feaft Olympiades, because of the Bount Olympus. and they had it to in estimation that from thenceforth they bated their Ebids, and their Letters of continuance, with the year of the firft Olympiade, &c. In fuch wife, as the far the year of the Incarnation, thefe things are ogdained, giben and promifed; the Paricer of the Arms of Hercules, thanked all them that were come to this Olympiade. After that each took leabe of other and departed on the mogrow, and thus finifed and ended this feaft.

Shelb, there all a consider there him to the Carrie, sudden in them to see the Boars, and larger there a great thour, and larger the monde well considered the other begon to apply them to the considered the prefer out made. There is the contest put benefit into the prefer and made from:

CHAP. XL.

ġ.

es

rin

30

ġ,

re

18 90

m

D

gr

18 12

30

5

18

ID

ır

of

);

D

How Hereules sailed by the Sea into Hesperie, and how he vanquished the Isle with the Muttons or sheep, and vanquished Philotes, and slew his sellow.

A the Departing, Hercules paffed not greatly for the Departing of all them that were there, fabing for the beparting of Megara: be knew not the malady of love, until the time that be faw ber bepart into the Countrey. Megara went unto Thebes, and Hercules beet bim to Athens penfively, and thinking much of his Lady: and foze defiring to feeber, be went in the company of Euristeus unto Athens, where they feasted them four bays long. At the fourth day todings came, that unto the Boat and Baben were come ftrange folk by foatune . which were cloathed in berp pleafant Bobes and Barments. Then King Eurifteus beard thefe tydings, be fent to fetch thefe firangers to bim, and asked them from whence thep were, they answered, they were of the Meft, and of the Region of Helperie. Where is the Region of Helperie laid Eurifteus. and what manner of Countrey is it? Merily answered one of them, I think that in all the world is no better Countrep, foz. there is abundance of all things that be neceffarp foz mans life. and I can tell you, that in the places of our dwelling, and where we habe our haunt, there be many Mands lying about the further parts of Mauree begond Ampolefie, where groweth all the beft things that men can think, and there is a Ring. named Philotes Son in Law to a Bing named Aclas, which is of the generation of the Breeks: and it is not to be fozgotten. bow the King Philores accompanied with the Daughters of. Bing Atlas lately found an The bery pleafant, as toas bis abbenture. This Ife is all plain, without Pountain oz Malley : and there be therein fo many Sheep and Buttons, that it is marbel, which be kept and cherifted there as if they were of fine Bold: Df thele Buttons that 3 fpeak of, we babe our Robes and Bowns made: we and they that may have them mult bup them at a great paice of fine Bold. . The eat the fieth and cloath us with the skins. And know pe foz certain, that Z 3 into into this affe is but one entry, and he entereth not therein that wouldifor the Bing Philotes and another Grant which be fubtil, and marbellous frong, alway keep the entry of the affe, and

alway the one awaketh, while the other fleepeth.

Surely (lato king Euristeus) by that, that I babe understood of you, the Isle that you speak of, is of great Excellence.
This Philotes that you make mention of: what man is this Philotes? The stranger answered, that he is the most redoubted and dread king of the West parts: he is a Beant that by his sorce and strength bath conquered the Isle with the thep, and bath put out them that dwelled and inhabited there before. He is so strong, that it is but late ago, that he said, if he could sind a man kronger than he is, he would never after bear Arms to sight in battel, during the life of that other.

The Ring Egeus then gabe leave to the figangers to Depart from bis prefence, and commanded that no man bould binder them in their returning toward their Countrep, and they beparted. Eurificus abode wirb Egeus, and Eurificus came to Her. cules, and Thefeus, and withen by a great befire to babe of thole Buttons, laping to them, that he would that it coff bim as much gold as a pair of Butrens weigh : and that be ban a Bam and an Gwe, fog to ingender in bis Countrep. time were no theep in Greece. Then Hercules had beard the befire of Bing Eurifteus, Subbenly be faid to bim. babe a befire to babe a pair of Buttons, appertaining to the Daughters of Atlas, by the conquest and Arms of the firence Grant Philotes. 3 paomife pou bere foz truth upon my Bentlenefs, that by this bay three weeks, I will depart by water oz Land to fetch them : and 3 will never return into Greece. until the time that I have found the Ife, and that I hail oppole my felf againft the Brants that keep it, and will affapif I can get the Afte from them, like as Philotes bab gotten it from another. When Bing Eurifteus bab underftood the enterpaige that Hercules made, be was patting foarp, fog beloved Hercules as well as if be bab been bis own fon. De biff wabeb bim from that Enterpaise, thinking to bate broken it : but Hercules answered bim fo biscrætle, that Eurificus was content to

ät

r-

is

P-

11

30

31

D,

39

1

1

r.

f

n

a

t

t

u

9

g

-

-

f

t.

D

D

let him go unto this addenture, and Thefeus with bim. The renown of this boyage was spread abroad in all the Country. Egous and Eurifteus made ready for their two fons s berg goodly Balley, and furnifed it well with all manner of things. At the end of three weeks they went to Sea, and with them many Mobile Greeks, and rowed till thep came into the peep Sea, where they failed and rowed many days, without finding of any adventure to fpeak of. for at that time the bea was but little ufed, neither of Mbiebes, nog pet of Wer-Their Bafter og Wolot, in process of time brought them unto Helperia, that afterwards was called Spain, and there fought to long the 3fle with the thep, that at last they arrived at the place. The Beant that was appointed to keep the entrp of the Ifte, flept not when the Greeks landed. De then iffued out of his boule, and came armed unto the firait paffage where no man could go up, but one at once, that be creed unto the Greeks and faid; Sirs, what feek pout bere? Hercules answered, we feek the Buttoms that be in this Ifle, for to carp fome of them into Greece. Dabe pe (faid the Gpant) monep enough; if ge babe, ge thall habe enough. shall we (faid Hercules) not babe them otherwife? Po faid the Brant.) Then faid Hercules, let us habe them at the paice that pe got them? Bow (fait the Brant?) the King Philotes bib conquer with his Swood, the The and the Puttons. Hercules anfwered: mp intent is likewife to conquer the afle from bim. If you will befend it, baff vou: pe fall babe the battel againft me, og elle let me babe the 3fle, that 3 may bo therein mp will.

Tithen the Gyant understood the conclusion that Hercules made, he made him ready to defend the place, and blew a great boan that hung there upon a Aree. At the found of the Boan, the Daughters of Atlas awaked Philotes; and told him, that some were there roger the place: and that the Gyant had blown the boan. Philotes with these woods arose up, and saw that Hercules by main some bad put back the Gyant (that except Philotes, was the best man of Arms in all Hesperia) be was some abashed: and very sorrowshi: But notwithstanding:

this ,.

this, be bad not tarried there long, when Hercules smote the Geant on the right houlder with such force, that the Geants hield fell from him, and bruised his Arms, and his Swood entred into his body so far, that it pierced his heart, and he fell down dead at his feet.

Then Philotes fam the Brant Dead, he came unto Hercules, for to defend the place, laping: Be mould be revenged for bis Bant, if be might. Hercules rejopced when be fam Philotes come to the place, and faid to bim : Bing thou art welcome, I rejorce at mp beart, that I fall probe mp felf againft the. Den fap there is no ftroke but of the Bafter : Bow let us fæ bom we fall work together. And happy be be whom foztune fall fabour. Philotes bearing thefe woods, came unto the place, and with a great Wole-are be smote soze upon the Shield of Hercules, and made bim to flagger a little: There. at Phylotes began to laugh, and thought to babe fmitten again Hercules with that Wole-are, who was afpamed of the other froke. And be then quarbed bim well, and Philotes firiking at bim, be caught it, and pluckedit from bim, and threw it into the Sea. Bich made Philotes wonder at the foace of Hercules : And lofing this bis Wole-are, be tok bis Swozd, and renemed the battel afreib. Philotes bad the advantage for Hercules was under bim. They affailed one another fiercely, and well befended their bodies. All this bap thep fought without ceafing, fo long as the day endured : the night brew on, that they must cease, then they both laid them down upon the place. Thep flept not, foz it was no time, but thep both kept a watch, and they endured it well, for they were accustomed for to wake. Thenbeing awake, Philotes bab many woods with Hercules. and bemanded from whence be was : And Hercules told him the truth. Then they talked of their battel : and at the befire and request of Philotes, they promifed each unto other, that if any of them both were hanquithen and obercome, for labing his life, be would ferbe the banquiter all bis life after.

During these speches and promises, the Day-star that the Poets call Aurora began to arise in his Beign. The Air was fair and clear. the Stars hined. At this bour Hercules cast his epes among the Stars, and seeing there Aurora to spine above all other, he began to remember his Lady Megara, saying: Alas Padam, where are you now? I would it pleased the Gods, that you remembeed me, as well as I remember you. Intruth the light of this same Star instance he amozous fires wherewith I was late seised by the administration of your beauty. Pe be as far shining in beauty above the Paivens of Greece, as this Aurora vineth above all the other Stars, of whom the number is so great, that no man cantell them. Denoble Megara, the right clear Star, your remembrance illuminates mine heart, like as the Star illuminates the Peaven, and me thinketh that by this remembrance, when I come to the Battel, I shall prevail the better. Therefore I promise you, if Fortune help me to my desire, you shall have part of all that 3 fail conquer.

ID

eb

no

u-

02

0-nst

let

m

in-

re-

pec

tat

ote

er-

re-

er-

bat

ce.

ch,

es,

im

bat

ing

the 280 bis

pes

Hercules was glad of the thinking and remembrance that be hab of his Laby, and took his Swood, and faid to Philotes, we babe pauled long enough, lo it is day, and the Sun rifeth, it is better, that we exercise beeds of Arms now, than when the rapes of the Sun are greater : let us take our time befoze the great heat come and let each of us bo bis beft. Philotes that was all ready, was joyful when he beard Hercules, for he thought in bis mind, that be fould fon, and in little space speed this matter, and be fait unto bim : Hercules 3 am ready, and mas fince pefterbap, to obtain this battel; quard you as well as pou can, pou babe flain mp Bpant the flouteff and barbieft man that was in all the weft, wherefore I am much bifpleafeb. but at the least, fince his beath cannot be recovered by the beath ef another, I will bo my endeabour to get a new foulbier, and that hall be pou, oz elle my Swood and foztune thall fail Shall I fo faid Hercules ? And if pour Stood and fortune Ball fail pou what then? Bp my bonour laid Philotes. that befel me neber. And if any ill fortune and misabbenture run upon me, that I muft næde be pour ferbant, let it be on condition, that 3 hall never go after into battel at my oton Abbenture og none other buring pour life: neither fog pon og any other, will I fight, unlefs it be in mine own befence. Without offet words the two Champions and iled each other, and fought together to valiently, that the place redounded with their fitokes. In a little space they had their hields unfahried by great blows. Philotes laid great firekes on Hercules that yet his firekes were not so great, but Hercules might bear them well enough without grief or suffering great damage.

Thus began the battel again of the two Beants. was as bigb as a Spant, be was right fierce in Arms, be bib much to get the flanding, but pet be might never attein to ffrike Philotes a full ftroke forafmuch as Philotes was abobe on the paffage, which contained well two cubits of beight. When Hercules fato and knew that Philotes hert bis flanding without abbenturing to come bown, be would frign himfelf weary. and to by little and little be began to firike moze feeble than he bid befoze : after that be recopied bimfelf, and fruck from fac as if be bad fainted, and been wearp. Ebe Greeks wereufrait. and thought be bab been meary : and then Philores Appang Down from the franding, thinking to babe put bim to the foole : but then when Hercules law him before him, and that one was no bigber than another, then Hercules came to bis place again. and gabe fo great a firoke to Philotes, that be made bim the copl and go back moze than four foot.

Philotes was then availate, and repended that he deleaned from the flanding : but that helpt not, for it might not avail. When he rook courage and lift up his Swood, and wounded

Hercules on the tetr Arm, that the blood fprang out.

bis blood, he made none other countenance, but that he would fundently be abended of the firence: In giving to Philotes the firence, but that he would fundently be abended of the firence: In giving to Philotes the firence, with the first he deade his bein, and firence him on the bead, and with the section he gave him a great Mount on the right shoulder, and with the shire firence, he made his stress to the out of his fill: and then he caught him in his arms, so after long weekling he can him to the earth, in such wife that Philotes pietued him terdant winto Hercules, and after that to serve him truly all the reliver of his life, and after that would bear his Arms after him in places wherehe wall to Hercules.

.

1

ac.

CS.

di.

to.

on:

en

10-ty,

be

Fac

lib.

hit

tit

I'R.

II.

ded isil.

DED

with ould

med

the s

1 the

to to

ONB,

Phát

bin

atht

1100.

cules

Hercules received to mercy Philotes: And then called Thefeus and his company, who came, and were joyful of the victory that he had obtained. Then Hercules, Philotes and all the other went into the Ille, where they found the Daughters of Aclas, greatly discomforted for the beath of the Gyant. And foral much as Hercules had also conquered Philotes their keper; Hercules and Philotes comforted them the best wife they could, and there the Greeks refreshed themselves for three days.

The fourth day be took 30 Kams and 30 Ewes, and brought them into their thip, after they went to the sea, without any harm boing in the Me, for the love of the Gentlewomen: they departed themce accompanied with Philotes, which was conquered by Hercules, as is said, and after touch Hercules well, and truly, and served him ever after. But of their journeys I will cease for this time and will speak of a Gentler of the sea, that the Gods sent to Troy, to dehour the fair Exione, Daughter to King Laomedon.

CHAP. LI.

How Herenles fought at the Port of Troy against a Monster of the Sea, for the Daughter of Kind Lasmedon.

TDw in that time, as Boccace rehearleth in bis geneslogy of the Gods, in the third Chapter of the firt Book : Laomedon the Bing of Troy was buffe to fagtifie bis City with Malls and Lowers. De was not well furnifed with Arenfures not with money : for to accomplit his befire, be went unto the Remple of the Gobs, of the Sum and of the fea, that were pasting rich, and took all the Boney that he could find, promiting to pay it all again at a certain day prefirt. By means of this money, be fastified the City of Troy with Malls and Lowers : the work was coffly, pet in little time be finited it : and it was not long after the Mozk was finished, but the day came in which Laomedon thould pay and render unto the Kemples of the Gods the money be bab taken and bozrowth. At which day the Briefts of the Temples came unto Lao-A # 2 medon medon, and demanded of him, if he would render the obligations and offering he had taken out of the Aemples? Laome, don scorned to speak to the Priess, but sent them word hamefully, that they hould return and kep their Aemples, wherefore he was after sore punished, for the same night after he would not hear the Priess, the great Ainds began to rise and beat one against the other, and caused the Sea to rise in such wise that it came so far into the Aown that it silled the streets full of water, and drowned a great part of the Aown. Beside this, in eight days following, the Sun thined so ardently, and gave so great heat, that the people durk not go into the air hy day time, and that dreed the supersuity of the Mater of the Sea, that was left, whereast rose a corrupt and mortal bapour that insected all the City, whereast engendred so great a Westilence, that the most of the Trojans were smitten to death by the great influence of the cogrupt air.

By this Wellilence, they of Troy, fell in great Defolation. the Citizens bred (without fpeaking.) fuddenly. The father could not, noz might not belp bis Child in necestity, noz the Child bis father. At this time reigned in Troy, neither lobe noz charity : fog each man that might labe bimfelf, fled away for fear of this mortality, and left the City, and went to owell in the fields, and among all other, the Bing Laomedon freing the Deftruction of bis Bealm went into the Ife of Delphos. unto the Memple of the God Apollo, for to babe council of Apollo, touching the health of his City. With Laomedon went most of the Robility and powerful men of Troy : Then they were come into the Temple, they put them in contemplation and Debotion befoze the Idol, and the Deuil that was therein. answered them and faid. The money which was taken out of the Memples, and not rendzed and paid again, is caufe of the malabo and bengeance of Troy. Andier all the Trojans knot. that Troy wall never be free from this malaby : unto the time that the faib City provide to appeale the Gods in this wife: that there month they must chute one of the Wirgins and Daibs. which muft be fet on the Bea-fibe foz to be behoured by a Bon-Ber: that the Bobs Ballfent thither : and the fait Wirgin half be cholen by lot or abbenture. And in this wife muft the City bo to appeale the Gods, until the time that they find out one man that by force of Arms hall overcome the faid monfier.

amben they beard this answer, Laomedon and the Troians affembled to council, and concluded, that for the Commonwealth and bealth of Troy, they would put their Mirgins inthat jeopardy and abbenture, to be beboured of the Ponfter, withouterception. Then they returned to Troy, and took their Mirgins and caft lots among them, and on her that the lot fell, the was brought to the Sea-fibe, and anon after was feen to come our of the Bea fo great a Mempen, that it was foze troubled . The Sea waought and a great flood of Mater lifted out the Bonffer by times out of the Sea : De was as great as a whale: or a Bulke, and then be took the Mirgin and fwallowed ber, and went again into the bea : and eber after the Weftilence Abus Troy was belibered from their fickness by the oblation of their Wirgins, that were offered unto the monffer from Wonth to Wonth : and thus (as is faid) the Airgins were beboured up. It bappened in the end of a Bonth, that the lot tell to one of the Daughters of Bing Laomedon named Exione: this Damolel was pound and fair, and well beloved of all people. When this Lot was fain on ber, We was not onfo bewailed of Laomedon ber father, and of bis son Priamus, and ber Sifter Antigona, and Binfmen and Allies : bur of all the Frojans, Den, Momen, and Chilbren: notwithffanding their weepings, noz the good renown of ber, could not fabe ber, the was put to the disposing of the Ponfter. The Poble Hirgin was ready to obey the King ber father, and wentfoarh with to the Sea-fide accompanied with Lozds, Ladies, and Gentlewomen, with a great train of Citizens and Werchants . all which bemailed ber bard fogtune: At that time that the was baought thither, Hercules (by chance) arribed at the Boat of Troy with his Button : and willing to refret bim there. mabe bis men to caft Anchoz, and going out be fato the Troans weeping and bewailing Exione in caffing abroad their arms, and wringing their bands, that be bad pitty to fee it. I and defiring to know the cause, be put bimfelf into the prefar and! $ 2 3 (am

t

2 12

tten tre out

II

saw where then bound the fair Exione in the rout, attired with Boyal attire. Hercules moust with compation to the Dame. fel, abbreffet bis language unto Bing Laomedon, for as much as it feemen, that above all them that were in the place, he was a man of authority and bemanded of him, wherefore the Damalel was bound there? Laomedon caffing his ever bedeinen with tears on bim, and was all abathed to fee his greatness and beauty: antweren bim, what are thou that art to barby to bemand of me my misfortune, which is common to all in Trov? Die, (faib Hercules) 3 am a ftranger, and 3 lobe the bonour of Labies, and there is nothing that 3 can bo for them, but ? will bo it unto my power : and foral much as 3 fee this Wentle. woman thus intrested, in the fabour of all Labies, I babe asked of pou the caufe, and I will know it, or put mp felf in abbenture for to bre with ber. And therefore 3 bemand again. what trefpais or fin bath the bone, that thefe men thus binh ber? App fon (antimered Laomedon) 3 fer well that you are ig. nozant and know not the reason : there is no man but be man well know it, for the fall bye for the fafety and bealth of Troy: and I will tell pour the caufe thereof. The Bobs of the Sen and of the Sun babe plagmed and griebed Troy, with a great Beffilence that took bis beginning with a Super abundance of the Cea, whereby the freets of Troy were fult in ebery place After this Deluge and Bload, the time was man belieufly and outragiously bot, by the great beat of the Sun. whereby this fea was breed up. Af this bapnels og brought engendzed a hapour infected, and of this bapour iffued a peffilence: And for to refift this Weffilence, 3 babe been at the D. racie of the Bob Apollo, where I babe bad an mer, for to ceafe the petitience, the Bobs of the fun, and of the fea, command that from month to month, be taken in Troy, one of the Wirgins by foat og lot, to be exposed and offered, in this place, unto a Ponfier of the Sea. The Trojans were content to fulfil the will of the Gods, and 3 with them. The babe caft our lete upon our Wirgins, whereof many be fwallo beb and beboured by the monter, and noto the foat og lot is failen on my baughteranh mill the az not me must needs ober and appeale the Bobs After 30 ı.

Ò

10

ır

3

2.

.

1D

g.

By

1:

of 23

-

14

i-D-

fr

to fil

Tr.

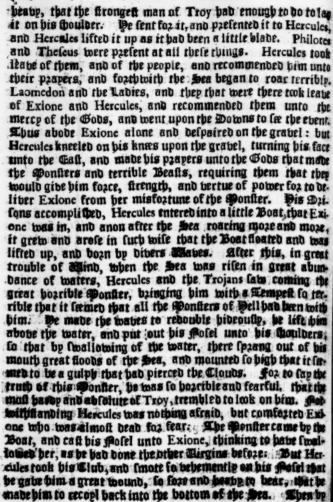

b

After ber thail come another, there is no remedy: and this fall endure upon the Girgins of Troy perpetually : fozitis the Defting that Troy half be neber quit of this barbifertitube and thealbom, till the time that thep-babe found a man alone thall banquit and opercome the afozefaid monfier, by his palour and promels: which will be impossible, for he is of that firength, that all the men of the greateft City in the world, cannot find any way to banquith bim, be is fo great and So my Daughter thail bre foz the Common-wealth of the place of ber Patibity. She was boaning good hour. when the Bobs will, that by lot and this foatume the is effe. to to them. Sir, (anfwered Hercules) trulp &think there is no City unber Beaten fo boumb and theall as pours : it ought to be underflood that the Bobs will not fuffer that this judgement thail bold and endure foz ever. You muft live in bope . If fortune and the Bobs will bome the gence, that I man banquis and obercome the monther, and make Troy free from wis ferbitube, what reward would vou give me? Arulo faid Laomedon, I think it impuffible for you to banquit the monder. for two is be that will expose him to Co great a folly? Hercules an furget, unto a balliant beart is nathing impossible. If A troumph ober the monfter, and lane the Daughter what mourt will babe? Laomedon answered. Af then canft bo and their favett, I have two box fea, the best in all the Mazin, which Blobe as well as balf mo Kealm. I will give them to theens to the best Aniabt of the Mazio, bir, (faid Hercules) it is enough foz me, and Ibelieschut the Dogles. Let mealone with peur Daughter. Foz Joam confident that this bap Withall labour for the Dammon-wealth of Troys and that H will enfranchife and fer fre the Wirgins and Pains of this City (11 But 31 prop pou if there be in pour Tite any great Bat at Gran og Mettal that pour will fend fog to fetel it to me, Soar, and ceft big (Biet min Exigne fattig auffine der gob in The Ming. Laomedon ward the Project live of ind in Ded, to be in It is to be in the indicate of the indicat

beaup

184

the

h

it

fi

OF

an

for do

of

the falling of the Ponster into the Sea, the waves arole high into the Air, whereby Hercules and Exione were all wet with the washing and spainkling of the Waves: and their Boat was boan by the Waves upon a Bank of Sand, where the Sea was so low, that the Ponster might not well swim with ease unto them. Then the Ponster made after them, and coming nigh to them, listed up his head, and in the listing up, there issued out of his thaoat so great abundance of Water, that the Boat was full, and sunk, in such case that Hercules was in the Sea unto the great of his thighs, and Exione stood in the Water unto the middle.

è

31

t.

T.

30

20

t.

ci.

2,

as

at 10-

be

4 th

in 24

DÚS

B.

44

ri-

the al-

fer-

Sat

t be a bp

the

Beben Hercules faw bim in this cafe, be bab great bifpleafure in bimfelf, moze foz the pain and grief that Exione bad, than foz any fear be bad of bimfelf. The Bing Laomedon, Thefeus, and Philotes, and all others, Supposed that Hercules and the Damofel without redemption, bad been depoured of the Wonffer : the monffer then feeing bis paep, leapt againft Exione with a terrible Mabe. Hercules bad bis Club ready on bis neck, waiting foz nothing but the Wonfter befiring to abenge bim of the bifpleafure that be bab : be then bifcharged bis Club on bis bead fo mightily, that the Bar entred therein, and the blood fprang out : then was the Wonfier enraged amainft Hercules: fo be ceafed the affault of the Damofel, and affailed Hercules, and always as be lifted his bead out of the Mater, be difgozged upon Hercules great floods of the Sen. Det notwithstanding, be could not bo so much barm to Hercules, but Hercules bid moze to bim. Hercules followed bim with his Club, and made him to fink again into the bottom of the Sea, by the buge weight of bis frokes.

The Battel endured long between Harcules and the Ponder. If the Ponster had once touched Hercules, he would at one mouthful have devoured and swallowed him. We had a wide and a great throat out of measure: he made a great noise and cry, he was serce in exercising his sury. But Hercules hought with him boystrously, and held the Birgin by him. And do what the Ponster could, he did no sooner lift up his bead out of the Water, but with one stroke of his Club he was driven back

B b

back always unto the bottom of the Sea. And Hercules was oft times in peril of drowning. The peril was great, and more than I can rehearle. Fortune was with him and the Damolel, so that he fought and beat the Ponster valiantly, and so endured in smiting continually on his Posel, and on his head, that the Sea withdrew, and took from him the spirit of life; then he all to drussed his drains, and so vanquished him and slew him. And after when the Sea was withdrawn and far ebbed, he took Exione by the hand, and drought her upon the Ditch, and belivered her unto her Father King Laomedon.

CHAP: XLII.

How Laomedon shut Hercules out of Troy: and how Herculis swore that he would avenge him.

7 Den Laomedon fam bis Daughter thus belibered from the Wonfter, and Troy made quit from the bangers. be bowed and thanked Hercules : after be came to the bea fibe. accompanied with Hercules, Thefeus, Philotes, and with the And went to fee and behold the Wonfter, that was fo great, that there bundeed Bogles could not mobe bim from the place where be was: They all looked to fee the firokes that Hercules gabe bim, pet they could not fee all, but at that the fam they marbelled : for Hercales bad broken bones, that it feemed not possible to break, and they had found the bead but in to manpplaces, that they could not tell whether be had i bead or no. Df this bigh and incredible bittozp, the Trojans to jorced marbellouffe, and bonoured Hercules moze than any men in the Mozlo. When they had ferrand bebeld the Bonffere naugh, they beparted, and brought Hercules into Troy. Wha thep came to the Walace, they found Exione clothed with new array and bestments: And as for Hercules, all that he had w on bim was wet. Laomedon would babe bad bim to change bis wet cloaths, and put on bry, but Hercules refufed ; faping that be bab been accustomed not to be alway at his eafe. The Laomedon brought Hercules unto the Caffle of Ilion and bis Greeks with bim, and feafted them as it appertained. and his Græks did tryumph four days in Ilion. During theff

p

h

Í

The Destruction of Troy.

el.

JE.

he he

m.

ook eli-

ales

mon

R19

libe.

the 280

men

that

the

nt it

burt

1 de

s Tt

man

ert.

Mhen

Mall

up.

angt

ping.

Then

D bis

cules thest

four

The Trojans went out in great numbers to fe. Monfier and gabe fo many praifes to Hercules that Laon. don entited thereat, and feared the people would love Hercules better than bim. Be fent Hercules and bis Breeks out of the Town to bunt : and as foon as they went out of Troy, be been in the Bring, and thut the Bates againft bim. Aben Hercules thought to babe entred, Laomedon (pake and faid to bim from far that be had moved the City against him by conspiracp, and that be would receive him no moze into the Mown: Hercules was erceeding wroth, when be understood the accusatron of Laomedon : and answered bim, that be bad neberanp thought of ill towards bim, and offered to probe bimfelfclear by battel, and to benture his body against thirty other, if they mould prope or maintain the contrary : which offer Laomedon would not accept. Then Hercules befired bim to beliber the Dogles that be promifed bim, for the bistorp of the Bonffer. Laomedon answered bim, be would beliber none. Will faid Hercules? fozalmuch (fait Laomedon) as it is mp pleafure met bo it. falle and 'unwoathy Ring (faid Hercules) boeff thou with-boid from me the reward due to mp defert and reward me with evil for good? I Chear to thee by the Bods, that as I babe delibered Troy perpetually by my Club from the Sea-Ponfter : in like manner, by the fame Club, 3 will pield and deliber up Troy to the Westilence of war and death, if the Gods withfland me not : and I bo intend to make the Troians fap, that they were bappy that dred in the Westilence.

Hercules (full of wrath) with these words lest Laomedon, that set little by what he bad said: for he put all his confidence in the strength of the Walls of the City: and he thought that no man might annoy or grieve him. And then Hercules went again to his Ship, and sailed away with his Club, and his Sheep and his fellow Theseus. Philotes thought himself happy to be banquished of so valiant a man as Hercules was, and he took on him the Office of his Parness-bearer, in all places wherehe went. From Troy unto Thebes sell nothing worthy to be put in memory, that is of Record. In the end he arrived in Greece, and was certified that Euristeus was in Thebes:

15 b 2

wbereat

The First Book of

eat be rejorced greatly, for be thought be Could fee the sp Megara, who be greatly befired to fee. De went then un. to Thebes, where he was folemnly received of Bing Creon. that had him in great estimation for his balour, one and other. came and welcomed bim : be fent bis Sheep and Buttons unto Ring Eurifleus by Philotes, who recounted, bow Hercules bab conquered them, and him allo, and how be bad flain bis Brant at the paffage : of thefe tybings was King Eurifteus paffing jopful, and fo were all they that were there, or beard fpeak of it. Eberp man glogified Hercules, Labies and Bentlewomen came and welcomed bim. Among all other Megara failed not, the came to Hercules, and welcomed bim, and it well became ber to welcome bim. She was wife and of good manners and furtlp ber coming rejopced Hercules moze, than all the honours and praifes were then giben bim, albeit that all the world praifed and eralted bim for this borage, abobe all the Breeks. And the theep were fo befired, that Rings bought them for their meight in Bold : wherefoge the Biftogiographers and Boets put this Conqueff in perpetual memezp, waiting among bis beeds in this manner. Substulit mala aurea, that is as much as to fay, that be boze away the Buttons of Gold, fozalmuch as they were effeemed worth their weight in Bold. fog Mala in Grek is as much as to fap, Sheep in Englith: 02 Buttons in French : thus faith Boccace, in his Genealogy of Bods, and To appropeth Varro likewift, in bis Book de Agricultura.

By this conquest, the name of Hercules began to siy in honour through the world. The Poets seigned upon this Vistory, that the Daughters of Atlas had a Garden kept night and day by a Serpent waking, wherein grew Apples of Gold, and that Hercules slew this Serpent, and gathered and bare away the Apples. By this Garden is understood the Hie: by the Serpent waking, the subtle Gyant commised to keep it, that alway waited at the passage. And by the Apples of Gold are understood the Sheep, esteemed to the value of their weight in sine Gold: Ahen after this presentation made to Euristeus of the Sheep and Puttons, each man marbelled at the prowess of Fiercules, but Philoces added and gave to his obsercance.

3,

T

ıt.

12

r-

CS

D

02

ch

15

nd

0-ĝ-

dn

nb

ap be

15

in

of fs

73

cs.

Hercules, praifes upon praifes, and added honour upon honour: for because Kings and Princes, Ladies and Gentlewomen heard him, and seeing that Hercules held his peace when he might have embraced honour, he declared from point to point his adventure against the Monster of Troy, and seemed the Club wherewith he had put him to death: but after that he rehearsed the honour and grace that he had gotten in Troy, and the wrong that Laomedon had done to him: he said so much thereof, that they promised to make War against Laomedon, so to take bengeance of the wrong, he had done to Hercules.

CHAP. XLIII.

How Hercules entred battel against Laomedon: and how he van: quished and destroyed Troy the first time.

T Think it is impossible for mp pen to relate the bonour that I Hercules got in Greece at bis return from Troy. Those Bings and Wainces thought themfelbes happy that reigned in bis time. Amphitrion bis Supposed father, began to receibebiminto fabour, and into Thebes to bim : Dis Bother Alcumena came alfo, and furely the rejoyced greatly, when the fam ber Son, which was fo greatly renowned. Abe Boble Lady had not feen him in a long time befoze: but now the faw bim tryumph in bonour and prowefs: fo that the annopes. griefs, and troubles the fuffered fog bim, being fuppofed the son of Jupiter, (whereof the thought ber felfinnocent) were then all foggotten, and put in oblibion. The feaft was great in Thebes for the love of Hercules, and the general report was only of the balour of Hercules. Creon, Eurifleus, Eugeus, Amphitrion, and many others, affembled together, and made ready their forces for the fjege of Troy. By fpace of time their Army was ready, and they took their leave, and Hercules was made Captain of this Army. De went to the Sea accompanied with the Bings abobefaid and ten thouland men all chofen foz' the purpole. At the time conbenient the Warriners dif-Anchozed and fet fail: And they arrived in Phrigia, unto a Boat of Tity named Laryle being nigh to Tenadon. Abis City was 28 b 3 of .

of the confines of Troy : for which caufe the Greeks affailend and took it by force, and after that rifled it, and took all that mas therein. And when they had spoiled it, they went to Tenadon, which was a rich City, they affailed it, and tok it, and thep fet it on fire, and burned it, and the air was enflamed. that it was feen in Troy, bow the City burnt. The affault of Tenadon bured not long, because the Trojans were not abher-When thep fam the air fo enflamed, foz to fee tifen thereof. from what place the flame came, they mounted and went upon the bigh Mowers of Ilion, and looking towards Tenadon, fam that the City was all on fire, whereat they that fam it were greatly abateb. About this thep looked into the Sea, and fam coming towards them a fleet of Breeks, whereof they were moze abathed than befoze. And without any longer tarrying . they bescended and went bown into the Ball of King Laome. don, and faid to bim, Alas Sir, what is beft to be bone ? the Greeks come upon us with an erceding Army : we babe fen them and know them. The firong Hercules menaceth pour for to beffrop pour City. Surely, 3 beliebe it is be. For be bath burnt Tenadon, and that is it that caufeth the air to be full of fire.

Ring Laomedon hearing this news, began to tail of the ebil trespals that he had committed and done against Hercules.
Forwithstanding to give courage unto his men and to his son Priamus, that was at that time of the age of 20 years, he did cause to sound to Arms, and made him ready, and with his arms shewed a sierce semblance. This done, he armed Priamus his Son, that never had been in battle before, and bubbed him knight, after he took him by the hand, and issued out of Ilion;
In issuing out he met many Trojans, that told him, that at his Port were landed many Greeks, and had destroyed Tenadon, and that unless he bassed him, they would son take Land.

Laomedon without speaking any word, passed forth by them that had brought him these tydings, and came unto a place that was there by Ilion, where he found more than twenty thousand Trojans armed. And seeing them he began to joy in himself, and called the Principals and said to them: Lords, he be re-

nomneb

notioned in all the Mozlo by the high process of your ancetors: Before that Troy was Malled, they defended it with the Sword against their enemies: the renowned King japiter of Creet, could not get this City, nor the Thessalonians by their Mar, could never subdue this City. It now bappeneth this day, that a new assembly of enemies come upon this City, and as men say, they have put the sire in Tenadon: let us go and receive them couragiously, and let us make them like as our fathers babe made others.

Then the Trojans heard these words of their King, they answered all, that they would live and doe with him: and that they had intention to keep his honour, and to make grow their ancient glozy. Mithout holding of long process the King Laomedon hid then display his Banners. After he issued out of Troy. And then as he began to conduct and lead them forth, suddenly be beard at the Wort, a passing great noise of Trumpets, Clarions, and Taboas of the Breks.

0

è

Ê

n

d

g

D

Then bis blood began to chafe, foz be knew that thep were bis enemies : And as foon as they knew they were Greeks. mithout bolding of any ogber og meafure, they biflodged them . and began to run to the Boat, one befoge another. When thep approached the Boat, thepefpied the Breks. Then thep challenged them unto the beath, and ran upon them Barply. The Greeks were furnifed with good Armozs, and put them to befence, and began to skirmif the one with another fo unmeafurably that in the boarding and meeting there were many flain and burt. Hercules was there among the Breks. De began to fight Barply among the Trojans, and bad bis Club. Surely be welcomed them, that the moft of bis enemies burff : not abide bim : be fought fiercely in befire of rebengement, in cobeting of woalbip, and to get bim a name: Lifting up bis band, be fbewed to the Trojans bis Club, and made them to fel the weight thereof, and the ftrength of bis arm, and be laboured to earneffly, and did to balfantly, that they that fato bim boubted bim moze than beath, and faid one to another, bebold Hereules, but come not near bim. All that be reachet be Raverb, and beenkerb to pieces. We bo ebil to fight againgt bim : : bim: This is the beliberer from the terrible thealbom of Troy, haw Bould me refift bis Club, when the buge deepful

Monfter be by the fame put to the fopl.

Such were the woods of the Trojans. Hercules fought againft them fiercely: be went befoze, all the Greeks follomed him, and took pleafure to behold bim: The cry was great about him: De fought until the night, and neber ceafed until the going bown of the Sun, and then the Trojans founded the retreat, and then departed both parties. And they concluded. that on the mozrow they would furnit their enemies with battel. And the Breeks furnited them in the Champain, and made good chear, for they had loft but little of their people at their coming on Land. Then the bap appeared to the Troians and the Breeks, each in his manner made him ready to the hattel : many of the Trojans would gladly babe broken this battel, and prayed Bing Laomedon that be would render and deliper to Hercules the Bogfes that be owed to bim. Laomedon would not bo it, but answered, that be boubted nothing bis e-De bab then about fifty thouland fighting men, all ready, of thefe fifty thousand be made two battels, one of twenty thousand, and that be led bimfelf, and the other of thirty thousand, of which be made Priamus Captain. bone be iffued out of Troy, with twenty thousand fighting men , and came unto the fields entring upon the Greeks.

When the Greeks eloped King Laomedon coming, they were full of joy, as they that were ready for to receive them: at the point of their Hears and with bewing of their Hourds, They had made of their Hoft four battels, in the first was Hercules, and in the second was Amphitrion, and Theseus. And in the third was King Creon, and in the fourth was Euristeus. Hercules then that had the first battel, marched when it was time against Laomedon, and he had four ancient Knights. well appointed in the feats of Arms, that set and conducted his folk in array: They marched so nigh the one to the other, with great noise of Arumpets and Labours, that the Archers and Cross bows began the battel, after that Hercules summoned Laomedon to pay him that he had promised him, and that

babe

Laomedon had made refusal thereof. The Greeks were furnished with stronger bows and shot than the Trojans were: and by that means they slew abundance of their enemies and especially Hercules bare him so well with forty Arrows, that be himself shot one after another, that be slew forty of his enemies such as he would chuse without let or himberance.

Hercules was at that time the beft Archer, and the moft fure of mark that was in all Greece. Be and bis men (as is faid) caft many of the Trojans to the ground by the foot. When the bot failed, Hercules belibered bis Bow unto Philotes, that hare bis barnels, and took a firong fwozd and fure. Then itcame to the fwogds and breaking and joyning with fpears, Hercules that was alway in the first front, leapt against the Bing Laomedon that was beparted from bis Boff, afoze all other, fozasmuch as be rode upon one of the Boafes that be had promifed to Hercules, And running one against the other, as fmifrip as they had flown in the air, met and fmote each other fo foze; that their fpears thibered in pieces, which fpzang about them. Hercules paffed foath, and Imote amongst the Troins, and Laomedon likewife entred into the Boft of the Oreks : they began to banble their Imozds, and to bem each wen bis enemp. Then arole there a marbellous noife. The fight was great, the firokes were bard, the battel was geneml, for of the one party and the other many men were diffreffeb and bearen notwithflanding that the Greeks were moft bopfrous and bardy in arms, and moze baliant than the Trojans . and better belb them together, than they of the battel of Ring Laomedon. Hercules waought and beffirred bim faft mith bis fbozb that be bab conquered from Philotes. At every froke and there flep be killed a Trojan, and fmote off their beads andarms in great abundance, that it feemed that they that be touched bad not been armed. Laomedon was buffe on the one fide, and failed not but bare bim well upon bis boafe, and ran from rank to rank among the Breeks : be refted not but conduted bis people, and bis people were great in number : be fet upon his enemies to eagerly, that be inclosed them and then was the murther fo great, that on all fibes a man thould not

n

f

g

g

p

-

D

5:

g

g.

D

r,

g

1.

î

n

babe feen amy thing but blood and beads, and arms fir, in the place and fielb.

Mben Thefeus and Amphitrion bebelb the battel of Hercules to encloted with the Trojans; they bethought them, and came to bis belp ere be bab need. At their coming they make a great uproar, thauft their Swoods upon the Trojans, which were too far fozward, and joyned to them with fuch prowels, that they fmote bown the most stable and firong, and went fo far among them, that they made them to retire again, and so In this going back and rejopcing, the Boft of back by foace. Laomedon was all afraid and abathed. The three Imozbs af Hercules, Thefeus and Amphitrion, were feen baanditing a. bobe all other in well boing, and in hogt fpace they began to banquift and opercome their enemies, and would habe brought them to the fool and thame. Then young Priamus with bis thirty thousand appeared to come to the strault, making fo great a noise that all the earth trembled, and gabe a marbellom found, and they that were upon the Balls and Coifices of Troy, made a great crp. Hercules, Thefeus and Amphitrion beholding Priamus coming, and the puiffance of Troy, fet their people in array, with a great train of Greeks against them for to withftand their Enterpailes. Theleus was the firft the fpied Priamus, who couched bis Spear againft bim, and is came with great courage mounted upon the fecond Bogfe of Bing Laomedon bis father, and charged with fo great micht upon Thefeus, that be bare bim to the ground turned up for bown, bruifing bim upon bis Shield. Then Thefeus beim angry at this fall, be entred among the Trojans, Confring and bewing on them with bis Swood in fuch furp, that be fmate off the heads of moze than thirty Trojansere be ceafeb. notice was great about bim, the Trojans would babe rebenut them of his Swood, but their fogce was not to great : the hab work enough to labe themlelbes, many Breeks came i the aid of Thefeus, then they began to renew the battel.

İ

1

Ó

te

be

th

in

m

to

At this time Hercules and Amphitrion were not ible : for thep were on one fibe, and Thefeus on the other : at meeting many were burt and flain. Priamus bid marbels to the Greats at the beginning, be bose bim to baliantly that he found no man that bib bim any barm. De mabe bis [wood to taff the blood of bis abberfaries; then as be was in this cafe, be beard about Hercules a great piercing cry of people, ceping Trov. Troy, in befpair to babe paebaileb, then Priamus thinking to have Imitten Down Dead all that were befozebim, ran to the refcue to bis milabbenture, foz as foon as be was come befoze Hercules and be faw bim, be remembred bim that it was be that bad obertbrown Thefeus, and faid be would abenge bim. and lifting up bis Iwozd, be Imote Priamus upon bis Belm, that he was aftoni beb, and there fell bown both Priamus and bis Bogfe.

Maben Priamus was to operthrown, he wift not where he was. Hercules was adbertifed that it was Priamus Son of Bing Laomedon, then be bad pity of bim, and took bim Waifener, and fent bim out of the battel. The Trojans fæing this, were griewould troubled, and for to reftue bim they endeahoured themfelbes, fo that Hercules could not fuffain the rigour of the battel, and the Breeks were conftrained to lofe place. King Creon then displayed bis Banner and bis battel, so likemise bid Euiffeus, and put them in two wings, one on the right fibe, and the other on the left : and they came running in upon the Troians with to great a noise, that all the Trojens felt well their coming, for at that time they bid not know which way to turn They were Imitten befoge and behind to loge that they loft the company of Priamus, and knew not there be was become.

6

-

12

b

g,

í

O

of

of

8. ta

th

is

Co

115 ion

eit

m,

pat

-

of

fibt

apl

att

pol Acp The

e n

for

ting

At this intermeeting, Laomedon was out of the prefs and refresbed bim; when be beard fap that bis son Priamus was taken : be was therefoze paffing forrowful, that the Iweat came tobis beart, and from thence unto all bis members : wherefore be went himselfagain to battel, balf out of his mind: the batthe was then fell and enbenomed, and there was bard fight. ing. But to augment and encrease the forces of this, Laomedon, be found that his folk had the worle, and but little lift On the other fide, be faw the boarible ftrokes of the Greeks, to unmeafurable, that his men were brought out of CC 2 rank.

rank, and the arrays broken, and charged with fuch frokes of their (wozds, that they turned back, and began to fier : when it came to the biscomfiture, Laomedon abobe not with the lat. but entred into bis City as baffily as be could. The Breks purfued the Trojans eagerly and fo nigh, that they entred in with them, with great effusion of blood. Hercules was the first that mon the Bate : and as for the Greeks be was Borter, and put in all them that were of his knowledge. Wany Trojans paffed by the edge of bis Swood, and many fled away by the fields and bulbes. When Laomedon fam that by foace bis Cire was taken, and brought into the bands and governance of the Breke, foze bifcomfozted and all in befpair, be took bis baugh. ters Exione and Antigona, and his most precious Jewels and Gems, and fled away paibilp, thinking bis enemies would make there a great befruction and pillaging, as they bid : for when Hercules bad put bis men within the City, be let them rob and vill. Thus the Trojans were perfecuted, the channels mere tempered with their blood, the Boules were beaten bomn and thegreat riches were put into paeps : and of all the gods of the City, there was left nothing whole, but the Walace of Ilion, whither the Ladies and the Paids were withdaam. Hercules would in no wife beftrop this Balace, fozalmuch as the Labies made to bim a requeft to fpare it. At this paise Hercules fought Laomedon long in the Balace of Ilion, and in all places of the City, but be could bear no troings of bim, where. of he was forry, and when he had besten bown the Mails that had been made wirb the money of the Bods, be departed thence. and returned into Greece with great glozp. And in this wife was Troy bestroped the first time. Wherefore 3 will thus now make an end of this firft Book, and begin the fecond, where hall be thewed, both Troy was reedified, and bowit was befroped the fecond time. And bow Priamus raifebit. and made it again. And in continuing the Boble Labours of Hercules, boto new beaun.

Thus endeth the first Book of the Deftruction of Trey.

The Table of the First Book of the Destruction of TKOY.

en if, in iff

the ity ihe should for em wels on, ods

on.
as ise
in erebat
ice, oife
ous
nd,
o it

Chapters. Pages
I. THe Linage of Saturn, and how for inventing the Sowing of Corn, Planting, &c. He was honoured in Creet as a God.
2. How Saturn was crowned King of Creet: Found divers Sciences, and was honoured as a God.
3. How Saturn went to Delphos, to the Oracle of Apollo, who answered he should have a Son should chase him out of his Realm. And how he married his Sifter Cibel, &c. 7
4. How Saturn had commanded to flay Jupiter, and how his Mother Cibel fent him to King Meletus, where he was nou-rifhed.
5. How after the death of King Corimbus of Corintb, his two Sons Dardanus and Jafins, ftrove which of them should reign;
and how Dardanus slew his Brother by creason, wherefore he was forced to depart the country.
was forced to depart the country. 6. Of the great war that was moved between the Pelagiens, and Epiriens, and how King Lycdon was destroyed by Jupiter, because of a man put to him for hostage, which hodid most cruelly murther and cause to be roafted. 14 1 3010 101 2500 20
7. How Jupiter after the discomfiture of King Lycson, transfor med himfelf into the shape of a Religious Woman, waiting on the Goddess Diana, for the love of Califo, Daughter to the faid Lycaon, did obtain of her his will.
How Califo because the was with child, the Goddels Dives put her out of the Order, and of her company. 32
. How Titan affailed by war his brother Saturn, forasmuch as he had not put to death all his Children males. 34
io. How Jupiter with the aid of King Mellifens of Epira deli-

The Table.

Chapters. Vered Saturn his Father, and Cibel his Mother out of Prilon and how he flew Titan in battel.
11. How Jupiter vanquished in the field Typhon, and cast him into the River.
12. How Jupiter and Saturn reconciled themselves together and how Jupiter by commandment of his Father, went to destroy King Apollo of Paphos, and of the Medicine of Escude lapines intravaires pro la serie de 148
how King Saturn began war against Jupiter his Son. 51 Saturn, were fore troubled: And how he gathered his forces against Jupiter his Son.
15. How King Sourn with all his host came before the City of Arcadia, against Jupiter his Son.
16. How Jupiter fent his Amhassadors to his Father Saturn for peace: And how Saturn would not consent to peace.
17. How Jupiter vanquished in battel Saturn his Father: And how Saturn fled by fea.
18. How Achrifus had a Daughter named Dance, which he did cause to be shut in a Tower, because he had an answer that she should have a Son which should turn him into a stone.
19. How Jupiter in the guise of a Messenger brought unto the Tower of Dordon, to the Damosels, and to Dance, many Jewels, feigning that he came from Jupiter. 67
20. How Jupiter in the guise of a Messenger, with many Jewels came the second time to see Danae: And how he spake, and gave her knowledge what he was: And how he say with her that night.
21. How Jupiter came from his Chamber by night, and lay in the Tower of Dardsn, with the Damosel Danse, on whom he bears the roll of the Court of the Parising States.
he begat the noble Perseus. 78
22. How King Tantalus of Phrigie affailed the King Trees of Trey: And how Hien and Ganimedes his Sons discomfited him in battle.

23. How

The Table.

ges.

n;

ijm

47

er,

to

CH-

48

nd

51

of

CCS

53

of 54 for 58

nd

61

he

Ver

0 2

63

the

iny

67 els

nd

her

71

in

om

78

of

im

83

WC

Chapters. Pages. 23. How King Trees chafed in battel King Tantalus, and how Saturn came by Sea, failing to the Port of Trees, and how King Trees received him worthipfully. 24. How Saturn by the aid of Ganimedes and of the Trojans, returned into Creet, to fight against Jupiter, where he was overcome and vanquished, and Ganimedes taken. 25. How Jupiter discomfitted again King Saturn in battle, and how Sainen was put to flight by fea. 26. How Jupiter after he had facrificed the Eagle, pursued the Trojans: And of the long battel that he had against Ganimedes: ٥8 27. How King Trees and Ilien his Son made great forrow for Ganimedes, for they wist not where he was. And how Impiter went to the fea to go to Argos. 28. How King Achrifus when he faw his Daughter with shild, fent her to exile, and put her in a little Veffel into the featat the adventure of Fortune. 105 29. How Jupiter returning from Troy by fea, Encountered the great thief Egeon, which he fought with, and overcame; and of the tydings that he had of Danse, whereof he was palling forrowful. 109 30. How Queen Medufa came to Athens, to worship in the Temple of the Goddels Pallas. And how King Neptune Waxed amorous of her, and how the deceived him. 115 31. How Perseus vanquished in battel the Queen Medusa, and how the fled into her City: 122 32. How Persens in this battel flew the mighty Sister of Medusa, and vanquished her in the battel. 125 33. How Perfeus conquered Medinfa, and her City, and smote And how he went to fight against the King Atlas at Septe, a mighty and puissant Gyant. 34. How Perfeur turned King Atlas into a flone:and how Queen Auria, wife to King Pricus waxed amorous of the Knight Belleropbon that refused her, whereof he had much pain. 130 . 35. How Perfeus vanquished the Monster of the Sea, and expo-fed himself against him for the love of Andromeda.

128.

36. How

The Table.

Chapters. Pages,
36. How Phineus would have had Andromeda: And how Perfeus answered him the should be his Wife.
37. How Perfeus re-established in his Realm the King Achrifius, and how he flew the King by misfortune. 145
38. How Jupiter, lay with Alcumena, and how Queen June fent two Serpents to flay Hercules, and how Hercules strangled the two Serpents.
39. How Hercules began the Olympiades, and how he waxed amorous of Megara, the Daughter of the King of Thebes, and how he shewed his strength in all manner of games and exer-cifes.
40. How Hereules sailed by the Sea into Hesperie, and how he vanquished the Isle with the muttons or sheep, and vanquished Philotes and flew his fellow.
41. How Hercules fought at the Port of Trey against a Monster of the Sea, for the Daughter of King Lasmedon. 179
42. How Laomedon that Hercules out of Troy: And how Hercules swore that he would avenge him.
43. How Hercules entred battel against Lasmedon: And how be vanquished and deftroyed Trey the first time.
no. The state of t

FINIS.

Decidance and were

er bundin auf de

Medy's cone to disent, to weathin it the

DESTRUCTION

3 nt he ed nd rbi

he 89

TROY,

THE

Second Book.

Wherein is contained

The Prowess of the Valiant

HERCULES,

WITH HIS

Marvellous Deeds, Wonderful Works; And of his Death.

LONDON,

Printed for Thomas Passenger, at the Three Bibles on London-Bridge. 1680.

DESTRUCTION

Second Book

When is contained The Prowess of the Valiant

HERCULES,

WITHHIS

Marvellous Deeds Wonderful Works; And of his Death,

LONDONS

Printed for Yhama P finger, at the Three Bibles on Louison-Bridge. 168c.

her with Hercules, they came theat of the Lions of the Hotered of Nomes. And so much spake suce, that the fair to Hercules it Green Two Control of the Contr

retprised dogo into the Farrer [1] Our regime differently be be bornouther the Norman for head to section under her less proud of the control to the Lions were couel and telible and gara above all of the paring for the book and the Second Book the the paring and the court and the paring and the paring the bat be mania how there bave broken the voyage of Ferenles. Ly the means of Enrif and but they could in no trife: Toy H. 441 anthreed Enrift as, and the Levies, that it was the first enterprise he den capen in hand complained of his pouth : and thoun

How Herender fought against three Lions, in the Forrest of Ne-

An eine first Book in begun the Basts of the pursues of the property of the property of the property of the pursues of the pursues of the property of the pursues of thing that is found in Hidaypot Mr which dress Juno (bearing) inward malice against him Is beshought house the might work his downfall. And bearing that inta the Fourth of Narco were come. Lions, among other, one firsten foot high, that nestroyed all the Countrey: She thought by these Lions to bring her purpose about. And having War with Euristeun the constants a peace only to be acquainted with the rolling and fene to him insee Creet, to confirm it. Euristeus infilled her vesses, and broughts thereules with him. The peace was made, Juno acquainting:

The state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the s

her with Hercules, they came to Beak of the Lions of the Fore rest of Nemee. And fo much fpake Juno, that the faib to Hercules it/were in al monto galuibim bonofit to do to the flow rett of Nemee, and conquer thote Lions, Hereules thinking Jano connfelled him to affail the Lions for bis bonour & profit, be enterprized to go into the Forrettil Jano required him, that when be had banquifee the Lions, be would return unto ber. Hercules promited et that be moule. After that he omnated from Creet, and vent into The es to fee Migara, and to make his After that he venated from Dagnelgand grms remy, when the Ladies of Thebes knew that Hercules mould go agains the Lions of Nemce, they all complained of his youth : and thought that he would bye there, for the Lions were cruel and terrible. Megara abobe all other, was passing forcowful and requirepobe haves, that they would prayEurifieus, to keepHercules from going to bangerous a boyage. The Ladies accomplished the requests of Megara, and thought to have broken the boyage of Hercules, by the means of Eurifleus, but they could in no wifer for Hemplesantwered Eurifteus, and the Labies, that it was the firft entermise be had taken in band at the request of any body and for as much as the Queen Juno had belired him sa do fe, he had incent to accomplish it, by the pleasure of God and Fortune.

Hercules was great both of heart and courage, being etaller well bithout [he have ather must will often have both any thing whereof highly related with him. Laking leave of hing Greon, Eurificus, emphirriors, of the Lables and Gentlewomen, accompanied on hy north Philodes, indict house never leave him. De departed from Phèbos, proceeding in his journeys, that he came unto the Joires of Memoralish his journeys, that he came unto the Joires of Memoralish his journeys, that he came unto the Joires of Memoralish his journeys without finding Beatle of Memoralish him desired by the Berolman was mounted upon a great Tree. Then he for Mercules enerch into the Moon by fallers him, saping the Mercules enerch into the Moon, by fallers him, saping the first him are dead off pour go supplierher, return quittel, so the sieve Chous will velocip him by elections hither the tree.

and

nondebranded what he was a Alar, faid the Passol. I am the possess man of all other, the Lions of the Forcest, at their coming have each nigreat Betwof Beasts that I nourissed here bested they have eaten all my Family and men, and have desposed all lave me alone, which have by adventure, a great while saved my self upon this Aree, where I sat noting else but Leaves and Acoust, and date not destend down, so, fear of there Lions which are here by, who will soon assat you untels you der part and flee.

0

D

Q1

0

D

.

41

14

s. 18

0.5

10

1

B

The Patto; finithing his words, there came leaping out of a Bull the three Lions and marchen against Hercules, roaring and dring opening their eyes with fogreat rage, as if they would vierce Hercules mith their fight. The great Lion came firit; his hair fanding up, be was as high as an Ctephant, and great after that proportion, his bead was twice as big as the head of a Bull. Hercules feiner them come, tok bis Sword and Club that Philotes hore. Philotes, notwithflanding his prowels, was lose afrain, that he wenton the Tree to the Berofman. Hercules In his Clubto the Tree, and betook bim to bis Swojo ; the Lis . ons at the approach brayed in their throats. Herculos fruck one of them between the eves, and fell'o him to thearth upon his luttocks. The great Lion thinking to have Myung upon Hercoles, and to have taken bim in his Claws, mabe a terrible lean . When Horcules fam his incent, he dutner front bim and fruck at the third Lion, which was light and nimble, and fruck his Amord right into his throat, that he reacht his heart, whatfor eter reditance be could make in biring the Dword, and left it in his body in fuch mife that he fell bead to the earth. Wilhen the wher Lions law their feilow to ulenthey let their Claws on the earth, and howled coneffe, that it feemed Thunder had fprang one Atheir flomachs, All ohe forrett founder thereof. Hercules tok his Sword, and the two Lions approaching again, ran upon him with their Pawa, burting bim unmeafmably that loling his Armone their Pails entring into his fleth, they bre to them but all died mith his blod. can exerce sitte disse ut mide

Hercules had bis heart fore troubled, when he felt his wounds that the Libns had made : then he lifted up his Smort, and smote one another, but the great Lion had his skin to her about his Sword might no more kneer therein, shan it might a great kock. There began the initial of the Lians and Hercules. The little Lion was eager and fierce, he lanching him footh oftentimes against Hercules, alwaies thought to have hur him with his Claims, that cut like a Mazod: but he lanched hoften, that it was to his disadvantage, so Hercules after man great strokes, divided from the body, his right leg, here might he shoulder, and stroke him down by the feet of the other Line.

that lap beab.

Willen Hercules fam that he was belivered of the two end Beafts, and that be had to bo with no more but the great Lan he began to have an hove of good fortune. De ban then coniff in himfelf of the battel which was throng to futtain Detie area Lion gabe bim great frokes with his Bams, and mit bin ofe times in peril of beath : but the mout of Hercules moult be ber enter into the skin of the Beath, it was to barn, The Lim took his Sweet berween bis reertiant his nails, chier wich gree pain be pulled it from bint. Finally, when he lund long fourt with his Smood, and knew well that thereby be might taile blot of the Lion, he would affay if the Club were to him mon profitable. Then he took it, and the first rime that the Lies came upon bim, be gabe bim a ftroke wich bis Club on bi mouth, that all the teeth brake and fell out before bun. It The Lion feeling the froke, made a great and marbellous howling and lifting up his Daws, thought to have pulled bown Hereuls But he fled the coming of the Lion : and the Lion fell to the ground, with fiercenels of running and failing of Hercule Wilhen Hercules fam that be was fallen, he leaged upon bis forthwich eagerly, and beld bim with his hands about the thin so fast, that be brought his Jams out of toynt, and making epes ap out of his head, be flew him.

In this Exploit Hercules themed a Angular hardinels, and incredible force: for he Arangled with his hands a Lion, whit the skin to hard, that Spears not Daiords might not be all harm, he put him to death by monderfull valour: and when he had to done, he went to the other that lived per, and all himself the content to the other that lived per, and all himself the content to the other than the per, and all himself the content to the other than the content to the other than the content to the other than the content to the conten and tope bim, as if it bab been a little Lamb. After be called Philotes to bim, and the Berbiman, that were marbellous sinfull and glad of to bigh a bidory. And Hercules found the manner how to flea the Lions, and took their skins by the help of the Berolman. Waben they had deaed them it was night. Hercules bemanded of the Berdiman, if there were any boule ni longing thereby, where he might have accommodations; The Berdinan brought him to his boule, where they found pro-Mion of Weate and Drink, wherewith the good man feated Hercules to his vower, and he thought he was in Paradile. Thus Hercules palled the bay and night, and forgot not to think on his mounds that were fell and Imarted, to that he little flept that night. Det norwithftanding when the bay appeared, be took leade of the Berbiman and to beparted, and took his journey to go into Creet, to thew unto Juno the three Lions sking, and thank her for ber good advertisement.

北谷中の田山

公主等等事

はおお

e ma

はは日本の日本の日本の

CHAP II.

How June sent Hereules into Egypt, to be flain of the Tyrant Busire, and how Hereules slew the Tyrant, against the hope and will of June.

A pow about this time reigned in Egypt, king Busire, Son of the Queen of Lybia: and the Land of Egypt was die, not fertile, but barren. Busire, to remedy this, called his Clerks, that held the Science of Zoroasies, and asked of them what he night no for the health of his Realm; They asked counsel of the Gods; and had answer, that they must facrifice unto them mans blod. When Busire (that naturally was evil, and had nesser done good) beard this answer, he begun to tryannize more and more. And began first with his people, taking and plucking him the mothers, their little Children, from Men their Wilbes, from Whites their Husbands, burning and bestling the Temples with their blood. For all those Monicides and Claughters, the Drought reases was, but augmented more. The Clerks bemand the the Court is easily would not have the full blood of Egypt, but the Grange bloombat they Could take and facrifice thereof. The Bobs by this antmer, mould babe in facuffee the blob of Bufite. for he was a franger to birtue and gobnels. And the Clerke unberfteod they moule have the blod of frangers Bufire advertileb of this animer, cealed to perfecute the blod of Egypt, and turned his somorn upon the blood of frangers, and made an that no franger houldencer into bis City, but fould be facrificed unto bis Gops : in this manner be murthered all the Brangers be could get. By this Coid many frangers, both for bles and others, were facrificed, by the cruelty of Bufire. Amone others, one Bobleman of Creet (of the Linage of Juno) perifted in this misfortune, by the Smort of Bufire. The tybings came unto Creer, where was made great lamentation. As they continued their mourning, Hercules and Philotes came to Queen Tuno, and found her obercharged with erceeding grief. At that time were an bundged Cittes in Creet,and Bing Jupiter ablentes himfelf from Juno for many reasons. When as Hercules was returned to bis Step-mother June, be reberenced ber, thewing her the Skins of the Lions that be hat flain, and thanked ber for the high adventure the admonished bim of.

The curles Stepsmother for the return of Hercules, was more verplered than before : pet the featted Hercules, and made to him (faintly) the greateft Chear that the could being about Dinners time, the made him to bine with ber. As they fate at Dinner (ale ter bibers (peeches of the Lions) the applied bow the might work the beath of Hercules, and thought the could not compals it bets ter, than to fend him to Egypt : And to bring it to pals, the changed the discourse of the Lions, and fait to Hercules, pour coming again in fafety, is to me most joyful for that your name thall enfoy perpetual Renown among the most Worthy and belt of the morlo, for you have atchieves many Oncerprizes : In your Infancy you made all the World to monder at the victory of the Servents, by you frangled. After you made your fwogd to flow rift in the welt parts of Phrigia, and now in Nemeel The at benture of thele exploits have gain's you exceeding honour, where of 3 am glad, for each person ought to refpice in the well boing of another especially of a Robleman, and principally such a one alle

os laboureth to excel in valout, every person is bound to countel him to his honour and welfare. Wherefore, since it is so, that pe enveavour your self from day to day, and seek perils of the Sea, and dangers of the earth, to overcome them: I advertise you, that in Egypt is a Ayrant, that sacrifteeth all strangers that come into his Country, without reserving Roble or base, So(I think) if Fortune be still sadourable to you, you shall gain great honour to your felf, and profit to all the Rations of the world.

15

10

m

T.

16

ak

ets the ut

nte

eft

out

the

DU

23 ets

ing

one

25

Dabam, animered Hercules, 3 am not, noz neber in all my life, thall attain to luch an exceeding beight of honour as pe res nort : notwithftanding, foralmuch as I babe great beffre to perform adventures to the benefit of all Pations, that they thall concern. I promife you, and Iwear, that to morrew without further belay, 3 will make all things in readinels, to go into Egypt, And 3 will never return again into my country, un= til the time that I have feen the Tyrant. If he lay hand on me, to facrifice me, 3 babe intention be fall not without creat frokes. Juno hearing the enterprize of Hercules, resourced in her heart exceedingly. That day they paffed in many conferences. Hercules took the skins of the Lions, and belivered them to a certain workman, to make of them a garment in manner of Armour, to arm bim wichall. On the morrow be tok leave of bis Step-mother, and beparted from Creer, fo fournied on the way with Philotes, (without finding any adventure worthy the remembrance) on a day he came to the Bate of the City Memphis, in Egypt, where the Aprant Bufire beld bis refis bence.

Then Hercules was come nigh unto the Gate, he took his Club that Philotes bare, and entred himself into the City. He had not been long there, not far gone, but Busire which was advertised of his coming, came against him with his complices, without speaking any word, ran upon him. Hercules was well appointed, so he knew the Ayrant by his gesture and the Agus that was told him:he listed up his Club when he saw him come, and as the Ayrant would have smitten him with his Sword, without any word speaking; he stroke the Ayrant on the right so behemently, that not only he fell'd him to the earth, but also the ribs of his body were broken, that he could neber relieve him after. The Egyptians feeing Bufire overthrown Some ran to reliebe bim, and the reft affailed Hercules. Then mas all the City in an uproar. Hercules was forful he hav overs thrown the Aprant, and began to make the Egyptiansto know his Club. De flew many of them, and the remnant he made to Dis Arokes were fo forcible, that the complices of Bufire that were accustomed to theo mens blood, bad their blood theo as broad, and could not remedy their ntifchance, which was fo great, that Hercules filled all the place with bead bodies. And after a long battel, he found himfelf alone, for there was no man to hardy that burft be feen before him. The people and the Commonalty of the Egyptians, mindeb not the refcue of their When they fam him beaten, they all hated him, and bes Bing. held the Battel from far by very great routs. When Hercules had then laboured fo much, that he found no man to fight with him, he fet bown his Club and addreffed him unto a great come pany of Egyptians that flood there, and affured them be would do nothing unto them, and alked what people they were that had affaited him ? They answered him kneeling on their knees, They were Men-flavers, Bangmen, and people of victious and evil life : that their king which he had first beaten down, was the worft of them all, and had purpoled to put him to beath as a franger to make Sacrifice unto the Gods, And they praved bim to Sacrifice their fait Bing.

Hercules granting their petition, accorded it unto the people: and took this cursed Ayrant Busire, and boze him upon his should bers unto the Temple, which the Egyptians shewed him. The false Ayrant cryed after help terribly: but his cry abailed him not. The Egyptians cryed unto Hercules, Sacrifice, sacrifice, him. When Hercules came into the Temple, he sacrificed him, after he had shewed him his cursed and evil life. And then when the fire was put unto the sacrifice, it began to rain, and the great drought began to fail: whereof the Egyptians were so joylus, that uone could express. They did sing praises unto Hercules, and drought him and Philotes unto the Pallace, and consist tuted Hercules King over them: but he resuled, and ordained Judges

Judges to govern them. Then he returned unto Queen Juno, who had great forrow, and to bing Greon who had great for at the rehearfal of his good Fortune.

CHAP. III.

How Hercules espoused Megara: and how he was made Knight in Thebes.

IMA as the young Mine, by the industry and labour of the Hulbandman, groweth in height, and his boughs spread abroad fall of fruit: so Hercules labouring vertuously, grew in fruit of Mobleness: his Morks, his branches, then began to sprout as broad, and fpread from Realm to Realm.

ı

Ů

0

e

a

1

È

Ó

1

2

The secret conspiracies of Juno, and her cursed envies could not hurt not diminish the vertue of Hercules. The more she thought to harm him, the more she was the cause of his exaltation. As he was puislant and strong of body, he was pet more strong of bertue: for vertue was set in him, as the precious stone is in Gold, as the sweet smell is in the slower, as the ray of the Sunsbeam is in the Sun: He was beloved of Lings, Princes, Ladies, Gentlewomen, Robles, and all others, especially of Megara, the Daughter of Lings Creon. And verily she was not deceived, so Hercules loved her also, and was never burt but he thought on her: Pet durst neither of them speak to other of this matter, they were assamed to discover that, whereby they had hope to have bonour, and often they bewailed to themselves desiring, the day they might take each other in marriage.

So much they wished after that day, till at last it came. For on a morning, as Hercules was gone into the Wood to take a wild beast, he remembred him of his Lady, and bigan to speak to him softly: Shall I be alwayes in pain? Shall mine heart never be easen, but always languish in love? I see all men in great soy, with their Loves and Ladies, and I think never how to come to the point of one only, whom I have chosen above all other, I know not how to begin, I ware not speak to her, no. I have not assayed if the would convestence Shall I speak to here I know not well how: I speak to her and the refuse, I were of one accord, to give her to me in marriage, and the were not content and please all were lost. The most jeopardy is, to have her good will, so, without her grace I can be nothing: then it is necessary that I seek her good will, since it is so, so, if I say thus, and speak not. I shall never acchieve, nor come to my purpole.

Hercules refolute in his purpole, and enflamed with great befire of Love, came from the Wood, abandoned the Will beaf. and gabe it over to tome to Mogara, thinking bow and by what words be might come, and thew unto her that which lay on his We went fo far, chat be came to the Barben of the Was face, where the was with many Havies and Bentlewomen. He made to them reverence, until be elpied the time that he might speak to Megara, and he wared to pensive that it is marbel: be intermitted nothing to confer with the Labies, but therewith be brew bim apart into the Barben. When the Lavies bebelt him to ventive divers of them came to him, and talked with him, to put him from his thoughts and pentivenels, but they could not, at laft Megara came to him. As fon as Hercules fam ber come, be began to figh, and come againgt ber. And the laid to him, Hercules why are pe to pentive ? But away from you fuch melancholly, and tell me of pour news. I prap: Lady (antwered Hercules) I thank you for your good bification lince it pleafeth pourto hear of my tidings, and to know them, I will tell you as part : First, the cause why 3 am brought into such perplered melanchotty as you now fee, is, by beholving your perfections: for as I went to the Wood to Bunt, the remembrance of pour right Roble Beamy, continually being in mine imagination, came into me, and more our enter into a ferret perplarup, to wit, whether Thouse alwayes live unrewarded of Love, and (if I wirlf fap to to you) I have fet my heart and love whally on pour demann, this perpleyity was great, but in the end I cone fluven to come unco pou, to know the conclusion of my fortune, whether lit he littled beathy Being in this veliberation (thinking boto in mindus speed michayen in this poincione doubtfulucis pour pour coming bath put me out of a great thought of pensiveness, for I knew not better how to come to the point, to speak to you aparisand I do at this present than to apply the matter in time; for I say to you in truth, that since the time of my Olympiades, I have desired you night and day, and at that time I seemy heart on your service, resolving to love you so; ever. Has dam, I know very well, that I have enterprized a thing that I am not worthy of: Potwichstanding, I continue at your merey, and require that you will be pleased to receive me into your savour, in such wise, that shortly we may appoint our Puptial Day.

t

S

ä

2

it

2

h

D

t,

D

.

b

.

h

0

B

4

-

n

6

1,

4

When Megara understood the words of her Love Hercules, the rejoyced in her heart exceedingly, and received great comfort, notwithstanding she was abashed, being shame fac d, the answered thus. Alas Hercules, by what softune am I ordained to be beloved of so worthy a Gentleman. Pour excessive prowels, your glorious labors, your resplendant virtues are of such value, that you are worthy to have to Wife, the most beautiful Lady in the world. Which these words, the Gentlewomen came to them, and said unto Megara, that it was time to withdraw her to dinner, which brake offitheir discourse. Megara softowful of halfy apparting, that the might not atchieve her purpose, by constraint tok leave of Hercules, and went into the Pall, sulf sed with love, and Hercules remained in the Garden, soful of the sweet answer be had received.

When the Lavies had left Hercoles in the Garden, he allems bled Eurisleus and Amphiction, and said to them be had a great befre to be married, and mayed them to go to King Creen, to know if he would give him his Wanghter Megara. They spake of King Creen of this marriage: the King heard them speak tight glady, for the matter pleased him; much another what with glady, for the matter pleased him; which another what which may not the most Hercoles, whom be loved as his own bon, which was so valiant and Roble, and had no sellow like most him. We may continue to give to him his Wanghter, and with her what he would be man and footie, and had no fellow like most him. We may continue and were allegang any of the Hercoles when the things so, his conficunt and were allegang and the Hercoles were fent.

fent for, the King made them betroth each other, with great for of both parties. Afterward in process of time, the day of their espoulals was celebrated with triumph, honour, and foy. And then they lay together without more ado, and lived together right boneffly.

After the folemnity of this marriage, Hercules came to him Creon, and befired he mould bestow upon him the Bonour of Brighthoo, feralmuch as the Robles of the Realm of Icony were come unto him, and with a general confent, had chofen him to be Bing of their City, for his good renown. Bing Creon (fews ful of that) answered. That he would accomplish his befire : but would that it should be bone at a certain day assigned, faving, That then he would make a noble Featt, where men thould Juf. and Wourney, and that he would caule to come thicher all the Bings and Princes of Greece, Hercules accorded and agreed, and the Bing fent his meffengers unto all the Bings of Greece, am pra ped them to be prefent at a Unighting of a Boble-man that thould bold a folemn fpost, at a day named and appointed, to answer all them that shall come to the Juffs. The renown of this feat, was born unto all the hingboms of Greece : The provision and Didinance was great in Thebes, one an other disposed them to be there; the time passed and the day came, me ny a Bing and Bnight mas come at the time to Thebes. The feus and lafon the Sons of King Elon, was there amongtthe reft. The Bings made agreat fir, and pompous fews about ter of the Clock before noon . The Bing Creon went intothe place that was ordained for the Juffs. At a corner in the fame place there was a Tent, in which was Hercules all alone: At that time the Lavies and Bentlewomen mounted upon the Scaffolds the Juffers came into the place, and no man knew or wiff who thould be this new Unight. When Bing Creon faw the Unights were in on all fibes, and the Lavies were leated on the Scaffolos, be fent for Hercules, and made bim Unight after their Statutes. Then Hercules mounted upon his Boale, tok his Spear and Shield, and challenged them that were there, that each man thould be his Debayre. Then one and other that beffred to win bonour tok their Opears and ran amainst Hercules, and began a Juff.

Justing that was hot and sharp, their Spears were strong, and bake not easily, but they met oftentimes, and some were over-thrown and struk off their Horses. They that might not Just againff Hercules, affailed each other like to like.

top

risc

int

ber

ing

ot

ony

hím

ops

but

ng,

uft,

the

and

and

tan,

D,te

n of

The

ther

mu

The-

the ten lace

lace

that pilos tobo

rbts

los,

tes.

and

win

an a lufts

Jason and Theseus justed often against Hercules, and Pyro-Son of Bing Ixion likewife: All bare themfelves valis antly, notwithstanding Hercules above all men, no man could as hipe his frokes, but he bare them all down except lafon, which encountred him bibers times, and gabe him great frokes. Hercules bared bown Thefeus to the earth, and Pyrothus, and nigh fife to from Unichts. He bid thew to much valour that no man as bode in the place, but falon and be, then be cealed the Juffs; for the valour that Hercules found in Jason, he ever after had a spes cial love to bim, and took acquaintance of him, and made him great chear. At the end of the Juffing, Bnights, Ladies, and Genflewomen went to the Pallace, there was Hercules made Unight of Icony. The featt was bery rich, more than I can rehearfe the frangers were highly feafted, and thanked. When all the feaft was ended, with honour and glosp of Hercules, there was no moze to bo, whereof any memory is to speak. Pyrothus praved them that were there, to be at his Wiedding in Theffalonica, at a cers tain day named, each man promifed him to go thicker. one tok leave of Hercules when time was come of Departing each man returned into his Countrey, and they could not marbel es nough at the glory abounding, and likely to abound in Hercules, which was courteous and humble, not proud for the grace that be had in temporal honour. De was fo vertuous, that he was not the more high-minded therefore, more eralted himfelf, but the moze meek, and lubmitted bimfelf.

CHAP. IV.

How the Centaures ravished Hypodamia at the Wedding of Pyrothus, and how Hercules recovered her again, and vanquished the Centaures in battel.

To continue our matter, when Hercules saw the day of the whedding of Pyrothus approach, he disposed him to go this ther ther by fpace of time and tok Philores with him, and at all and benture took mith bin his Armour of the skin of the Lion. Withen Megara fam bim beyart, the mas fore troubled for his beparting, and more for that he took his armour with him, for the thought. if Hercules beard of any great exploit, he wonto go thicker, and affay himfelf againft it. With great fighs the looked after him as far as he might, praying to the Bobs, that they would bring him thought again. Hercules and Philores went fouth into the Countrey and halted on their fourney as much as they could uns til they came into Theffalonics, where they were received with areat jop of Pyrothus and his friende. They found there a ber great affembly of Boble men. Lavies and Bentlewomen, Thefous and Jafon were there. The friends of Jafon beffred that he hauld be made Bnight, wherefore they brefented bim to Her. cules, who gave him the order of Enighthood. And Hercules faid be had feen in him a good beginning of a Bobleman, andff he map live, be thall attain to things high and noble. Among of ther things, the Medding dapcame, the City was full of Pos bles and the Centaures were there, they were an hundred On ants armed, that ran as the wind, which King Ixion had got in Theffaly, of whom some owelt in Moloffe, and other in Aphure a City of Epyle, Hypodamia the Queen thereof, was the Las by and Bride of the Weedbing. There were come many tinut and Princes, of whom I have not the names : The Queen Hypodamia and Pyrothus were married together, after their Law. When the time of binner was come, they fer the Lady in the Hall, where a general feast was made. At this feast all the come ers were amply ferbed with all manner of wines and meats, to specially the Centaures made passing good chear, and brank to much wine, that the chief Captain named Euricus, and fome of the other, had words together, and troubled the feat. Then they fought together, and caft at each other, vots, platters, wine and meat, fo that many mere flain. Then was there a queat noise in the Hall. Euricus and fifty of his Oyants iffued outofthe prefs, and went to fetch their Armour : And being armed, they entred the Dalland not concent with the trouble they had mabe (albeit Heroules and others enbeavoured to appeale them that fleweath other) other (they took Queen Hypodamia and ravished her, then fled: When the Ladies saw this outrage, they cryed out. The fray was so great, that Hercules, Jason, Pyrothus, and Theseus, ran unto them, and when they knew that the Centaures had ravished

the Lady, they went prefently and armed them.

en 13,

hť,

nd

ing the

ns th

ty

16-

he er.

les fi

04

174

in

as as lyto.

he

ms

ti

fo

ep

nø

ife

ſs,

en.

eit

r)

10230

Hercules put on the skin of the Lyon, and took his Dword, his dow, and his acrows, and went after the Gyants, without flaying to, any other company. They were placed under a Tree, and there trained them in battel rap, because they knew the first that hould come after them hould be Hercules. They bated him fecretly, and envies his glozy, and they I woze the beath of him. At that time when they were in thefe terms, Euricus espred Hercules a far off, and thewed him unto his company. De was all alone, and came not a flow pace like a man, but ran as nimbly as a Bart in the Malley, he feemed to fly in the air. The fwifts nels of Hercules, frighted not the Centaures, for they were about fourfcore, and were all of great courage : They tok their breats Poleares, Swords, and other Weapons, and some of the Arongs eft went against Hercules: But as fon as he was come fo righ as to hoot at them, he bent his bow, and with an arrow smote a Centaure named Grineus, to that the arrow faffned his bead to a Tree, with the fecond arrow be fmote another Gpant named Petrus in the break, through his Armour quite through his body, with the third he hit Dorillus a terrible Gyant, and nailed his hand to his face, of which aroke he open.

De hot many more Arrows, as long as he had any and he shot none, but mith it he hurt or slew one or other of the Cyants, when his shot failed, the Gyants being grieved for the death of their killows by the shot and strong hand of Hercules, they can upon him, and environce him on all sides. Siscus, Nessus, Lincus, Sticle, Lodeuin and Piscus, were the first that smote upon Hercules with their Swords, then he took his Sword, and came against Pheotones, that had an Ar, so great, that it was an ordinary mans burden. Pheotones presently lift up his Ar, and thought to have smitten Hercules, but he knowing enough of the War, surned him from the Aroke, so that the Ar fell to the ground, then Hercules caught the Ar, and plucked it out of his hards, and forthwith gabe him a froke with it, that he Imote off his right arm at the Coulber.

Thus began the battel of Hercules with the Centaures, Jalon. and Thefeus came to the battel, and well proved their youth. For to encourage the other, Hercules thruft himfelf among the Grants, and to wroughe with the Ar, that they curled Pheotones that brought it thicker, and beating bown all before them. Hercules began to lock for Hypodamia, and found her nichte Euricus. Then be fyake to Euricus, and faid, Thon ebil glutton. thou half this day troubled the freat, and foln the Lady of my friend Pyrotl us, and how 3 will trouble thy fpirit; with this be up with his Ar and Imote Euricus on the bead, that be fell bear. to the great grief of all the other Brants, for beholding the Ar Died with the blod of Euricus their Captain, they mere all abas fbed : Then began Hercules to Imite more and more upon the Byante, there was none then fo refolute but was afraid, not fo hardy but began to hive himfelf, his frokes were not to be born. be putall his enemies to flight: Finally, with the bely of Talon. Theleus and Pyrethus, that were marvellous ballant, they band auifhed and chaled them to a river, where twelve of them laved themselves by lwimming over, and all the reft were flain, fabe only Lincus that Hercules belo pilloner, because be prayed for mercy, and vielbed to bim. Thus were the Centaures bestropen. more by the hand and frength of Hercules, than by any other; Wilhen be had cleared the place of all the Centaures, be and his fellows returned to Hypodamia, and brought ber again to the die sp with great triumph. The Labies reforced for the recovery of Hypodamie, and renewed again the Feaft, that entured after wards eight days bery great and fumpluous.

CHAP. V

How Plate ravished Proferpina, and how Orphens went for her to Hell: how Queen Ceres came to the wedding of Pyretus, and how The fem and Pyrotus fought with Cerberus the Porter of Hell.

T this time a little before the Ellebing of Pyrothus, Pluto the Bing of Moloffe, Son of Saturn, and Brother of Jupiter 9.

36

H,

to

n,

be

r,

as he

So

n,

be 101

his

Cla

of eta

to to

OW

91 lu.

Ju-parting

piter failed by Sea, sæking adventures, so long he failed that he arrived in Sicil, and sound there nigh to the water Ade, a very great assembly of Sicilians, that hallowed the seast of their gods. Then Pluto saw this feast, he armed twenty of his company direct their robes, and went in this manner to see the seast, and try if he could find any body. This Pluto was the greatest thies, and the most leatherous man in the Morto, and had with him a Grant named Cerberus, enough sike directly on condition and courage, but he was more strong and pullant of body, all the dether were great as Grants, and had learned nothing but to practise mischief, and could be nothing else.

When the Sicilians saw Pluto come and his fellows, they supposed it had been some of their neighbours that tame to be their plays, and sports, sozasmuch as they came cleached in their garments, and sow none of their Armour of harnels, and they forced them to sing and vance, but their Songs and Dances vid not continue long, for in coming to them, laing Pluto cast his eye associand saw the Anex of that Countrey, that beheld the seat, and by her, her Daughter that made a Garland of slowers: The Pother was named Ceres, and the Daughter was called Proscrpina, and was married to a Pobleman, named Orpheus, that sate by her and played on a Bary: this Proscrpina was marvellous fair. And anon, as Pluto had then her, he desired and covered her, and absertised his solk secretly of her, and after came night nurs her, that he set his hands on her, and sate on his back, and bare her away.

When Orpheus and Ceres faw Proserpina taken away, they treed out pitifully unto Pluto; with this cry the Sicilians left their feat and ran after Pluto in great numbers, Hen and Momen, hoping to have rescued Proserpina. But when Cerberus and his companions saw the uppoar, they drew their Swords, and hewed their weapons, and smote upon them that approached them, slaping them abundantly, they retired, and went into the Port, in despited of the Sicilians and Orpheus. They guided Pluto to his ship, and after they disanchored, and carried away Proserpina. The Sicilians were then unprobled of arms, and could not withstand the taking away of Proserpina. At the design of the sign of the proserpina.

parting from the Post, was made a most sharp lamentation. Proferping mept on the one side most pitifully. Ceres on the other side, with the Sicilians made no startity of tears. Orpheus also tailed not to furnish his tears with day sighs, so, he loved Proferping, and the loved him as well. At their departing their hearts were brought to a grievous distress, with so great anguish, that Proserping fell down in a swound, and Orpheus radished with anger, that he returned to his Palace, when he had lost the sight of Proserping, and kept himself close in his chamber, with out speaking to any in two days.

At the end of the two days Ceres came to visit Orpheus, that would neither eat not dink, and said note him, she knew well the ravisher of her daughter, that it was Pluto kind of Molosse, and that he dwelt in a part of Thessay, in a sow base City, called Hil, so samuch as in this Me, king Pluto and his fellows did so much harm that they were compared to Devils, and their City named Hell. When Orpheus understood that Proserpina was in Holl, he took a little hope in himself, and ate and dank, and made a Mow he would never rest in years until be had been in Hell to fe Proferpina.

After he had eaten, he fent his Parrines and bade them make ready a Ship: When the Ship was furnished (after leave to ken of Queen Ceres) in visquiled habit he entred into the Ship, wit his Pary, and made his Pariners to fail footh on the Sea, in such wife that he arrived at one of the Poets of Thessay, Orpheus went there on Land, and commanded his Pariners that they hould abide for him in that place, till a certain time by him appointed. He departed and went from Country to Country, so, long till he came to the Gate of Hell, which Cerberus kept, there be dean to play on his Parp most melodiously.

when Cerberus heard of the Dustal sound of the Barp, he listed up his curled head, and came out of the Bate, to know who he was that played so melodiously e and by the sound of the Barp he found Orpheus; and thinking that Pluto would gladly hear him, (to rejoyce Proferpina that always wept) he caused him to enter into the City, and brought him before the king. Orpheus then began to play again on his Barp. When king Pluto heard

bim

man:

him, he tak great pleasure therein, and so did all they that werethere. Then Pluto-sent so Proserpina, when the was come and heard him play with his Barp, the knew it was her Bushand, then was the some abashed, whereas the had were some before, the wept much more now. Pluto-was forry so the grief of Proserpina, and said to Orpheus, If he could play with his Barp so as the Lady should cease her waping, he would give him what he hould ask of him. Orpheus promised him that he would, and Pluto sware to him, that he would keep his promise, if he did so. Then Orpheus tuned his Barp, and played hivers Songs so sweetly, the infernal Cerberus, and many other fell alkey, and Proserpina, by means of certain signs and tokens that Orpheus mabe with his eves, cealed her webing.

c

I

'n

ıt

h

0.

6

p

8

15

U

Witen Pluto fam Proferping ceale ber weping, he was right lovous be then awoke Cerberus and the biber that dept, and faid to Orpheus he had well Barped, that no man could be better : and that he Bould bemand Comething, and be would gibe it him without fail. Orpheus hearing the words of Fluto, bab great perplerity in himfelf to know what be Gould Demand; in the end he fait to bim, Sir, 3 am, Orpheus the Busband of this Lady, and for her love I have entervaised to come hither in this cale, now I way you that you will render her again to me, that I may bring ber again to ber mother that vieth for forrow. When Plato had beard the request that Orpheus made, he was all as mazed at the hardinels that he had the wed: Dowbeit, be faid to him, Orpheus, von habe bemanded Proferpina, the is the Laby . that I moft tobe in all the Wasto: Beberchelels, to accome plith my promife that I have made unto pou, cake ber, upon cons. dition that you bring her out of this City without loking behind you; and if it happen that you ouce look behind you, pe thall lofe. ber. At this answer Orpheus was content, and it fremed to him that his wife was as god as recovered again, be and Proferpina paffed over that night in god hope. Withen morning was come, Pluto belivered Proferping to Orpheus, upon condition before res bearled. De and his Wife tok leave of Bing Pluto, and thanked bim : After they went on their way, butthe hab not gone half. way to the Bace, but be loked privily behind him, to fee if any man followed finn, and there he found Cerberbs at his hele, that tok a way his Wife from him, and belivered her again unto the

Bing.

Orpheus feing by this unhappinels be had loft his Wife. becan to curfe the pay that he was born, and he followed after ber and began again to Bary, and offereb great gifts to recober her adain, but it was faib to him he thould never have ber again. and alfo, that if he had ufed the feat of arms, as he had the ftrings of his Barp, he fould habe bied. Wing this conclusion Orpheus Departed from Helf, full of forrow, and returned into Sicil, unto Duen Ceres, telling ber bis abbeneure. The Duen benic affis red that her Dangbeer was in Hell, and being abberrifes that in Theffaly hould be allowed the Feat of the wedding of Pyrothus, where were many Bnights of great fame, the went to the Dea, and came fitty to Theffalonica, while the Featt endureb. In approaching the City, on an afternon Pyrothus and Thefens were in the helb, chen met her. Der attenbance mag great. Thefeis and Pyrothis faluten ber, and the faluten them. again, and asked them the effate of the featt of the Webbing. They told and recounted her all. After the bemanded of them if elfere were no Buights of great name, and high enterpiles : when they understood that the enquired to far, they would know what the was, and bentanded her name? 3 am (fait the) the Enop Ceres of Sicil. Then Epake Theleus and late, Shabain, you' are welcome for what occasion bemand you if in the feat be any Buichts of Entervelse ? Tean tell von that there be, notwichs Ronding Too with you and allo require, that you beffare unto us the cause who you have thus bemanden.

Sir (faid the Lavy) fines it pleafeth you to enquire of my conflate fo far: Union you for certain that I have more my ventand, for almuch as Pluco King of Hell, hath ravished my Daughter Proferpina, by which I am hatt unto venth. And I would glably find some Linight that of his courtell would employ him to get her again, and affail the curled Lycane: who I pray Country be dammed everlattingly for his demerics. Wherefore I pray you, if you know any that will be merciful to me, that it pleafe you for charity to direct me unto him. Gavan Canquet.

in the clock as

ed. Theseus) be you no more inquisitive to find such a kinight as you seek; for in the favour of call kavies, I will be your kinight in this Work, and promise you upon mine bonous that I will transport me into Helly a Andribing Pluto shall never have years with me until the crime he bath restored your Daughter.

3

ç

Mhen Pyrothus heard the entemptife of Thefeus, he began to break off his words, and faid to him, And Wrother, what think you to do, when you enterprise to go into Hell? You know not the bounds, not the scituation of that place. Hell standeth behind the Anner Sea, between Pountains and Rocks, so nigh, that the Citizens therein be in continual darkness and hadow: and the entry is so difficult, that it is impossible to come within the City, unless the Porter consent: For here beforetime, many have gone thicher, that be time lest and abiding: there goeth no man thicher that ever cometh again. It is right an hell, and each man nameth it Hell, as well so, the scituation thereof in so dark and unlightsome a place, as so, the sinhumanity and terribleness of the Inhabitants that wait to do evil to all the morto. These answered unto Pyrothus, and said: There is nothing impossible unto a valiant heart.

Ling Pluto is cruel and Arong, his folk and people tyrannous. His City Kanbeth in a Countrey environed with mortal perils. Potwithkanding furely the boubt and fear of these things, shall never baunt my courage, but that I will be my endeabour to atchieve this enterprize, and will person my promise, or will have repreach of all kinights. For a man to keep his own hone, sught not to boubt any peril whatsever it should be.

allowed it greatly and faid unio him. That his words were to him so acceptable, that he would half him company unihis absenture. The Nuan Ceresthanked the two brights: so they brought her into the City, and to the Polace, the being there received and feather. The ficaling away of her Maughtet was told, and the enterprize of the two knights. Spahe reported his adventure, and the enterprize due to knights. Spahe reported his adventure, and the enterprize due to again on anothe Aming all other.

ther Hypodamia confivering that her Husband that was fo neme In married unto her would go in this perillous beyane of Helf. her epes began to wep, and would receibe no comfort unto her heart. The featt enbedin great forrow, Jafon and Hercules moule gladly have gone with Thefeus and Pyrothus, and fnake thereof to them, but they would not luffer them. Then bes varted Hercules, and entered into a Ship, as if be would habe gone into his Countrey : each man likewife beparted, and Thefeus and Pyrothus tok their way to go unto Hell. And then as bout their penarting, whereof Hercules was abbertifeb, Hercules mabe for to bired his thip unto the marthes of Hell, and there ment a land alone, concluding in himfelf that he would go after Pyrothus and Thefeus his Toyal and true fellows, and gabe Philotes tharge to bring Lincus unto Thebesy and put him there in Prifon until bis coming again. After he beparced and Philotes thipped in the Sea, where be had a bolozous abbenture as hall be faid bereafter. But at this time 3 muft cente fveaking of that matter, and will recount of Hercules how be went into

CHAP. VI.

How Hereules found Pyrothus dead at the Gate of Hell, and Thefeut in danger: and how Hercules vanquilhed Cerberus: and how he refcued Proferpina from Pluto.

Pyrothus were beparted from Thessalonica, to try if they could recover the sate Lady Proscrpina: they travelled so much that by their distincted in host time they arrived in the Walley where was Proscrpina, sull of sin and cursedness. Pyrothus that knew the Countrey, sound the direct way that went into the City, and entered first therein. This way was so strait, that there could but one at once go neither on the right side not on the lest, the Macks were so high, that no man might go on either side. When they had passed this way, they sound a Mock that was cut into stairs, between out with Chizels. Then they saw beneath them Hell, a City strongly environed with waters that fell pown

İ

te

U

ng

be lei

the

pown fearfully from the kiecks, and made a terrible roaring; for they fell from high into a low vault in the earth. This City was inclosed with Pountains. A very Bell having no more but one Gate: then to come down to the Gate, Pyrothus and Theseus vescended down by the stairs made in the kock. In the vestending, suddenly they saw come out of the Gate, a marvellous great Grant, that had an head marvellously misshapen, sierce, black and ugly. He had his nose high and wive, his chin long, his teeth as great as Porse teeth, his eyes like unto an Tre, his ears hanging like a hound, his thousvers large and broad, his helly swoln, his legs and thighs were strongly boned and mighty. This terrible Grant was Cerberus, whereof is touched before.

E

30

4

15

-

31

11

į-

33

i-

B

g

0 id

10 th

gs

us

he te ft, ie.

ut

th

11

on

The Poets named him the hound with three heads, confider= ing his griedous and unhappy living, which is compared unto three fingular vices : to wit, to Pribe, Avarice, and Letcherp. By Prive, be glorified himself, and exalted him above all the men in the world, with his strength, he was so frong that no man could withftand him. By Avarice and coveroufnels, be had an appetite infatiable to gather treasures together, and bare away all that he could find. 15p Lurury, there was no man lis bing of more foul life then he was : for he had never bone other thing in all his life, than defile and ravish women and Paidens, Ladies and Gentlewomen, to the Poets rightly named him an bound with three heads, for he was foul, as a bound that liveth in multiplication of fins, and taketh therein his felicity. Wilhen Thefeus and Pyrothus had efpred this Cerberus come unto them, all armed, making the wheel in marching proudly unto them, Pyrothus faid to Thefeus, Mp brother, behold what enemy this is, be that putteth bim in luch perils for the Love of Lavies, lete. teth but little by his life. It behoveth us now to live or ope, let us now archieve toyoutly our enterprize, to the end that you may not think but that I had rather due than have reproach, I will be the first that that begin the battel. Theseus had no space no; leilure to animer, for Cerberus came to them, and called to them, faying : What feek thefe fellows in Hell? wife come (lato Thefeus) to feek Proferpina, whom Pluto bath taken away from the Onien Ceres. We will never return into our Country, until the time we bying her with us. Eruly flaid Cerberus) if ye will return into your Country, you hall render again Proferpina, but I will forbid you the return. And this day I will prefent uns to Proferpina, my Sword dyed in your blod, and hete you hall be duried: you the il never lie Proferpina nor come no nearer then you be now Which these words he lifted up his sword, and gave so great a froke at Theseus upon his shield, that he did bear away an half quarter of it.

Indeen Pyrothus sawhis fellow smitten, he took his swood and smote Cerberus on the one side, and Theseus on the other side, and they gave him two very great strokes, that they made Cerberus to be chased so sore, that he began the battel unmeasurably, that he beake their Shields and Harnels, and also made his swood to be dyed with their noble blood, as he had before said. The battel was hard and mortal at the beginning. Theseus and Pyrothus received many wounds by eager strokes, their Arms were all behem and broken. The battel endured very long, and Pyrothus hehaved himself very well: but Cerberus smote upon him so unmeasurably, that after many wounds given unro him, he brake his helm, and cleaved his head into two petces unto the stomach.

Withen Theseus saw his fellow dye, he struck Cerberus so sierce tythat he made him stagger; and go back two paces. Cerberus would have avenged him of his stroke, and smote Theseus so, that if the noble Unight had not turned back, Cerberus had smitten him unto death. This stroke of Cerberus fell to the earth and entred therein, and Theseus smote again upon his enemy, which began to coar like and old Lion, and struck Theseus so siercely with his swozd, that he broke his shield, and so brussed his hesm, that he was associated at the stroke. But alwaies Theseus above in the place: and then Cerberus would have brought him to destruction, sollowing the evil adventure of Pyrothus, if Fortune had not brought Hercules thicher, who came so sitly to rescue Theseus, that he knew not else how to save himself.

At this point when Thefeus was to attonifhed, Hercules that was departed from the Sea (as is laid) came to the flairs that 31

b

ÇL

gi

d

bi

were cut in the Rock, and beholving Theleus all covered with him, and Pyrothus bead, he began to descend bown, crying to Theseus that he should not be afraid. When Cerberus sam and heard Hereules, he began to cry again and roar to be quit of him: Theseus was recomforted with the voice of Hercules, but how ever be began to run bere and there before Cerberus.

So much then hasted Hercules down the stairs, in entring the place, and as hastily as he might, he cryed to Cerberus, Cruel Tyrant, let the Knight run, and come to me: thou hast put to death my god friend Pyrothus, whereof I am soary, but I will take vengeance of the so; him. Cerberus hearing the sentence of Hercules, ran no more after Theseus, but tarried and beheld Hercules, with a sierce look, and answered him, So meaneth he to responge his shame, that so believeth: I have destroyed thy sellow unto death, and unless thou exceed him in skill of Arms and in bodily strength an hundred sold double, it is folly for the to come hither; sor I am Cerberus the Porter of Hell, that at the report of my name all the world crembleth.

Thus ended his answer, Hercules was at the fort of the Nock, and he had his Club upon his Shoulder. Cerberus came against him, they smote each other lustily, and thus they tegan a very hard battel: Ahen Theseus, that was weary sate by, and rested him, daying and cleansing his wounds of the blood that came out of him.

9

3,

18

31

n

31

p

13.

30

0.

15

in an

Ħ,

Cs

us

at

III

115

25

th at he

n.

ot

115,

at

at

325

Hercules beheld Theseus cleansing his great wounds, he began to employ the sozee of his strength and might, by such marbel, that with a stroke-that be gave him on his helme, he made him to stop under his Club, and to knowl to the ground with the left know, and at the second stroke in pursuing him hastily, he made his strozd to sty out of his hand, then he made him to fall on his arms to the ground, and with the third stroke, as Cerberus thought to have relieved him and gotten his Swood, Hercules smore him upon the body, that he made his head roll against a great stone; after that he sprang upon him, and bound his legs with the strength of soze of his hands in despight of the Cyant, and he toge the helm off his head, and would have sain him, but Theseus prayed him that he mould not put him to death there.

there, but that he would being him into Theffalonica, to bue he

the fentence of the Duan Hypodamia.

Ceiberus was not then put to beath, at the request of The Potwirffanoma, Hercules bound his bands bebind bie back and after he made bim arife, and tok him by the beard, and made bim go upon the Hock, and there he faib bim bown, and bonnb his fet, bis bands, and bis neck together, in fuch mife that te butt not remove. W ben he had bone fo. be went boton and entred into the Gate of Hell and leaving there Thefeus, he went to far that he found the Palace of Bing Pluto, and there came into the fame Ball where Pluto was with Proferping. All they that were there, marbelled at him, when they fam him entred : for they knew not of the overcomine of Cerberus, as they that left all the charge and keping of their City to him, wi bout having any toubt of fulpicion : allo they were to far from the Cate, that they might not hear of the batiel. not know of nothing that befet their Porter. Then when Hercules had found Pluto and Proferpina, he had great for, and knew him by certain merke, be aboreft him towards Pluto, and faid : Pluto, by thy treathery, Sicil is now full of heabinels, for the rabiffing of this Lady, which thou haft not granted to vield. and render again to ber Busband Orpheus. 3 know not what pleafure thou haft therein, but 3 will make the to repent this injury, in following the evil adventure of Cerberus, whom have vanquifhed. With thele words Hercules lifeed up his Club. and gave fuch a froke to Pluto, that he overthew him to the earth, to that be moved neither head not for. When be had fo beaten Plut , thinking that he had been bead, he affailed them that were there murmuring; and put them all to beath lightly with his Club, in the prefence of Pre ferpina, who trembled for fear. Then be comforted Preferpina, and faib to ber De was come unto that place to beliber ber, and to bring ber again to her Mother, and that the thould boldly follow him. Proferping hearing this, was comforced with the words of Hercules, and fallower bim.

Hercules opened the Dog, and went out, and Proferpina with him. After he admeffer him unto the Bate of the Palace, it

hapned

bapmed that there he found a great company of Citizens, that were advertised of this fray, and they ran upon him unmeasuras bly pursuing him to death. When Hercules saw that, he willed Proserpina to get her apart. After that, he listed up his Club, and began to exirmish with his enemies with such valour, that he covered all the entry of the Palace with those miserable Ayrants that he seem, for he put to death more than sour hundred. So that the other sed and gave it over: anothen when he saw his enemies dead and scattered, he took Proserpina by the hand and led her out of the Bate of the City.

ŕ

3 ø

a

ď

Thefeus (that tarried at the Gate, as is faid) reloveed greats to when he faw Hercules come again with Profesoina : he arofe and met them and faluted the Lady, and prefented to Hercules Chain of Iron, that he had found at the Gate, and many pais foners bound by Cerberus. Hercules unbound the Paifoners, and tok the Chain and bound Cerberus therewith. And when he had buried Pyrothus, he departed from Hell, and tok his way with Proferging, Thefeus and Cerberus, and fournied till he arrived in Theffalonica, and belivered Proferpina to the Quien Ceres : and to Hypodamia he prefented Cerberus, rehearling to her and the Ladies, how he had flain Pyrothus. Hypodamia had fo great forcew for the beath of Pyrothus, that to recount it is impollible. All they of Theffaly likewife made areat forrow for their Lore. And to fevenge his beath, Hypedamia bio cause Cerberus to be bound to a fake in the Theatre of the City, where young and old tozmented and bered him three days, brawing him by the beard, and spitting in his face; after flew him unhumanety. and when Heicules and Thefeus, Ceres and Profespina had tarris to there a while in comforting Hypodamia, they tok their leave, and Hercules went accompanied with Theleus toward the City of Thebes. But I will leave them, and speak of the adventures of Philotes.

CHAP. VII.

How Andromedus delivered Lyneus: And how he flew in battel the King Creon, and took the City of Thebes.

Lyncus, Hercules was gone to the Juctour of Thefeus, and Pyrothus, as before is faid : The Marriners tok their Shin and failed all that day without finding any Abbenture. But on the morrow betimes in the morning. Fortune that always ture neib without any refting, brought to them a great Ship, that Drew his course unto the same place that they came from, dromedus Ming of Calcide, was Captain of this Ship. This Andromedus was Cozen to Lyncus. Wilhen be habelpied the Shin where Lyncus was, he made his Galley to row thicherwards, and fait; De would know what people were therein. In an. proaching the Ship of Thebes, Lyncus beheld the Galley of Andromedus, and knew it by the Signs and flags that it boze. An. dromedus bemanded of the Pariners to whom the Ship belonge ebe Withen Lyncus fam and heard Andromedus, he broke the answer of the Pariners, and creed to him, Andromedus, loe here thy friend Lyncus, if thou give me no succour thou mayed lofe a good friend in me : for 3 am a Prifoner, and Hercules bath fent me into Thebes.

Andromedus hearing Lyncus, had great anger, for he loved Lyncus well, and called to them that brought him, and said to them, that they were all come unto their death. And also that they were under his ward. Philotes and his folk, were furnished with Arms and Harness, and made them all ready to defend themselves, and with little talk, they of Calcide assailed Philotes; and Philotes, and his folk employed them at their defence. The battel was great, but ill sozume and mishap curned in such wise upon the fellows of Philotes, that they were all sain. Andromedus had two hundred men in his company, all Kodhers on the Sea. These thiedes smote siercely upon Philotes, and hewed his arms, striking, and giving him many wounds. But his strong resistance profited him but little, so, in the end he was taken and bound, and Lyncus was delivered and unbound from the bonds of Hercules.

Lyncus had great top of his beliverance: thanked his god friend Andromedus. After this he told him how he was taken, and how Hercules had distingued and bestroped the Contaures. And among other he named many of his friends that were dead, whereat Andromedus had so great displeasure, that he swore in continently

ti

Di

81 continently he would revenge it. That as Herciles, had flain his friends, in like manner he would bestroy his kinsfolks. De said to him, that Hercules was gone into H.II. And after bemantohow he would revenge him upon the friends of Hercules: and there upon they were long thinking. In the end, when he had taken advise, Andromedus concludes, that he would asail the City of Thebes, and if he might get it by assault, he would sea

the Bing Creon and all them of his blood.

.

ı

d

ıt

İ

g,

10

ţe

R

×

Û

es

D

ta

at 10

i-

20

II

II

i-

17

10

n;

S.

D,

ns

ip

With this conclusion, came thicher all the Galleys of Andromedus, in which he had eight thouland fighting men. medus made them to return towards Thebes, and as haftily as be might, be entred into the Realm, walting and bestroping the Country by fire and Iword to terribly, that the tydings come unto Bing Creon. When he knew of the coming of the Bing Andromedus, and that without beffance, he made him Mar, he founded to Arms, and affembleda great company, and knowing that Andromedus was come into a certain place, he iffued out of Thebes all armed, and brought his people upon his Chemies, that received them joyfully. And let themfelves in order against them, and joyned their battels. The cry was great on both fides, spears, swords, darts, quisarms, arrows and poleares were let on work. Many Robles were beaten bown. Lyncus and Andromedus fought paliantly: Bing Creon and Amphitrion failed not, there was blod abundantly they on both The battel was cruel and tharp, to that Andromedus and his people, got ground from them of Thebes, and confrained them to retire: whereof Bing Creon had great forrow, and put his men again in array, calling himfelf in the greatest press of. the bactel, where he fought mortally, and made fuch flaughter among his enemies, that Lyncus and Andromedus heard of the shirmifh, and came together. As Lyncus law the Bing Creon Do marvels at Arms, he gave him three frokes one after as nother, and with the fourth aroke, he burdt his Belm in pieces, and flew bim : whereof they of Thebes were fore afraid, and oil paired fo, that they were utterly biscomfited, and fleb: which hight Amphitrion could not remedy, albeit he was arong and of great courage.

Of this overthrow Thebes was halfily advertiled. Megare was gone up upon an high Dower of the Pallace, and beheld the battel: and law them of Thebes flain without remedy, and also turn their backs. The fight of the beating down of the king her Kather and the view of the others, made her to cry out of Fortune, and laid: Unhappy Thebes, what missief is befall thee? Where is Hercules? Alas what is become of him? That he is not here, to defend the Countrey of his nativity, to keep his White from her foes, and like a Bulwark, to defend this City from her enemies.

When the had faid this, the fell into a Iwound, and so lay a great white. Then they of Thebes flying, Andromedus and Lyncus followed them so close, that they entred the City with them. And sozalmuch as the Thebians were without head and put out of array, and Amphitrion had so many wounds upon him, that his strength failed: so the unhappy Lincus and Andromedus took the City, and flew all that might bear Arms, except Amphitrion, whom they sound not in the heat. Afterward they went into the Palace, and there they found Megara and Amphitrion in great besolation, with many Ladies and Bentlewomen.

Wilhen Lyncus faw Megara (the was to fair and pleafant) he became amozous of her and came to her and faid, Lady weep no moze : Hercules the battarb Son of Jupiter is gone into Hell, and there he is bead. Dou have been wife of a man gotten in as bultery, from henceforth ve thall be confort and Wlife of a man legitimate, and born in lawful marriage : for 3 will marry you, and pield you more pleasure then ever you had. Megara answers ed. Falle Travtoz, thinkit thou I am lo folifh to give credit to the murtherer of my father, and enemy of my Lozd Hercules? Brow thou that I am his Wife, and that I will never have other Dusband but him : be-is ne Baffard, but Don of the Low Amphitrion, and the most noble man that is in all the Wlozlo. Lavy (answered Lyncus) I am Bing of this City, you are now at mp command will pe, or will pe not, I shall bo my will with you, but I will take refpite in my fufferance till to morrow. After these words Lyncus Cent Megara into a Lower, and made made her be kept there. After he fene Philotes into a low Prison, and finding there in bondage and mifery Priamus the Son of Bing Laomedon, he had pity of him, and fent him again to Troy, where he was received with great joy of the Trojans.

CHAP. VIII.

ħ

p

5

b

m

1-15 ra 10

he

11.

15

m

nt,

75

to

s e

שמי

ID.

de

ith

w.

nd

30,

How Hercules entred into Thebes in an unknown habit: and how he put to death the Giant Lyneus and his Complices, and his Wife Megara.

TT Dile by the Sword of Lyncus and Andromedus, Thebes was taken, Lyncus exercised there many tyrannies. For Andromedus beparted, leaving Lyncus there, with four huns men of War, to kep the City, and to hold it under his command. Thus were the Centaures revenged. Juno coming into Thebes, rejoyced greatly when the found it defolate, full of Widows and Daphans, and in the hands of Hercules his ence mies : then great were the lamentations of Megara : but Ame phitrion being nigh ber, comforted ber. Lyncus came many times to her into the Pailon, and requefted ber love in the beft manner he could. Det his fair words availed him not, for be found her constant and firm, always keeping inviolable her that fity, and nave him many bertuous answers, whereof this is one, and the latt : Lyncus, thou haft conquered Thebes, and fortune hath given it unto thee, whereby thou halt enriched thy felf with vices. Thou now half power to commit on me murther : but thy power, not thy fins be not fo ftrong, to make my birtue bow to the. Megara always bemailed Hercules : the lamented fo much on a day, that the became all ravilhed, and in a Trance. That fame bap, Hercules (being D. parted, from Theffalonica a god while before) fourneped to that be entred into the Realm of Thebes accompanied with many Roble men. De found the Country all destroyed. And he had not gone far, when it was told him, how Lyncus was Lozd of Thebes: and how he had flain in battel the Bing Creon, and impailoned Megara.

When Hercules had received thele tydings, be was replenished with anger, and said that he would revenge him if he might.

might. Then be cleather bim with a Pantle abobe his Armour. and bifquifed bimfelf: when he had to bone, be Mit there bis fellows, and entred alone into Thebes, and being unknown, rate Led through the Gate, and carried himlelf lo well, that the Bors ters let him pals through, till be came to the Palace. At the entry of the Palace a Solvier came to bim, and bemanded what be lought there ? Hereules caft away his Mantle, and be tok him to his wood, and without speaking be gave so great a froke to the Solvier, that being unarmed be cleft his head from the highest part bown to the ground. Pany other Soldiers that were there, fæing the Broke, were afraid, and ran to their Ares and Clubs, and tome came and fourth with Hercules : but he froke off their heads, and then began to rile logreat an uploze. that Lyncus beard it : and thinking it had been his Posters that had quarrelled, be came running boton unarmed, to make peace. As fon as Hercules perceibed him coming out of the hall, be brew unto him with his Dword ready drawn in his hand: cry. ing Hercules, Hercules, and Aroke bim fo, that he cut off bis right arm, and with the froke he fell to the ground. And be laid upon others, that had no beims on their heads, not targets on their backs: and then they knew it was Hercules. We fiem them so thick, that with the blod that ran bown, was made a great rushing, as it had ben a Riber.

Among these things the Gentlewomen of Megara issued out of the Palace, and went into the streets, crying with high and clear voyces, that Hercules was come again, and that he had sain Lyncus. Which these cryes, all the City respected, and both old and young, Alidows, Anivers and Paids, ran and took arms with great courage, and assailed all about the men of Lyncus. There was a terrible battel, and many people gathered together, men and women against there enemies. In a little space all the City was troubled. When Hercules had put to death all that he found in the Palace, excepting Lyncus, whom he put in the guard, and keping of Musen Juncia, and of many Gentlewomen that came unco him, he spray incothe streets, and shewed his swood, and said down on all sides, and sought so more tally with the men of Lyncus, all about where he might sind

them

them, that by the belp of them of Thebes, he made all the party of Lyncus fall by his Smood. Then the Thebans rejoyeed greatly: and Hercules returned into the Palace, unto the place where the Ladies kept Lyncus. Then Hercules sent to break open the door of the Chamber which Megara was in, forasmuch as they could not find the keps, for they that kept her were dead. Megara then full of gladness turned to her Lord. Hercules role up and would have embraced her: but Lyncus that thought on nothing but evil (by the secret persmasson of Juno) turned him from it, saying: Hercules, touch not my Concubine, for I have known her stephy, and the is the most superious Lady, that eber 3 was acquainted mith.

When Megara bearb the crime, the Traito; charged ber with, the fell backward into a from, without speaking a word. Hercules being full of anger, and thinking Lyncus fait true, be froke off the bear of Lyncus, and with the fame Swood that he flew the Traitor, he put to beath Megara, that was with Chilo. the Chronicles of Spain tell, that he flew not his Wife, but put ber into a Religious boule, that he oppained in Thebes in the Temple of Diana, renouncing her company: and it is faid, that this was the first Religion that ever was in Thebes. These things accomplished, Hercules went and tok dut of Prison Amphitrion and Philotes, and benarted from thence love grieved : fo that then, no; a long time after be fpake not : and went his way at all abbenture, accompanied with Thefeus and Philotes, and the Thebans lamented bis beparture : and be refufing, they crown. ed Layus the Son of Agenor Bing of Affyria, foralmuch as be married Jocofta Daughter of King Creon.

CHAP. IX.

How Hereules put to death Lasmedon, and destroyed Troy the se-

Row, That Hercules, Philotes, and Theseus Departed from Theses, and went into many Kingboms laking there appendixes. And passing by Lycia where Hercules was created king, on a day they came into Mirmidonic, unto the Palace of E 2 thing Elon, whole Son Jason had enterprized to fail into the 3fle of Colchos, and made all things ready. Withen Hercules had been featted of Jason, and of Duke Peleus, and knew that I fon would conquer the fliece of Golo, be promifed that he would accompany him. And if Fortune would fabour bim, be would abbenture to bying bis encerprize to an end. Do be brief Jafon and Hercules made ready a good bhip, fetting out to Sea. and renewed not their viduals, till they rame to the Post of Troy. And then they could not renew them at the Post, for the Bing Laomedon was then in Troy, and had fortified marbels loudy the City again : knowing that there was landing at his Port a Ship full of Greeks, he fent bown a meffenger, that commanded them rubely that they thould bepart thence, and that he was enemy to the Greeks. Iafon (as Captain of the Are my) answered courteoully the Mellenger of the Bink Laomedon, and praged him that he might have viduals for his money: The Wellenger aufwered him, That be fould have none there. unlels he got it with the Sword. Then Hercules couto be the lent no longer, but fwoze to the Frojan, That if be might res turn from the boyage that he had enterprized, he would pet once again beffroy Troy, and not leave one flone upon another. With this conclution, Hercules and Jason Departed from Troy, and by Fortune they were brought to the Port of Lemmos, where reigned a Duen named Hyliphile, who wared amozous of Isfon, as is contained in the Bittory of Jafon. In this Bort of Lemnos, Hercules was advertifed, that thereby was a Bing named Phineus, which fuffered himfelf to be governed by an as baricious moman; Phineus hav been married to another woman before, and by her had two Song. Thefe two were wrongfully banished by their stepmother; and the was so coverous, that the tak from the Bing his riches, and belb greater fate than be. Hercules hearing thereof, he went and fpake to thing Phineus, and to the Quen, and hewed them their hices in fuch manner, that the two Chilbren were called back from erile, and the Ting held his effate royal. Then Hercules returned into Lemnos, and letting to bea with falon, lailed to the Ife of Colmuch with the flece of Gold, and carried it with him into Greece. Then Hercules commended Jason greatly among his Parents and Friends, and spake of the unkindness of King Laomedon, how he had sworn to destroy Troy, so, the discourtesse that Laomedon had offered them. Then they all together with Hercules, bowed Troy's Destruction: and concluded upon the day of their departure, and after made ready their ships, and other provisions. Then Hercules kept his Covenant so well, that at the day concluded, the whole Army put south Sea, and having a gentle Mind, they shortly arrived at the Port of Troy, with so great an Bost, that Laomedon durst not interrupt their land.

ing.

Tafon was at that time, trabelling to lick abbentures. Hercoles had with him many Poble men, and among others, there were with him the Bing Thelamon, Ajax, the Duke Neltor. Caftor, Pollux, Thefeus, and many Bings and Dukes. At the landing of this Bost (which was of frong entry) Hercules, that nothing boubted his enemies, canled to found the Trumpers and Tabors, and made to great a noise with them, that the Walls of Troy, and of the Walace ecchoed therewith, to that Laome . don feeing (out of one of his Windows) the Boft of his Cues mies, was a great while thinking whether he frould do to bate tel against them or no. So then it happened that as he was thus penlive, he loked toward the Market place, and law there more than thirty thousand armed men : which enflamed his heart, that he went and armed him, and (all his thoughts and venifive nels let apart) came to his people, whom he befired to bo their uttermoft. And after, himfelf trufting in Fortune,iffued out into the field in order of Battel, with and conduct : although he Supposed Hercules to be in the Army that was landed at the Post, be marched unto his enemics, that were forful at his coming. And then began the Greeks and Trojans a bet skirmin with furt flaughter, that there was many flain. Hercules failed not to bear bown his enemies, and eating his eves on high, es Toped the Banner Royal of Troy: he laid on the right fide, and on the left, mich his Club be beat Bown unmealurably, that be came to the Manner, and finding there Laoinedon, be laid on bim him with his Club on his helm, that he pierced his brain-par and he fell down dead among many Trojans; and ended his me ferable life.

After this, he fought to baliantly with them that belo the Banner, that be beat it bown; then all the Trojans were nil comficed, and creed fie, fie. With this cry, they began to retire unto the City, thinking to lave themfelbes. But the Greeks purfued them fo close, that they firm many of them in their flight. The rest entred the City, to troubled for the beath of Bing Laomedon, that there was little befence among them. Thelamon was the first man that entred Troy, and Hercules the fee cond : and then Hercules found well, be was right baliant. Priamus was not in Troy at that time, but was gone into the Cafe at the commandment of Laomedon, after be was returned from Thebes, fortune having cast bown hing Laomedon by the frong hand of Hercules, the Greeks entred into Ilion and Bil laged it, and bie Hanfack all the Treasures of Troy. And ther tok Exione the Daughter of the Bing, whom Hercules gabe une to Thelamon, requesting him to take her, foralmuch as be was the first that entred the City. And when they had taken all they thought god in Troy, for a final bengeance, Hercules beat both the Mowers and Buildings, and fixed them : that thep left not one fone upon another.

CHAP. X.

How Hereules and Affer affailed by battel the Gyant Antheon, and how they vanquished him in battel the first time.

A Fter this general destruction of Troy, when the Greeks beparted, and Hercules had lest them, the Greeks returned into Greece with great glozy, and Hercules went by Sea, lieking his adventures, accompanied with Theseus and Philotes: and arriving at the Port of Alexandria, he found in this Port a great Army. When the Captain of the Army saw him weigh Anchor, he knew by the Ensigns of Hercules, that it was he: sor he had heard him commended above all men, he came unto him full of soy, and said unto him: Lord of valour, and treat

2 à

CL

おけい tire of berede, amongst the people mod mighty, and among aings most resplendent in all glozious berene, I salate you, and request that I may be your servant and friend, and thus saying, be fell on his knees before Hercules, in sign of humility, he killed the Barth. When Hercules saw the salutation and behaviour of this man, he took him by the hand (and lifted him up from the ground) saluted him, and bemanded of him his name? He answered him, that his name was After, Son of Mediace, the Son of Abraham, and that in the Army, none was Captain but himself, and that the Agyptians, had ordained him Duke and Leaver of the Post, to go into Lybia, to destroy the Country in revenge of the injuries that the Ayrant Busire of Lybia, had sone to them, as Hercules well knew.

H

he

S

ks

of

¢-

es i-

Œ,

d3

be

45

16

u

TY IN

86 ıd

ks

V

8, 0-ís

m

18

Withen Hercules had understood the name and affairs of Affer, be tok him for his friend: and faid to him, that he would acs company him to conquer Lybia. Affer thanked him, and brought him into a rich Ship, where he featted him as much as was possible, They had not long abidden there, but they went to Dea with great gladuels, for the Agyptians were to toyful and glad to have Hercules with them, that they believed berily, that there might no mithap come to them. Hercules found in the thip of Affer, the Wife and also the Daughter of Affer, whole name was Echee : the was the most fair Genclemoman in the world, and young and freih. By the baily fight of ber, Hercules became amojous of her, and required ber to be his Waife. Echec aus fweres, that of her felf the might not accord to his bemand ; but be fait, if Fortune gibe me fo great a grace that I may be pour Wife, I shall have more cause to thank the Gods, than any Des lett in me. Hercules was well content with the Damolel and by her perfmation called Affer, and required him that he mould gibe to bim his Daughter to be bis Wife. Affer thanken Hercules, that he vouchfafed to bemand his Daughter : he that was the most excellent of Robles : and faid to him, that he hould take ber and do with her his will and pleasure. Hercules espouls DEchee, by the confent of Affer, and they lay together, paying the sue debt of Parriage in luch wife, that Echee conceives of the lad of Hercules. After the marriage, Hercules and Affer faileD: failed to long, that they arrived at the Post of Lybis, where now finnderh Caribage, and there they took Land in a night which was clear, afterwards they entred halfly into the Countrey, and belieged the City of Lybia, without relifance, or gainfaying.

In this City was then a great Gyant named Antheon, berg great above other Gyants, the most strong and puisant that was in all the parts of Europe, and Lybia Cirene Tripoly, in all the Pountains and Ises, inhabited in these Countreys, unto the Ises fortunate. This king then advertised of the coming of the Egyptians, was passing angry, and swore that none of them fhould return into Egypt.

As foon then as he might be did caufe his men to arm them. and iffued out of the City with a great company of Lybians, and made fo great haft to run upon the Egyptians, that be kept no order among his people, whereof he took great harm: for when be came to the battel, be found that Hercules had trained his people, and let them in two battels, of which he lead and cons bucted the first battel. It hapned fo, that they of the faid come pany of Hercules, by force of thot, bare themselves to valiantly, with Grokes, that they brought to beath more than fifteen huns bred Lybians. Withen their thot failed, Antheon fprang into the greatelt preis, as the most valiant, and supposed well to have skirmifee with his enemies: but when Hercules law him come, he laid hand on his Club, and put him forth before and gabe him fo great a froke, that he made his head to bow on the left fibe. Antheon had bis Sword lifted up to have Imitten Hercules, when he received the froke that Hercules gave tim, by which bis froke was broken. Deberchelels be laid between his teth. De wonto revenge him. So be lifted up his Sword again, and froke Hercules lo behemently, that with the froke be brake bis Shield. Then Hercules knew that the Gpant was a man of great frength, per notwithffanding, be Imote bim the fecont time with his Club ! thus Hercules and Antheon gabe each of ther fo great frokes, that there came between them of the two parties, both Lybians and Egyptians. There was a great noile of clinking of Swo; be, and founding of the Shielos and Belms

t

t

that were broken, and Balberos that were bilmailed, Sofields muartered, and Glaves broken : there was blod largely heb on both parties. Hereules and Antheon were parted by force of the wels. Antheon by great tre Imote without ceafing upon the fierce Egyptians: Hercules broke the Belms largely with his Clinb. and bid what he pleafed with the Libians, and brought fo mas ny to beach with his Club, that in little time be paffed throughout the whole power of Bing Antheon, many times in his way he covered the earth with boad Libians. The first skirmish was frong and damagable to Antheon: for one Egyptian that he flem with his Sword, Hercules with his Club killed ten Libians, About Hercules was nothing but blod, Hercules made the mouns tains to rebound with cryes, the companies to tremble, the Liblans to flee back, with little gain. As long as the bay endured be held the battel valiantly, and about the evening, when Affer and Thefeus came to the fight, be beffirred himfelf in fuch fathion against Antheon that he made him fle, so that the Egyptians purs fued them.

e

t.

di

10

is 113

116

p, ns he

be ne.

im

De.

les,

rich

etb.

and his

n of

out of

twe

oile

lms

CHAP. XI.

How Hercules took King Atlas: and how he began to fludy the Science of Astronomy, and the seven liberal Sciences.

Now when Hercules saw the Libians sie befoze them, he caused to sound a kietreat, sozasmuch as it was late, and with great glozy returned into the place that he had chosen to hold his Siege at. His Wife Echee came to him with openarms, and killed him: the helpt to warm him, and brought him fresh water to wash his sace with and there was made good chear of all the Egyptians. Contrary to this good chear, the Libians were in the City and made great sortow, sor they had soll near thirty thousand men: especially Ancheon made sample chear, sor he had god cause: Hercules had so beaten him with his Club, that he might not help himself, but went with great pain to bed, and with sortow sent for his chistians and Chicurgeous, which came and visited him, and sinding him all brusses, said to him that it would be near a month ere they could heal him. Antheon theon confidered his cale, fent and beffred of the Egyptians Aruce for the space of a month, offering to lend them baily a certain number of cartle, and a great quantity of biduals, Then be commanded all the Bings and Princes that were his Tribus saries, and lent unto bis neighbours, paping them that they would come and fuccour him with their men of Arms, in the moft halty wife they could. This peace fo. made, Hercules bes gan to remember bim, that before time be bab beard Philotes Tpeak of a King named Ailis, that he was the most wife man and cunningeff of all the world, that he owelt in a Caftle fande ing on the tou of a very bigh Mountain named Atlas, after the name of the fame bing. In this remembrance Hercules being coverous of the science of Atlas, called Philores and faid to him that he would go into the Bealm of Bing Aclas, and that his intent was to feek there his appenture. Philotes answered, that he could bring him into the Realm, for he knew the Country. Then Herculis called Affer, and Thefeus, and charged them that thep thould alway make good watch. And took Icave of them and bis Wife, laping, that he would haltily return. This bone, he and three Bariners with Philotes, went unto the Deain a Galley finely made, and failed into the Mediterran an Deat they had freedy Wlind, and fortune was good to them. In little while they came into the Strait of Gibralter. And then Philotes thems 20 unto: Hercules the Bountain, and the Cattle where Ailis was at that time abiding.

When Hercules saw the Pountain and the Casile, he went and tok land joyonsy: Then he tok his Club, and commanded Philices and his Pariners to abide them there. So he went toward the Pountain, and it happened he met with a man that bestended down from the hill, and he addicted him toward the said man to hear some tydings, and demanded of him from whence he came? He said, I came from the Casile that ye may see yonder on high. Whither go ye said Hercules? unto the City of Mercely, answered the stranger: the King Aclas to whom I am setdant, but sent me thither to publish his tommandement unto the Citizens, that within six days they sould be furnished with their Arms, so to accompany him to go unto the war of the great King of Lybia, which requested inftantly to have his luctour. Therefore if ye will serve him in his Army, and he his souldier, go up and ye will find him in his Calle studying the science of Astronomy. The servant of King Atlas with these words went on his way, and Hercules went up unto the Pountain, and came to the Date of the Castle, where he found four Knights that bemanded of him what he would have a Hercules answered, His will was to speak to the King, so, certain matters that concerned him. The four Knights (thinking nothing but good) brought Hercules within a great Hall, wherein were all the men of King Atlas, assaying them with Swords and Ares, sorasmuch as they had heard say, that they thould go to Wars, and they were all armed.

ıt

B

nt

at

he

m

90

to 35

is ep

to go

When thele Unights had brought Hercules thicher, they gave knowledge unto the Bing, that a ftrange Oyant asked afs ter him, and would not tell them the caufe why? Then Atlas went bown, and found He cules armed in a Lions skin, and aske ed him what be was? then be answered, he was Hercules that bab conquered Philotes and the Warben with the Sheep of thy Dauchters: 3 am now come bither for to conquer thee with the Sciences. Wherefore it behoveth thee that thou to to me obeplance, and give over to belp the great Antheon mine enes And if thou wilc not be fo, Arm thee baffily, and befenb thee with Arms, and that 3 command thee: If thou wilt not confent thereto by love, 3 will make thee accord thereto by force. Atlas was erceedingly discouraged, when he knew bythe mouth of Hercules that it was be that had conquered Philores, and had fain the Bpant his fellow, taken his been, and allo newly has affailes by War Antheon, to bebom be had promifes to gibe fuccour : and alfo confidered, that he willed be thould pield himfelf to him, his heart then began to fwell for anger and prive, and in great rage he faid to him, D thou prefumptuous Hercules, bow art thou to hardy as to come alone before me ? thou that 3 may not love ; know thou that I have had many a pilpleafure by thy outrage, for Philotes was my great friend: and now thou art come to renew this vifpleafure, and that I picio me unto thet, is not my insention.

Actas with thele woods went into a Chamber faft by and come manbed that every man fould arm him, as they bib; Hercules hap alwayes his eve upon him: to the end that he thould not els cape bim. Wiben be was armed be cante againft Hercule, and thalfenged bim. After be gave bim a froke with bis Dwore fiercely. Which the cry and with the froke all they of the fore trefs affailed Hercules. Then be put bimlelf in befence, and laid about mightilp by the ricour of his Club, and with twelve frokes he flets twelve of his enemies. After he wounded many piber, and fpared long the blod of Aclas. But in the end, forals much as Atlas, gabe great ftrokes to Hercules, Hercules imote bim upon the Belm, without employing all bis Grength, and gave him a wound in the head that all aftonied be bare bim to the earth. Then they of the Fortrels burlt no more abventure to affail Hercules, neither burtt they abbenture to relieve Aclas. but fied thence out of the Caftle, and Hercules above there alone with Atlas, and the bear bodies. So in the end when Hercules fam they had given it over, he took Atlas, and made bien to cry him mercy. Then he went into his Audy, and took all his boks, Aphith He labed upon a Camel, and conftrained Atlas to follow bim. And when Hercules had bone in the Caftle all his pleafure, be beparted accompanied with Atlas, and with his books, and droumbt him bown to the Dea fibe, to the place where Philotes Mayer for thim. 12 : 9141 CHARLETTE SALL

Mihen Philos is faw Hercules come with Arlis, and his boks, he had great top, and took acquaintance with Arlas, who was fo forward that he could not speak: then they entred into their adultey, and went unto the Sea: Arlas was sorrowful, and troubled with the mound be had in his head. Hercules requested himminstantly, that he would reach him his science. Atlas would tinno wife to it at the beginning of his forrow: but when he had connected and tarryed with Hercules, as well so, the bounty the same in him, as by the persuation of Prilotes, which affirmed that Hercules was the most noble and vertuous man that ever massible degan to teach him all his sciences: whereit he searned appropriate by quith and sharp with that he arrained roals, and that afterward he became the best Philosopher, and the most verses.

perfed Adronomer in all the morty. Thus Cudying, Hercules returned with great honour into the Army of Affer, and found at his coming, that his Wife had brought forth a fair Son, which the Egyptians had crowned king of Egypt, where he reigned als terward, and was called Dedon.

When Affer fam Atlas, and knew how Hercules had bans quither bim, be marvelled much of his prowels which was to great, and of his wilbom that attained to fueb high things. But Herquies bent all his wie and Budy to learn the leience. Buthe mean while a little and a little the time palled, and Antheon all embled a very great hoft, and was all healed of his mounds. and the Truce failed and expired, whereat the Egyptians had great joy: for they per hoped to have vidoen of their enemies. And the Libians hoped to revenge them of the Chame that Hercules had made them receive. Wilhen the Truce was expired the bay following Hercule: made ready his battels on the one fide, and Anch on ordained his on the other libe. Antheon made this battels, the first of twelve thouland fighting men, the fecond of twenty thousand, and the third battel of thirty thousand. . De then ordained bimfelf Bing and chief Captain of the first bats tel: in the fecond, he ordained the Ming of Geulie to be Co. bernour : and in the third, he made the Bing of Cothulie. And then when be had wett fet them in agrap, and trained them, in smorning be made them to marth topoully against his enemies. Expeding nathing but the hour when Hereules mould charge theme and root and the control of account A referenced about self and

ent / due con from and d. f. t. and acceptant man

How Hercules affembled his battel against Antheon King of the substant, which the past to the gent, and ullew the King of Co-

LA Ercoles hav made of his tolk two battels, the first whereof the consumed. As rand These weiter the giber, which wild the arbert to be arbert with the want to the made the greatest tumultand tolk turns worth he went south before and his Company tolk laws. Then began the Trumpers to lead, and Fabous to make great noise: the cry was great, they began tharply the battel, whereof Hercules and Antheon mabe the allap by a Pwift courfe, and with tharp Swords finote to fore together. that Antheon brake his Sword, and the Iron of the Sword of H. reules pierced the Shield of Antheon and his arms on bis right five, by which he had a wound where the blood fyrang sut. An heon was almost bead with forcow when he felt the froke and fam that his aword had bone but little to Hercules : be took his Sword, and Hercules took hie, and they Imote early Diber fo bard, that Hercules bate Antheon unto the earth with one Broke, and hat flain bim, had not the Libians run uvon Hercules on all fors, they gave bim lo great an affault that be knew not to whom be might attend. Then Hercules employed his Smort upon the Lybians. The Egyptians allembled them eagerly upon their enemier. Antheon relieved himfelf all as thamed of his fall : applying all his puillance and arenath to rebenge him, not upon Hercules, but upon them of his party. This Antheon Imote carerly on the one five, and Hercules on the or ther. Antheon fought wirb great hercenels and anger, and Hercul's by Browefg. The fiercenels of Antheon was great, but the Browels of Hercul's was to excellibe great, that the Lybians fled him : and when they faw him they crembled for fear, at this battel, before the fword of Hercules all bloody. the great routs of the Lybians were fore afraid, and kept no are rap : he friote off beabs, and laid them bown to the earth; his folk that were bettroped by Antheon be gathered together again. De made fuch work that the Lybians had the worfe, and Antheon fent halfily to the Beng of Cothalie, that he fould come to his belp.

1

The Bing of Corbulie at the fending of Antheon, Departed, weening to have come to the shirmish: but when After and Theseus saw him, they went against him, and hinded him. Then began the fight to great and mortal, that Theseus and After slew the bing of Cochulies, beat bown his Banners, his restignisances, and bis Cochulies, and Imore so some upon their bodies, that Prey went back, and were constrained to cry so help. The bing of Geralie seeing this evil absenture, came un

bia

bal Aff

fou

rai

the

mo

to

to the relene, and found the Cotuliens discomficed, at this come ing the notie and frokes began to renew : many a valiant Ad and many a Promets was themed there. Bany themed their bertue and frength, and many were flain there. Theleus bib marvels, but always the Getuliens bele them together, and fought against Thefeus the space of thie hours, and lost but a few of their people until the time that Hercul s brought the army of hing Antheon to bilcomfiture, and made them fie to lave themselves, the Getuliens, then were discouraged in such wife, that after they bad fæn the Army of Bing Antheon bilcomficed, they could not lift up their Arms to befend them, but were flain by little and little: and in the end then were brought to fuch a fraight, that they knew not how to lave themlebes. Then they fich out of the place, Difperled in the fielos, without Caps tains or Leavers. And Hercules put himfelf losth in the prefs before all, among them that fled first of the Lybians, for that he tame to the Gate of the City with them, and bedan to Imite, fo unmeafurably, that he put to beath the Lybians fing thither. and the Porters, and all them that Did refift him. Allo be made the Feyptians to enter into the Town. And Antheon loing fors mue againft him in all points, fler into his Pallace, not accompanied as a Ling : but went at large to the fields, by the conduct of four Moores only, that brought him into Mauritania.

CHAP. XIII.

3

t

ě

n

n. e-

is

D,

Da

m.

20

ett os

ne

to

LA this manner Hercules and the Egyptims entred, into Lyabia, and subdued it by some of Arms. And Anthon sed into Muritania, where he assembled new solk hastily. They of Lybia pielded them all to the merry of Hercules. When Hercules had thus baunced them of Lybia, and their neighbours, he made After King, and named it after him Affick, and said that he sought not sol his singular prosit and coverouspess, but sol librality, and to exalt vertue. Demost valient and noble Hercules, there was never man born among the Painims more liberal, more noble, or more vertuous. He would not be king of all the

the world, he was liberal and employed his conquest well and willely, and gave all his gifts advicedly. When he had made After King, he enquired what laws they held, and established as mong them the Bacrament of marriage. For at that time the Woonen were there, all common, and when it happened that the Monten had Children, they gave to the men after their Phys.

ognimies: and thus faith Arifforle in his Politicks.

Besides this Sacrament, Hercules opposined unto the Assicans, that they hould keep the Laws of Greece, and with politick government, made the Affricans live reasonably and bere toundly. And above all other things, he made them have the opport of marriage in great reverence. When Hercules had opposined all this, typings came to him that Antheon was come again to chase him, with many Moors that followed him. Then he returned toward Antheon and the Morians, and smote them bown with his Club, so deadly, that he made it red with their blod, sew them all and put them to slight so cruelly, that Antheon above alone against Hercules, and sought against him body to body by great strength, and gave him many strokes hard to hear.

But Hercoles gave him so many and so large strokes, that the Gyant knew not how to save himself, and thought to have steel But Hercules that ran as swiftly as an boose, ran after him, and embraced him in his arms with all his might, and listed him up into the air, and bare him unto the Mauritanes. And when he came nigh unto them, he cast him down despitefully to the earth, that druised and ceuthed him: Antheon abode there dead. And his death surned unto the Moors so great abaltment, that they lost all their strength, and were slain by great creeks with our remedy: they soft there the king Antheon, the king of Mauritane, the string of Tangie, and many other kings, and all the homograble of the bartest: for in the end they all sled, in which sight was taken and subsued the Deignivey of Affrick, and the City of Mauritane.

Holo enies of 10th all out of a final distance to never man boys enjoye the Painims more diveral

m

th

CHAP XIV.

How Herenjes and Thefens fought against the two Damosels of Scythie.

I R remembrance of this victory Hercules made in the field a fatue of a man fleeping in the place where be had put to beath Antheon, and under it be buried the body of Antheon. And as the 3mage, which was made of the bone of an Clephant, was fer up, the neck of the Image began to found like as it had been a man fleeping, wherefore the Moors had afterward the fegulchie in great reverence and worthiped the 3ool. After this flatue thus accomplish by Hercules, be went by Tingie and Ampelofie, and by many other Countreps, and conquered all the Country, that now is called Africk, and nave all to Affer, and Hercules returned into Libia, and there be found Echee his wife bead by a griebous fickness : wherefore he made marbellous great forrow. Then to forget this forrow, be tok leave of hing Affer, and the Egyptians, and thought to have beparted thence, but as he was taking leave, a Damofet frangely arrayed came unto bint and fain, Lord of Lybia, the Queen of Schytia, Lavies of Egypt, of Cappadocia; and of Afia, have fent me unto pou : which Ladies have conquered the laid Countries, in taking bengeance of the misfozune of their Busbands now late bead : and have abandoned their Country because of the great outs tage that Verores Bing of Egypt made in Scithia. And forafa much as pe be of the Linage of the Egyptians, they fend to pour that pe fubmit unto their obedience, to be with you what hall please them: or effe that you come against them in battel, to prevent the theoding of bimb. And they let you know that they have good right to fuhbue your and that if there be among you two Unights, that against two of them will be feats of arms to try their lives, they will beliver unto you two Lavies in place fonbenient, upon condiction, that if the Ladies overcome you, you bell be bolden as banquifted, and be at their commandment mo if your men overcome the Ladies, they that he reputed as wercome, and that he fubicit unco your sell right to margor out Hercules

t

n

O

ıÜ-

m

m

he

at b

ıu-

186 ich

be.

P

Hercules hearing this message of the Ladies, answered the Pessenger, Damoiel, since the Ladies of Scythia be so valiant, that they have conquered the great Lealms of Egypt, Cappadocia, and of Asia, they may be doubted. Revertheless, to prevent the essusion of blood, and to defend the Asia cans from their home dage, you shall return to them and say, That the battel of two Unights against two Ladies, is agreed unto them, to be done to morrow upon the condition that you have sate. Then Hercules, Affer, and many others promised to hold these things, and bid great honour unto the Damolel.

The Damolel having vone her message, returned unto the Ladies, which were entred a great way in Africk, and told them word for word the answer of Hercules. The principal of all these Ladies, was Synope, and had two sisters so expert in arms, that they feated no lanight of the world, the one was named Menalippe, and the other Hyppolica. Anon, as the Ladies had received these tydings of the Africans, they had great soy, and holding opinion, that Africk was won by the strength of Hyppolica and Menalippe, who vive marvels in Arms, they ordained that they should fight with the two Lanights: and so they were on the more ready in the sields.

At the hour that was ordained, Hercules and Thescus Atting on two horses, with a great company of Africans) rode into the place that the Ladies had chosen to be seats of arms in. There were the two Ladies absoing in a fair place armed and well mounted on good Steeds, and by them were other Ladies in great number. As son as Hercules and Theseus had espeed the two Damosels, they made them that followed to stand, and sent unto the Damosels to know what they would do. The Damosels answered the two Laighes, that they were ready to do deeds of Arms against them, under the condition of their quarrel. And if they were come they would come forth.

Hercoles and Theleus, with this answer took their Spears, and spurred their Hoples, and made figns unto the Damolels. And they furnified with Shields and Spears, ran against them so expertly, that they seemed of heaven and not of earth, and at the coping of their sharp Spears, the strokes were so great on both

both fives, that Hippolita and Thefeus bare each other unto the earth, in likewile bid Menalippe and Hercules. The Africans marbelled much to fee the two Princes born bown, and pet the Ladies of Scythia marbelles much moze of the Damolels. Withen the Bnights and the Damolels found themletves lying on the earth, thame fmote them to their hearts. Deberthelefs each of them got lightly up, and with great courage took their Swozos, and approaching Imore each other fiercely, that the Laties and Enights felt the ftrokes. Hyppolita purfued ber man Theleus, and Menalippe kept ber unto Hercules. The frokes of Hippolita were great, and bid great grief unte Thefeus. Thefeus enforced himself frongly to avenge him, and could not well come to his purpole. Hercules overcame Menalippe lightly with his Sword, and put her in his mercy, but Hippolica maintained ber force lo mightily against Theseus, that the had put him to fople, had not Hercules been, that faio to him : Brother, what hall this be ? There is the Prowefs of Thefeus? Shall that be baunted by the Chibalry of a Damolel : If it be for certainly all men fall babe hame of your bilbonour.

These words began to awake again the blod of These that was afore aseep, and to lighten his courage, in such wise, that he recodered a new strength, and put himself forth, and began to smite with such forte, that he made the Damosel recant, and took away her Sword, and conquered her: whereat the Ladies were much grieved, and especially the Queen Synope, which then sent Hercules her arms, in token that the was vanquished, praying him that he would restore again the two Damosels. And Hercules took the Arms of the Queen, and sent to her Menalippe, and made peace with her sor the Africans, upon condition, that they should give Hippolitain marriage to Theseus, who was amorous of her. So then then the Medding was made in Africk with great honour. And the Ladies bearing of the marbellous sats of Hercules, praised him, and held themselves happy to be vanquitheb of bim.

1

ıt'

.

4

tp

Ott

tan in the first light of the A.P. The bush are carried that unit and the first that the carried the first that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried that the carried t

How Herenles began to wax amorous of Dejanira, and how Achelous and Herenles had battel the one against the other, and how Achelous was vanquished.

A fter the conquett of thefe Ladies, Thefeus took leave of Hercules and of Affer, and returned into his Country, to bring home his Laby; and then went Hercules to Calcedonia. which lpeth apposit to Achaja, andoArcadia, to fee a fair Laby of excellent beauty, that he had beard greatly recommended by a Calcedonian that was in his company : 150 Dea, and by Land. he cameinto Calcedonia. The Bing of that place bab to name Ocneus, and hab two Daughters, the one named Dejanira, and the other George. Dejanira was the fairell, and that was the that Herciles came tofee. Withen Oeneus had knowledge that Hercules came into his Country, behad great fop, and received bim, emigacing him to honourably, as was possible. In entring into his Pallace the Queen and his two Daughters, George and Dejanira welcomen Hercules. Incontinent as Hercules caft his epes upon Dejanira, that was the faireft woman that ever be fam. Be felt bimle if marvellouffy ravilhed. This befire ens tred into Hercules all full of raves of Love, pierceing into his beart as suppenty as the rapes of the Sun, palleth through Blafa.

Dejanica havia much beauty, and was so well accomplished, that to her might be made no comparison, not only in beauty, but with the in wisdome and bounty. The was the most presious treasure of Calcedonia, and thicker came many Ladies, Gentlemomen and others. Her neighbours were all amorous of her, and especially king Achelous, that was strong and pullant. This king had great leigniory, and inarched through the Realm of Calcedonia. But when the cales had been there a space, palsing the time soyously, in beholving the behaviour of Dejanica, it happens on a day that the Hellenger of king Achelous, came to Oeners and said to him, that Achelous bemanded if he would give him his Maughter, and that if he would not give her to him him at this time, be would molest his Country, and make him mar. At this meliage. Oeneus was troubled, and answered the Desfender. That on the morrow be would give him an answer. All that day O neus was penfive and above alone : and to pals his melancholly, he came to Hircules. When Hercules faw him to penfibe, be abjured him earneffly that he thould tell him the caufe of his venfibenels; who told it him and fais. Lozd Hercules, fince it pleaseth you to know of my grief, 3 will tell you the cause. There is here by a Bing my neighbour, named Achelous, great and fierce which bath many times belired to have to his wife Dejanira my Daughter; I have not been willing to accord the Barriace foralmuch as I know this Bing a man of evil life. And for this cause I have had many menaces of him, and also this day his Deffenger is come again to me, and he hath faid, that if I gibe him not my Daughter at this time, he will make war. Surely Hercules, if ye fix me pentive, it cometh to me by this occation, for I habe not pet given him his answer, but I must give it him to morrow.

Reverthelels, I have concluded in my felf, that I will not give unto him my Paughter. And now when I fee verily, that by the refuse of my Paughter, it must needs be that war will whee know well, that I am vispleased: for war is the eternal resolution of the Countrey, perdition and wast of the veove and goods.

Sir (said Hercules) it is needful unto a man that he take and bear all that Fortune will. As ye say, war is not encreasing of people but diminution: yet by that extremity, it is expedient that a man resource in his right. Right comforteth the courage of a man and the courage of a man comforted, bringeth him of tentimes to glorious vidory. A brute beast disgarnished of reasonable wit, sighteeth for his nest with his claws, and with his teeth. What shall a man sensible and endowed with wit and reason, do with any assault (namely in his own Land and Terristic (Pacure willeth and instructed, that where corporal sorce willeth, vigour and vertue of courage worketh, and that they sight sortheir Countrey. Take Courage then in your right, and tell your enemies: ye have received me worshipfull, and in resceiving:

ceiving thefe typings, I will bely you of it be need, and I suppose

if Achelous aftail pou, he thall repent him.

Which thele words the Bing Oencus comforted himfelf greats Ip, and the day drew ober. On the morrow Oeneus called the mellenger of Achelous, and faid to him, he thould come no more to bemand his daughter, for that he was not minded to give her to his Mafter: and furthermore if he moved war against him for this caule, he had intention to befend himfelf unto the beath of the laft man of his people. The Dellenger returned with thele words and told them to Achelous, and all that he found with him. Achelous was not content with hing Oeneus, and as he that was overmuch smitten with the love of Dejanira, began to affemble bis men of Arms with an intent to make war on Bing Oeneus and to take from him his Daughter. Hercules was then in Calcedonia, and oftentimes be was with Dejanira in gras cious conferences. We found her to well addreffed in all honet manners, that all the day he was most part with her, in the night he bid nought but bream and think on her : howbeit he fait nothing that concerned his amozous belires, willing first to them them his power in Arms. It havned on a day he ovened a wine Dow that was by the Barben of Dejanira, and caffing his eves bown be faw Dejanira that fate upon a green place, accompanio with many Ladies and Gentlewomen. Then he fet all his mind to contemplate the excellive beauty of ber. After be befired ber, faping, D Dejanira thou that half not the prerogative to know the hearts and thoughts of men, if 3 hould fay to thet the tenth part of the Love and belire I have to the thou could not beliebe it. Thabe cone many a Countrey, and fen many a Realm, and many a Treasure, I have befired many a thing. But of all, to come to my wither blifs, I was never in fo great thought as 3 am for to get vour Love. The fame bour that Her cules fpake by himfelf, Dejanira was notible : the had Hercules in her remembrance, and in her heart, then being rich in the points of Love fown between variations of hope and befpair, the was furprized in all her being with the heat of that fire that burneth amorous hearts. This fire was hard to quench, or to cover the right piercing fparkle. She lay bown then upon the grals,

1

(

h

ti

le

grafs and began to fay in her mind; Alas, Hercules, what thall Dejanira bo ? the cannot come to attain pour Love, I was wont not to beign to behold a man, and then faie, that neither Prince nor Bing foule babe my Lobe. Bowam I in another mind, and befire no other thing, but that I fould be pour Wife, I had fuppoled to have remained and continued a pure Mirgin, and I ons Ip was difdainer of men, contrary to the requelts and admonitie ons of the Lavies : thele be now far other tybings. With thele words the cealed a little, and began to think on many other things. At this point, as the thought on Hercules, and Hercules on her, tydings came thicher, that Achelous was coming to bes fege the City, by land and by fea, and that he was very neer. Ho; thefe tydings arole in the Palace a great murmuring, that came to the ears of Hercules and of Dejanira: their fpirits were troubled in fuch fathion, that Hercules left to behold Dejanira, and then the left to think on Hercales, and both went to the Bing Oeneus,

I

t

D

u

5

b

0 ī

ä

t

.

e

d

Anon as Hercules came unto the Bing, the Bing faw him, and faib to him, that his enemies were bery neer the City. Hercules answered joyoully, that it behoveth to go feast them : and willed that he put his people in arms. At this answer of Hercules, the King bid found to Arms, and with his found all Calcedonia was moved, and each man made him ready. and his Greeks were ready in a little space. The Calcedonians affembled by great companies in the Palace. When they were elembled, the Bing and Hercules brought them into the field, and Hercules put them in order; that done, he did cause them to march, the Calcedonians and Greeks, and each party approached to nigh, that there was nothing to bo but to smite. Hercules made two battalians, the first with his people, the other with Calcedonians. When they came to the point to meet, Hercules went to the Calcedonians, and in the prefence of the Ming, faid to them, Loe here ve may fe your enemies that fet little by you, for they come into your Lordhip to affail you. I pray you that the great courage of them abate not your courage. De ought berein to babe the fiercenels of a Lion, the putilance of an Co Jephant, and be greedy as a Briffen, to beliver you without end, from

from the fierce enmiy of the Bing Achelous, in keeping pour Country, your Dominion, your Bonour, your Treasures, tour Willibes rour Chilozen and that moze is, your lives. We pe the Aubious to bo well, be re enflamed with befire or bengence, be pe coperous of glozy. If ye thew not your felves valiant at this time, ve may not have any thing but beggary, or ferbitube to beath: for your enemies will be unto you all the evil they can. if they have victory over you. Thele words wrought in the hearts of the Calcedonians, and gabe them marbellous courage, And all they with good will, befired the battel. When Hercules had finished his exhortation, he went to the battel : for it was come to the voint to fight. Then there were great cries on the one fibe and on the other, Taboas, Trumpets, Clarions, Bar. nels and Wleapons, began to found : Unights began to ffir at the entry of the battel. Hercules and the Greeks flot, and been largely upon their enemies, and made Achelous abathen, for almuch as he hoped not to have found to great refiftance with the Calcedonians. Then they caft their eyes upon the Banner of Hercules, and feeing the great Lion that was painted therein. they began to imagine that there might be Hercules, of whom was froken throughout the World, for his bertues, and his frenath.

When they were thus imaginia, the hot failed, with areas flaughter of the party of Achelous. Withen the thot was to fath ed, Hercules took his Swood, and went up and bown among them of Achaja, that were in the first front of the battel of Achelous, anothere made an hole fo great, that the Calcedonians and the Iconians won upon them at the first joyning. and made the other party go back, whereof Achelous had great forrom: be took to him twenty Unights, which were cholen and came and ranged with them there; where Hercules frattered and brake the battel of the Achajans, There he approved his courage luftily. Row this ftrong Grant and his Hoglemen fought baliantly, but the Greeks and Hercules byed their Swoods with their blook and the Grife was to great, that men might fe nothing elfe but beads and arms fly in the field. Hercules fmote no ftroke burif was the beath of one of his enemies. Achelous in like mannet Aroke

H

Oc

froke for froke Imate bown one of the Iconians. The relidue of their folk bin the belt they could vet could not the Achaians confound and put back their apperfaries, hombeit they were atmays four against one: and the Iconians were in areas number. and they had always fresh supplies fent them. In this mannet the two puillants fought together more than four hours. Love mought lose there, in Hercules and in Achelous, both of them made their Swazos to flourith covered wich blood. Ebey met of tentimes and fmote each other, but never burft Achelous abine before the Sweet of Hercules, for the berrible Brokes that be fam Heroules give, but he put bim in the prefe as foon as be had ans ereb bim.

in be ts

to

ħ,

be

t.

ČS

15

be

t,

at

m

20

Ď,

ni

u

b

g

.

ne

.

Û

12 0.

ıt

ı,

ť

ŧ

E

In this battel, Hercules performes monders, and Ocneus tok a great pleature to behold him: but the Achajans has therein bilpleafure, for they that law him, were no more affureb to escave the beath than be that feeleth the Sword in the band of Eprant. There received no man a ftroke of him, but he about in the place: be made to great a flaughter that no man can well mute it. In the end king Ocneus with all his Calcodonians come to the battel : in his coming the Achajans received lols spon lols, and peril upon peril. The king Ocneus made many bis enemies to bye. Hercules themed his puillance more and tope : by his well boing be put the Achaians all but of array. no after unto flight, and the lols of the field turned greatly into the bamage of Bing Achelous: for Hercules chales him hamefully into his thing and made him to lote thefte thouland Achajans. off warr it their no

CHAP, XVI

How Herester put to the worft the King deletour, and how he espoused Dejanira.

Free this victory, when Hercules fam that King Achelous faben bimfelf by the ben, be callen fing Oeneus, and his he would purfue his Cuemp, and beliver the world of him ; ther which an hundred of his cholen men tok leave of the Bing Ocneus, and ment to Sea, following after Achelous, recoms menbina mending bim to George, and Dejanira. In the Diabe, Ocneus after the peparting of Hercules returned into Calcedonia, and told his Wife and his Daughtere, the high prowels that Hercules has some in the battel, how he had chafes bis Cnemies and gone after with two bundred men. The Lavies George and Dianira mere right forfult of the victory, but it griebes them fore that Hercules with to tittle a company purfued Achelogs and alloye all weber D. janira was greatly bered at the enter. mise of Hercules, to toze that the went into her Chamber, and was confirating to way, and not to have joy in heart until the return of Hercines. " Pow co return unto the purpole touching Hercules, when he was pur to the perfuit of Achelous, he energy into his mealm and foliphed him to night that he was contrained to withour buntelf into a frong Cattle flanding by the Sea, Hercules beffegen Achefous to bis Caffle. Wiben A. chelous fam that Hercules perfuet him with fo little a come pany as with two hundred men only be called his leaders of his men, and among acherthings told them, that it was a chame to lufter themfelbes to be belieger with to little a number of pen ple. Thep antwered be lajo truth: and concluded the fame home to iffue out, and raife the flege, and fathwith they founden u It was not foug after that they iffue arms with thort countel. out of the Cattle, but Hercales etgying them, knew that the earlie to the baccet, he fet his men in array, and went alone to his enemies, as he that doubled nothing. When Achelous law him coine, be began to make a great ligh, and creed unto bis people upon him : faping that it was be with the Club that hav chaled him out of Calcedonia and promiled areat aifts unto them that belaboured bint wieb frakes. 12ont when big folk knew that it was Herceles they made contitude tach to other to be be fore, and crembling as the leaf on a Tree, they omit not abive the weight of his Club; but without Imiting of any froke turs ned their batks, and Hed unto the Callie.

Acheron teering the periadions of his total and the teacher that the beyond the property of the control of the court have been and the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the court of the

i

93

rs

SE C

1 þ¢

ti

te

by ne

15

to 03

ÍS

av

m

M

De

では世界

ng

Dealing of his enemies. Hercules began to think on Dejanira, and Achelous began to imagine both be might annoy the Calcedonians : he had there one of his Captains, that fail unto him: Dir, pe know well that your frength, may not compare unto the Arengeh of pour enemies : Bale are ten againft one, but that map nothing bely us : for the mighty Grant that is with them is enough to bury us all, and beffroy your Realm. . Confiber pe then, fince it is fo, that open vuillance and plain frength may not be used at this time, it is expedient to imagine some fubtilty, to griebe the Calcedonians: and it is my abbice that there hall be made a great flaming light in the Dea, fuch as I hall well bevile, fo as by that means they that have belleged us may be veceibed lightly. This flaming light muft be by night. and it thall be great and forcible : we will make it fecretly : as Ion as our enemies thall fee it, they will leap out of their Tents. and gounto the Dea to fee the marvel peradventure without as up Arms, for they bread us not, and then we will fet on them. and thall find them unfurnithed and unprovided of their Arms, and confequently it may enfue, that of them all we wall make a notable ripbance.

When Achelous heard this countel, it femed to him good, and he would that it were effected in fuch manner as he had bebilen. The bebilor bid make an hundred Torches, which were finithed in fifteen daps. During thele ufteen daps, Hercules als failed many times the Caffle, where Achelous was, but he might never bo any thing thereto, for the Fortrels from upon the Sea, and in a ftrong Countrey, and could not be gotten by affault, and Achelous could have fuccours from no part : for bes tween this Caffle and Achaja, was a great Countray. the fifteen days were valled, and the Lorches were made, on a night when it was peaceable from wind and float, they that carries the Morches illued out of the Caffle, four of them unte the Daven. where was left but one little Boat which was on ground and has not long time before put to the Sea. demand mere the Shing mere become that Achelous hourest to this Part, I lay that Hercules had cauted to take them. and tent them to the Sea, to the intent that Achelous foully not PUCEDC

efrape bim, not take away the Ships by night. The Achajans then came to this little Bont lying on the ground, and plure them that they brought in affoat on the Sea, as fecretly as they could, and entreb therein, with all that to them was necessary. Bing Achelous put himfelf in ambufhment with a thousand of his men, nich unto the place where he thought the Calcedonians mould no out to fee the tight that hould be made. And when they that were in the bea, knew that it was time to links their Doiches, they fet them on fire, and put them round about the waft, wherein were made as many holes as there was Wors And to as they imagined, they bib. The Bnights that hept the watch of the boff of Hercules fat it, and fore marbet ing at this light, awaked Hercules and their fellows, and thems en them the limbt. As foon as Hercules law the brightness of the Touches he would know what it was : and then approaches the bank of the Sea, and his company with bim, and bad not been long there, when Bing Achelous bib cante to light an bunviet Touches that he had provides, and after he iffned out of his ambuffment with his thousand men, and ran upon Hercules. and affailed bim and all his men flercely. But when Hercules faw them discoper chemistoes, he fet his people in order in the bell manner be could, by the light of the Bears, and received his enemies couragioudy, where began a right bologous battel's for the one foroce upon the other very furtoutly, and there were many wounder and bead. The skirinith was great, Achelous thought to come at unawates, but he was baliantly refitted, and foll many of his men : and Hercules wet Achelous, and fmate him on the Belm, that he foundred, and it gave him a wound on his bean, that the blood graber our and moreover, he tack hint. and nelibered him to tweethe of his men to keep. There were great cryes, and great abundance of frokes of Dwoiby. Then were the Anithes: quenched, and put out by the force of the fmitting of the Achajans, which veliced greatly to refeue their aing ; and in they abandonev their fives in the fleat. Bur when their America inverse queueped, by utilis and ticle, they become to con them, and withouse them, to they fare nothing ar all. den they were withmamn, Hercules aftentiled his folk, and faib

nt lu

foto them, That he mould affail to take the Caffle, and that they bould follow him baroth and fiercely : and anon, when he fam his enemies return unto the Caffte, he ran after and flape them, and put himfelf in the thickelt of them, fmiting with bis Club on the right fibe and on the left, be mabe a right large place. And by this wap be led bis people unto the Bate of the Calle, where he entred with them that den, and there made lo meat a flaughter of his enemies, that with little refifance, the fame night he put to beath timelve hundred, and the other wo into the City of Petrace, from whence they were. In this battel, and the battel that had been in Calcedonia, all the men of Achaja were flain, ercept four bunget mhich faben them? felbes by flight of or Achelous had taken all his men with him. his Countrey and his City Petrace, was all bestropes, When Hercules had taken the Calile, afterward he went into the City of Petrace: and entring into all places without reliffance, be fee this Meatin into the bands of hing Ocneus, and be tare rieb not long after be hab luboueb chis Mealm, buc returnen, as buffily as be might, to fe Dejanira : and there be was receibed with to great glozp, joy and triumph, that no man can rehearde Bos mitte.

Lie Poets report this conquest that Hercules made upon Achelous, feigning that Achelous fought such in likenels of a mour and being banquished, he after changed himself into a herpeut. This is to be understood in subtilinels and in malice, as bend in assailing Hercules by night. To conclude, he saught in the likenels of a Bull, and Hercules brake one of his horns; that is to be understood, that as last Achelous was as sierce as a Bull, for prine, and servine that he was taken a and Hercules when his bong, that is to be understood he brake and destroyed his Mealm.

ń

Ò

Eg.

n

1

.

f

t

.

ú

CHAP XVII

How Meffee took Dejanie from Howder when he paffed with hor wow and neither welf in the first work has fave at several work for the fave has bifocled to rain. he would was bifocled to rain. he would

West than the feet that hing Onneus made to the bidoties that Histories had achieved, upon bing Achelous; for he feared him palling lote. Hercules at his coming prefence of bin Achelous and his Meatin, and faid co bim that he foutin habe if without any vental. The Bing O neus fent Bing Asl chelous into exile, and acknowledged himfelf greatly bebolie ing to Hercules whom be honoured marbelloufly. I ben Her cules took to his beatt again amotous conceits : in like manner bio Defanira. Ge hab loveraign joy to fe Hercules, and beiteb none other thing. Doc to be cevious, when Hercules had bem there a I pace, be required Bing Oeneus that he would give bim bis bangbeer to Mife. Oeneus agreed, and according to him, and Denaira confenced wich becter will. The Webbing waste Temnized pompoully, and then went to bed and lay conethers Soon after, when Hercules law that his father in law hav his Realm in peace, be took leave of the Ming Ocneus, and Departs et from Calcedonia, with Dejanira and his people, to go by land into his Realm of Leonia. Hercules had always in his tourner Dejanira by him : be loved her ercebingly, and has great folace in her beauty: and if he had not fludico with Arlas, he could not have abstained him from beholving her beauty. In Malling the time pleafantly, in the manner that folk bo that be new Married, Hercules fournies to far, that be came to a nuarter of Theffaly, where the River of Hebenus runnerh, and actives on this Kiber, which was beep and broad running imple twoody and has neither bringe nor plank to valwober, but there mas a Centaure named Neffus, that frent there bis life, by the means of a little Boat, in which he carried the people as ber the River.

bemandes of him then he and his folk might palsethe kilvers Nesses threat Receives have the rime be have nonquised his fell lows at the Alledding of Pyrothus, answered that he might not pals the kilver, but by his little Boat. And if he would pals, he would note good will be him the pleasure to see him over Hoteless thanken Nesses, so has nice was disposed to rain, he would make the land the time was disposed to rain, he would that Dejanka and her Bamolels should pass with a Bejanka and her Bamolels should pass with a Bejanka my her Bandolels should pass with a Bejanka my her Bandolels should pass with a Bejanka my her Bandolels should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be should be 20 4 5

- W H

tir.

Aal

Di:

er.

ed

ET IN

lod.

è

its

N.

ty de au

is,

.

nt

at

le,

Ü

ģ

T.

E.

5,

et

1

semina be bebeld Dejanira, and loked on ber fo much that her Leauty ravilled him. For as fon as he was come over ou the other five, be tolo Dejanira, the thould be his willife, and carchine boto on bet, he took ber on his thouldiers, and bare ber away: wherefore Dejanira and her Damolels made great crycg. Hercules fring that the old Cyant bare away Dejanira, which he would refift to his power, bent his Bow, and that an Arrow ubon the Opant, with fo great cunning, that he imore him on the right fibe unto the beart, and gave him his bearhs wound. The Bow of Hercul's was to great and frong, that no man could bend it but himfelf. Neffus by the wound that Hercules gabe him. began to feel the approaching of Death, and to fuffer tharp ans guith be ran a greet while after unto a Mafley, where he felt boton, and confidering that his fife had no recovery, he employed the end of it, to imagine how he might so displeasure to Hercules, talling to remembrance, that he had a most terrible and mortal poplon about him he laid to Dejanira in great matice. Fair das by, the Lobe of you hard enaled me to receive the beach. which displeaseth me not so much as that Horeules hall enjoy you, who beferbe a far worthier man. Hercules is no true Bugband, but the unfaithfulleft to bis Wife that ever was. B have Angular pity of you, and your beauty confraineth me to Do you pleasure. I will give you here a meciousthing, it haning luch bertue, that if you boyl it with one of the thirts, of Hercules bich the blod that runneth out of my wound, and gibe the birt to Hercules, that he mear it, he thalf never after Love any other woman nor Lapp but pout it to dad to de as And wich thele woods the Gyant tok the poplan, and temper beet tradich the blod, and woundictua linnen Chath, and gate true Dojanira. The fadich Dejan her giving crevit to the doords of the Gyant, tok the poplan. The Gyant chargeoden, that no man hould touch it bare, saying then it would be the bertue after the douching and with that, he gave up the Obolhand dy wo pitiously, so Dejanira escaping sately from his bands a purpoled that he would keep that poplan security at all sometimes, to bely her self, if it were need. While these things possed bestween Dejanira and the Gyant, Hercules was much per piezed so.

for Dejanira. As foon as be bat fmitten bin on the right to with his Arrow, be untloathen himlelf, and call bis Bown, in Barnels, and Club, ober the Water, by bis great Grength, an Leaping in, Iwam over unto the other fine, then as he put on is rayment, Dejanira (again accompanied wich ber Damolele) came to the River furnifhed with that benemous poplon. Willber Hercules fam Dejamira return, be imagined that he bab flain the Brant and bemanbed where the Traitor was. Dejanira anfmer th not at firft to this his bemand, but faib unto him : Alas me Hoab in what peril habe 3 been ? Wilhat oppgeffion ? Wilhat be fpair of toy hath oppreffed my beart ? The traches of mine Arms where per is len, the print of the hands of the Wyant, them in what difutealure I have been : The curled glutton Gu anr bare me unto the pepel of a beep balley, where beath apprais ching by the froke of your Arrow, made him to fall bown, and he monto neber let me go until the last fight of beath. Surely ! have fuffered a great teopardy, but thanks be to the Bods.fince ? have found you again, I am fufficiently avenged of mine enemy whom I bave fen bye miletably.

ï

Í

ľ

0

4

ti

CHAP. XVIII.

How Hereules fought against Hydra, the Serpent of the Moor

Excedes and Dejanira having kissed each other, Hercules went unto the place where the Grant lay bead and fotal much as he found him veryived of life, he let him lie there to the beats and birds, and took his Arrow that lay by him. This was the Arrow that Achillis was stain with after in the Kennyle of Phoedus in Troy, for the love of Polizene. Then Hercules and Dejanira came again to the River, and Hercules set over his men, and went from that place to the City of Lerna. The king of the City div great honour to Hercules, receiving him as he nourably as he conin. Among vivers talk, Hercules demanded crowings of him. The King answered, That he knew no other, but that in a great place there above a monster, half a man, and half a verpent, that murthered many of his Kealin. For he sale.

foid, that all the men, women, and children this monter can find, he sayeth with bis tail that envenomed, with his claws and teth destroying and devouring all. And so it will come to pass that this Countrey will be dessate, for the Labourers nor Perspants dare not go by, with less company than two hundred men: and if they be less, the Ponter assaileth them, like as he bath bone many others.

ń

ER

T.

17

25

nt nt,

30

nd

joc

des

ale

the 180

of

T

bis

ng

100

Ded

er,

ub

be

iv,

Hercules was palling glad and forful of these typings, and laid to the King: Dir, I have laboured bitherte for the Coms mon weal of many Realms, and yet have I the will to perlebere, and bothe works of bertue. Inow ve then, fince I am bere arrived. I will bo fome what for the weal of this Country, as 3 babe bone for many other. And 3 habe intention to mond ww to to my uctermost endeabour to travel towards the monfer to abide the abbenture of banquiffing him.o. to be banquiffe co of bim. This Montter was called Hydra, foralmuch as be welled in the Waters. Then Dejanira heard the enterplize MHercules, that he would go alone, and abantone himfelf in fo great peril, the began to men, and make to great fortow, that so man could appeale ber, no; make ber ftint ber weeping. Hercules comforted her the beft he could, to did Atlas and Philotes and themen ber the glogious beens of Hercules, to give her hope in this abbenture. But all could not abail. the fo loved Plercumies mithall ber bearr ant might. She required bim with ber ener charged fuffent tears, that he would abitain from to bigh an enterprize, faying, that it was no willow for a man to et wie himfelf to to eminent bangers, and that God had fent the confer into the Country, to corred and chaffile the people? Porwithflanding Hercules was berp arbently in love with her: not ber tears that the wept, not ber prayers, not ber realong, mulbraufe Hercules to break his purpole, nor leave of the abbenture. But early in the morning be cloathed him, and bes parted from Lerna, and tok his way rowards the Son, wherein was then Pontter. Addit of south a state . 200021

Ehis Poor was long, and three Piles in compals, as the Chronicles of Spain rehearle, and all environed with Fountains that frang out of the high Pountains. In the intoff of this Plain was a great Lake, wherein bwelled the Hydra on Dipland. When Hercules mas come unto this place the Hydra that never fleut with both eyes, had always the neck oute Bretcheb on high, and the ear open, elpping him, fubbenly came against him running with great force. Hercules above when he efpied the marbellous Wonter, and had great pleafure to fe him : He was ten fot high, and had as long a tail : be was foul and covered with hair: The bad his body armed, and his right band helb a naked Sword, and in his left be carried a Shielb. Hercules thus beholding him, fuffered him to come to him. Then the Monfter frake to him, and faid, Door Brant, mbis ther goeff thou ? Behold this Sweet, Charply on both fibes cutting: yet was there neber man that beard me freak, but be byed by the point of this Sword. Foralmuch as 3 am the wifeff Creature that eber Rature mabe, I am accuftomeb to make a queftion to fuch men as I find, and then beftroy them if they cans not answer thereto. Ifind in my Realm people bull as beaffs. mithout unberftanbing, and babe therefore beftraves their blook to will I bo thine, if thou canft not affort a Sophifm that I fhall make unto the. D thou man Serventine, (fait Hercules) thine Cloquence, the Dandence, the cruel Smoot, foul and polluced mith infinite homicides, make me nothing abatheb, not biscouras geth me: I lought the and am come bither to befroy the. And I will not only afford one of thy Sophisms but as many as thou sand peible: and know. That if by force of my wit, 3 affort thy Sophilms and falacious arguments, 3 will bo to the like as thou fouldit bo to me: and if it happen that the frience may not overcome me, pet befend the with arms, and that thou keep the life as well as thou canft.

Mith these words, the Ponster made unto Herenles seven Sophisms one after another, all fallacious and subtil: Then when Hercules had given solution to one, the Ponster replyed by seven arguments. Det Hercules sull of Philosophy, and expert in all Sciences, made answer so substantially to all his salacious Asymments, that he set him at a Ron-plus? For this sause the Poets seign this Hydra had seven heads, as it appears the in the first Tragedy of Seneca, and say, that when Hercules bad smitten off one of the heads, seven other heads came again in the same place. In the end then to pursue this matter, when Hercules had so disputed, the Serpent vielded to Hercules, in such wise as he will not what to say. Hercules said unto him the serpent inhumane, we have sought long enough with the tongue. Take thy Swood, I may no longer withhold my hand from smiting the, and assay if thou he as subtil in arms, as thou art in language. Pool soil said the Serpent (which was full of Prive) knowes not thou, that hy my part Serpentine, I have insected all this Country? And I will this day drink thy blood, and bedout thy body: wherefore make watch, and keep thee well.

Whithout more words Hercules en hau nied his Sword, for to have Imitten his adverlary, but he could not to foon half him, but the Serpent gave him first two strokes, one with his Sword, and the other with his tail, wherewith he had almost smitten him down to the ground. Pet Hercules above standing, and with his Sword lifted up, he smote the Ponster upon the Pelm with such strength, that he crushed the Pelm, and made him a wound in the head. At this stroke the Serpent was full of sury, and with his Sword smote Hercules the second time upon the helm, that the sparkles and the sire seem out, and the Pelm was broken, &cc.

Hercules that never before had received to great a Aroke, promifed him that he would revenge it, and finote him right angerly. Their Arokes were great and deadly, they finote each at other long, and they were both of them of great courage. But when fortune had enough therished them both, the turned against the Seepent so earnessly, that after many Arokes, Hercules smote his Swood within the Pelminto his head, and bare him bead unto the earth.

H. reules resource greatly, when he saw the Pontier put to the foyl, and went so; to setch the king of Lerna, with Dejanira, and his solk, and brought them to see the Pontier. When he had thewed them the Pontier, he made a great fire and burned it. Wherefore there were given unto him great praises. He was brought to the City of Lerna, with great glopy of Las pies and of Bentlewomen, who conveyed him unto the Bings Balace finging melobiouffy. Dejanira then reforced greatly in the triumphant bidory of ber noble Busband. Athen Hercules hab tarried there a while, he bevarted thence, and went to Athens, where Thefeus received him glozioully. Then Hercules and Atlas beld School in Athens, for as much as they of Athens were quick of wit, and gabe themfelves all to learn Sciences. There they were a great while, introducing and informing them of Athens in Philosophy, but especially in Aftronomy, Aclas proficed in fuch wife, that the Students there faid, be fuffained and bare the Beavens on his houldiers D noble bers thous man. When Hescules bab frent fome time there, and Audied fo long that his Dodrine hab given light unto the Athenians, be beparted from chence with great bemoaning, and brought his Wife unto the City of Lycia. And then was fo greatly renowned, that from all the Bealms of Greece, there came baily to bim Poblemen and other, to profit in Wertue, Das blenels, Bonour, Arms, Philolophy, Aftronomy, and all other Werfedions.

CHAP. XIX.

How Hercules went into Spain and fighting on the Sea, vanquilaed King Gerion, and took the City of Megidds.

A Bout the time that Hercules flourished in vertue, and his Rame was born from Kealm to Kealm by glorious Resnown as the Chronicles of Spain rehearle, there was a King of the City of Megidda, that frandeth upon the Kiver of Gaudian, that through his Tyrannical dealings, began to make his name have a great report by many tyrannics, that no man could tell the third part. This Tyrant had to name Gerion, he was king of Andalocie, and Defremadure, and also of the Hounsains of Galicia, and Portugal. The Poets feign, of this Tyrant, that he had three heads, for almost as he had two Breethen, great Giants, which were all of one Rature, and four plexion, and they were so united together, that all that the one would, the other mould: they were never in discord, Gerion was the

the wort of all. De cauled to be mabe a Temple, in the Ciep of Megidda, and orvained all they that were Roble fould there have their Image and Sepulture : and that men thould make the remembrances of all the men of note that he fould flay, to the end, there hould be a memogy of them hereafter. Thus be and his Brethen tiranized, not only over frangers, but his neighbours, and pitied no man, infomuch that he got him an es wil name : And the Africans whom thep perfecuted moze than any, went and complained to Hercules, by Affers command as to the only deftroper of Trants and Bonflers, and requells ed him to beliber them out of that Tribulation. Withen Hercules understood the complaint of the Africans, and was abbets tiled of the Tyranny that Gerion and his Brethren uled : De belianed to go into Helperie, and promiled to the Africans, that they (bould have horely typings of him. And asked them of the Hate of Bing Affer. And when they had told all that they knew. they returned with great toy into their country. Hereules from thencefarth, bilpoled bim to go into Helperie, wherefore his Wife Dejanira made great forrow. The renown of this boys age was fpread in all the Countrey. In Gott time there came moze men of Arms into Lycia, to ferbe Hercules than be fent for be was fo good, bountiful, wife and valiant, that he gabe away all his fpoils, wherefore every man would follow him, for no man ferbed bim, but be rewarded and enriched bim in wealth and happinels. When his Army was ready, he took leave of Dejanira, and beparted out of the Realm of Lycia. Many a tear was then at his beparting, as well of Dejanira, as of his Scholars that learned of him. Thefeus and Hilpan, Atlas and Philotes were with him. During this voyage, be ftubier ofce times with Ailas, and was never Jole, without boing formes what that onathe to be remembred, We arrived in Africk, where be found Affer, who received him worthipfully. From Africk Hercules paffen by the trait of Gibralter and went into the Gabes, that now me call Galicia and peopled the Countrey for almuch as he found there good land, and betroered this people unto a noble man named Philiffines. This Philiffines, as Boccace rehearleth in the Genealogie of Cous, mas fon of hing Agenor.

Agenor, Son of King Belus Philiftines then reigned in Calicia, and was after named the Priest of Hercules; for when Hercules had vanquished the Tyrants of Hesperic, he founded there a Temple, which he held after in great reverence. Always as Hercules peopled and inhabited this Land, he did cause to be made Pillars of Columns high and marvellous great, and set them upon the Sea: and upon every Pillar of Column, he made an image of hard stone in the likeness of Hercules, clad with the skin of a kion. And one of the Images held a Table wherein was mitten with letters of Gold, Pass no surther to seek land, nor go to conquer further any keasens in the West, for thou shalt find no more Land, &c.

The noble Hercules went then into the Countrey, where frandeth now the City of Sivil, which was not then founden. and found by his fcience, that there Bould be builded a City of areat renown: in memory thereof, be fet up in that place a villar of hard ftones, and thereupon fet an Image bolding in his hand written, There should be made one of the greatest Cities in the world. This Land of Galicia appertained to Gerion. Then when Hercules hab made this pillar, and fet it whereas now fanbeth Sivil; be hat a great befire to begin to built the City, for the Countrey was very good and commodious. But Atlas by the fcience of Aftronomy, counfelled bim to the contrary, the wing bim by certain figns, that it was by beffing that another thould build the City. And therefore nigh the Wil. lar, be made a Column of white Parble, upon which flood the Image of Hercules great and rich, that held one hand against the Caft, wherein mas mitten: Here hath been Hercules. And with the other hand he the wed the writing that the other Image help.

These things accomplished, Hercules departed from thence and lest to Inhabit and kep the Country eight hundred men of his, of the Country of Scythia, that were throng and expert in Arms, and with good will they above there, because the Country was plentiful. Then went Hercules by the banks of the Dea, into the last and furthermost part of Europe, and sailed for that he entred into the River of Guadiana, where the

Tyrant

Evrant Gerion Dwelled, and above in the City of Megidda. The fame time that Hercules entred into the Miber, Gerion went up to the top of an bigh Tower, where be might fe all about the Countrep, to efore if any perfon came, upon whom he might erercife bis Tpranny: De had not been long there, when be beheld the Hiber, and fam the Army of Hercules : And feiner this Army, be had great foy, for he thought in all bait be fould obercome them. Witthout other belay, be allembled bis coms plices, and founded to Arms. Within a little white all his men that were ready with Arms, came unto him to know what he woulde Wilhen Gerion was armed, and ready to go to the battel, he peclared to his people bis intention. Then entring into his Galley as baffily as be could be went to Megidda, approaching toward the Greeks. Thus rowing forth it hapned that he met a little Boat : And from as far as he faw it coming, he went against it, and arrested it. In this Woat were no moze than two Marriners and Hifpan. Gerion then called Hifpan. and bemanded of him whither be ment and what he wase Eruly fr, answered Hilpan, 3 am a Greek, and have intention to go to the Bing Gerion, that is now in his City of Megidda, to Dife patch a mellage 3 am charged with. Wellenger (laid the Bing) if pe let Gerion, pe ned go no further, for I am be, whom ye Speak unto, Dir (antwered Hifpan) fince that you be he to whom my meffage apperrainert, 3 let pout have knowlege in the name of the berruous Hercules, that he is an enemy to pour bis ces : and to correct your great and abominable trefpaffes, be is come into your Dominion. Deffenger (answered Gerian) how is Hercules fo prefumptuous as to take upon bint to come and correct my Mices ? We knows little with whom be bath to bo: go cell him, that be half find me, but it fall be too foon for his bealth, and that I will featt bim in fuch wife ere be efcape me. as 3 have ben accustomen to featt frangers. Hispan beparted, with thefe words, and returned to Hercules, and sold him worm for word what Gerion had fait unto him : moreover he fait, be would meet with him fpebily, prepared and ready to begin the battel. When Hispan hab finither his mellage, the Walleys of Ming Gerion appeared and were fon from far. Hercules and the:

0

3

ct

e

of 1 30

at

the Greeks hav great for any began a loud thouting in formuine Mrumpets, Fifes and Mabours. Gerion and bis folk feeing and bearing their Enemies, they likewife began to hour, and make a marbellous great noife. The Air was filled with a great and topful noise. In this outragious noise, the two Bolts approachs ed each other. At their encountring was not fvared Darts. tound fones, no Arrows. They of Helperic had abundance of Darts, which they uled and call on the Greeks as if it had been rain. The croes repoubled on the one fibe and on the other : to that there were many flain and burt. They were all men of War : each man bare bim balfantly, and amonalt all ether. Hercules babing his Bow in hand, flew as many enemies as be that Arrows. The that bured long, Withen it failed they fought band to hand. Then began the battel to be camer and bard. Gerion the web himfelf boilterous, and erpert in arms, and put to beath many Greeks, but for one that he flew Hercules flew ten of the Heforians, it noise of the area cremits as our made

At the encounter of the Galleys where were many bure Hercules tok his Club and Imiting one of the Wallers, that thought to have grabled and boarbed his Galley, be mabe it cleabe in funder, and the water came in to fundentp that the most part of them in that Galley were browner, without engaging. After this Hercules came to another Ballep, and there of mat wels ! all that he bit with his Club were veat, or tone hare a Some he brained, and of others be brake legs and arms. Te feemes to thunber with him : be bid fo beffir him, that each man fieb from bim and there was no man that withtoo bim, or durft abibe him : Wilhen he law this? he pur himfelf forth co explote great affairs. Leaving from Balley to Ballen and mate fo great flaucheers, that his people by his good example abounded in val lour and puillance, and the Hilperians Diminifhed : and has fo much bamage that all things went against them. Gerion con-Mering, that fortime was bis Chomp, lounded a retreat, and left fes port fubat Gerien had laid unto him : mot couer igented ift world meet with bim fuebily, prepared and ready to begin the

Cathen Hispan bav finiffer his meffane, the College of Bien Geron agreered and there fou from far.

CHAP.

CHAP COXXIII and the land to the

How Gerion affailed Herenles the fecond time, before Megidda, how Herenles flew his brethren, vanquished, and constrained Gerion to flee.

A / Den Hercules fam his enemies buffe to withozaw be found bed the retreat, foralmuch as it was near night, and allo because be had enclosed the Galleys of Gerion, that they might not return into the City without valling by him. Wihen the two Armies were withdrawn, Gerion in the barkelt of the night, Shipped and went into the City of Valeritia, whereof one of bis Brethren was Bing and put him there in fafety in purpole tomake the greatest Army that he could to come upon Hercus les. Hercules after the retreat, anchozed his Galleys upon the Riber of Gaudians, and paffer there that night : on the mos row when be law that Gerion and his folk were fleb, and were not upon the Sea within fight, he rowed an unto the City of Megidde, took fand and affailed fiercely the City. The affault was eager and tharp, and the Megiddans befended themfelves, but they were to dif-furnished with men of War, that they could not bold out, but opening the Lown to the Greeks vielded to Heroules. Thus was Heroules Lord of the principal City that Gerion hab, be entred into it, and the Greeks with him! The City was well provided with vidual. So that fince they des parted out of Greece, they found no where to good Fortune. Hercules hero him there a space of time, searching in what place he might find Gerien. During thefe things be went unto the Tem. ple, to thank his God. In this Temple were many Sepuls tures, garnifee with very fair marvellous Diffozies. Among other, there was one palling rich: for the remembrance of Gerion, of fine golo, environed with thirty Kings, whole heads were Imitten off. Hercules above at this Deputinte, and bes manded of the Citizens wherefore ferved the Statues and 3. mages fo rich. A Citizen faib to bim That they were the Des pultures of the Roble men of their Realm, and that Bing Getion, had brought up that cuffom to make thele Depultures, to hape

n

ġ

O

ns Et

u

P.

have remembrance of them that were valiant in Arms. Furs thermore (faib that fame man)as fon as in this Countrey a man bath put a Roble man to beath, then be maketh aremembrance of that bead man upon bis Depulture. And fogalmuch as Bing Gerion in his time bath flain thirty kings, be caufes this Des pulture to be made which you fee, meaning to be buried bere in the end of his bang. Withen Hercules beard this, that the Citis sen fait, he answered, the belo bimfelf banup be had escaped the Sword of fuch a Tyrant, that put fo many Bings to beath, and made his Prapers to bis God : After this be returned to the Balace, and there came to him the Bellenger of ling Gerion: who by the nomer of his Balter, commanded him to aboid the City and the Realm, or elle make god match. Hercules and Iweren, That he was entred into the Realm, and into the City. with frength of arms, and be would not go out thereof, until one hav taken from him bis Smort by force of Atms, or until the time that he put the Countrey in obedience.

The Pellenger returned from Megidda, with this answer to Gerion, who was with his two Brethren; they took the mords of Hercules impatiently, and Iware they would along them of him. To be hort, they went to the Sea with a great

Arma

Then romen and failed with all their Brength unte Megidda: the Wind and Hortune lufterenthem in fem Dans, to arrive at the Post : Hercules was abuiled of their coming who luffered them to take land, and let them reft that pay : they were fifty thousand men. Withen they tanked it was late, and feeing the Greeks made no befence at their lauding, they faid one to and ther. That they burff uet come farth and Bott them. Thinking all to have won adbantage, thereupon concludes, That on the morrow they would affail the City perpearly. Then this concluffon, Gerion and bis Brethen confibered of things appertaining to the Alleult, menacing greatly Hercules and his Oregke who mere then in Megidda, thinking like wile on their affairs , not only in the incention to betend them from their enemies, but to libre out the pay following to affail them by Battel, as look as the night palled. A little belove the Sun tis fina, ing, on the mortow, Hercules made two battalians. In the first, he put a thousand sighting men, and conducted them. In the second he put the residue of his Army, and made Theseus Captain, of them. After this, when he had very well trained his people and set them in good order, he admonished them to do their enseadour, and minded them of certain things, but could not finish his speech: For that same time, Gerion and his brethen, with their folk, made their approaches to assall the City, and made so great noise, that all about it redumbed.

When Hercules heard this uppear, he opened the Gate, to behold what new things was there. And at the isluing out he saw his enemies halt them to the Fores and Walls, with Ladders and other Engines his for an assult. Then he began to laugh in himself, and bade his men follow him: and went straights way forth to begin the skirmich.

5

r

.

wahen Gerion faw Hercules, he knew him, by the skin of the Lion, and his Club, and the wed him to bis Brethien, that marvelled of him, because he came alone upon them. Loe bere is out mortal abberlarie (late Gerion) he is full of prive, and Wetteth little by us : Let us allait bim all three, and beftrop him: all the gold in the world shall not lave his life. Hercules with thefe words, came to nigh the three Grants, that he could well tweak unco them, and faid: We evil Typanis, lay bown pour weapons : It is now no time to affail the City, it behabeth pour to dispose pout to enter into battel. The battel is ready, begin at me, and 3 at you, and let us fight together till more come. With these words he lifted up his Club and charged the froke to love upon one of the three Brethren, that he call his Shiels. and all affented base him to the earth. Withen Gerion and his other brother, fam their brother lo born bown, they fmote with their Swoods upon Hercules, with great fury, and to employed their frength, that they brake oft part of his Armour. With thefe two frokes of their wwords, Hercules received more than an hundred barrs upon his body, howfoever the Swords not Darts were not to hard tempered, that they could pierce the armour of Hercules, not Hercules left not to mork with his Club, but he lift it up on bigh and froke it upon the fecond bros ther ther of Gerion, to luftily, that from the top to the Belm be bouiled him, and finote him to the ground, like as if a great

Rock had fall'n on his head.

G rion was loze afraid to lee logreat a froke, and with a wonderful angry and fierce heat, he laid upon Hercules, and gave him so great a froke upon the Helm with his Swood that he made the fire spring out: but the Helm was so heard that the Swood could not enter. Then was Hercules environed with his enesmies, and was smitten in many a place upon his body. The Hesperians desired soze to see their Swoods dyed with the blood of Hercules, but Hercules put himself in desence, joyous that he might employ his frength upon them.

And when he probed him thus upon one and other, and would luffer none to come nearer than his arm and Club could reach, and that his enemies more and more came about him, Malion that was Rephew to Ulyffes iffuer out of Megidda, with a thous fand mon of the Army of Hercules. And feeing fo great a come pany about Hercules, was affured that he fought there, he and his people addressed them thicherwards, making lo great a cry, and letting on to baliantly, that in bearing bown all before them, they came and found Hercules where be had flain move than fir hundred of his enemies, and that he feared nothing. Thep that bare the Scating-Labbers and other Engines were confraince to call them bown, and go to the battel, which was griebous and hard; and there were many Bnights dain. Gerion for his part, beftieres himfelf terribly : Bis Broiber that was first beaten, after be was carried out of the prefs came uns to the field again ; and in his caming he made great rom among the Greeks, be was from and pullant, and bare a very beavy Quilarme, the eoge of which was three great foot long, be die mariels with this Quifarme, and beat bown fo many of the Greeks, that the noise arose greatly about bim. And this noise and alarm came to the ears of Hercules. Then Hercules left them that he tought with and as fon as he faw the Grant, that poalt with the Greeks as he would, not well contented with that Guilarme: Lifted up bis Club, and Imote the Grant uvon the Coulder, employing his Grength in fuch wife, that the Coulder brake brake and bare him down to the ground, not fully dead, but in worke estate: for he might not relieve himself, and nust needs doe under the feet of the men of Arms very milerably.

9

At this time Thefeus and Hifpan, with the refione of the Greeks, came unto the battel very forfully, and finding their enemies out of array, and without any conduct, they skirmifed among them fiercely, and few fo many that all the place was cobered. Hifpan and Thefeus cleft the heads of many linights : they were expert in feats of arms. At their coming they made their enemies to retire, and wan upon them with fo good fors tune, that by their means Gerion loftabove thirty thousand men. In those frace the battel was fuch about Hercules, that his enes mies knew not where to fabe them. And Gerion being abbers tifen of the beath of his fecond Brother, turned bis back and fled unto the Dea, blowing his horn, anon they endeaboured fude benly to put themfelbes to flight, and they that could fave thems felbes, laben them without belay, Hercules, Thefeus, and Hifpan with about twelve hundred Greeks followed them fwifely : ens tring into fome of their Ships, but bab not Pariners to ready, as the other, wherefore they were a little letteb.

CHAP. XXI.

How Hercules purfied Gerion: and vanquishing him, put him to

Then was finished the Battel for this day, to the great loss and dishonour of Gerion, and the honour and profic of Hercules. Massion abode in Megidda, by the appointment of Hercules, to keep the Greeks that abode there, and take the spoil of their enemies. Hercules on the other side sailed after Gerion, who perceiving him was sore afraid, and sled: his sight during three days. Gerion had good Mariners, who kept them wartly from boarding the Ship of Hercules. Sailing by the Mediterranean Sea, from Coast to Coast, now before, and now behind, but the end was such, that on the fourth day they were constrained to abide Hercules at the battel upon the Sea, and bescend to land at the Coregne in Galicia. To six the beath, where it whereof they were in boubt, they left the Bea and took the Land at a Port, imagining that they fould well befend them against Hercules, for they mere ten against one. As lon as they han taken Land at the Bost of Corogne, they trained them about the Port to befend the Bea, which was frong to take. then Gerion warned his men, faping : Dete is the bour or the day that we must bye or obercome our enemies. Foreune bath bone us the worlt the can, the was wont to make all Grangers tremble before our Smords. Row the maketh us to tremble bes fore a little number of people. Alas what hame is this : Since we are at this point, there is no way but to avenge this fhame. If we avenge ugat this time we thall recover our bonour. How tune bath brought us into a very good Poor, as if the will raile us again, and make us Conquerous of our adverfaries : let us now befend the Post, abenge our blood, abenge our forrowand abence our bamage.

In the mean while that Gerion encouraged thus his folk Hercules and his company rower to night the Bost, that they mere come to Arokes. The Hefperians call upon Hercules round fromes, parts with tharp Irons on the end frears and fwords. Against this the Greeks took their hields and covered them, and put them in devoir, to win the Bost. But the casting of the Helperians was fo mortal that it confirming their enemies to abide and not approach the Bost. They had at this Post great abundance of stones. The Helperians kept well the entry more than three bours, to that the Greeks could find no way not means to reme, by it. At the end of three hours. Hercufes pery forrowful to fee his men croubles, thought be would enter tuto a little Boat, and is abbenture himfelf to win the Wort.

Then he that boubted no froke of any mental man entred in to a fittle boat, frearing it himfelf, with bely of the wind, which was for his abbantage, hopled up the fail, and abbenturing as fast as be could be brought the Boat unto the Poor bue be received more than an hundred frokes with Rones : that his bail that flood up an end by force of the Wind, was fmitten full of holes, the cords broken, and the Matt overthrown, and the boat almost filed with stones.

T

CH

bir

Botwithstanding Hercules ceased not at all from his enterprize, but through he paffed by all the Arokes of his enemies, labouring to that he took land, and though himfelf among the Helperians, and there be began to fmite with his Club, on the right five, and on the left, end long, and overethwart, with fuch an abundance of valour and promels, that all the place was red with their blood and brains. Thefeus and Hispan, and fifty of the Greeks best armed, by the example of Hercules, tok also a light boat, and adventured themselves to win the Wort: Hercules was even at the mouth of the Wort, he faw Thefeus come, and to make him paffage, be ran bere and there, and bid to much burt to the Hefperians, that without great banger they tok land and friang out of their boat. Then was the affault bot and furious. Gerion came to the Landing of Thefeus, and at least three bundred of his men that followed bim. All they Imote, and laid upon the Greeks, and of the fifty they flew ten. When Thefeus and Hifpan fam that, their hearts began to Quell. They encouraged themfelbes, and pierced the affembly of Gerion, and against one man that was flatu of theirs, they hem fifty Hesperians, and there they used their prowelles so, that they did wonders by their Arms.

Gerion even byed for forrow that be might not come to have his will on the Greeks: He and his men were eager as Tygers that had been famished. The Greeks were mighty and firong as Clephants: their stokes were great, they boudged neither. Dart not brood, put all in advenuers. The Bactel was surjeurs, and the Greeks received many a wound: always Hispan and Theseus by their marvellous promesses saved them from death, and made passage though a great pass, where Herendes has.

Heroules that left not to smite, was very grad when he saw Theseus and Hispan, and their forty Companions. Their tomeing toff Gerion the death of a thousand men and more: for Heroules to encourage his men, added to his deeds frength upon fixingth, promets upour promets, consounding this enemies savientially, deathing the mitoward the Sean, that they that same him, wished they had been in their mothers womb: and in these

9

1

f

t

3 mg

ing they were in fuch haff, that they beat each other into the Sea, and flew themlelbes.

Then was Gerion finisten to the heart with great ire; mingled with impatience: so he put himself into the press, and smote not only upon Hercules, but also upon the companions of Thescus: he smote the first man upon the Helm, that he clest his head unto the teeth. After he allasted another, and bate him to the earth, so also ited that he will not where he was. Consequently, he made there a great Passacre subbens on the Greeks, that he dyed his Swood with their blood, and the Greeks were conftrained to make a great cry for fuccout.

At this leafon the Greeks that were left with their Gallevs entred into the Post, and took Land eaftly. Wifen Hercules beard the cry that his men made, be ran thitber to the affault and made about them a new noile, great and pitious. Gerion knew that the noile came because of Hercules, for he saw him come and Imice in the thickeft of the Breis, then be called to his folk, and chearen them, but had there to areat milan, that for one froke Hercules gabe bim wich bis Club by chance, be was confrained to bepart the wiels, and to withdraw bim as part with them that were wearp, to take his breath. Gerion afterward fought to his extremity, and calling his eves upon the skirmif, be fam the Greeks upon the Post, and providing them unto battel. Then he fam bow thep put many of his men to the! worth, and that he might not refff it all his lolles came before bis ever and be began to figh, and faid with a bolozous heart: Alas, what is the mutability of Fortune ? Flattering fortune, what ball thou chought ? All the honour thou haft given me heretofore, rebounds now to my fhame : fince thou half fent me to many goods, wherefore haft thou fent to me Hercules ? This is the enemy of all my gloop. De from a thining fame bath brought me now unto a name full of barknefs. If then halt given bim lufficient : Let bim not come after me wich his horrible beeds. All my being be replenished with furies, my beart murmureth to felf boyling withire. D what great mil bap is this : fince it mult needs be 3 thall be unfortunace, 3 will verily one of the Club whereof I have feen my brother ove: or 13

TE

it

I will take bengeance. Gerion all out of his wit, with these words put him in the press, crying: Gerion, Gerion, to encourage his men. Thus crying, end saking Hercules, he put to death many Greeks: he was all surfous, so as his dword was doed with the blood of his enemies. In the end he came to Hercules, and with his dword so doed, he smore him some. Hercules was weary, sor without ceasing he above sighting by the space of four hours, and had received upon his arms so many strokes, that no mancould number them. Porwithstanding, he sed not at all from Gerion, but came to him joyfully and fought against him with so great sorce, that all they that saw it markelled: and after many strokes, Hercules smote him one so great, that he bruised Gerion, and heat the brains out of his head, and smore the Helm off his shoulders, so that he fell among the dead.

CHAP. XXII.

How Hereules founded the City of Corogne upon the Tomb of Gerion.

Thus was the end of the unhappy life of Gerion the Tre rant: he dued as his two brethren did by the Club of Hercules. When the Hesperians saw him brought to that pass, as to tall the bitter mostel of beath, all left their arms, bemailing forowfully the beath of Gerion, and fell into befpair : Do that lome Caped fill to be flain, others fleb by Deferts, Mountains, and the Banks of the Sea. When Hercules efpred them fo dismayed, he thanked his God, and purfued his enemies: The purluit bured unto the evening. The Greeks filled the Fields, the Mountains, and the Ways by the Dea, with Lipob. Withen the night was come, Hercules and the Greeks without them into the Galleys to refresh themselves. The hurt men wore remembred and comforced with the Mictory and Sport. The beary men forgot the labour and toyl that they had bone. They tefted them after their travel, and paffed the night over. Wilhen it was day, Hercules iffued out of his Balley, and beholding the Post, it famed to him that a City would frant well there.

13

,

e:

h at s

1

13

and then fair. That forthwith be would make one there, and conelubeb to begin it. . De fent to all places, where he knew any people were there abouts, and gabe to each man knowledge that he was minded to make a City there, and the first perfon that would come to put hand thereto, fould have the Coverne ment thereof : this thing was known in Galicia. Pany came thither, but a woman named Corogne was the first that came. And therefore Hercules gabe unto ber the ruling thereof, and named it Corogne, in remembrance of the victory that he han there. Anon the haby of Gerion he founded a Tower, and by his Art composed a Lamp burning continually bay and night, with out putting of any thing thereto. Which burned aftermarh the frace of the bundred years. Borcober upon the pinacle or top of the Tower, he made an Image of Copper, looking into the Sea and gabe him in his hand a Looking glals babing fuch bertue, that if it happened that any man of War on the Sea came to harm the City Lubbenly, their Army and their coming Moulo appear in this faid Looking glafs, and that bured unto the time of Nebuchadonozar, who being abbertifed of the pro-Derty of the Blafs, filled his Galleys with white things and green boughs and leaves, that in the Looking. Blafs they and peared no other but a wood: whereby the Corognians not know ing of any other thing than their Glass themed to them bib not furniff them with men of Arms, as they bad ben accustomen when their enemies came. And thus Nebuchadonozar took the City in a mouning, beftroping the Looking Blafs and the Wiben the Mower was made, Hercules caufed to come Lamu. thither all the Maios of the Countrey, and willed them to make a folemn feaft in remembrance of the beath of Gerion. Then be beparteb unto Megidda, where were prefented unto bim one hundjed Dren of the faireff.

CHAP. XXIII.

How Hercules affailing King Cacus, overcame him, and how Coens began to tyrannize in Italy,

Frer this Conquelt, as Hercules intended to people this A new Countrey, cybings came to bim, that in the City of Cartha-

t

t

Í

f

b CI

Carthagenia, a Bing and Opant Beignet, namet Cacus, who was palling evil and full of Eprannpand bad flain by bis curfed bealing the Kings of Arragon and of Navar, their Wibes & Chilozen, and pollelled their Seigniozies, and allo beld in fubs fection all the Country of Italy. Hercules receibed joyoully thefe tydings, and faid, By the pleature of God, be mould allay to take bengeance of the Death of the Things of Arragon and Navar. Then be disposed him unto this work, and having an appetite to correct the Bing Cacus, as foon as an Army might be ready, be went unto the Realm of Castile, where was hing Cacus in the City of Carthagenia, that flood befibe a Bountain named Monachajo. And he palling by many Realms that bid him obey. fance, for his vertuous renown: he came to Carthagenia, the Bing Cacus came against him in Arms : for he had been adders tiled of his coming. And as he entred into the frontiers, Cacus fent unto him one of his Anights that fait to him thele words: Hercules, thou open Tyrant, thou haft thine heart greater than thy body, and woulde affail the Beabens, to conquer them if God had given the wings to fip: if thou boff feek peace and love, unto Bing Cacus, the equal in condition and Fortune, I faluce thee in his name : and if thou boft come as his enemy, 3 befie the in bis name : And in no wife be thou to barby as to enter into this Country. If thou enter, knew that thou thalt find in Cacus, and in the Castilians to bard an encounter, that from thy evil abbenture hall no man of thy company be quit. Anight (anfwered Hercules) whatfoever you be, you fow not that you have the heart of a Roble man. For it is a thame to all men, especially to a Roble man, to milecall or speak evil of another man. You have called me an open Tyrant, and allo you have compared me to the Tyrant Cacus. Janfwer you to this Article, that Jam no Tprant, but a beftroper of Tyrants: therefore return again unto Cacus, and certifie bim,that I babe intention to thew what hate I have to Tyrants: and within few dayes he chall receive a hard encounter, notwich fanding his bravadoes. Which this answer the Castilian departed from Hercules, and returned unto hing Cacus, and told him word for word what Hercules hav fair. Wiben Cacus had beard this, be â

b

to 04

10

n:

et

ed he

be me ke

he

me

OW

his

ha-

was abathed not withstanding he was a frong and puissant Op ant, and had never found a man thronger than himlelf: for the renown of Hercules was then to great through the univertal Motorio, that the most frong, molt affured in Arms, and the most fortunate boubted him and trembled bearing freak of his being Dowbeit Cacus rook courage in himself, and without fign of being abalbeb, in the prefence of his Bobles, faib: Bleffed he the nert baps, that Rature and Fortune hall bring to us, to make proof and force of our trength. Dow it behoveth that Cal ffile and Sicil feb the force of their arms, to befend Bing Cacus from the Claws of his enemies: and it is of necessity likes wife, that hing Cacus, for his people put forth the uttermon of his Arengeb. Row go we on my brethren and friends, we are come to the War. The Greeks come upon Callile without as ny quarrel, let us go againft them, and fight for our Country? the Birbs fight one against another for their Bells, and the bumb Beatts for the Capes. Bature leabeth them to bo for if we have the fame Rature, the time is come that we ought to thew it.

Enbenthe Cafilians and the Arragonous that were there. beard Cacus fpeak, they praifed queatly his courage an antwers ed all with one voice, they were ready to affail their enemies, With this answer the Bing did dis looge his bott that he had there in the Fields: and went forth against Hercules, the Araichtest way he could. Bing Cacus beffred to find Hercules, Hercules on the other fibe wiffed to fee Cacus. They went fo long the one against the other, that foon after they faw each os ther nigh to a place where Hercules after founded a City, which was named Terricone. As foon as they law each other, they bes gan to make great fop, with thouts and cryes. Then they trains ed them in order of battel, and marched the one against the or ther to tharply, that they filled the air in thost space with thot of Arrows, cafting of Stones, and Darts. At the beginning of this battel,the Castilians bare them baliantly, and there were many of their part flain, more by hardinels than for fear. For they but themselves too far forth. And they fearco not the thot of the Greeks, though they were thick, that all the Ground was red mith with their blood. And the Cassilians which were so far gone, and soze chased, were divised back again to their fellows. When bing Caeus saw his folk so soze bedead, and heard that they resembled from the shot of the Greeks: he had very great soziow in his heart, and knew not what to bo to withstand the force of the Battel: Some sted, others went back, and others fell bown, sead of soze hurt. The Battel dured long to the soziow of hing Caeus. But in the end the shot of the Greeks sailed, and the Cassilians with Caeus recovered new strength, that they came to close sight, hand to hand with their Swozios, they shed largely the blood of them of Tyre, and of Ancone, which were in the first front of the battels of Herewiss.

The noise great: There were many Shields broken, and skins of Lions cut in pieces. As Cacus approached, it femed as Tempett: De was frong fierce, and outragious in Imiting. each of his Arokes was the beath of a Greek. De bio fo much, that the croes of them that were about him mounted up into the Air, that the Castilians hav well nigh won all, and began to tejopee for their good fortune, and chafing the Greeks to death : but like as a clear day is oftentimes troubled by a bark Cloud, to by the alone coming of Hercules to skirmith, all their joy was troubled, and turned into mortal loffes. For the beatly arm of Hercules laid about him to terribly, that he beat down the Ca-Milians, like as a Mower with his Scythe cutteth bown the grafs in a green Meadow. Tothen Cacus fam Hercules fo founs ber his men, his blood was on fire, and he was to ercedingly enraged, that in a great fury be prefenced himfelf before the front of Hercules, and Imote him with his Sword to furioully, that he cleft his Shield in two parts. The Castilians feing the Shield of Hercules fly in pieces, thought that Cacus had put him to beath, then they made a thout for joy, but it dured not long : for Hercules lift up bis Club and fmote Cacus upon the top of the Delm with fuch frength, that it femed to Cacus be had been imieten bown with the greateft Bock in Spain-Det notwillanding Cacus above flanding in his place, chals lenging Hercules to the beath, and smote him with all his might. At this affailing, the Castilians hoping the Fortune of Cacus, they all affailed Hercul s.

Hercules was gone to far among his Enemies, that he was feparated from his company. When he heard Cacus threaten him to death, and law that the Calillians affailed him, and tame to him from all fides, his heart was filled with furp, and abandoning the thickness and hardness of his skin of the Lion to the Swords of them all without revenging him, tave only against Cacus, he smote him without measure. Cacus fought with the spirit of a Expant chased, Hercules fought with a heart nourished in Airtue. Both of them were sierce, strong, and of great courage: But when they had both enough each of other, at length the strokes of Hercules were so great and force ble, that the shoulders of Cacus, no, his head could sustain them. So in the end, after their battel had dured two hours. Cacus could no moze fuffer bim, but fleb.

Withen Hercules law that Cacus fled. he meant not to follow. but for the Midory, began to bem on the Castilians, Arragonn vs. and fuch others as he found; for he teft no man alibe before bim, poung nor old, feeble nor frong. Hifpan and the other of bis five, mage their feats of Arms to flourif. The Battel was tharp: for the Greeks boubled and reboubled their Grokes and flew many oftheir enemies. In the end, when Cacus had taken his breath, be put again into the middle at one fibe, where his folk fled, and made them tarry, Imiting and beating the Grecks more terribly than he had bone before, whereof the cries arole to high, that Hercules fighting on another libe, beard, and ran thicher at all abbenture. And as be eliped Cacus, be went before him, and broke the prefe, and fmote bown fo fore, that Cacus knew him, but burft not abibe him, but fied away again: Then the Greeks make a fout, and a topful notfe, fo that all the Caffilians fled fome bete, fome there, to the great burt and lois of Cacus: for of all his people there was left no more but fifty which laved themselves upon the Bount of Tonchayo. With from there by. But with great effusion of blood of them of Cartilia, that thought to babe mounted up with the other, fo that it femen there had ben a Spring of Blood, the Caves in the Malley were filled with blood: howbeit Cacus laved himfelf and fiftp fifty of his men upon the Hountains, as the Chronicles of Spain rehearle. When he was above, and in sure peace he resturned, and booking down to the foot of the hill, saw so may Cast lians, that were without number dead, or indanger to die; he had great sorrow then at his heart, not so; pity, but despite, and so; the dangers that he saw he must pass. Anon after he saw in the Champaigne, each quarter and place there, all covered with them of his party, and of their blood. Also he saw them that sed taken, and brought to the hands of the other, These things considered, the desolation of his Dominion, and punishment of his tyranny was to him evident: he though: then that Hercules would soon conquerall the Country: so; they os beyed him through fear, and not so; natural love.

Porwithstanding he despaired not, albeit that he saw the pusissance of his men destroyed by the Club of Hercules, and knew that he might no moze reign in that Countrey, because they were all sain, then he returned unto his Science, and as sorrowful as he was, he entred into a house he had there, but first appointed twelve of his men to keep the passage of this Hount, which was so strait and narrow, that there could go up but one man as ouce.

b

t

t

).

n

31

O

Withen Hercules and his men bab put to beath all their Ches mies, Hercules began to affait the Bock, and got upon the oce gres or ffairs: but then fundenly they that kept the Wallage, cast upon him great fones, in fo great abundance that of force be was conftrained to befcent. Withen Hercules fam that be mind wichozaw him, he obeyed fortune, not wichstanding he made a vow, That he would never bepart from the foot of the Hock. till be had conftrained Cacus to descend, by samine or otherwise: This bow mate, Hercules came unto the faot of the bill, where the battel bab ben, and mabe the place clean, and purgebit of the bead bodies, and of the blood of them that lay bead. After that be made his Tent of boughs and leaves, and his Wed of freih grafs, and commanded that every man fould lodge there. toben the day was enved, and night approached, the Greeks were weary, for they had all day laboured in arms, and would fain have reff, and made good chear wich that they had. And after they had ordained, and fet their Watch, as well to keep the Coall, as to keep the Noch that Cacus fould not come down, they laid them down upon the grals, in fuch wife as they were accus fromed when they were in the War, and to flept that night.

On the morrow, Hercules parted the Poft in twain, and fent Hispan with one ofthem into Arragon, and Niverre, and he remained with the other. Hilpan in the name of Hercules, was topfully received of the Navarroys, and of the Arragonys. And they all made to him obeviance acknowledging Hercules to be their Low, and the most bereuous Prince that was in the will, When Hilpan had subbued them, he returned unto Hercules. Hereules lay pet ftill before Monchaye, and there beld Cacus in Subjection, that he thould not iffue out. Cacus and his folk were then in great want of vidual and they will not what to eat or brink. They beferred as long as they might, boping that Hercules would be weary of being long there. But in the end when their Miduals failed, they law that they muft needs abbenture themselves to come bown ; Cacus by bis Science made certain fecret things to go bown into their Comachs, and after put thereto fire, and taught all the other to bo fo; then suddenly as they felt the fire iffue out of their mouths, the fume and Imoke in fuch abundance, they femed all on a light fire; then by the counfel of Cacus they abbentured themfelbes to befrend bown in running, and calting fire and fume to impetuoufly, that Hercules and the Greeks thought it had been a Tempett of Lightning from the Beavens, and had burnt the Mountains; for it was a thing to make men fore abathed: and thus they escaped the bane der of Hercules at that time. For during all that day the Mock was full of fmoke and fume that Cacus had made, and the fmoke was fo material, that it femed barknels.

Cacus and his folk thus passed the Host of Hercules and the Greeks: Then Hercules who was the wisest Clerk in the World, so employed himself in study, he took his Books and began to seatch how and by what reason the fire descended from the Kock: he read much, but all things well considered, he found not that this sume came of natural things, whereof he had great marvel. Then he sent so, Aclas, that always was long-ed behind the Boft, to be folicarp. Withen Atlas was come, be hewed him the Imoak and fume that dured pet; then he told of the Lightning that had paffed by the Boft, and bemanded of him his opinion. Atlas knew incontinent the fume, and answered to Hercules. Certes my Son, thou art moze harp in Science than 3, for mine age may not attain to fuch bigh things as thy youth. Bowbeit, for as much as I know, the growing of this thing long time paft : 3 will cell thee, (what 3 fay thou that find true as I Suppole.) Therefore know, that this fume is a thing artificial, and made by the craft of Vulcan, the father of Cacus, who was an erceffent Bafter in this Science, and was the inventor thereof : he made certain Bountains in Cicily to burn, and thall burn continually to the end of the Worls. Cacus which knew the Art of his father, bath made this fume toescape thy hands, he is bescended with his company in the form of Lightning or Dempet, and thus thy firengeh is beceis bed to his Science. Withen Herenles unperflood this, that Atin had faid to him, be greatly marvelled at the Science of Cacus, and could not believe it. Then to know the truth be took his Club, and went up through the smoak, unto the top of the Mock leeking Cacus: but be found there neither man not beaf, then he returned unto Atlas, and laurbing, confested to him that be had faid truth and faid, be would make no purfuit after him, foralmuch as he was fo gencleman-like eleaped. This day they paffed over in speaking and communing of Cacus and his facher Vulcan. The bay following, when the Imoak and fume was bas nifen away, Herdules began to behold the Country, and fa wit was commodians and ferrite, and so the end that there hould ever be remembrance of him, he founded there a City which he named Terracone, foralmuch as be gave this Country, to the Son of the Bing of Ancone, and there he made him owell wieb big people, and with them of Tyre. Horcules after this fourmation, ment to the City of Salamanque, and foralmuch as it was well inhabited, he would make there a felemn fluby, and Dio make in the earth a great round hale in manner of a Study, and be fet therein the feben liberal Sciences, with many other Books, sails moral to edicat sile strasder 41

ant of the beath of Cacus.

Ê

9

e

Ū

1

Then he made them of the Country to come thither to things but they were to rube and oull, that their wits could not come prize any cunning of Science. Then foralmuch as Hercules would bepart on his voyage, and would that his fludy were maintained, he made an Image of gold unto his likenels, which be die fee up on bich in the mion of his auop upon a Willarians made to by his Art, that all they that came before this Image. to have beclaration of any Science, to all purpoles, and all Sci. ences, the Image answered, instructed, and taight the Schols Tars with Scubents, as it had been Hercules in his proper pers fon. The renown of this fluor was great in all the Countrey. And this Study oures after the time that St. James converted Spain unto the Chriftian Faith : from Salamanque Hercules Des parced and went into Catalogne, and founded there the City of Barfeloigne, which is a good City. And finally, when he had accomplified all thefe things, he fent Atlas home again into bis Country, but he belo by him all his Whattings, for he tobeb Boks above all the riches of the World. After he would gibe leave unto Philotes to return unto his Country, but Philotes refused his Congie, and faid to bim, that he would ferve him all his life, cand reputed his felicity more great to be in his fervice, than to govern the Country that Fortune hav put into his band. Hercules after this called Hifpan, and fato to bim: Hifpan, 3 know thy wit and thy valour, I have found thee always wife and true. Thou art a man of authority, and bery well known in thefe Coaffs, 3 bo now make and conflicute thee to be hing of ber all this Country : and I do give unto thee charge to love percue, and maintain the bowene. Taken Hilpan heard the gift that Hercules bellowed on him, be fell bown at his feet & thank ed bim, and erculed bim of that bonout. But Hercules faib to him, he would have it to, and belivered to him a certain number of his people to ferbe bim. Afterwards he caused him to bepart, with areas fighs and forrows. And Hipan mens then would the Countries that He wiles hav conquered from Gerson aub Gutus. And from thenceforth the Country was named Spall afterhis Rame : Walerefree I will now ceale fpeaking of his Conquet af Spain, and will rehearle the beebs of Arms that Hercules bit in Lombardy, and of the beath of Cacus. CHAP.

CHAP. XXIV.

How Hercules fought against the eleven Gyants of Cremena, and vanquished them.

NIDm where are the Mings, Emperours, Souldans, and Drinces, that I may freak of the bertuous liberality of them, equal or like unto those of Hercules ? The men at this bay fight one against another, and make many conquells : but they attribute them unto their angular profit. They refemble not Hercules, he never fought but for the common weal of the Mozib. To purfue my bilcourfe ; Wihen be mabe Hifpan Bing of all the Region of Helperic, that now is named Spain, he fent for his Dron, bis kine, and bis Calbes, and afrer bevarred from Barfeloigne, and tok his way into Lombardy, he ment on his fourney till be came nigh the City of Cremona, which is but a bays fourney from Millan. There were in this City eleven Byants great of mealure. Thele eleben Gyants were all biethren, and fons of Nelco, the fon of Saturn. They called themselves all Bings of this City. They held all estate Rope al, howbeit their Revenues were but small, but they were thiebes, and robbed their neighbours, and made them always War. When they knew that Hercules approached their Gity, they affembled their Council, and bemanbed one of anos ther. If they hould fuffer Hercules to enter into their City? All were of one opinion, that they Gould not receive him, and they would fend unto him one of them, which was named Neflor, that be fould not enter into Cremona, untels be first had banquifhed in battel the eleven Weethen. Neffor at the commandment of the Byants, Departed from Cremons, and went to Hercules, whom he found with his little army, lying but three miles biffant from Cremona.

Then spake he to Herculas, and said to him; Dir, I have ten Brethren Bings of Cremona, that have sent me auto thee, soralmuch as thou entrest into their Dominion, and they certifie thee by me, that they will give unto thee no passage into Gremona, unless thou first overcome them, one after another in battel: therefore chuse whether thou wilt have the battel, or else return again, and leave off this boyage. I advertise they that they are all Cyants, more great and more puissant then I am. Sit knight (answered Hercules) I have taken my way to pals by Cremona, let the Cyants know that Hercules hath an intention to speak unto them, as he that dreaded not, nor fears the their actusioned Aprannies, which I must betier the world of, by feats of Arms. And to the end that they presume not that I have any doubt or dread of them in any manner, ye shall say unto them, that I will not fight with them ten, one after another, but all at once together, and you with them, if you will accompany them: to do so, they shall find me ready to morrowearly, by day light.

Hereales with these words made his people to abide, and rest there so; that night. And Nestor returned to his Brethren, and said: My Brethren, a have spoken to Hercules, and told him your commandement: He hath answered unto me with a high and plain courage, that he will sight with us to morrow: not one after another, but with us all at once. And to theak plainly of him, he hath semblance of a valiant man, and survished with prowess the is a Prince very modes, and of great courage. It behoves you to surnish well the battes. Certainly se will be perillous, so, he is mightly membred and as hig as one of us, but me thinketh he may not compare, no; prevail against as eleven, and that he may not escape our forces, hus we shall piece him with our Swords, whatsoever force of trength is in him.

The Opakts hearing him to praise Hercules, has great marvet of him, and would not believe Nester, of that he has reported, that he would sight with them all together at once: Not there were none of them all but he thought himself strong es nough for Hercules. Then they asked again if Nector were sure to have well unberstood what Hercules said unto him, that he would sight against them all at once e Nester auswered, pea, and that he has heard himsay it in his proper person. Which this unswer they considered, that on the morrow they should Arm them all, and that they would go to the Field to sight againft

maint Hercules, if be came againft them. Dne of the Gyants faid unto his Brethien , To morrow thall be the day of our glory. Wie fhall banquith the Manquifber of Monfters: Let us make good chear. Brother (answered Neffor) therein is no boubt, but that we shall overcome him that pe fpeak of, but fo much fall our glozy be the lefs, being eleven against one. Well, fait another, if in fighting against us eleven we hall babe the tels bonour, let us every man fight for himfelf 13:00 ther (aufwered Neftor)if pe had feen and heard him as I habe, pe would not be fo hardy as you feem : be is another manner of man than you think of. Bep you at the offer that he hath made. it is better to have the most profit, and less honour in fuch a cale. In thefe conferences they palled all that bay, afterwarb they went to reft. When the hour was come, on the morrow early they arole, and made themselves ready the best they could. After they fent one of their men unto Hercules, to know what be would fay: but as foon as the Dellenger iffned out of the Bate, the first thing be fam was a Giant armed marvellouffy: the Weffenger abode then, and abbifed bim a little. After be had adviced himfelf, be went unto the Gyant armed, and asked bim what be was ? I am Hercules, fain the Gyant. What will pou lay, or have, faid the Wellenger . I fay, faid Hercules, that the Grants of Cremona have no cause to let me the passage of their City. Forafmuch as they gave me to understand veffers bap, if I would have paffage, it bebovech me to banquift them one afcer another in the field by battel : Jam come hither in hope to win the vidozy, and bemand no other thing but to fee them in arms, to fight wirb them altogether at once, to babe the fooner bone. Wherefore go to them, fignifie my coming, and haft them.

The Pellenger with these words returned unto the Gyants, and told them all what he had found. Allen the Gyants knew that Hercules was already come into the field, they all took their Swords, and their furniture of War, and departed from the City, addressing themselves against Hercules. Hercules was then alone in the place. The men and women of Cremona went upon the Walls and Towers to see the battel. Philotes with other Roble men of the Greeks, were upon an Hill, far enough from the place where Hercules was abiding the Gyants. They were all well furnished with Helmets enriched with gold and fromes. They were great and frong, all of one measure, they were bearded, and had fierce countenances: they marched flourly, with a great courage.

with

Then they came nigh to Hercules, within half a Bow Hot, they all menaced him to the death, and made a cry so great, that the walls of their City redounded. Then they ran against the assured Prince, like as they had been Lions: Hercules hearing these cryes, seeing their course on foot, staped for them, lifting up his Club ober his head.

When it came to meeting, it seemed the Gyants would have bruised him with their Swords, for they smote upon him so unsmeasurably, that the pieces of their Swords slew into the Air. Hercules suffered them, and beheld what power they had: when they made their assurant him, Hecules made his assurant upon them, and with his Club smote one of the Gyants upon the Helm, that he all bruised not only his Helm, but his head, that he fell down suddenly dead. When the other ten Gyants saw their brother dead of one stroke, they had great sorrow, and their blood moved. Pature willed them to take hary bengeance. They did what they could, and assailed Hercules eagerly on all sides.

Hercules seared not any stroke of Swood, Spear, or Poleare: his skin of the Lion was hard and strong: his strength was stable, and his Club desended all, so it need, great was the strokes that they gave each other. The Gyants did their best endeadours, and gave strokes enough to Hercules, but they could never pierce the skin of the Lion, it was so hard: yet his Club was harder. The Gyants marbelled at the constance and published of Hercules. As soon as Hercules list up his Club to stifke them, they seaped asse, and otherwhiles brake his strakes: howbeit in less time than an hour, he sew sour of them, and the other seven sought afterwards, by such vigor, that the more he mote them with his Club, the more surious he sound them and fierce.

The battel was terrible and hard, for the Chants were ffrong, and long had uled the skill of Arms, great pain had they to fabe themfelves, and fmalt bope to revenge the blood of their Bies then, and gain the bonour of the battel. They fait that they were unfortunate, feeing they might not overcome one man as lone, not equal bim. In fighting they belyed and comforced each other, and had all good courage. But what did their number of Brethren profit them ? Wihat availed them their couragious Brokes, when they were approaching their beath . Hircules was always. Hercules: he rejoyced much in the number of his enes mies, be comforted himfelf in Fortune, Fortune belped bim, be bid marvels on all fides, well could be fight, and well bes fended be himfelf, all that he did was well done: all that the others bid was nought worth, not with fanding they were migh. ty. Butthe luck of Hercules was not to be broken, norhis Club to be fopled: but he Eriumphed, and bis valour encrealed to fuffain the furies of his adverfaries, who with all their might charged him with their frokes. D marvellaus frenath and might of a man. Dis puillance was not of a man, but of an @ lephant : his skin of the Lion feemed that it had been tempered with quick and hard feel : his body feemed moze confrant as gainst the cutting Swords of all his enemies, than is an Anvil against the frokes of many hammers, or great flevges: there was no Broke of his enemy that grieved him he rook great pleas lute in the battel ; feeing bimtelf among fo many Opanes. De fill greatly rejoyced, and there was nothing griebing bim, but the beclining of the bap which began to fail.

At this bour, when the Sun with help her rays, and turned into the Welt, Hercules mould make an end of his battel. The Oyants began to reale to limite, for from the mounting to the evening, they fought without ceasing: and Hercules behaved himself smiting upon one and other, laying about him surrously, that of some he brake Delmers and Deads, of others he brake arms and sides markellously, and gave many great trokes, that he beat power all except, Nestor, who sied amay, when he is with discomfigure. Therein he vid wifely, so, all his breetyen were Qain by the hand of Hereules.

o lateral

When they of Cremona fam their Lords dead, they foones nough made an end of their mourning and forrow, for they have been to them hard and troubleforme. At the end of this battel. they affembled to Council, when they faw Hercules had mon . the vidory, and concluded together, that they would vield thems felves to Hercules, and his mercy. Which this conclusion they iffued out of the Bates in a great number and came to Hercules the Conqueros of his enemies:first they kneeled before him bown to the ground : lecondly, they praved and required of bim mers cy : and thirdly, they furrendred unto him their Ciep and their goods, and faib they would hold him for their Lord buring their lives. Hercules, who was pritful and gentle, to them that burns bled chemfelbes, received the Cremonians into his fabour, and made them fand up, and after fent for them of bis Boft. Wilhen they were come, he brought them all into Cremona, where great joy was made : for they were glad of the death of the Spanes. And there was no man, woman, not chilo, but bis rejopce.

In this manner was Hercules king of Cremons, and enricked with a new title of victory. The first night that he entred into the City, he rested him and his people: and were well restreshed and well seasted. On the morrow he caused to bring into the City the bodies of the Opanes that were dead, and his risd them worshipfully. Their he founded upon them a very great and high Tower, and upon the Cower he see sleven starues of mercal, after the sabion of the Spanes that he had sain, in remembrance of his victory.

After the Goification of this Cower, Hercules left in Cremona, folk to govern them, and beparted themse to go firebet into the Country. He fludied alway, and was never tole; he unied to much that he could make the fire artificial as well as Cacus: and found the remedies against the same. What by arms and by his science, he got very great glosy in haly. He went into many places, and over all where he tame and went, men viv him keverence. Which great good adverture he went so far, that he came to a City standing nigh the Mount Aventine, where Reigned a king named Evander, which received him so lemnly.

g t

th Pr

th

to

Tenuly. It is to be noted, that when Cacus flet from Monchayo, be came into Italy unto this Mount, bilplealed that be had loft his Seigniozy. Then be gabe all bis ferbants leave to Depart from him, and in befpair, be went to the Mount Aventine in an evening, where he was conftrained to withdaw bims felf, for be feared Hercules much. When be was come on this Will be found there a great Cave, and went in without his fupe per, and then be began to be discomforted greatly, and faig: Alas, now am 3 exiled, and banifbed out of all my Seigniozieg. and Lordhips. Row have I no fuccour nor comfort of perfon. I bare not name me Bing, where I was wont by my name to make Bings to tremble alas all is turned, and become upfibe down. I have nothing to eat, not no where to longe, unlefa it be with the beaffs. D poor Bing : where is any man fo uns bappy as 3 ? 3 am fo unfortunate, that 3 bare not be fen nor known. - With thefe words be laid bim bown upon the bare ground, and laid a ftone under his head, and with great pain and grief fell a flep, which bured not long, for his veins were fronglp flirred, his heart was not quiet, and his body was beep evil fustained. After be awoke, be went out of the Cabe, to look if it were nigh day : for the night troubled him, and was to him too long. But when he was come into the air, he faw no bay aps pear, not Stars not Moon fhine, but he found it all bark, and all the Regions of the air covered with clouds, whereat he was greatly griebed. Then be went into the Cave again, not into the depett, but into the mouth, and there (forrowful and penfive) above without flæping till it was bay.

When the day appeared, Cacus went out of the Cabe, up unto the top of the Hill, and began to view the Country about. The Country femed to him good and fair to live there. After great pensivenels and many thoughts, he concluded in himself, that he would abide there, and would live of booties, rapine, and these. After he bethought himself, that he would go unto king Pricus of Calidonic, which was his Couzen, to have his Mise, that he had chosen, to bear him company, and that he would ask and demand marriage one of his Daughters. With this sould have departed from the Dount Ayentine, and took his

10 10

e,

15

mar

may unto Calidonie. Some fap Calidonie to that Country that me call Calabria, Then Cacus was come to Calidonie, the Bing Pricus received bim as it appertained to a Bing, forals much as he knew him, and was of his Linage: and bemanden of him his tydings. Cacus began to figh, when he faw that he muft tell his mithan, and tolo him from the beginning to the end, how Hercu'es had taken from bim his Mealms, and bow he had ben beliegen, and was efcaped. Fogalmuch (laid be) as 3 Dare not abide in my own Country, I am come hither unto you for refuge to count my forrows. I have intention to hold me on the Bount Aventine in a Cabe that is there, until that time mp enemy Hercules fall bepart from my Beritage : and I will keep me there to fecret, that no man in the world fail babe knowledge thereof, to the end that Hercules know it not, foral much as he bath me in great bate, and he bath moze greater bap and fortune in arms than I have: And if be knew that I were in any place. I am certain be would come thither to beftroy me. This confideren 3 have cholen this Cabe to hive me, as I have faid: It is to that the eves of a man being in great trous ble, rejoyce in the light of a woman, for a woman is a comfort to a man. Wherefore I require you that you will give me to wife one of your Daughters. And if it pleafe you to to bo, you hall bo me a greater friendlip than I can have for this prefent time. King Pricus answered Cacus Dott are of high bils cent, and have great Lordhips in Helperia. If fortune mere against you this day, your Digbnels ourbe not therefore to be the morfe efterned. I have four Daughters, of whom the one is named Yole. Take whom it pleafeth von ercept Yole, for 1 will not pet marry her. And if you have any will to make an Army against Hercules, tell me plainly, 3 will fuccour you as a true and faithful friend. Cacus was bery well content with the answer of the Bing, and thanked him, faving that he would make no Army for this fealon, but pals this time in the Cabe as he had purposed. Then the three Daughters of Bing Pricus were fent for, and Cacus chose one of them, which he wedner, and after lay with her, and above there two bays. At the end af two days he would bepart and took leave of the King. The King

Bing would habe belibered unto him ten Bnights, and ten Clquites to have brought him on his wap; but be refuled them and would have none. Then he would habe belibered to him cere tain Ladies and Damofels, but of all them he took none fave the two Siders of his Wife : which would by force go with bim. Thus then be bepartes from Calidonie, accompanied with the three Sifters. De was alway forrowful, and from that time forth, being impatient for his being caft out of Royalcy, be began to rage, and bathen his Are in the blood of men, women, and children that he met and put them all to beath, Cacus began to exercite the beeds of fury and Tyranny as be . was going to the Bount Aventine. Weing come thicher he ene tred into the Cave, the best he could with his wives, and the moft lecrecly. Ef this place he made a Beft of theft, and a pit of fins. For the first night that he longed his wieres, he went into the Millage that flood there faft by, and beheld the faireft house, whereinto he entred by a window that was open, and fle w all them that were therein : after took all the goods as much as he could carry upon his shoulders, and bare them into the Cabe where his wives were.

CHAP. XXV.

How Caeus stole away Oxen and Kine, belonging to Hercules, and how Hercules fought with him therefore, and flew him.

In the morning Cacus found a very great flour of marble, which he took and bare unto his Cave, and made therewith his boog. Cacus belo bim in bis Cave, and never went out but when he would bo barm. Wihen be went into the field, be flew all be met. De robbed every man, beflowjed women, burnt houses and towns, and shouly spoyled, and bid so much harm in Italy, that they that passed in the Countrey, supposed it to be bestroped by the hand of God, and could not know whence came these perfecutions that Cacus made upon them. turn then to our talk of Hercules, be came unto the City of King Evander, in the time that Cacus bedewed Italy with the blood of men, and filled bis Cave with foln goods. After the coming coming of Hercules and of his men of Arms, his Biebes and Dren were brought into the City, because Bing Evander thould fee them. The Bing took great pleasure to behold them. for they were high and valling fair. After the Bing had fen them, Hercules bemanbed of him, whether he could feno to pas fure that night? In truth Dir, fait laing Evander, if pe will follow-mp counfel, ve thall tet them abide in this City, and not fend them into the fields. Witherefore, replyed Hercules? E. vander answered. Withen we fend forth our beaffs, we know not where they become. They have been foln and briven away, and we cannot tell who are the Robbers, our fervants have ben murbered, houles burnt, people that thould labour in the field are flain, women and maibens are violated and put to thame : and we cannot mmedy it. For we cannot have knowledge of the Authors thereof. Wherefore some men fay and will as bouch, it is God that doth thus punish for our fins, Wheresfore I way you let your beafts abibe in the City, to the end. they be not foln. Sir, fait Hercules, pe tell to me a great marvel : 3 beliebe well thole things pe fap, notwithstanding, fince God hath faved them unto this day, he will keep them pet, if it please him : for if he will have them, he will take them as well within the City, as out in the fields. And if there be a Robber of Thief in the Country, that will take them away, I Suppole 3 hall find him, and make Icaly quit of bim. With thele words Hercules fent his Beafts into the Paffure, and there left them without any Bepers: The pay valled over the night came. In this night Cacus iffued out of his Cave, and went ine to the Country to feal, if he could find any booty. Thus be that is unhappy feketh ebil, and in the end is vaid at once for his trefpaffes; the unhappy abbenture brought him into the Deas bow, where paffured the Dren of Hercules: it was nigh the morning, he had with him his three wives. As foon as he faw the beatts by the light of the Moon, he knew them. We was all abathed, his blood changed in his village, and not without caule: for foon after his forrows began to grow on him, and came to the quickness of the heart, that he could not freak. when they fam that he fpake no words, and that he beheld the beafts beats all amazed came to him, and bemanded of him what he aflede Alas, answered, Cacus, fince it is that pou must needs knows I cell pon for certainty, that all the forrow in the world arifeth in my flomach, and enbironeth mine heart : for I bere fe the Dren of the Eriumph of mine Cnemp Hercules, and in beholding them. I remember the great loffes that I have had by him. a no he honours that he bath made me lofe, and the Realms that be bath taken away from me and the ertream mifery that I am now in. De muft neos be bere by in fome place: Curled be bis coming, for 3 know not what 3 thall bo, but in fign of benges ance. I will flap is Dren and his Mine.

withen the three Sifters heard that Cacus forrowed, they couns felled him, he fould not flay the beatts ! faying, if he flew them, Hercules hould tole nothing, for he would eat them. It were better (faid his Wife)that pe lead away as many as pe can, and bring them into our Cave: for if pe bo for Hercules thall have tols and displeasure, and pe thall have pleasure and profit.

Cacus believed what his Waife fait to him, and loked in the Meadow all about, if any man had been there keping them, but be found no man noz woman : Then he came to the beatts, and took eight of the beit be could chufe: After he bound them toges ther with a cord by the tails, and the Cord about his neck, he mew them in that manner unto bis Cabe, albeit the beatts refifted french to do backwards in that manner. Cacus fo brought all those healts that he fole, to the end, no man thould follow him by the footings of the beafte.

When he had put in his Cave the bealts of Hercules, he fint the boot fo well, that a man could never have known not perceis bed there had ben any boot. Then thinking be bad ben fafe. he laid him bown and flept. After the Sun rifing Hercules that beffred much to hear tydings of his bealts, arole up, and with the Bing Evander came unto the place, where bis Dren and Bine were. When they were come into the Deadow Hercules, found that he lacked four Dren, and as many Line: Imberent be was fore troubled, and commanded that they fould fek all about the Beadows, and fee if the footings of the beats might be found. At this commandment every one began to fek. Some there :

there were that looked towards the Bount Aventine, and found the footings of the Dren, but they thought by that footing, the beafts bescended from the Bount, to come into the Beabon. Wilhen all they had lought long, and law they found nothing they made their report unto Hercules, that they could not perceive where those Dren were iffued out, and that on no fibe they could find any figns or tokens of Beatis going out of the Wes flures. But even now fair one, I have found the footings of certain Dren and Bine, that be befcenbed from the Mountain into the Meadow. When Hercules beard that from the Mouns tain were come Dren into the Beatom, be called unto Evander and bemanded what people dwelled on the Mountain. Evander faib. That therein Dwelled neither man no; beaft : and that the Mountain was not inhabited. Hercules would go to fix the footing, and went thicher, and be thought well that this ther might bave valles eight great Beafts in that night, for the traces of the feet was great. Then be would know where they were become : but be found that the footing of the Beatts tock their end there as they pattured. De then marvelled greacly. foralmuch as there were no frange Beafts, and began to mule.

Dow when he had a little paused, he beheld the Sount, and said: It must needs be that there is a thief in this Bountain, that is come and hath soln shem and led them away, going backwards. But howspever it is, I will never depart from house, till I have searched this Bountain, from one side to any ther, for my beart jubgeth the Beafts are bere.

Mith this conclusion Hercules caused to take divers Calves that were there, and made them fast till Room, in the mean white he sent for his harness and Arms by Philotes, and made him ready to fight. After mid day, as the Calves began to cry and bleat for hunger, he caused them to be brought about the Honntain. Thus as they passed by the place where the Cave was, and cryed: it happened that the kine in the Cave heard them, and auswered: crying so lond, that the sound passed by the bole of the Cave, and came to the ears of the Calves, and also of Hercules. When Hercules heard the cry of his kine, he as hove there: his Calves began to cry again, but his kine cryed no more, for Cachs by the force of their cryes was awaked and be that always feared to be discovered roleny, and cut the throats of the kine. The Calves then naturally knowing their Dams, cryed bery loud, and bleated, as they that defired their milk.

Dereat Hercules marbelled bery much.

T,

7

ęp

1

of

Ín

Is

to

n.

10

to 15

3(

k

O

A,

m

16

n

30

30

36

0

31

o

15

30

Then he came near the Pount, and went unto the place where he heard the kine: and was there this hours sæking if he could find any hole of Cave to pals by. Howbeit he passed many times by the entry of the Cave, yet he could not perceive it. Some said, that the noise and bleating they had heard of the kine was come by Musion. Differs said, Hercules lost his sabout and prayed him to leave off to sæk any more, they thought them not recoverable. In the end when Hercules had heard one and another, and saw that he might not come to the end of his bestre, in a great anger he took in both arms a great Erk that grew thereby, and should the times with so great force, that at the third time he overthrew itt rot all, in such wise that the rot that came out of the earth made a large hole, so day that the bottom of the Cabe was fen plainly.

Wilhen Hercules fam the great hole that the root of the Tre made, he was bery forful, and laid: Truly it is here that the great Thief owelleth. Imuft fe if be be bere, and what Derthants inhabit in this place. In faying thefe words, Hercules. bowed bown his head on the one five of the Cave, where he faw Cacus. As foon as he fam the Thief, be knew him, whereof be was more forous than he was before, and called to him, Cacus 3 le the: thou baft before this time troubled the Mealm of Helperia, with innumerable trefpalles and great fins that thou biof commit ovenly and manifeltly. This was the cause of the beftrudion of the Seigniory. Dow thou troublet the Italians with Tyrannies fecret and unknown, 3 know the life, thou maple not beny it. It behoveth that thou ove therefore, and that I make the Italians fre, from the horrible and obiens thefte. D curfed man, if thy Crowns, Diabems, Scepters, Renowns, thy Royal men might not maintain the; Wilheres tope art thou wrapped here Mill in fing, and amended not, for all chy punishments that thou hast suffered? But yet instead of a bing and Prince, thou art a thief. Instead of doing justice, thou hast been a murcherer, and burner of Aillages and houses. There thou shouldest have kept and saved women, thou hast descoured them, and done them villang. Descrif bing, without repenting of the. Certainly, Is well thou are he that the Italians know not, and that thou hast versecuted them.

Thy malice hath been great and thy lubtility, lexing that unto this day thou wast never bewrayed, and hast done great milchief. But the cunning is not so great, neither hast thou so hidden thee, but thou art nigh peril, for thou shalt yield to me again my Oren. And to conclude, thou shalt put me to death, or thou shalt due by my hand, thou shalt not estage by running amav.

When Cacus understood this fentence be was ercebingly as fraid nebertheless he lifted up bis bead : and feing that be was found by Hercules, the only man of the world he most hated. be faib unto him : Alas Hercules a man all corrupted with cobetoulnele ! what curled fortune bath made the to draw out the tree whereof the profound and beep roots have covered the fee cert above of Bing Cacus, late Beigning, but now beprived of all worldly profperity ? Sufficeth it not to the, that I map have the ule of my natural force to live by when thou haft taken all away from me? and that I am forced to live by Mobbery and Spoyl whereof the blame and fault ought to rebound upon the? Why fufferest thou not me to live out the residue of my poor life among the Rones and Bocks and worms of the Carch? Confider now what thou baft bone to the Bing and feek bim no more. Thou haft burt and griebed bim enough. Cacus, antwere ed Hercules, In the deepelt of thy bepths of whetchebnels and mileries, thy vemerits will accuse the: 3 am right forry and grieben, to fe a Bing in fo woful and hameful effate: but fæing thou canft not beautifie thy bays paffed og prefent with one only good bed, what remedy? Thou half baily exercised the ranny, as well in profperity as in advertity, I know well that thou art the new Perfecutor of the Italians, that the hand is all foul with their blod. 3 let the not, not the Italians can fap nothing nothing of thee. For almuch as they complain not of thee, (having cause to their prejudice) this Tree hath spoken for them, and by his Roots hath discovered thine ambush. So behaveth to that thou take thy choice, whether thou will come, and fight with me here at large, or else that I come and affail thee there. For if it be to me possible, I will beliver the world from thy Tyzannies.

16

6

ĺn

12

b.

ge

as 10.

100

ett

124

of lap

uas

erp

noc

mp

th?

no

ers

and

grp

but

oich

tps

hat

all

Sap

ima

By this answer Cacus know there was no respice for his life. Then be incended to lave himlelf as he had bone afores time : and made by his craft fo great a Smoke and bark fume, that it feemed to come out of the bole the Tree hab made as a very wit of Bell. And this black fume was mingled with Sames burning. For all this Fume Hercules left not Cacus, but leapt into the Cave, into the misole of the flames and fume, as be was Raffer of the Craft and was quickly provided of remedies that thereunto belonged, be went in luftily and affailed Cacus, in luch wife as be felt no fume noz let : and then he gave him a Groke upon the Dilm with his Club, that be made him bit his bead against the walls of the Cape, Cacus with the receiving of this froke, let the Fume bilgorge out of his flomach, feeing that by that means he could not escape, and betook him to his huge great Are that flood by him, to befend bimfelf: Hercules fuffered bim to take up bis Are. Cacus Imote upon him, the Cave was not large, pet they fought long therein. Unto the refcue of Cacus, came the three Sifters, who bid cast stones upon Hercules in great abundance, and went bitterly.

The three Damolels loved Cacus bery well. Hercules and Cacus fought more than a long hour without teating. And at the end of the hour, they were both to love that they must needs test them. Then Cacus took in himself a great prior, for he was strong of body, and seemed when he had rested, that Hercules was not so strong as he had been aforetimes, and that he might never vanquish him, forasmuch as he had not overcome at the beginning. By this presumption he demanded of Hercules, if he would finish the Combate without the Cave? Hercules answered that he was content. Whis answer Cacus took away the flone that fout the Cabe, and went out, in going out after him Hercules efoped big Bine that mere bead in a corner. and his Dren that were bound by the Buffels unto a Billar: De was forry when he law his Line in that cafe, neverthelels, he purlued Cacus, and fair unto him : Thou curled Thief, thou half bone come a great bifpleafure, to have flain my Bine. Dea (curled Thief thy felf) answeres Cicus, pet half thou bone in me more bilplealures, to have flain mp men, and taken away my Realms. Thou are only culpable of the evils that I have bone, and of the beath of thy Bine. I would it pleafed God that I had thee as well in my mercy, as I had them : be fure thou Gouldelt never take away Kealm from any man again : now let us bilvatch our battel at thele words Hercules and Cacus Imote against each other very fore, and with great fury, fo as their Arokes cleaved to their Barnels, and made a great noile. At this noile, the Bing Evander and the Greeks came to the battel, to behold, which was before the entry of the Cave, where were the three Sifters paffing belolate. Cacus enforced him with all his puissance. For he law it was time then or nes ber'to them all the force that he could. We handled his Are bes ry frongly, andie was needful fo to bo. De was hard and boys Acrous: he gave many a froke to Hercules. And thought of tensimes he thould confound him wato the earth. But Hercules on his libe failed not, though be bad a ftont Abberfary againft him : He was allo frong at the Combate, and more than was good for the health of Cacus: De never Imore Cacus, but be turned his eyes in his bead, or made him reel on the one live, or go back hamefully. This battel by long buring griebed the heholders, they to affailed each other and fourt bard on both fibes. Finally they did to much that they were driven to reft them again, their bodies did (weat all over. When Hercules fam the victory was not pet won, and that the night approachs eb, be bat great fhame in himfelf, that be bab belo lo long bats tel. Then be began to lay on Cacus fo bard, and redoubled his froken mith luch force upon Cocus, that at the last he bare him bown to the ground all affonied, and made him tofe his Are then took off his Delm. The three Difters Red into a forred nameb'

Ð

named Octa full of tears and cryes. Pany Greeks would have come after: but Hercules mabe them return. Then called be the Bing Evander, and his folk, and faid to him, bir, loe here is be that was wont to trouble the Italians with fecret murthers, covert thefts, unknown defiling of women. Loe here is the mis nifter and boer of thefe trefpalles : 3 have intention to punify bim, not only after his befert but unto beath.

Evander antwered to Hercules, Paince, ercellent, and moze thy above all worthies, and the best accomplished of all men, fourifhing in Arms: What reverence is Due? Thou befervelt not only humane reverence, but that reverence that is of Dis bing nature : I beliebe affuredly that thou art a God, or the fon of a Goo: elfe a man beifieb. The elpecial haft feen moze in a moment, than all the eyes in general of all the Italians bib, not in a whole year, but in an hundred years.

.

e

h

Œ

cs

10

15

m

e,

B'

Db the bricht refplenbent Son of Roble men : and fair thining with noble feats and deeds: Dow may me thank thee, and give thee praise for thy befere in this great work . Thou (by the most excellent labour) half Disburthened us from barknels. and hall given us light; thou hall effeded moze than the great Trops and all the affemblies of Italians would babe been able to bo. Thou haft gotten more Triumph in chaftifing of this Grant, palling terrible, than we are able to reward thee fozittus ly if thou be not a God, thou halt from the Gods their Angular grace; I promife to thee in remembrance of this labour, to build a folemn Temple in my City, where thou halt habe an Altar. and upon the Altar hall be thy representation of fine gold, and the representation of this Typant, in the wing how thou haft bans quithed him, to the end that our beirs and fuccelloss in time coming, may have thereof knowledge.

During these words Cacus had refreshed him, who was affor nied of the froke that he had receibed, and thought to have fled: but Hercules ran after, and caught bold of bint, aub embraced bim in his Arms, to bard that he could not fir from bim, and brought him again, and bare him unto a deep pit that was in the Cave, where he had caft in all ordure and filth. Hercules came unto this foul pit, that the Greeks had found, and thauft Cacus therein, his head downwards from on high into the ardure bes

Then the Italians came about the Dit, and caft fo many fromes upon him that he bred there milerably. Such was the end of the poor Bing Cacus: he byed in an bole full of finking filth. Wiben Bing Evander fam that he mas bead : by the cone Cent of Hercules, be made him to be drawn out of the Wit, and caused him no be born into the City, where H reules was receibs ed to triumphantly that no man can rehearte ; the feat was great that night in the Balace of Bing Evander, and valles with great foy. On the morrow the Bing Evander caufed to be fet forch the body in the fight and common view of all the prople, and afterwards erdusten certain folk, to carry bis miles rable coaps or body, throughall the Cities where he had bone harm, and to count and rehearle to them his life. Then the body was hewed in the City of Bing Evander, they that bab the gabernment thereof, bare it into divers places, and almap praifed Hercules.

In remembrance of this victory the King Evander commanded to begin the Temple he had promifed to Hercules, and required Hercules that he would flay in that Country, until the time his Temple should be fully finished. Hercules beheld how king Evander vio labour about building his Temple with all viligence, agreed to his request, foralmuch as to him seemed, the Temple would be shortly made. Some books say, that long time before, Mars had promised Hercules that there should be a Temple made unto him: and so, that cause he was come into Italy, to know if his desiry would happen or no? And when the Italians beard speech of the birth of Hercules, they believed he was the son of Jupi'er, not of Amphitzion.

CHAP. XXVI.

How the Queen of Laurentia fell in love with Hercules: and how King Pricus came into Italy with a great Hoft, to defie Hercules.

The glosious deeds of Hercules were greatly recommended in Italy, as well for that he had banquilbed the Gyants of Cremona, as for the beath of Cacus. So great was his res nown, that during the building of his Temple, all manner of people came thither to fee him, and bid him bivine bonours : naming him the Don of Tupiter. The Bings and the Lords came to bim to gibe bim gifts, aub rich prefents. Among all other the Queen of Laurentia came thither, from her City mith many Chariots, filled and laben with Jewels, and prefented them to Hercules. Hercul s receibed into his grace this Queen and ber Delents, and thanked ber greatly. This Duen hab to name Facua, and was Wife to Bing Fanus, Son of Bing Pricus, the Son of Saturn: the was young, freth, tenber, and full of luftinels. The had not fen Ling Fanus ber Busband in four years, for he was gone into a far Country and was not in all this time come again. So it happened, that after the first began to behold Hercules, and to mark him well. the befired bis company and acquaintance: and the loved him fo exceedingly. that the conto not turn her eyes not her thoughes apon no other thing but Hercules. In the beholving him the feit in ber beart. That he was the most well favoured man and proper without comparison, that ever the fam; and that of right, men thouse gibe him praife: faying moreober. That ber beart was entangled with the fire of his love : that many cogitations and thoughts ran in her mind. Row was the awaked with a forong fpirit. She palled to the first day that the came in this manner with Hercules. Withen the was gone away to reft, the laid her bown on a bed and began to think on the beauty of Hercules, with fuch arbent befire that the could not abstain from wæping, and fore wished after him : whereof the end was luch, that after many Imaginations, about the morning the began to fap unto ber lett, D fortune, what Ban, what Prince, what Bing halt theu brought into this Country ? This is not a wing like other.

THE PARTY

0

This is an Image lingular, and like as if Cod had made him by nature to ericed and Triumph above all her other works. All glory thineth in him, not only by his valiant Prowels, but by his limple and lacred perfection of body, to which may be madeno comparifon.

D clear Image among the Bobles, who is the teeing his eyes, that with one only fight will not have her heart thosow: Iy pierced? Who is the that will not cover and defire his grace? The most fortunate of all, happy and well fortuned that the be that may get his good will: he is humble, fair, pleasant and laughing: he is a treasure. O dear treasure: like as the Gold surpasseth all other manner of mettals, so he surpasseth all other works of nature: how then, thall I not love him? As long as I live, his name thall remain written in my memory, and his virtues thall never be forgot.

Great were the praises that Facua uttered of Hercu'es: and the forgot the King Fanus, and neglected him for the love of Hercules. The was there a certain space of time and always thought on him. Hercules, that thought nothing of her, made her no semblance nor sign of love; howbeit he talked officiences with her and with the Mife of King Evander, named Carments. The more he conferred with them, the more was Facua in great pain by the inflaming of love: sometime the lost her colour and countenance, but cartainly the covered it so well, that no man took her ofic. that ungage che main warnound !!

withen the had been there eight bays, bearing fuch griebous pain, and feeing that Hercules perceibed not the love the bore bim, to come to the end of her belire, the came on a bay to Here cules, and humbly required him to come to her house, to pale the time whiles the Bing Evander there finithed his Temple. Hercules accorded and agreed unto ber requell, whereat the had very great top in her felf. They then vilvoled themselves to go tinto Laurentia, and tok leave of the Bing Evander, and of the Queen. Thus going, Hercules was always by the fide of Facua, who reasoned of many things by the way : and alway Facua hab her amozous eves fired on Hercules : that at last Hercules began to take beed, and faid to ber foftly thus : Lady, you do me exceeding honour to bring me into your houle. Alas Sir, ans Iwered Facua, I bo nothing but trouble you; for I have not the power to featt you as I would. Lady (answered Hercules) the good chear that you beffow on me, is to me acceptae ble. fo that from henceforth pe bind mine heart to be willing to fulfil your will in fuch wife, that there is nothing chat you befire fre, but I will accomplif it at your Commandment, unto my power, as to any the most best accomplished Lady that is in the Welt: Facua with these words began to fmile, and answered; Dir, I have cone nothing for you: and you are not beholding to me as you fap. Dowbeit I thank you for your good word; And thereof I hold me fortunate and happy, for that the not boothy man of all men bouchfafeth to accompany to pop a Las by as Jam. Lady (answered Her, ules) I take not that to be attributed rightly to me, to lay, that 3 am the most worthy of men: for there have been many better than 3 am. tainly, the more pe speak, the more pe bind me to you. fince you bo me lo great honour, I request that I may be your Bnight, and that pe take power over me, to command me to perform pour will and pleasure. Sir, faid Facua, will pe that it be for Lady (answered Hercules) most willingly. I will not command you (faid Facua) but I will give you over me as much Deigniogy and Logothip ag it hall pleale you to take. Hercules with the fame word, would fain have kiffed the Lady, had it not been for the honour of her which he would keep. Thus they ended their conference for that time, and from that day forth Hercules intended to pleafe the Laby more than he had some before: Chorely he acquainted himself so with her, and the with him, that they lay together fecretly. And he begot on her a Son that was named Latine, who was afterward of great Bobernment.

During these things, whilst Hercules and Facus-had this good spyozeunity in Laurentia, tydings came that the King Fanus was coming. Facua, who began to take delight in the love of Hercules. Was passing sorry when the heardthese tydings; sor the had sirfully sired her heart on Hercules. Suddenly the tears blubbered her eyes. And weeping, she came into a Chamber where Hercules was: then the took him apart, and said to him; Alas, my Love, I shall dope sor sorrow. Lady (said Hercules) wherefore ? For so much (said she) as my Husband the King, Fanus cometh home: It is full four years since I heard of him, I had supposed he had been dead, but is not. His Harbingers are come before, and say, he will sup here this night. Alas what what evil adventure is this? We must now depart, and one communication fail. Which these words, the Lady embraced Hercules, and self in his arms in a swound. Hercules took hercup, and comforted her the best he could, and said unto her, that since she was married, it was reason she should abide still with her Husband. Whatsoever Horcules said unto the Lady, he could not keep her from weeping, her love and her griefs were great. In the end she went into her Chamber, and dived her eyes, and brake off her bolorous weeping as much as she could, ar aying and apparelling her in such wise, as if she had been very sopfull at the coming of her busband, who came soon after.

and entred into the City with areat Triumph.

Hercules and the Queen Facus went to meet the Bing Fanus. Wilhen the Bing Fanus faw Hercul. s. he did to him as much honour as he could bo. foralmuch as he wes abbiled of the beeds of arms that he had bone against the Grants of Cremona. and against Cacus: and highly thanked him, fozasmuch as he was come into the City. For conclution, Hercules above there four pays after Fanus came home : and on the fifth bay confiders ed, he might no longer enjoy his Love, he vid nothing there but Tole his time, to he took his leave of Bing Fanus, and of the Queen Facus, and returned unto the Balace of Bing Evander. where he above unto the tine that his Temple was accomplishe ed. About the confummation of this Temple, an Berault of Calidonie, came to Hercules, and fingnified unto him, that Bing Pricus came against him, with a great puillance of men of Arms. to revenge the blocd of Cacus bis Cousen : and that be charged Hercules he had without cause most cruelly put to beath a no. ble Bing. Sozeover, that if he would Maintain the contrary, on the morrow early be thould find Bing Pricus in the fame place where the blood of Bing Cacus was thed:and that by moss tal Wattel, pollance againft puillance, be would probe it true that be faib.

Then Hercules had heard what king Pricus had fignified muto him: he had his heart full of foy, and answered to the Destauld, the death he had made Cacus to dye, was a work of Justice: and that upon the quarrel, he would answer by Battel, king Pricus, at the hour and place that he had named. After this auswer thus made, Hercules gave unto the Perauld his Sown that he ware upon him, and caused him to be Featled, saying. That he had brought him tydings of great pleasure.

Bing

I

Withen the Berauld had had good thear, and well featted, as Hercylis commanded ; be returned to Bing Pricus, and told him the answer of Hercules, and that he should have on the morrow the Battel. Bing Pricus thought to win all by the abvantage of his mulitube, (for he had in his Army above Thirty thousand men) aud thanked his Cob foz'thele tybings came fozward:and lodging him the fame night, nigh unto the Bount Aventine, and on the River of Tyber. De made him ready to fight this battel: The like bid Hercules: either of them minding what they had to bo. Thus the night vaffed, and on the morrow as fon as the bay light appeared, Bing Pricus and Hercules began to found their great Tabours, and with that found, their men put them in arms, and made themfelbes ready, after trainded in order of battel. And fo they came on both parties, as well the one as the other, into the same place where the blood of Bing Cacus had been theb.

CHAP. XXVII.

How Hercules fought King Prices in battel: how he fled into the City, where Hercules alone flew him, and many others,

A Bout five of the clock in the morning, Hercules and Pricus affembled at the battel: from as far as Pricus fam Hercules, he made a marbellous cry. Whith this cry the Calidonians began to run against Hercules, and made so great a noise, that it seementhere was not people enow in all the world for them. But certainly, as small rain abated down a great wind, in like manner Hercules alone supposes their over booksing uppoar.

8

Œ

For as foon as he faw his enemies come running against him about a quarter of a mile off, he departed from his main body, that may fet in godorder: and after he commended his folk that they should not make halfe, he began to run against the Cali-

donians

Raffes, Befoge the Bate of the Palace, was a great noile, and weeping, that Women and Chilozen mabe. In the end, when the Calidopians perceived the trength of Hercules, they ceafen to affail him, and feb. Then Hercules iffted out of the Palace. with his War all covered with blood. As foon as the Calidonians law him, they affailed him again : caffing Stones and Darts upon him, and fot Arrowes abundantly, as they that as waited his vallage. In this affault, Hercules luffered much, ret he paffed them that would babe flain bim, and refted not until he came to the Bate.

Then the Calidoni ns ran after bim, as men carelefs of their lives, and mightily enraged, began again to lay on Hercules. Withen he faw that, he turned bis face upon them, and laid about with his Barre on every fibe, to luftly, that he byed bis Barre with new blood : and mauare his encinies, be made them retire back more than forty paces : and obtained the Bate. Then the Calidonians purlued bim again : but ere they came upon him he broke all the Locks and the wicket of the Gate : fo that the Gricks affailed them with all their power, and beat bown the Dam Bribge. After be called the Affailants, and they came unco bim, and with little relitance they entred the City, which was filled at that time with great flaughter of the Calidonians. who would not yield, not put themselves to mercy, until the time they fam their arcets and houses full of bead bodies.

CHAP. XXVIII.

How Hereules was enamoured on Toel, the Daughter of King Priens, how he required her Love, and the accorded.

T 12 this manner was King Pricus flain, and his City taken by Hercules. After the flanghter, when the Calidonians had humbled themlelves, Hercules and Thefeus went unto the Da face, and they came thither to fitly, that they found the Daugh ters of Bing Pricus, with their Lavies and Bentlewomen, lake ing the Bing among the bead bodies. There were to many bead that they could not find not know him they longht. Hercules at his coming began to behold one a another, but efpecially among all others he call his epe upon Yoel the Raughter of the try: foralmuch as the was excellently gliffring in beauty, that in all the world was none like unto ber. Withen he had a little bebeld ber, by a fecret commanoment of love, be brew bim unto ber, thinking to comfort ber. Wilhen the befolate Gentlewoman law Hercules approaching unto ber, the trembled for fear, and feb unto ber Chamber, the Ladies and Gentle women followed her, and with them went Hercules. He entredinto the Chams ber where the was, and face bown by her . She thought to have rifen, to have gone out of the way, but he held ber by her cleaths, and faid unto ber : Laby, pe mult not fly my company. Yoel fpake then, and faib : D miferable Topant, what feks eft thou me now for to trouble me more? Thou halt flain my Father, let that fuffice thee. Pabam (answered Hercules),if the king pour father be beabit is reason : for he thinking to Revenge the death of the Appant Cacus, came not long fince to affail me in Italy, faving that I had unfuffly and without caule flain bim. In maintaining the contrary, I fought wirb him upon his quarrel : the Battel was not enber, not put to utterance at that time for he without himself with his people, and came into this City. And 3 habe purfued him has Bilp.

And when he saw that I late my seige about this City: he would not come to sight the battel during my Seige, wherefore this day I purposed to sinish the Mar. Fortune bath been on my side and hath put you in my power. Tertainly, without remedy you must be my Lady and Love: so, in seeing your singustar beauty, so hath constrained me to be yours: Then I pray you as essentially as I may, tease your sortow, and receive me as your friend. The more ye weep, the less ye win: continual tears and sorrow, nor lasting sighs, can never raise your Kather.

* Which these words the fair Yeel was sore oppressed with hot and contrary imaginations, that her heart failed her. It was a picious thing to behold how her friend Hercules would have taken her up between his arms. But a wife Ladythat had always governed her, came to him, and kuccling on her knees unto the Bing: and hereupon, if I may enter, I will go unto the Bing, and so beal if it be possible, that he shall never assault me after in battel. And if it happen that I may so bo, as I have told you, I will that ye assail the City, as soon as I half be within: that the Calidonians may have to do with you, as well as with me. Lest I have them all at once upon me.

Said=

Withen Theleus and Evander underftood well what Hercule would bo, they answered they were ready to obey all his commendments, and would affault the City after his faving. Then Hercules arraped himlelf like as be bad been an Ambaffabour. Thefeus and the Greeks made themfelbes ready for the affautt. Withen all was ready, Hercules Departed, and came and knockt as the Bate of Calidoniciand the Posters looked out at a little Window to fee who knocked there, and feeing there was but one man in a long Cown,they opened the Bate for bim, and asked him what he mould have? Hercules answered, that he sought the Bing. Babat mould you with him faid one of the Porters ? Hercules fait. I would fain freak with his Pafetty: and laving thefe words, the Porters faw that Hercules was Armen unber his Cown : then in few words, they cries upon him, and laid at him before and behind, faying be was a Traitog: and that be was come to efpy the City. Withen Hercules fam himfelf fet upon by the Posters, being there he would be, be bab great for which he covered, and made thew at the beginning, as if he would have fled away and efcaped : be emoloped to little of his. frength, that the Porters brought bim utno King Pricus, which fate in the Ball with bis Daughters and his Princes, and pre-Center him to them, faying : Dir, toe bere is a Traitos, that is entred into your City, for to elpy your power. Wie have taken him : De faid that he would fpeak unto your Dafeffp, and he is armed under his Mantle as ve may fee : It isan ebil tos ken for a man bellring to fpeak to a Bing, Armed privily or cos rerely.

When the King understood this acculation of the Posters, whilst they spake, he beheld Hecules, and he knew him: where at he was soze affrighted, that he knew not what to say. Hercules then bestirred bimself, and wang himself, from the Pos-

ír

bi

kaffes

eres, throwing them bown upon the ground, that they nevet could relieve themfelves. When the Calidonians in the Hall. fam him to evil intreat their Porters they threatned Hercules unto beath, and affailed him on all fibes. Dis Cown was then rent off. In the bickering he received many a froke, and als mays he befended himlett, without bilplaying of his pomer ara great frength, as he that waited for the typings of the affault that mas nich. The affrap was great in the Ball, and in the City on all parts, the Calidonians ran to the Ballace, to affail Hercules : Bing Pricus made him ready and came with others unto this fray. Then was Hercules affailed fiercely, but this affault was bear to the Bing : for to his welcome Hercules came to the Mabernacle that from upon four great Barres of Tron. the one whereof he took, and beat bown the Mabernacle, After. be lifted up his War, and Imote King Pricus, fo unmeafurably upon the toy of his Belmet, that he beat him bown to the Carth. and Imace him to fore, that he fell bown Bead between his ting Porters. er hand on heat of are no and de-

At this time, the Cry arefe great among the Calidonians not only there, but in the City allo, (for he that kept the Watch founded to Arms, the Greeks affailing to climb the Walls.) Calidonic was then troubled terribly, and the Calidonians knew not where to turn them, whether to Hercules, or the affault : All was full of armed men, as well in the Bings Waltace as on the malle. After Hercules hat flain Pricus, be began to lay on foundly mon his Quemies, his ftrokes were areat, and at tach froke he flew two or three, that in Mort space he covers ed all the pavement of the Pallace with bear bodyes of the Calidonians, lying one upon another, without any bamage to bimfelf. The Cal donians were of great courage, and were as hamed that they could not obercome Hercules, who alone had infured them fo muth. They affailed him fiercely, and caft upon bim Darts and tharp Jabelins. With his arms he bore alt. and bie fo much with his barr, that thep could not refit his Grength. The poor Calidonians came thither with great coutage to rebenge the beath of their Bing. Hercules fem fo mas by that he knew notwhere to let his foot, but upon their cars donians swifely: not like an Porfe, but an Part, that no man might overtake. The king Evander was all abashed, to see in Hercules so great utmbleness. Pricus and the Calidonians, when they saw him move from the Post, supposed it had been a Porse, or other Beast. In the end, when Hercules was come nigh them, within the space of a Bow hot, they knew it was Hercules: whereupon they were so abashed at his coming: Pricus cryed to have set his men upon him. They hot Arrows, and they cast Parts and Spears upon Hercules, against all the parts of his body: nevertheless they could never pierce not enter into the skin of the Lion, and he never rested, till he had accomplished his course, thrusting himself forwards among his enemies so mightily, that overthowing all before him, like as a Tempest of Thumber, he went into the midst of the Post, where was the cheif Banner of King Pricus.

Hercules flaved there, and began to lay on upon one fibe and the other, and bye his Sword with the blood of the Calidonians. Dis (word was fo bray that no man might endure it, bruifing all it reacht. It made the place red where Cacus bped. Then was not the frame and beath of Cacus rebenged, but augmenter upon the persons of his friends, with an erceeding flauchter. The ery arole great about Herefles : he broke to pieces the Banners and Recognizances of the Calidonians, there mas none to harpy but he brobe him back : and none to refolute but the fled from him. Then he made what spoil he would with his Chemies. Thefeus, Evander, and others, came unto the battel. At this conflict there was many a Spear, Balbert and Shield broken, and many a Unight flain. The Calidonians were in great number, and many were both frong and mighty. The tattel was tharp and furious. Hing Pricus fet foremoft nyon the Geiks, and fought most valiantly, and Hercules and Thefins vid worthity, and beferving memory: they ran from rank to rank, and brake the ranks of their Chemies. They comforted Endencouraged their men, and thewed them how they thould bo. Their berts were fo great; that it is imposible to recount them, for in little time they put their enemies to refpair. All the disconfigure was upon the Calidonians, for they could not withfland the force of the Greeks. End when Bing Pricus fam

n

f

0

-

that his people could no more fight, and that he loft on all fives, that Fortune was against him in all points, being wearp with fighting, he withorew him out of the press, and founding a retreat, the Calidonians flet after him.

e

.

e tt

0

n

15

to 0.

nt 11

et in

at

When Hercules fam the Calidonius mithoraw themfelucs, be made his Greeks retreat : not for any need they had, but to gibe leave to their enemies to reft them. Thus the battel ceals th, Hercules supposing that the Calidonians would assemble on the morrow when they had refted them : but they withorew themselves some bere, some there. The bay passed, the night came, then Bing Pricus affembled bis Captains and fhewed to them their lofs, and the frength and might of the Greeks, and in efpecial of Hercules . After he had faid to them, that they could never conquer them, and that they could not do wifer than withs maw them, and to return into their Country. The Calidonians, that feared Hercules more than beath, or a Tempelt, had great top when they understood the will of Bing Pricus, and an= Imered all with one accord. That they were ready to go forth on their way. Which this answer they concluded to leave the Tents, Carts, and Armour, to go lightly, and moze fecretly. After this they took their way according to the conclusion, fair and foftly, without ffir or noise, and die travel so this night, that on the morrow they were far from Hercules. After this, when Hercules espeed that they were fled, he with his men purfued after fwiftly, howbeit they could not overtake them. For to fpeed the matter, Ming. Pricus returned into Calidonic; Hercules purfuer him into his City, which was frong with Malls, and belieged him. During this liege there was never a Calidonian that burft come out. Hercules oftentimes affaulted the Cicy, but loft his labour. At length when he faw he could not get no; win upon his enemies, be called his Greeks, and faib to them : That man that bentureth not, winneth nothing. We fofourn here without boing anything worthy of memory. Dur Enemies will not come againft us unlefs we fetth them, and thus we thall have no end : thorely we muft win or lofe all. Therefore 3 think it best that 3 bilguile me, and go unto the Sate, and let the Porters understand that I have an errand 10 2 unto fair: Dir, I confuce pon in the name of Gos, chat pe tiff! ceale to freak to this por Damolet for the bath this pap loft ber Father. You may bo with her your own pleafure, if pe let bee! a little abive in ber melancholly : all Gall be well if it pleafe Bob, as well for you as for ber. At the requelt of the Laby. Hercules was content to let ber go, and be recommended Youten God, and went to Thefeus, to pals his time away with him: but to the end that You! Should not do away not escape, be ore Bained twelve Greeks to keep ber and commanded upon pain of beath, they fould fuffer no Moman to iffue out of the Chams ber without examining whither the went. In this night Hercules bid caufe the vear berien to be had out of the Palace. And ordained that the body of king Pricus fould be intomben. When those things were accomplifbed, Hercules and Thefeus with their men of Arms made good chear, with luch as they found there and Yoel at this time was fore difcomforted that it cannot be recounted. The Laby that had ber in governance. Tought bery much to comfort ber. Then when Hercules had left her in the Chamber, as is fait, the had many words with her, and among all other the fait to ber : Mp Daughter, you weep too much. Da Dabam (fait Yoel) how may 3 to lefs ? When thall I have caufe to weep, if I have it not now ! My father is bead: I have loft him that most loved me of all the world I can lofe no areater thing. Dugbe not then inv beart to be forrowful ? Dy Daughter (faid the Laby) 3 know wellthat be have as areat occasion of forrow as any woman can have : but fince you muft pals by this misfortune, what tan your weeping profit you? There can nothing proceed of it but melancholis nels, and impairing your praffer beauty. De are now fallen into the hands of this Drince. This is a man worthy and Ros ble above all other, he loveth you : you ought to thank God, and to gibe bim praile for this grace. This is to you good fortune, and a hap in pour milhap. If you will be ruted by me, you thall take all this in good part. Better it is to fuffer one ebil olien two. I think pe ought to confider pour efface: And if pe confider it well pe fhall endeabour to forget it. Badam (laid Yoel) Alas how can that be, that that I hould love, or have famis liarity

the

tarity with him, that hath vone unto me so much harm. We hath not only taken from me a Unight, and Uncle, not a Cousin, but mine only proper Facher, let none speak to me thereof. He is and shall be my mortal Enemy, as long as I and he shall live, he shall have no more of me, sor prayer, promise

DESTRUCTION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND THE WAR AND

not menaces.

è

et

ď

10 en

0

nd

ıe,

ou

bil

RÍU

nis itp

By Daughter (fait the Laby) make not your felf bond mbercas you are free; the effects of tobes be fubtil and lubbain, Love is alway in his fecret throne, that can be no other thing, but humble the hard hearted, and how the fronget. So bard a beart is not among the humane Creatures, but that it is foon humbled and made meek when it is his pleasure. There is no Tower to bigh but it may be overthrown by fubril undermining: Por no night fo bark, but it is obercome by the bay. De hate Hercules now, but after pe have a while kept company with him, perabbenture you will love him better than ever you los bed your father: or any of your kindred. And that I know by erperience : for I bated mp Busband at fird ercebingly, but therely after when me began to be acquainted together, 3 los bed bim fo, that if be had not been with me bay and night. 3 thought I thould have byed for forrow. By Daughter, fuch are the chances of Love, that oftentimes after great hate comsch great love. The glosp of Heroiks is fo clear, that pour heart ourbe to be belighted therewith : the Conquett that he bath mabe in this City, thall be for pon a fingular preparation to all good. Mould you attain unto a greater beight of bonour than to be a Lapp of him who is the Subouer of Bings : and the most valiant in arms : for to him & nothing impossible, babine conquered the most parout the moth. Dem Dauester reforce in your Fattune to that not the voor to profperior that cometh to you: it is to believed, the velolation of this City was appointed by Got, in fatour of you that are the Baragon: and none like unto you of all the Daughters of the Bings, to give poul in Marriage unto this minmort dorraged of reif or which whele words the fairny oel had ber flomach laen iten with funby imaginations. She role up from that wart, and went into her Guard-robe, where was the representation of the Goddels Diana. When the came thicker the knæled down in great humility, before the Image: abounding in fighs and wæping faid: Goddels of Airgins, what thall the Dand-maid do: D lighten my hope, behold mine affliction, and weigh my mishap, send thine eyes into the secret of mine heart, and see the sorrow Isuster, and in the favour of Airgins, preserve me from the hand of him that would have me so, his Wife, since he hath caused in me a mortal have, which is not possible to be rooted out as Pature sudgeth in me: (so, it is impossible I hould love mine enemy) I am therefore perswaved, that the bate that I have against this Ayrant Hercules, shall abide so, ever.

In these Wravers and Lamentations You above, until the bead time of the night, curfing Hercules : faying, that the bab rather dye than love him. Thus distaining the love of Hercules, without meat or brink the valled that whole night. The day following Hircules returned unto ber : and anem mayed ber, that the would be his Wife: laving That without belay the muft needs vielb thereunto. She mas fore artebed at his requelt, and excused her felf in many fathions, that were too tebis ous to rehearle at this time. But pet at the ent of the requeffs of Hercules, Love infpired in fuch wife this fair Gentlewoman that the vielaed unto his request. Thus Yoel accompanied with Hercules as his Wife, and they lay together : and grew ace quainted each with other. Love then rooted in their hearts, fo that their two wills were locked into one. Hercules forgot Dejanira, and Yorl forgot the beath of her Father, and was fo es namoured on Flercules, that the sould reft in no mace without him. D monderfull ! the rancour and bate that York hab veffere Day, is now curped into tobe infallible. To fued this matter, Hercules and Yoel thus towing cogether, at her request be gave ber Sifters in Marviage, to certain Unights of the Greeks, and Jeft them there to govern the Country, and the Realm of Cali-After he beparted from thence and brought his Dren and bis thine with him, and fent again the bing Evander into his Dominion rebanking him for his company, and the honout be bad bont bints ad and and Evander.

Evander mould gladly have accompanied Hercules into Greece: But Hercules would on no terms fuffer bim. At laft Evander (with great thanks to Hercules and his Army) beparted: and Heroules with his Army went unto the dea, and forgot not bes bind bim the faireft Yoel, for he loved her bearly. All bay be mas with her and the pleased him as well as the could, fearing more to lofe his love, then the was forry for the beath of her father. As they thus failen on the main Dea, maintaining to their power their amozous life. Hercules encountred on a bay nigh by an Baben and a good City, a Berchants Galley. De mabe the Balley to tarry, and after called the Pafter, and asked him of what Country be was, and from whence be came & Sir (antmered the Matter of the Balley) 3 Departed late from the Boat of Thrace, that is here by: 3 fe pou are a franger. and that we know not the veril you are in, wherefore I babe pis ty of you, and of your company: and do advertice you, that at the nert Daben you hall find, pe tarry not there, for any thing that may befal pou: for as truly as you are here, if you go this ther pou hall take barm enough : there is a king the molt crus el Trantin all the world, named Dyomedes: that maintains eth under him ten thousand Thieber, and be maketh mar as gainft all that he finds, and hath a cuftome that be putteth men to pay Ranfoms, fuch as it pleafeth him : and if they that he putterh to luch milery, paycheir Ranfoms, be lettech them go quietly, and with that money and lubstance be nourifbeth bis Thiebes, and his Borles. If they cannot furnich themfelbes with their Manfome, be himfelf fmiteth them to mestels, and giveth their bodies to his hories, to eat and bebour. But there is one good thing for you, this morning be is gone to the chale. to bunt about the forrest which is come four miles from Thrace; and with him there an hundred of the frongest Thiebes be hath. This I know for a certain, for I law them bepart not palling the bours fince.

ของได้ 🜓 ที่การกรรณ์ . ค.ศ. 6 เก. ยูโรส์ 2 โดยโซรสมกา การกรับ พระบริษาการในกล่อยไทยเพิ่มด้วยใต้กรุ การซโฟรม

Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of the Commence of th

Lyander Lotild glably bede accompanied Hemnie into Occos:

How Hercules fought against Dyomedes in the Forrest of Thrace: and how he made his horses ear him.

Hercules hearing these words the Waller of the Galley had laid unto him, in rehearling the list of Dyomedes, was paling foyful in his heart, more than he had been fince the veath of the Thief Cacus. He had in him that valour, that where he might know a Ponter or Tyrant, or any men molesting the Wieal, thicher he went, and furth Tyrants he vestroped: to the end that men should not say, he did for gain, he would never retain to his proper use any of their goods, but all he conquered in that manner he gave to Roble-men, and sought nothing but bertne. He would not enlarge his Seignsory, nor take to himfelf any advantage.

De was content with what Pature gabe him . And alway he would labour for the publick good. D moit berruous Bonan, there was none like him neither before nor after. For togo for ward with my matter, when the Matter has abbertifed him that Dyomedes was gone on hunting into the Forrest, with his huns breb Mhiebes, he enquired to much that the Maftet fewed him the Richarfon of the Forrett, and by what manner he might Somet come thither. After this, he dabe leave to the Matter to go his way. That bone, he called his Marriners and mabe them feek the place. Then be bid bis Greekstarry there, and told them he would go to the Forrest, and fack Dyomedes : laps mor, he would never recurn into Greece, till be had velevered the world of this Werant. You began to way, when the beard his encerprise, and weeping prayed him, he would leave the hazard of to great peril. Hercules took no regard not heed to her Davers. De beliveres to Philotes his Bow, and his Club, and entred into a little Galley finely mabe and fight. Cathich be autbed by the help of Philotes , bery nigh the place where he would be : and took land two bow thots from the Forreft, and in fetting foot on land be beard the cry and noise ofthe bunting. and faid be mas well and where he would be. Be took then his Club

Club and left his bow with Philotes. After he entred the for reft, and had not far ranged when he found Dyomedes and his hundred Thieves. Dyomedes was the first that from far elgied Hercules, and knew that he was a stranger, and calling to him, said: Gyant, what is it that thou seekest in this forrest Hercules answered. What art thou? Dyomedes said, I am the Bing of Thrace: thou art entred into my Dominion without my leave, it displeases him, and thou must be my Prisoner, wherefore yeild thee unto me. Hercules said: Bing, since thou art Dyomedes the Bing of Thrace, thou art undoubtedly the Tyrant that I seek. And therefore I am not purposed to reild me, without smiting, especially to any evil Thief. Brow thou, that I will defend me with this Club, with which I have been accustomed to bestroy Ponsters, and am in hope this day, to make thy Porses eat and devour thy body, like as thou hast taught and uled them to eat thy Prifoners.

Wilhen Dyomedes heard the answer of Hercules, he took a great Are, that one of his Thieves bare after him, and he life D it up, threatning Hercules muto the beath, and bifcharged lo bard, that if Hercules had not turned the froke with his Club, he had ben in great peril. Dyomedes was of the Cature of Hercules, and had abundance of Grength and pufffance. Wilhen Hercules had receibed the froke, be lifted up his Club and failed notio fmite Dyomedes for be gave him fuch a ftroke upon the ftomach. that he turned him uplibe bown, from his Boile, and laid him all aftonied in the field. Then bis bundged Thiebes beffirred athem, and affatled Hercules on all fiber. Some of them there were that recovered Dyomedes, and fet him on his Borfe the o. ther flot at Hercules: Come brake their Swords on him. All this impaired nothing of the Arms of Hercales. Dis Balbert and his Delmet were of fine thet, forged and tempered bard. De food there among them like a Bountain. When be bab fustained the first allault of the Thieves, to thew to them with whom they fought, be fet upon them, and fmote bown on all fibes with fath valour that fundenly be made the pieces of them Ap into the Wood, and Imote them bown from off their Hogics. Dyomedes was at that time rifen up, and with great fury came unto unto the refeue of his Thieves, whom Hercules uled as he Whites that fome of them affailed bim before he came behind and fmote bim with his Are upon bis Belm, the ftrake was to great that the fire fprang out. Dyomedes had well thought to have murthered Hercules: yet Hercules mobed not for the froke, but a little bowed his bead. After this, then be lifted up his Club and fmote among the Thiebes ; and maugre them all, in less than an hour, be had to laboured his from as bout their backs, that of the hundred be flew firty and the as ther he battered, and put to flight with Dyomedes. Bedercules funning moze lwiftly than an Bogle, amonalt all others he purfued Dyomedes to nigh, that he caught bim by the legg. and vulled him bown from his borle, and threw him against a Tre unto the earth. After be took him about the boby and by main force, he bare him unto the place where the battel had There be unarmed bim with little refiffence : For that Dyomedes was then bauifed, and could not help himfelf, when he had grotten him thus at his will be bound him fall by the feet and bands. After this be affembled together twenty Borfes of the Thieves that run bilverled in the Mood, and came to Dvome. des and faib unto bim: D thou moft curfed enemy that half ems ploved all thy time in Evranny, and bid never one good ber. but all thy days halt lived in multiplying of fins and bices, and haff troubled the peoble by thy thefts, and haft nourifhed thy Horses with mans field : and by this cruelty supposed to have made me to bpe: Surely I will bo Juftice upon the, and will bo to thy evil person, like as thou wouldest have bone to mine. Then Hercules laid the Tyrant in the mibbeft of the Bogles which had great hunger, and they beboured him, for they loved mans fieth. And thus when Hercules had put the Tre rant to beath, b e took his Arms in fign of bidory, and returned to Philotes.

Philotes had great for when he saw Hercules return, he enquired of him how he had done. And Hercules would neither hide not conceal any thing from him. What that! I say? with great for and gladness they returned back again, unto the Greeks, and did cause to disanchot their ships, and sailed so the

a to du a Ci

-

the Boat or Baben of Thrace. Then bis Hercules make known in Thrace, the beath of Dyomedes. Whereat was a great ups Potwillanding. Hercules gabe to Philotes the arms of Dyomedes, and font him into the City, to fummon them that governed it, to yield it into his hands. Philores went into the Balace of Thrace, and made to be affembled them that were the Daincipals in the City. When they were affemblet, Philotes laid open to them bis mellage, and fummoned the Thracians that they thould betiber their City into the hands of. Hercules: Saying, that H roules was he that had put to beath the Bing Dyomedes for his chil living and for the love of the coms mon weal: and that the City could bo no better but to res. ceive him at his coming, (for be would not Pillage it) but. mould only bring it to good government. When he had done this Summons, that they thould believe bim, he thewed them the arms of Dyomedes.

When the Thracians law those Arms of Dyomeles, some of the Complices of Dyomedes, and Thieves were full of great rage, and would have taken the Arms from Philotes. The osther that were wise and notable men, and that many years had befired the end of their King (twing his Arms) knew assured that Dyomedes was dead, full of joy answered to Philotes: Forasmuch as Hercules was a king of great renown and wishom, and hath done a work of great metit, in the death of Dyomedes.

dedes, they would receive him into their City.

Mithout long viscourses, the Thracians went unto the Gate and opened it. Philotes returned then unto Hercules, and told him these typings. Hercules and the Greeks went out of their Galleys, and entred into Thrace. The Thracians brought them unto the Palace where were pet many Thieves. Hercules pur all the Thieves to beath, not in the same night, but during the space of ten pays, that he sofourned there.

t

D

e

12

10

12

h

17

He fet the City in oder, and belivered it from the evit. Thieves: He made Judges by election, at the pleasure of the peaple. And when he had finished all these things, he departed from Thrace with great thanks, as well of the old as of the pang. He mounted on the Sea, after by succession of time, be came

came unto his Realm of Lycia, into his Palace, where he was received with great joy of the Inhabitants there, and also of the Beighbours. There he above with the fair Yock, whom he loves above all temporal goods.

CHAH. XXX. How Dejanira forrowed for the love of Hercules to Teel.

THefeus after the return of Hercules ; Steing be moulo as bide there, and there was no mention, in all the world of any Montter of Trant, took leave of his fellow Hercules, Yoel, Philotes, and others, and went to Athens, and Thebes. Likes wife the Greeks took leave, and every man returned into his Country,repeating in all the places where they went, the areat adventures, and the glozious works of Hercules. Then his renown ran as as (wifely as the winde, to that it came unto Iconie, whereas Dejanira fojournes, and it was faid to Dejanira, that Hercules was returned from Spain, with great triumph, and come into Lycia. Dejanira, for his Renown was glad, and ravifle ed with for, and concluded to go unto him, pet was abathed for that he bad not fignified to ber his coming, and that he had not fent for her, boubting that the Bould be out of grace with Herculis. She mabe ready ber company, and in noble effate, beparts ed from Iconie,on a day to go inte Lycia. She tarryed there, to attire ber in the best wife the could, called ber Cfquire names Lycis, and commanded blin that be thould go into Lycia, and fignifie unto Hercules of her coming. At the commanoment of Dejanira, Lycas went unto the City, and it happeneb at the Cate be meta man of bis oto acquaintance, a Squire of Her-Lycas and the Squire faluted each other friendly. cules. After Lycas asked the Squire, and bemanded of bim, where the Bing was: and if he were in his Palace? Dea verily (fain the Squire) be is there, I know well, and geffeth bis time with his Lany Yoel: the man beautifull, and mon resplendent Las by that is in all this world. Cach man praifeth her a thouland times more than Dejanira. Hercules bath her in to much grace, that continually they are together. And whatfoever the Lasy both, it is acceptable unto Hercules: there is no man that can tell the great love they have together.

Lycas bearing thele tydings of the Squire, took leave of him, and made femblance to have left bebind bim fome of his precious Gems and Bewels : for he was of opinion himfelf, that it would be good to give advertiment of bis effate. Penfive and fimply be came back again to Di nha, where the was attiring her lelf precioully, and faib unto ber, mabam, what bo pon bere ? Waherefore ? (answered Dejanira.) tmbp, (laid Depoira?) what troings? Lycas answered: Bard tybings. have beard tell of Hercules, things full of fuch harouels, that trulp it is very grievous to, me to tell pau. Bowbeit fince you are come thus far, you muft needs unberftand them: 3 tell pou for a certain that your Lord Hercules is in his Palace bery foyful : and that he bath in his company a Laby , whom be lovery above all things for her great beauty, to erceeding, that each man marbellech faping : She is the most Soveraign in brauty that ever was feen by man.

Abvile pour felf well, what pe bo, ere pon go any further:

this day is needful you abide, and take countel.

of ge

1-

y. he

he

th

8

nd

ce.

oth

At the hearing of thele tybings, Dejanira was paffing angry, and belpiead with a great forrow in all beir being, the began to quake and tremble. Ber fair bair that was finely breffed on ber beab, the tope with her hands, in to furious manner, that the bilattyred ber,and imote with her fill lo great a froke upon ber breaft, that the fell bown backward in a Imound. The Labies and Benile women that accompanied ber, ihricked & cryed boloroully, and were foge mover. At length Dejanira came to ber felf again pale and wan, the spake, with a feeble and low voice. Poor Dejanira, what fhale thou bo : Wither fhale thou no? Thou that findeft thy felf foglaken of thy Logo Hercules ? Alas, alas, iste pollible that the new coming of allaop, may take away mp Busband ? The beart late toyned to Dejanire, hall the make the feparation ? I hope berily it may not : far H reutes is noble of heart, and loveth bertue: if he abans bon me, be acts against beriue and noblenels. I babe affiance in him that te will be true to me. Wabam (faib Lycas) pout fa 1 fail nothing to fap that Hercules is Roble and full of Wirthe for he bath employed all his time in vircuous things, bombere he is a man, and hath taken love in this new Wloman for her beaucy: know mell, that fartune entertaineth not fong Brinces and Princelles, on the top above ber whal : there is none fo high, but the makerh them fomtime lie beneath among them that luffer trouble. Behold, what pe habe to be. 3f pe no unto Hercules, and he receibe you not as he bath ben accustomes. then fhall you habe caufe of befpair. Wen far that be lobeth foe beraignly this new Laby : It is apparent then, that be fall fet but licele by your coming : and if you go the Laby will be ebil content : The hach renown, and every man is glad to bo ber pleas lure. There thall be no man fo hardy to welcome pou for the love of her: Go not thither then,the peril is too great : 3 couns fel you for the better, that you return into Iconic, and that ve bear this thing patiently, attending and abiding until the fire and the fume of this Laby be quenched : for Hercules is another manner of man than most men be: and will leave the love of this Laby by little and little.

Dejanira believed that Lycas counfelled her trutp, and fore meping the returned into Iconie. Withen the was in the boule at Iconie, the Benped her felf all worldly pleasure, tibing folis tarily, without going to fealts of Plays. Abiding in this for litude, her griebous annop grew moze and moze, by fo great berations that the was confraince to make infinite bewaitings, The continual company of her Ladies could give to ber no for lace. The innumerable fpeches that they ulebunto ber ear, could never take away Hercules out of her mind. She lived this life many bays, having alway her ears open to know if Hereules fent for ber. In the end when the had waited tong, and fam. that neither man not woman was coming to bring ber tybings from the person of Hencules, the water a Letter which the belie liverento Lycas, to bear unto Hercules, and charged him to belis ber it to no person, but to him the fent it to. Lycas took the Letter, and went into Lycie, two mites from the City be met Hercules in a crofs may. Hercules came from Arcadie, where be had newly flain a with Boar, to great, that there was never none:

none feen like him. Wiben Lycas faw Hercules, be made him reverence, and prefenced his Letter to bim, faluting him from Dejanira. Hercules wared red, and changed colour, when he heard speak of Dejanira. But he receiving the Letter amiably read it, and found therein as followeth.

Hercules, My Lord, the man of the world that I most defire, I humbly befeech and earnestly intreas you, that you have regard to your true fervant, and Lover Dejanira, Alas Hercules, alas. Where is become the love of the time past? Ye have now sojourned many days in Lycia, and you have let me have no knowledge thereof. Truly it is to me a very dolorous grief: for I defire not to be deified nor to mount into the celeflial Mansions, with the Sun, the Moon, nor Stars, but without feigning or breaking of a free heart, I defire your folemn communication. I can from henceforth no more frign. It is said to me, that you have another Wife. Alas, H reules, have I made any fault against your worth? wherefore do you abandon me? how can you do fo? Man name you virtuous. You forfake me: that is against virtue. Though now ye do it, I have feen the time that you were my husband, en bracing together, and killing, you shewed semblance of good liking and joy. Now let you her alone that you loved as a poor callaway. Alas, where are the witneffes of our Marriage? where be the eternal yows and oaths which we made one to another. Meh are deaf and blind, but God doth hear and fee, wherefore I pray you, consider and hold your good name more dear, than you do the love of your new acquainted Goffip, that maketh you to err against virtue, whereof you have so great are. nown; and I pray you heartily write to me your pleafure.

Mhen Hercules had read from the beginning to the end, the Letter of Dejanira, as he yet looked upon it, Yoel came unto him, with three hundred Deutlewomen to be merry with Hercules; Hercules then closed the Letter, and returned into Lycia, bolding Yoel by the hand: howbeit, when he was in his Palace be forgot not Dejanira, but found means to go into his Study, and there wrote a Letter; when it was finished he gave it to Lycas, to present it to Dejanira. Lycas took the Letter and returns

ed home to Ocjanira First, he told her tydings and of the state of Yeel. After he delibered to her the Letter, containing that he commended him unto her, and that he had no other Mise but her, and he prayed her that she would not give her self to think any coil, but to live in hope and patience, as a Mise and noble Lady ought and is bound to do, so, her honour and credit. This Letter little or nought comsorted Ocjanira, she was so behement, by actained with fealouse; her so, to the redoubled. In this so, to the wrote per another Letter which she sent to Hercules, that contained thefe woods:

-Hercules, Alas what availeth me to be the Wife of fo Noble a Huband as you are? your nobleness is to me more huntful. than profit ble. O fortune, I was wont to rejoyce, for every diy I heard no other things but commendations of your proweffes and g'orious deeds, wherewith the world was illuminated. Now most I be angry and take displeasure in your works, that are foul and fall of vices. All Greece murmureth at you, and the people fay, That you were wont to be vanquisher of all things; and now you are vanquished by the foolith love of Toel. Alas Herenles, shall I be separated from you? and be holden the waiting drudge of the Catiffe Toel. Sheis your Catiffe, for you have flain her Father, and have taken her in the prize of Calidonia, now the hath the place of your lawful wife. Alas, now shall I be no more esteemed, it is not alway happy to mount to high effate. For from as much as I have mounted in height, and was your fellow, from fo far I feel my felf fall into the more great peril. O Hercules, if for my brauty you took me for your Wife, I may well curse that beauty: for that is cause of the grievous shame, that is to me evident, to prognosticate mine harm, and illeto come. I cannot count them but for enemies, fince by them, all forrows come unto me. The Ladies have joy in the preheminency of their husbands, but I have ill fortune and milhap. I fee nothing but displeasure in my Marriage, O Herenles, I think alleday on you, that ye go in great perils of Arms, and heree Beafls, Tempefis of Sea, and the falle perils of the world. Mine heart trembleth, and hath great fear of you, of whom I ought to have have comfort. I remember and think on you in the day, and dream on yourn the night : me thinketh verily, that I fee the cutting of tharp (words enter into me, and the heads of the Spears: and that I fee iffue out of the Caves of the Forreffs and Defarts, Lyons, and wild Monflers, that eat my flesh, Since the beginning of our alliance unto this day, I have had day and night fuch pains for you, and born them. But alas, all thele things are but little in comparison of the pains that I now suffer, forasmuch as you maintain strange women, and a woman of folly. May the be called the mother of your Children by whom the sparkles of foul renown shalf abide with you." With this vice is my pain redoubled, and pierceth my foul! I am troubled with the dithonour. They fay, that ye are become like a woman, and live after the guife and matmer of a Woman, and spin on the Rock, you that were wont to strangle Lyons with your hands, you leave the exercise of Arms. and to be known in far Countries and Resims, in thewing your vertue, like as you were wont to do, for the only company of the Caitiffe Toel that abuleth you. O curled company. Speak to me Herenles, of the high and mighty men that thou hast vanguished, as Dyomedes of Thrace, Antheon of Lybia, Bufire of Agypt, Gerion of Spain, and Cacus the great Thief, if they were alive and faw thee thus held? Surely they would not repute them worthy to be vanquished by thee, and would point at thee with their fingers, asat a man living in the lap of a woman. O how strong is Teel, when her hands that are not worthy to thread a Needle, hath taken thy Club and brandished thy Sword wherewith thou hast put in sezr all the earth? Alas Hercules, have you not in remembrance, your Childhood, lying in your Cradle you flew the two Serpents: you being a Child were a man, and now when you have been aman, are you become a woman, or a Child? This is the work of a woman, to hold himself always with a woman: or it is the deed of a Child, to enamour himself on a woman of folly. The truthis you began better than you end : your laft deeds answer not the first, your labours thall never be worthypraisings. For all the commendation is in the end, Whofoever:

foever he be that beginneth a work, whereof the beginning is fair, and the end is foul, all is loft: forely Hereales, when I behold the glorious beginning that virtue made in you, and fee that now you are vicious, all my firength faileth, mine arms fall down as a woman in a trance, without spirit, and it may not feem to me true, that those arms (that bire away by force the sheep from the Garden belonging to the Daughters of Atlas) may fall into fo great a fault, as to embrace fleshly another wife than his own. Notwithstanding I am affored of a truth that you hold not Toel as a Catiffe, but as your own wife: not in prison, but at her pleasure, in Chamber finely bedecked, and in bed Curtained and hanged ; not difguifed and fecretly, as many hold their Concubines: but openly and with shameless face, shewing her self very glorious to the people, as if ye might do so lawfully. For the holdeth you Prifoner and Catiffe, and the hath put the fetters about your neck, by her Italian Juglings and thifts, whereof I have great thame in my felf. But as for the amendment, I will ditcharge my, mind, I cannot better it, but pray to God that he will procure a Remedy.

CHAP. XXXI.

How Dejanira sent to Herenles a shirt envenomed, and how Hereules burned himself, in the fire of his facrifice, and how Dejanira slew her self, when she knew that Hercules was dead by means of her ignorance.

: viot

Den Hercules had read this Letter, he understood what it contained, and was imitten with remote of confcience. Understanding that virtue was stained in him: he was bery pensibe, and much depaided from all pleasure, that none durif come to him in a great while, save only that they brought to him meat and drink. You durif, not go to him, Lycas that brought this Letter, was there waiting long to an answer. Do man could know whereof proceeded the pensiveness of Hercules, not therefore his deeded himself: in the can, when thereals had been long pensive, and had thought upon all his affairs effairs, bow to withdraw himself from Yoel, he departed from his Chamber on a day, saying that he would go and sacrifice to Apollo, upon the mount named Octa, and commanded upon pain of death no man thould follow him, except Philotes. By educature, as he issued out of his Palace, accompanied only with Philotes, to go upon the Fount, he met Lycas. Lycas made him rederence, and demanded of him if it pleased him any thing to send unto Dejanira. Hercules answered to Lycas, that he would go to make his factifice to Apollo, and at his return again, he would go or elle would fend unte ber.

Which thele words Hercules and Philores palled forth, on their Bilarimage. And Lycis returned unte Dejanira, and told to ber the topful typings that he had received of Hercules; allo what life Hercules led fince the day and hour he bad prefenter to him ber Letter. Dejanira comforted with thele good tybings, ment unto her Chamber,and thanked Bob and Fostune. After he began to think on their effate and thus thinking the remembed her of the poplon that Nessus had giben her, being at the wint of beath, the had kept it in one of her Coffers: and forthe with incontinently the opened the Coffer, and took the curled poplon and one of the thirts of Hercules ; as the that imagined : by the bertue of the poplon to diam again to her the Love of Hercules. like as Neffus had faid unto her, the made the thire to be boyled with the poylon, and gave the charge thereof to one of her women. Wilhen the thirt was boplet enough, the woman took the bellet, and let it to cool. After he took out the hirt os venly, and mound it, but fo foon as the had mound it, the fire sprang in her hands to behemently, that the cast it upon a perch to bap and fell bomn beab.

In Process of time, Definira befired to have the thirt, and feing the woman that have charge thereof, brought it not, went into the Chamber where the thirt had been boyled and found the woman dead, whereof the had great marvel. Revertheless the patted the beath lightly, and any of her Damplels the made take the thirt that hanged on the Berch and was day, commanding ber that the thould fold it, and wind it in a Bankerchiel.

At the commandment of Dejantes the Bamofel foldeb the

thire. But To poing, the was ferbed with the poplon in fuch wife that the lott ber fpeech and bred foon after Dotwithfant ing Dejanira that thought nothing, but to come to ber intention. took the firt and belivered it to Lycas, charged bim to carre it to Hercules. Lycas that was ready to accomplish the will of his Wiftrels, took the tharge of the fitt, and beparting from them went into the Wountain whereas Hercules was, and there found him in the forrest where was the Temple of Diana H rules bad no man with him but Philotes, who made ready for bim a great fire, to facrifice an Bart that Hercules babtas then, running at a courte. Lyc-s then finding H reales in the Temple, knæled low bown to bim, and faid: Dir, bere is a thirt that your ferbant Dejapira fendeth to you. She recoms menbeth her bumbly anto pour grace, and prayeth you that you will receive this Prefent in good part, as from your Wife Hercules was toyous of these mords, and presently uncloathed bim. to out on this curled Shirt, laving That verily the mas bis Wife, and that he would for her lake wear the fbirt. In bos ing on this fbirt, he felt a very great bolour and pain in his boop. Porwithstanding be put on his other cloaths above, as he that Did think no evil. When he was cloached, and the fhirt warm. his pain and forrow arew more and more. Then be began to think, and knew prefently that his malaby came of the Dhirt. and fæling the micking of the benome, without long tarrying. he took off his robes, & Suppoled to have taken off his fbirt from bis back and to have rent it. But be was not frong enough the Do fo, for the thirt telo lo loge, and rleaved lo falt to bis flet. by the bigour and frength of the harp poplon, that he care out the fieth, and took away certain pieces thereof when he would have taken off his thirt.

Hercules knew then, that he was wonnoed to beath. Death began to fight against him, he began to resist by drawing off his Shire from his body with pieces of his flesh and blood, but all could not work. De cent and tare his back, thighs, with body, but o his entrals and gues, his arms, his shoulders unto the bones, and kill his volour and pain increased more and more. As he retained, in pain, he beheld byeas, and another fellow

Wil:

rellow that he brought with him, he went to them, and fato and Lycas; Thou curren and unhappy man; what ething hach moved the to tome hither under the falle triendship of Dejapira, to bring me into the change of his missortume: What thinkest thou has bone? Thou has served me with a shirting to fix to with mortal benome. Thou hat introduced the cothis? Thou must needs receive thy desert. And saying these words, Hercules caught by the head poor Lycas, that knew not what to say, and threw him against a Nock to sterety, that he bursh his bones, and sew him; the fellow of Lycas sed, and hid him in a bush; Philotes was so affrighted, that he knew not what to bo. At the hour that Hercules was in this case, much people time into the Temple. The entrats of Hercules were crowbled. Dis blood boyled in all his Teins, the poyson pierced unto his heart, his linews fbrunk and without w them.

Toben be felt himfelf in this ertream milery, that beath hafted his end by terrible pain, as he that could not take away the force of the benome, Aribing began to tun over bill and a bet Malley, up and down the foren, and pulled up the great Trees, and everthrew them. When he bagan to tem off ties hirt, with the fleth, that was fodden and boyled. Tothen be had long led this life, be returned unto the Temple, fult affured death and lifting up his bands and eyes to Deaben, faic, Ausalas, mult Fortune now langh ar me, for this milerable be hip, coming from the man Bealoute, and Sozcerp of that Moman, which in all the world I repute most wife and verwous ? DDejmia, umatural woman, without wit, fame aud onour, with an heart of a Tprant, befotied with fealoulic : Dow at thou been able to contribe against me this fury, and treaton prenamen ? If brings or Princes acquaint themfelbes with lables of Bentlewomen, for the encreale of mankind, they will ther habe crebit with their proper Mives. D Dejanira, what of thou bone ? The Women prefent, they that are in the mibs of their Bothere, thall fpit at the in thy face, and atte the without end, for the reproach that thou turned upon benile. Do much abounded Y el in t'ale

Alar, Dejanira : Calhat thall Calcedonie now to, that glo-

rico in the glory, and let thee in the front of their honour, as a Carbuncle, for the becking of their precious things' Row the glory shall be shame: for by impiety and offers Engines, by les eret cruelty thou hast conspired my death, and hast brouched this incurable missortune, for thee and me, and for our friends and hinsmen.

Oh Dejanira, the malice as an unbappe and most cursed der pent, bath wrought this malicious and reproachfult. Hurther. The fate Icalouse bath more power to terminate my life, than all the Pansters of the world. By thine offence, and by the mischievous sleight wherefrom I could not keep me, I must dee, and pass out of this world. Since it is so, I thank Fortune, and ask of God no vengeauce against the row surface to the end it be not said, but the banquisher of men, be not van guther by a woman, I will not pass the bitter passage of death by the mortal Sopreries full of abomination: but by the fire, that is near and clear, and the most excellent of Clements.

Thele polozous and forrowful plaints accomplifted, H reules took bis Club, and call it in the fire that was made ready to make bis Sacrifice. Afrer be gave Philotes bis Bow and Ate roms, and then praped bim, that he would recommend bim is You and to his bearest friends. Then fæling his life hab m longer time to lotourn, be took leave of Philotes ; and all burnt and fooden, he laid him bown in the fire, lifting up his bands and epes to Beaven, & there confummated the courle of his glorious life, When Philotes fam the end of bis Mafter Hercules bt burnt his boop to affes, and kept thole affes, with intention to bear them to the Memple, that the hing Evander bab caules to be mabe: After be bevarred from thence, and returned into Lycia, greatly difcomfosted : and with a great fountain of tears, recounced to Yoel, and to his friends, the pitiful Death of Hercules. Ro man could recount the forrow that York made, and thep of Lycas, as well the Students as rural prople All the world fell in tears and lighs, bewaiting his, untimely Deach. So much abounded Yoel in trate, that her tenber heatt we's ozowood and forthwith her foul beparted from her bony, through the excels of forrow : Then each one curles, and fpate Finally ill of Dejauira.

.

Finally, Dejrnira being advertifed by the fellow of Lycas, of the milchief that was come by the Birt, the fell into belpair, and made great lamentations, and faib: What habe 3 bone : Alas. mbat babe 3 bone . The most notable man of men, fhining as mong the Clerks, be that traberleb the ftrange Coaffs of the Carrb and Bell : De that bobily conberled among men, was familiar with the Sun, Boon and Stars, is bead by mp caule and without my knowledge. De bied by my fault : for 3 have tent unto bim the fbirt, that bath been the inftrument of bis heath. It was not mp fault : for 3 knew nothing of the pop-Th mortal poplon. By me be is beprived of life, whom I lobed as 3 bio mine own. De that was the Fountain of fci. ence : by whom the Athenians harpned their wiss and fubare ments : be that mabe the Bontters of the Sea to tremble in their Abilms, beftroped the Wonfters of Dell : confounded the Bonfters of the earth, Tyrants he corrected, infolent and proud! The humble and meck be enhauntes and eralted: De that made no treasure but of Mirtue : Subbued all the Carions of the world, conquering them with his Club: and if be bar pleas Lev or been ambitious, might have attained to be Bing of the Caft, Weft, Porth, and South of the Seas and Bountains, Df all thele he might have named himlett Lord, by good right,if be had plealed. Alag alag, I was born in an unlucky bour ? Wilben to bigh and mighty Prince is bead by mp Emplenels : We mas the Blozy of men. There was neber none like bim, nos es ber hall be. Dught 3 to live after bim t. Ro, for among the Labies I hall be poinced at with the finger, and fall into drandery bands to be punified, foralmuch as I babe beferbed frame and blame by his beath, 3 will commit a rebenge upon my felf. And with that the took a knife, faying: I feet mp felf willing and ready to die, and know that I am innocent of the beath of my Lord Hercules, fo with the point of the knife fie enbed ber befperace life. Wille:eat Philores was abalbed : and fo mere all they of Greece that long wept, and bemailed Hercules his beath. And they of Athens bemailed bim exceedingly; Come for bis Science, and others for bis Mietues, whereof I will nom crafe fpeaking : Beleeching ber that is the cause of this Trans Nation

i.

1

ts

to

of

ut

el

ti

Ty.

ITE

p,

h

lation out of French into this simple and rube English that is to wit, by revoubted Lady Margaret by the Grace of God Dur's chels of Burgoine and of Brabant: Sister to my Soveraign Lord the Bing of England and France, &c. To receive my rube labour acceptably, and in good part.

Thus envery the second Pook of Collection of the Histories of Troy. Thirdy Books were translated into French out of Latin by the labour of the Menerable person Raoulle Feure Priest, as afore is said, and by me unsit and unworthy, translated into this rude English, by the commandment of my redoubted Lady, Dutchess of Burgoine. And socialmuch as I suppose the said two Books have not been had before this time in our English language: therefore I had the better will to actomplish this said work, that was begun in Brudges, and constance in Gaunt, and finished in Colen, in the time of the great divisions as well in the Realms of English and France, as in all other places universally, through the world, that is to say: in the year of our Lord, one thousand four hundred seventy and one?

And as for the third Book, which treaterh of the general and last Destruction of Troy: It neever not to be Aranslated into English, forasmuch as the worthivsul and Religious man, John Lidgate Monk of Bury, vio translate it lately: after whose work I fear to take upon me (that am not worthe to bear his Pen and Ink-horn after him) to meddle at all in that work. But yet, forasmuch as I am bound to obey and please my Ladies good Grace: also his work being in Merse: and also peraducture he translated it after some other Author than this is: and solasmuch as vivers men be of sundry desires: Some to read in Rime and Specier, and some in prose: and also exaute that I have now good seisure being in Colen, having no other thing to be at this time: to eschew Idleness, Mother of all Mices, I have beliberated in my self, so the contemplation of the said revoluted Lady, to take this Labour in hand, by the sufferance, and help of Almighty God, whom I meeks by heleech to give me the grace to accomplish it to the pleasure, of her that is the causer thereof: and that the receive it in the humble devotion of me her faithful, true, and most humble betwant.

The End of The Second Book

his and a second form the second in the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the first of the firs

Los Missella es el la la Thior da al multi- wa hable and basella est. La basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basella est basel

13. How I rules and Afra Saled by Succlaha Com Arbon

es es es es es estada de la companion de la companion es es violet a relief of Rung differ the lower to well and

Villed

Imprime to Marie, and we want

2 - 0

f:

3

Acceptance to control of the Market with a Westing of the Westing of the decing of the

The Table of the Second Book of the Destruction of TROY.

Chapters. Pages.
I Ow Hercules fought against three Lyons, in the For- rest of Neme: and how he slew them and took their Skins.
2. How June sent Hercules into Agypt to be stain of the Tyrant Busine, and how Hercules slew the Tyrant, against the heperand will of June.
3. How Hercules espoused Megara, and how he was made Knight in Thebes.
4. How the Centaures ravavished Hipodamia, at the Wedding of Pyrotus, and how Hercules recovered her again, and vanqui hed the Centaures in battel.
5. How Pluto ravished Proferpina, and how Orpheus went for her to Hellshow Queen Ceres came to the wedding of Pyrotus, and how Theseus and Pyrotus sought with Cerberus the Porter of H !!.
6. How Hercules found Pyrotus dead at the Gate of Hell, and Thefeus in danger: and how Hercules vanquished Cerberus, and how he rescued Proferpina from Pluto.
7. How Andromedus delivered Lineus; and how he slew in battel the King Creen, and took the City of Thebes.
8. How Hereules entred into Thebes in an unknown habit, and how he put to death-the Gyant Lyncus and his complices, and his wife Megara.
9. How Hercules put to death Laomedon, and destroyed Troy the
10. How Hercules and Affer affailed by battel the Gyant Antheon, and how they vanquished him in battel the first time. 11. How Hercules took King Atlas: and how he began to study the science of Astronomy, and the seven liberal Sciences. 39

The Table.
Chapters. Page	3.
12. How Hercules affembled his battel against Ambon King o	ıf the Lybians, which he put to flight, and flew the King of Cotbulie. 200 1 1 no bomoning ton a le off well 4
13. How Hecules flew Antheon.	5
14. How Hercules and Th fens fought against the two Damesel of Scythie, 15 How Hercules began to wax amorous of Dejanira, and how Achelous and Hercules had battel the one against the other	,
and how Achelous was vanquished.
16. How Hercules put to the worst King Achelous, and how is	e (Spouled Dejunira.
17. How Neffus took Dejanira from Hercules, when he palled	d with herover the River : and how Hercules flew Neffus with	1
an Arrow,
18. How Hereules fought against Hydra, the serpent of the Moon	r .
Lerna, and flew him.	2
19. How Hercules went into Spain and fighting on the Sea, vanquished King Gerion, and took the City of Megidds. 66
20. How Gerion affailed Hercules the second time, before Me-gidda, how Hercules flew his brethren, vanquished and conftrained Gerion to flee.
21. How Hercules pursued Gerion: and vanquilling him, put him to death, at the Port of the Corogne. 75
22. How Hercules founded the City of Corogne upon the tomb of	Ē
Gerron, 79
23. How Hereules affailing King Caeus, overcame him, and how Caeus b gan to tyrannize in Italy. 80
24. How Hercules fought against he eleven Gyants of Cremona, and vanquished them.
3. How Caeus fiole away Oxen and Kine, belonging to Herenles, and how Hercules, fought with him therefore and flew
im. 97
6 How the Queen of Laurenti fell in love with Hercules : and how King Priess came into Italy with a greet holt, to defie
Hercules.	*
7. How Hercules fought King Prient in battel; how he fled into	3

	410-7-951
Chapters.	where Hercules alone dew hi	hapters
io anto the tuty,	whetel Hetrines groue me w. un	m, and min
a C How Hereule	s was enamoured on Toel, the	Danahta
King Prices hor	w he required her Love, and she	Daughter o
fetwo D m lets		116
	fought'against Diomedes in t	he Forrest of
Traces : and how		1 122
	forrowed for the love of Hercul	les to Youl.
CS	I Salarmore and I	126
31. How Dejanira	fent to Herenles a thirt envenom	ed, and how
Hercules burned	himself in the fire of his facrifi	ce, and how Dejanira flew he	r felf when the knew that Heren	iles was dead
by means of her i	gnorance. but a see franch	132
6		west-ne
A SECTION AND AREA OF	the state one of the state	1 7 01 35
a weed not make	101	and the same of the 100000000000000000000000000000000000000	ded for n 102 to he waster	19. Low 14 to 12.0 catalog but he say and	an days -
-ma Las bedienes	conditional library by the formal way	-
71	Commence of the transfer of the	On hollen
day will said nor	on de Calent and van	i sett ex
£	so to to the la trade where	1 4 40 1 1 1
1 1 17 17 17 17 17 17 17 17 17 17 17 17		it w H- it
79	FINIS	30.00
or and omerove	FINIS	29 100
	· // Li El Tippeul vi v v v	14/4-62
08 CENTRAL OF CHARLES	never sugar against be cleven	A wall as
w.D. to to	our oleaw y Oxer and Rine,	1 H 22
73	and there is not the street	1.007.00
bassalama deter	Quea of Lasmuti fell in love	, mad
gert Loit, to d'fi	Prem came into Italy wish a	20 11 W 11 02
oc:	Care Com Sines (0.4.2)	Herester
I A ad wad . I me	fatour of the same	T. THENCET

DESTRUCTION

OF

TROY,

THE Third Book.

Wherein is shewed

How the City of TROY was by Priamus, Son of King Laomedon, re-edified and repaired, more strong, and better fortified, than ever it was before.

And how for the ravishment of Dame Helen, Wife of King Menelaus of Greece, the said City was totally destroyed, and Priamus with Hellor, and all his Sons slain, with many of their Nobles out of number, as hereafter shall appear.

LONDON,

Printed for Thomas Passenger, at the Three Bibles on London-Bridge. 1680.

HOLD THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPE

THE

DESTRUCTION

O F

TROY.

The Third Book.

CHAP. I.

How King Priamus re-edified the City of Troy, more firong than ever it was before: of his Sons and Daughters. And how after many Councils, he fent Anthonor and Polidamas into Greece, to demand his Sifter Exione, that Ajax kept.

Hercules had taken Prisoner Priamus the Son of Bing Laomedon, and put him in Prison. Powbeit Dares of Phrigic saith, that his Father sent him to move war in a strange Countrey, where he had been long, therefore he was not at that discomfiture. This Priamus had wedded a very noble Lady, Daughter of Egyptus, King of Thrace, by whom he had side Sons and three Daughters of great beauty. The sirk of his Sons was named Hector, the most worthy Enight of the world. The second Son was named Paris, and by surname Alexander, which was the fairest Knight of the world, and the best drawer of a Bow. The third was called Deiphebus hardy and pilereet. The fourth was named Helienus, a man that knew all the Arts liberal. The fifth and last was called Troylus, one of the best knights that was in his time.

The Third Book of

Virgil recounteth, he had two other Sons by his Wife, the one was named Polidorus. This Polidorus was fent by Bing Priamus with areat plenty of Gold, unto a Bing his friend, to have aid against the Greeks. But this Bing feing that Bing Priamus was in frife against the Greeks, and also being mober mith coverousness. Aem Polidorus, and buried bim in the The of the Sea. The other Son was named Ganimedes, whom Tupiter foleaway, and made him his Bottle carrier, infteadof Hebe the Daughter of Juno, whom he put out of that office. The elbeft Daughter of thing Priamus was named Creufa, who mas Mife to Eneas : This Eneas was Son of Anchyles, and Venus of Numidia. The fecond Daughter mas named Caffandra. the was a noble Wirgin, learned with Sciences, and knew things that were to come. The third was named Polixena, the was the faireft Daughter that was known in all the world. Beffdes thele Children beretofore rebearled, Bing Priamus bab thirty baftars Sons, by Divers women, that were baliant Enights and hardy.

When King Priamus was in a ftrange Country, very much employed in the profession of War, together with his Duan and Children; Typings came to him that the King Laomedon his Father was flain, his City destroyed, his Roble men put to death, their Daughters brought into servicuse, and also his Sister Exions.

At this forcowfull tydings be was grieved, wept abundantly, and made many lamentacions. We left the Siege, sinished his War, and returned hastily to Troy: and when he found it bestroped, he began to make great sorrow. Then he recedified the City, so strong, that he never ought to doubt his enemies: and did enclose it with Walls and great Towers of Parhle. The City was so great, that the circuit was this days journey, And at that time was none in the World so great not so sair.

In this City were fix Gates: the one was named Dardan, the fecond Timbria, the third Helias, the fourth Cheras, the fifth Troyen, and the fifth Antenorides. The Gates were great and frong. And there were in the City rich Palaces without number, the fairest that ever were, with houses, rich and well compassed. There were in many parts of the City, divers sair places, for the Citizens to sport in. In this City dwelt men of all Crasts and Perchants that went and came in traffick from all parts of the world. In the middle of it ran a kiver, named Paucus, which bare ships that bid bring great profit unto the Citizens.

Withen the City was finished, Bing Priamus did cause to come all the Inhabitants of the Country thereabouts, and made them smell in the City, anothere came fo many, that there was nes ber City better furnifee wich brabe Robility, and Citizens, than it was. There were found many Games, as the Cheffe play, the Mables and Dice, with Divers other Games. In the open place of the City, upon a Rock, Bing Priamus bir build bis rich Palace named Illion : that was one of the richell and frongeft in all the world. It was of beight five hundred paces befides the height of the Towers, whereof there was great plenty, to high, as it fæmen to them that faw them from far, they teacht the Beaben. And in this Palace Bing Priamus bib make the richeft Ball that was at that time in all the Morto: Within which was his Throne, and the Table wheremon be bib eat, and held bis Effate amene bis Dobles, Princes, Lords and Barons, was of gold and filver, precious fones, and of Buozp.

In this Pall, at one corner, was an Altar of Colo with precious flones, confectated in the name and workip of Jupiter their God: unto which Altar, men went up twenty fleps: upon the Altar was the Image of Jupiter, fifteen foot high: all garnished with precious flones. For in that God Jupiter was all the fledfast hope and trust of King Priamus, to hold his reign long and in prosperity.

13

31

10

15

of

at

u

When he faw that he had to fair a City, frong, and well furnified with people, and to wealthy of gods; he began to conceive fome vifuleafure, at the wrongs the Greeks had bone un. to him, and thought how he might revenge him. De affemble, all his Dobles, and belo a Court. At this Court Hector bis elbeft Son was ablent, for he was in the parts of Pannonia, in the affairs of his Father : foralmuch as Pannonia was lubiet to King Priamus. When Bing Priamus fam all his Doble Ders allembled before him, be began to fpeak in this manner, D men, and friends that be partners of my great injuries, bone by the Greeks, for so little a cause, pe know the Greeks came into this Country, and have cruelly flain your Warents and Friends as well as mine. Allo how they have taken away caps tive and held in ferbitude Exione my Sifter fo fair and Roble: vet they hold her as a Common Moman. De know how they have battered town this famous City, overthiown the Walls, the Palaces and Poules to the very foundation: and have born away the great riches whereof the City was full. For thele things, I think it Mould be reason that by the hely of our Gods, who refift those that be insolent and wroup, we altogether by a common accord should take bengeance of those infuries. know what a City we have and how it is peopled with men of Arms, and garnifed with all manner of riches.

And likewise ye know, the Alliances we have with many great Princes, who will assist us if need be. Wherefore we thinkit, will be good for its to take revenge of this shame. Pet forasmuch as the adventures of the Wars be very doubtful and dangerous, and that no man knoweth what may come thereof, (though the injury be great, and that they hold my Sister in so great dishonour) pet will I begin the War: But first if ye think good, I will send the most prudent man I have, to pray and require them that they will restore again my Sister Exione: and I will be content to pardon all the other insuries.

When the King had thus finished his speeches, all praised his advice. And then King Priamus immediately called one of his Princes, named Anthonor, and most earnestly desired him with gentle persusions, that he would encerprize this Embassage forthwith into Greece. Anthonor with all humility answered him, he was always ready to do his good pleasure. Then was

there

n Co be to m fit b

lo

ft

m

th

ani

he

me

the Pri

to the hold to the

there a thip made ready, and all necessaries, for to bring Anthepor into Greece. We entred into the Ship, and his men, and failed fo long, that they arrived at the Bost of Theffalie, where was by adventure the King Peelus, who received the Prince Anthenor joyfully: and bemanded of him wherefore he was come into those parts ? Anthenor made auswer in this manner : Dir, 3 am a Deffenger of the Bing Priamus, that bath fent and commanded me to fay unto you, that he is well rememe hed of the great injuries you and other have done him, that for la little caule have flain bis father, beffrored his people, fome beat, and fome in ferbitube. And that is worfe, to hold his fis fer as a Concubine. And fogalmuch as pe are a man of areas diferetion, the Bing my Logo witheth and warneth you, that from henceforth you ceale the rage and the great flanders that may come for this cause, that all good men ought to eschew to their power, and that his Sifter be lafely belivered again unto him: and be will pardon the refidue, as a thing that never had Withen the King Peleus heard the Prince Anthenor so speak, he chased with him in great anger, and began to blame King Priamus, that his wit was so light. After menaced Anthenor, mocommanded him he should presently depart his Land: so if he tarried long there, he would say him, with great tors ments.

3

t

D

f,

n

î

to

t

is

is

th

ge

D

re

Anthenor tarried not long, but entred into his Ship, withs me taking leave of King Peleus, and sailed so far by Seath the arrived at Salamine, where the King Thelamon so wirned. Then Anthenor went unto him and declared unto him the cause of his coming in this manner. Sir saider Exione kiamus requesteth your Nobleness, that his Sister Exione know you hold in service so foully, ye would resoze unto him for it is not seemly unto your glozy, to use so the Daughter mo Sister of a King, and that is issued of a more noble Linage han you be. In case you will restoze to him his Sister, he will would things as not done, as well the dammages as the dishormars, that by you and other have been done unto him.

Wiben laing Thelamon heard An henor fo fpeak, be begen to wat passing angry, and answered to him very sterely: He friend, whatsoever thou be, I have much marvel of the simple, nels of thy king, to whom I bear no amity, neither he to me. Therefore I ought not to hearken unto his request. Thy king-ought to know, that I and others have been there to revenge an injury, that his Father Laomedon did to some of our friends. Foratmuch as I first entred into Troy with great estusion of my blood, Exione, of whom thou speakes, was given unto me so the querbon of vidozp, to bo with her my will.

And foralmuch as the is so well to my pleasure as the that is of great beauty, it is not to me so light a thing to veliver again a thing that is so velightful, which I have conquered with a great pain and vanger. But thou that say to thy king, That he shall never recover her, but by the point of the Sword: and I repute the for a fool, that wouldest enterprize this message, wherein lyeth thy great peril: for thou art come among people that vehemently hate the: therefore go thy way hastily out of this Country. For if thou abide, I will make thee dye a cruel

B # # #

th

mi of

be 15 0

opp

the

Ho

h

E

c

and hatefull beath.

When Anthenor heard Thelamon to fpeak he entred haffily into his Ship, and failed to far, that he arribed in Theffaly, where hing Caftor and hing Pollux his Brother Cofourne. De went a shore from his thip, and beclared his meslage, like as he had done to the other. And the Bing answere to him in great fre, Friend (what art) will that thou know, we think not to have intured laing Priamus without caule : for it is fo, that King Laomedon his Father began the folly, where fore he was flain. For he wronged firft the Robles of Grecce, and therefore we defire more the evil of thy king Priamus, than his peace. And it semeth well that be bad not the in any good reckoning when he fent the hither to do his mellage: where toze I with thee, fee that thou abide not long here, for if thou Depart not prefently, thou thait bye Willanoully. Then Anthenor beparted without leave, and entred into his fhip, and failed till be came to Pilon, where the Duke Nestor Cojourne, with a great company of Roblemen. Anthenor went to him and faid, he was a Deffenger of the Bing Priamus, and colo to bim him his meffage, as be had faib to the other before.

And if the other were angry, this Nettor chafed more in him felf against Anthenor, and said unto him: Da, ha, vile varler, who made thee say such things before me? Durely if it were not, that my nobleness hindreth me, I would cause thy tongue to be plucked out of thy head, and in despight of thy king, I would by force of Porte cause to draw thy members one from another. Go thy way hastily out of my sight, or by my Cods, I will caufe to be bone unto thee all that I have faib.

Then Anthenor was all abalted, at the horrible words of Duke Nestor, and doubting the sury of his Tyranny, returned to Sea, and set on Troy ward. But he had not been long on the Sea, till a great Tempest rose, and the air began to ware bark, to rain and so thunder, and there arose great winds contrary, and wared thick and horrible, and his Ship was born on the waves, one time high and another time low, in great peril, there was not a man in the Ship, but supposed to die, and in these perils were they three days, and on the sourch, the Tempest ceased, and the air wared all clear, and became peaceable.

Then they comforted themselves, and sailed so far that they came to the port of Troy, and went straight to their Temples to give thanks to their Bods, for that they had escaped so many perils. And after Anthenor, went with a great company of Roble men before King Prianus, and when all the Barons were assembled, and all the Sons of the King present, then Anthenor tolo all by order, what he had done in Greece, like as it is contained herecofore.

,

g.

n

Ę.

01

is

in fe

he nd

ge, ple

of nel

ily

dy,

et.

ge,

TED

ow,

for tte

ece,

nus,

any

etes

HOU

the-

iled

ned,

him

D to

bim

At their tydings was king Priamus fore troubled, for the opprobations speeches offered to his mellenger in Greece. And then he had no more hope nor trust to recover his Sister.

CHAP. II.

How King Priamus affembled all his Barons, to know whom he might fend to Greece to get again his Sifter Exione. How Hellor answered: and of his good Counsel: how Paris declared to his Farher, the Vision of the Goddes Venus.

K Ing Priamus being affured of the bate of the Greeks, and by no fair means he could recover his litter, he was moved with with great ire, and thought he would fend a great Paby into Greece, to hurt and damage the Greeks. Also King Priamus, tell me what missadventure is this, that hath given to thee so great hardness of courage, to cast out thy self from thy wealth and rest? Why mayest not thou refrainthe first movings of thy courage? although it was not in thy puissance, yet thou oughted to have good counsel, so men say commonly: Some man thinks eth to revenge his logrow and be encreafeth it.

It had been a moze fure thing to thee, to have remembred the Propert that faith be that fitteth well, let him not remove. Da elle, be that is well at eale, let him keep therein. All things may be luffered fave wealth, a man that goeth upon plain ground, bath nothing to Cumble at. In this manner Bing Priamus thought long, and after be affembled on a day all his Boble men, in his Palace of ll'ion, fait unto them. De know how by your counfel Anthenor was fent into Greece, to recover Exione by fair means: ye know alfo, bow that be is returned and come back, and allo what wrongs he hath found, andit feemeth the Greeks make little account of the injuries they have bone unto us, at least they by their words, repent them not and threaten us more frongly than ever they bio. God forbid that ever it thould come unto us, like as they menace. But I pray the Gobs to give us power to revenge us to their lofs. me fremeth, that we are more puiffant than they are, and babe the most furest Cicy, and the best furnished in the tologio : allo we have great Loads very plenty allyed to us, to hely and aid is at our neb : for conclusion, we have the pufffance to burt and be mage our enemies in many manners, and valour to befend us from them. And it thould be good, to thew them what vuillance we have to arieve them withal. If you think it good, we will fend our men fecretly, that thall bo to them great Damage, e'tt they flould be ready for to befend themselves. And for that re ought every one to employ your felves to take bengeance of thele injuries, and that pe have no doubt for any thing, in afmuch as they had the first victory : for it happenneth oftentimes that the Conquerous be vanquifbed of them that were banquified.

n

0

g

n

3

n

21

p

and

Then all that were prefent, allowed the advice of the king

0

15,

fo

ch

hp

Û

k#

Ø9

130

in ig is

m

er

Ó

it

90 df

at

Ų

07

(o

is

de

15

ce

11 re

pe

15 ainning

and offered every man to employ themselves to the same with all the power they could, whereat thing Priamus had great joy.

And after that he had given them thanks, he let every man des part bome to their own houles, excepting his Dons legitimate, and the Baftards whom he mainfained in his Palace, and told to them his complaint of the Greeks, with weeping tears in this manner: Ap Song, ve have in pour memory the death of pour Grandfather, the fervitude of your Aunt Exione, that they hold in the manner of a common woman, and you be fo puiffant that reason should intruct you, to employ your selves to revenge this great injury and thame. And if this move you not thereto, pet you ought to bo it, to latisfie my will and plealure : for I am ready to due for forrow and anguith, which we eughe and are bound to remedy to your power, that have caused you so well to be nourished and brought forth. And thou Hear, my right bear Son, that art the elbeft of the Brethren, the most wife and frong. I pray thee first, that thou put in execution this my And that thou be Duke and Prince to the Meethren in this work, and all the other will obey gladly unto thee And in like manner thall they do of this kicalm, for the great Prop wels they know in thee. And know, that from this day forth I discharge my self of all this work, and put it upon thee that art the most frong to maintain battels: for I am ancient and cans not from henceforth bely my felt, lo well as I was wont to bo.

To these words answered Hectors sweetly, saying, my father, and dear Soveraign Lord, there is none of all your Sons, but that it seemeth to him a thing humane, to desire vengeance of these injuries, and to us that be of high novements a little injury ought to be great. It is so, that as the quality of the person groweth or diminisheth, so ought the quality of the injury. If we be destrous to take vengeance of our injuries, we forsake not nor leave the nature of men: for in like manner the dumb Beatls do, and Pature it self teacheth them thereto. Py dear Lord and Father, there is none of all your Sons that ought more to destre the vengeance of the injury and death of our Lord and Grandsather, than I that am the eldest. But I will (if it please you) that ye consider in this enterprize, not only the beginning, but the middle and the end to what peril we may come hereafter: For otherwise, little profit some things will be that come to an evil end.

113 2

Then me thinketh that it is much more allowable for a man to abitain from things whereof the ends are dangerous, and whereof may come more edil than good: For any thing is not to be faid fortunate, until the time that it come unto a good end. I fay not these things for any evil meaning or Cowardise: only so the end that ye begin not any thing, that you have in your heart to put in practice, but first be ye well counselled, and with good advitement.

Pe know, that all Africk and Europe be lubieds unto the G ceks. They be furnifhed with Anights, hardy and marbels lous ? Surely this day, the frength of us is not to be compared unro them in valour. Wherefore, if we begin the wars againgt them we might easily come to a mischievous end. We that be in fo great reft among our felbes, what thall we feck to trous ble our profperity and welfare? Exione is not of fuch bigh price, that it behoveth all us to put us in banger of beath for ber: She hath been long time there. It were better that the fuend forth ber time, who I think bath but little time to live, than we thould put us all into fuch perils. And meekly I befeech you, not suppose that I say these things for comartise: Wit I boubt the chances of Fortune, and leaft that under the thas bow of this thing, the confound and beltrop our great Deigniogy: and at least we thouse begin things that we ought to leave for to elchem more milchief.

When Hector had made an end of this answer, Paris was nothing content therewith: he stood upon his feet and said: By dear Lord, I beseech you, to hear me speak, to what end you may come, if you once begin the War against the Greeks. Be not we garnished with might and noble Thivalry as they be? Surely we be, that in the world is none that may discomfit us; therefore begin ye boldly that enterprize that ye have thought of and send some of your Ships and people to go into Greece, to take their people, and damage the Countrey. And if it please you to send me, 3 will be it with a good will, for 3 am perswated

Hve fenome, 3 thall be great bamage unto the Greeks, and I will take away fome noble Lady of Greece, and bring her with me into this Realm, and by commutation of her, you may retober your fifter Exione. If you will understand and know how Jam perswaved of this thing; I will tell you, the Cobs have momifed it to me. It happened to me of late faid (Paris) that by your commandment 3 was in the leffer India, at the beginning of the Summer and upon a friday I went to hunt in a forreft perpearly, and that morning I found nothing that turned me to any pleasure : and after mid bay, I found a great Bart. that I put to the flight, fo [wiftly, that I left all my company behind: and followed the Bare clofe, into the molt befert place of the Forrest which was named Ida. And to long & followed bim, that I came unto a place, paffing obfcure, then 3 fam the Bart no moze, that I chafed. I felt then mp felf foze weary, and my Horse allo, that could no further go. So I lighted, and then mp Boile to a Tree, and fait me bown upon the Grafe, and out under my head my Bow inftead of a Willow, and fell afleen. Then came to me in a biffon, the God Mercury, and in his company three Cobbeffes : Venus, Pallas and Juno. the Goddeffes a little from me, and after he approached and fair unto me in this manner. Paris, 3 have brought thefe three unto thee : for a great controverfie that is fall'n between them . They have cholen thee to be Judge, and to betermine after thy mill. Their concrovertie is thus, that as they bid eat the of ther pay together in a place, Subbenly was call among them an Apple, of lo marbellous fairnels, that never was feen one fuch before amongst them. And there was written about this Apple in Greekish language: Be it given to the Fairett: So each of them would have it, by any meanes in the world : faying cath of them to be the more fair than the other, so they could not agree.

Ì

e

h

T:

ab

ın

ch

ut

185

p:

vas

you Be

be :

ug:

aht

ece,

eale

ateb

Wherefore they have put it to thy Audgment, and each of them promiseth thee a gift for thy reward, that thou such that pave without fail, for the Audgment of the Apple. If thou sudge that Juno be the fairest, she will make thee the most noble man in the warls. If thou sudge for Pallas, she shall make thee the most wifelt man in the world in all Sciences. If then subre that Venus be the faired. The thall give thee the most noble Las by in all Greece. Wilhen I heard Mercurius thus fpeak, I fais unto bim, that I could not give true judgment, unles I fam them all naked before me, to fee the fathions of their bodies, the better to gibe a true judgement, Then incontinent Morcurius Did caufe them to uncloath themfelves and then I bebeld them long and me thought all three paffing fair : but yet me, fremed that Venus exceeded the beauty of the other: therefore 3 fubared that the Apple apperrained to ber. Then Venus areats ly rejoycing at my judgment, confirmed unto me the promife that Mercury had made before in the favour of ber : and after Jawoke. Wien pe'then (mp bear facher,) that the Coos fail of anything they promite: Pay berily, I fay to you fill,it is best that you send me into Greece, hat you way have joy of that 3 Chall Do there.

After Paris, tpake Deiphobus: My bear Lords, if in all the works that men begin, fould be adviced ever in the events of things that might happen, they fould never enterprise nor do valiant acts by hardinels.

If the labourers mould leave to low the Land, for the lad which the birds pick up, they thould never labour. Therefore (Dear Father) let us make ready for to fend into Greece your Ships. De may not believe better councel than that which Paris bath given unto you: For if he bring any noble Laby from thence, ve may eafily peilo ber back again, to recober vous Dis fter Exione, for whom we all luffer fhame enough. After this fpake Helenus, the fourth Son of Bing Priamus thus : Da, ba, right puillant Bing, and right Soveraign ober us vour molt humble Subjects, and obedient Dong. Beware that covetouls nels of bengeance put you in luch banger as lveth berein. know well how I underftend the things future and to come as ve have proved many times without finding fault : the Gods forbio, that ever it came to pals, that Paris thoule be fent into Greece : for know pe, that if ever he go to make any affault ups on them, ve thall fee this honourable City befroved by the Greeks, the Trojans flain, and all your Children. Therefore Diffmad distinate your felf from these things, whereof the end wall be great distillation, with death to your felf, your Wife, and we that be your Sons cannot escape. For if Paris go into Greece, all thele evils will come thereof.

Withen the Eing heard Helenus thus fpeak, he was aballed, and began to enterpoile more of the matter, and belo bis peace and fpake not of a good fpace : fo bid all the other. Then arole un Troylus, the youngelt Son of Bing Priamus, and began to freak in this manner. D Poble men and harby, bow are ye as baffico for the words of this cowardly Prieft : It is not the cus fom of Ditetts for to bread the battels, to love god chear, and pleafures, and to fill their bellies with Wires and Beats ? Tabo is he that believeth, any man can know the things to come untels the Cobs bo them them by Kevelation ? It is but a folly to tarry upon this, or to beliebe fuch things. If Helenus be afraid, let bim go into the Temple, and Sing Divine Service, and let the other take revenge of their infurious wrongs by force of Arms, D bear Lord and father, wherefore art thou fo troubled wich thefe words ? Send the Ships into Greece, and thy unights wife and harby, that may make requiral to the Greeks, for their injuries they have bone unto us. All they that beard Troylus thus fpake, commended him, faying : he had berp well Spoken. And thus finifed their Parliament and went to Dinner.

After Dinner, Bing Pramus called Paris, and Deiphobus, and gave them commandment expecsely, that they should ride into the parts of Panonic to fetch and assemble valiant Enights and take them into Greece. And the same vay Paris and Deiphobus departed from Troy, to accomplish the will of their Fasther. The vay following the Bing assembled to council, all the Cicizens of Troy, and said unto them: Dmy loving friends and true Cicizens, ye all know how notociously the Greeks, by their yrive and insolence have done unto us great wrongs, and damages, as it is well known to the whole world. And ye know also how they hald my Sister Exione in tervitude, wherefore I live in great sorrow: and also ye may remember, how I sent Anthenor into Gre ce, that hath done nothing: wherefore my forcow is doubled. Foralmuch as I have purposed to fend my Son Paris, with men of arms into Greece, for to assail our esnemies by strength, and to do them great damages, and to assay if they can take any noble Lady of Greece, and send her into this City: that by the commutation of her, I might get again my Sister Existe: And because I will not begin this thing, but that it may come to your knowledge first, I pray you, that you give to me your advice: so, without you I will not proceed any surther, so, assay as it touches hyou as well as me.

Wilhen the Bing had thus finished his fyeches, and each man filent a great while: then flood up a Anight named Pantheus, that was the Son of Deuphrobe the Philosopher, and faib: D noble Bing, as I am pour Serbant and Haffal, I will be clare unto you my arbite in this matter. Eruly, as a Maffal and subject is bound to counsel his Lozd, ve have had mos knows ledge of Deuphrobe, the great Philosopher, my Father, who libed in this City, more then ninefcore and ten years, and was to wife in Philosophy, that he knew of the things to come hereaf ter : be faid unto me many times, and affirmed for truth. That if Paris your son went into Greece to take any noble Laby, by biolence, this famous City thould be bettroped and burnt to after by the Greeks, and that ye and all yours hall be cruelly flain. Therefoge wife and bertuous Bing, pleafeth it pour Ro blenefs to hear my words, and believe what the wife men have faid, do not perfevere in your opinion. Wilherefore will pe fak to entrap the god effates of your reft, and put your tranquillity under the bangerous adventures of Fortune : Leave this, and biffmabe your felf from this jeopardy : and finish your life in reft happily, and fuffer not Paris to go into Greece in Arms. Mut if you will proceed, fend fome other, and not Paris.

At these words of Pantheus, grew and arose great murmuring. Some approved the Prophesies of Deuphrobe the Philosopher, and some held it as a Fable, which were of the greatest number, insomuch, that by consent of the most part, Paris was appointed to go into Grecce with men of Arms to the Parliament finished, and each man went home, to his particular place.

i

日本日本日本は

P

8

Enhen this tonclusion was known to Cassandra; Daughtet of Ling Priamus, the began to make so great sorrow, arts she bad been frantick, saying: D noble City of Troy, what Fairy bath moved the to be brought to such perils, sor which shou that in those time be overthrown and vestroped unto the ground? D Nuen Heenda, so, what sin hast thou veserved the death of thy Children, which shall be horrible? wherefore withholdes thou not Paris from going into Greece; Mhich shall be the cause of this evil adventure? and when she had so cryed, she went unto the Ling her Father, and viouned in tears with weeping, destred him he would be persuaded to leave off his enterphize, saying; That she knew by her Science the great evils that were coming by this means. But neither so, the distributions of Hector, no, the admonition of Cassandra, the Ling mould shange his purpose, no, so the leaves so Helenus his Son no, Pantheus.

CHAP. - HIT at the main or der wheat project girll did start

How Paris and Deiphobus, Eneas, Anthenor, and Polidamas, were fent into Greece: and how they ravished Helen out of the Temple of Venus, with many Prisoners and riches, and brought them to Troy, where Paris espouled Helen.

t

0

30

k

ty

de

in 19.

IL

los ate

aris

at.

tlat

hen

The the beginning of May, when the carth is aborned with bis bers flowers, Paris and Deiphobus returned from Pannonic, and brought with them the thouland Unights, harry and wife. Then they made ready two and twenty great hips, and laid in them all that was convenient for them. Then Priamus call let Eneas, Anthenor, and Polidamas, the Son of Anthenor, and commanded that they thould go into Greece with Paris and Deiphobus, and they offered themfelves with a good will. When they were all ready to take Shipping Priamus frake unto them: I need not ule many words, for ye know well enough for what cause I fend pe into Greece, and what fuft cause we have to revenge the wrongs the Greeks have vone unto us." But the mincipal caule in to recover my Sifter Exione, that liveth in great thealbom. Wherefore 3 abmonith you, that pe bend all your endeabourg, that map retober my Sifter. And be rers Pri mus tain tain if ye want of need any fuccour. I will fupply pour with to great a Brength, that the Grecks hall not be able to beat. And that in this boyage pe hold my Son Paris Captain of the Army of Encas and Anthenor.

After these words, Paris and all the other took leave of the Bing, and entred their Ships, and hopsed up sails, and recommended them, to the gaiving of Jupiter and V. nus, and sailed so far, that they arrived on the Coasts of Greece, in sailing about the Country, they met a ship, in which was one of the greatest Lings of Greece, named Menalcus, going to the City of Epire, unto the Duke Nettor. This Menclaus, was Brother of A-Buremon, and married unto Duten Helen, that was the fairest Lady in the world: she was Sister of C. so and Pollux, that dwelled together in the City of Samastare, and nourished with them Hermione their Reece, Daughter of Helen: Menclaus made his ship cross a little, and to turn out of the way, so the one bid not know the other.

And the Trojans failed so far, that they arrived at the 3de of C that in Greece, there they anchored their Ships and went a land. In this 3de was a Temple of Venus passing ancient and of great heauty, full of riches: for the Inhabitants of the Country made their debotion unto the Goddess Venus especially, and solemnized her feast every year, and the told and gabe them answers of their bemands.

Then when the Trojans were arrived, they halfowed the most principal feast of venus: and for this cause were assembled men and women of the Countrey thereabouts, that made great chear.

When Paris knew of this feaft, he took his best cloaths and apparelled him, and all the fairest and toveliest of his men, and went into the Temple in a pleasing manner, and made his offering of gold and filver with great liberality.

Then was Paris beheld on all fides that were there, for his beauty: for he was one of the fairest maights of the world, and was so richly becked, that it afforded great pleasure unto all them that beheld him, and every man desired to know whence it came: the Trojans told them it was Paris Son of Ling.

Priamus

mus of Troy, that was come into Greece, by the commandement of his Father, to require that they would reflore again Exicute his Sifter, that they had given unto King Thelamon. So far went the tydings of the coming of these Trojans and of their beauty and rich cloathing, that Quien Helen heard speak thereof: and after the custom of women, she had great befire to know by experience, if it were truth that she heard: and bisposed her to go unto the Cemple, under colour of debation, so; to accomplish her desire. How great folly is it unto lone women, to go unto the sports of young people, that do nothing, but debite how they may come to their desire, and care not what mischief may follow in hody and in soul? The Ship would never perish, if it above always in the Post, and were not sent out into perils of the Sca.

It is a precious Iewel, to have a good woman, that holocib ber bonethy in ber house. Do how great damage came unto the Greeks and Trojans, that Helen went to lightly to let the Trojans: and especially in the absence of her Pushand. But it is the custom of women to be wilful, to bring their desires to the end. Helen did cause to make ready Porse, and all that was consenient, to go unto the Temple, as if the went for Pedotion: This Temple was not very far from the place where the dwelled. When all was ready, and the cloathed in Royal habit, the road with her company, unto the Ise of Cithar, and entred into a Messel that brought her night of the Temple, where the was received with great honour by the Country, as their Lady. She entred into the Temple right sately, and made her obla-

.

10

30

10

U

is 15

nB

II

33

ga

us

tions with great liberality.

Mhen Paris knew that Dueen Helen. Wife of Ling Menelaus, one of the most noble Lings of Greece, was come unto this Temple, he arrayed him in the most Gentleman-like manner he could (and his company) and went into the Temple, for he had before heard of her great beauty. And when he saw her he was greatly surprised with her love, and desired to see the fashion of her body, to fair and well shaped in all parts, that it seemed Parure made her to be looked on: for in her was nothing but served to manifest all the excellencies of a woman.

Wilherefore Paris could not forbear bebolbing ber, saying in bimitelie he ban never seene nor beard relf of any so beautiful and and well some. And has be beheld ber, the like wise beheld him, many times and off, he seemed to her, that he was more fairer a great deal then had been reported to her; and fill the said in her selfe, that the never saw a man of so great beauty, nor that pleassed her so well to behold; and so the left all her devotion and gave no hee to any thing fave only to behold Paris.

In more and more, and the him. By which fight they thewer their destres, the one to the other: and thought divers times by what occasion they might speak together. And so long they be, held each other, that by all likelihood, Helen made a sign to Paris, and he approached to her; and Paris sate down beside her, whiles that the people played in the Aemple, he spake unto her with a soft voice sweetly, and the to him, and vectored each to other how they were surprised with inverand reasoned how they might come to the end of their vestres. When they had spoken enough of their how, Paris took seave of her, and issued out of the Aemple, he and his company; and Helen sent her eyes after him as far as the might.

When Paris was come to his Ship, he called to him the most Poblest of the Trojons, and faid to them: Py friends, pe know wherefore the King my Father hath tent us into Greece, that is to recover Exione his Sister: and if we tannot recover her, that we should be damage unto the Greeks. We cannot recover Exione, for the is in too strong an hand: and also it would be our danger and loss since it is so that the King Thelamon, that holdeth her, and loveth her heartily, is more puissant than we, and is in his own Country. We are not so strong so, to take any noble City in Greece, the Country is so full of people, and

Tin

th

5

m

T

Gr

ton for paliant Bnichts.

Therefoze it is necessary, that we resule not the fair gift the Bods have sent us. Foz in this Ide is come to the seast the most greatest Citizens, and the Temple replenished with the most noble women of this Province; also Diven Helen that is Lavy of this Country, and Wife of King Menelaus. This Temple is is full of riches : if we can take them alive that be inithe Temple, and bring them Priloners with us, and the Gobs that be there of Gold and Silber we thall have conquered a great wain and get riches in other places.

If you think good this night we will enter into the Temple all armed, and take men and women, and all that we find, and bring into our Ships, and principally Helen : for if we can earry her into Troy, Bing Priamus may lightly enough have bis fifter Exione again for her: therefore abbile fpebily what is belt to be vone, before they escape us. Some of them blamet this thing fome allowed it : and finally they concluded after mas

my Counfels, that they would be as Paris had bebiled.

Pow when the night was come, and the Boon nigh going bown, the Trojans armed themselves, and left some for to kep their Ships, and the other went paivily unto the Tems ple, and entred therein, to armed as they were, and with little befence, took all them that they found in the Temple, and all the riches. And Paris with his own hand took Helen, and them of ber company, and brought into their Ships, and after returns to the Booty. Then began the noise to be passing great within the Memple, and Come had rather luffer beath, than for

to be taken Paifoners.

The noise was heard to far, that they of the Caffle there by, heard it : and arole and armed them, and came to affail the Troians, as valiant as they were. Then began the skirmish fierce and mortal: but the Trojans(that were four against one) flew many of them, and the other recired into their Caftle : and the Trojans took as much goods as they could find and carried them. into their Ships, and hopled up their Sails, and failed fo long, that on the febeuth day they arrived at the Post of Troy, their Ships filled with good Pailoners and great riches, and they res mained at the Post of Tenedon, that was the miles from Troy : there they were received with great joy. And Paris fent a proper Deffenger unto his Father Bing Priamus; to let him have knowledge of his coming, and all that he had bone in Greece. At thefe typings the King was greatly reforced and commanded to make a folemn Featt in all parts of the City for thele typings. Willes.

Whiles that Helen was with the other Priloners in the Shin the ceafed not to weep, and bewait with great fighs ber laus. band, Brethren, Dangbier, Countrep,and ber Friends, and was in fo great forom,that the left to eat and brink. And Paris comforted her the mod fweetly that he could: that the minhe forvear weeping, and Paris fait unto her in this manner: Dear Lady, wherefore make pe this forrow, bay and night without reft ? What man or woman is it that can long enbure this? Buow not pe that this forrow hurterh pour heal. b . Des berily wherefore I pray you to reft contented, for in this Realm, re thall want nothing, neither thole Pailoners that pou refped, and pe fall be the most renowned Laby of this Realm , pour men that be bere, fall want nothing. To this the antwered. Paris, 3 know well, that will 3, or will 3 nor, 3 muft needs Do as you will,fince 3 am your Priloner : and if any good haps pens to me and to the Prifoners, I hope the Bobs will remark and thank them that bo it. Babam (faib Paris) fear not for 3 will bo to you and them all what pe that pleate to command.

Then he took her by the hand, and brought ber into a more fecret place, aud fait unto ber : Dabam,think pe, foralmuch as it hath pleafed the Gods to fuffer you to be brought by me inta this Province that pe be loft, and undone, and thall not be more richand more honoured then pe have been, and that the Realm of Troy is not more rich than the Realm of Achay? Des berily I will not maintain you bifoneffly ; but will take you to my wife, to thall you be more honoured than you have ben with your Bachand : for your Busband is not Delcenbed fram to noble a houle as 3 am, noz fo baliant : noz bio be lobe you fo Therefore ceale pour forrow, and beliebe mell as 3 mill bo. this that I have faib to you. Sir faib the) who can abffain from making of forrow, being in the effate that 3 am in ? Alag, this cale happnebneber before; but fince it cannot be otherwife, 3 will bo that thing pe require of me, foralmuch as 3 habe no as tilicy to refift tt. Thus Helen was comforted a little : and Paris Dib pleafe ber to the uttermoft of his power.

On the morrow betimp, the apparelled her felf the moft he pourably the could, and face upon a Palfrey richly arrayed, fo

Die the other Paifoners, each after their begree : and after be ment on bosteback himfelf, and Deiphobus bis Brother, Eneas, Anthemor and Pol damas, with a great company of Doblesmen, and accompanied Duren Helen from Tenedon, and went tomaro Troy. There came forth out of the Town King Prismus, with a great company of Poble-men, and received bis Children and his friends with great foy: who came to Helen, and bows en courtewondy to her, and welcomed her honourably. And when they can e nigh the City, they found great floze of people alab of their coming, with inftruments of Bulick : and in fuch for came unto the Palace of Bing Priamus: be bimfelf lighted bown and helpt Helen from ber Palfrey, and led ber by the band into the Ball, and made great for all the night, through out all the City, for thefe tybings. And the nert morning, Paris by confent of bis Father, webbed Helen in the Temple of Pallice : and the featt was lengthened throughout all the Cip for the fpace of eight bays.

When Caffandra knew that her Brother Paris had Weebeb.

moman fait thus:

1

8 ê

n

15

3

13

D

24

ſa

D unhappy Trojans, wherefore reforce pe at the Webbing of Paris of which to many evils fall happen ? It will cause the beath of your felbes, your Chilbren thall be flain before your eres, and Busbands befoge their Wives ! D Roble City of Troy, bow halt thou be beffreged and put to nought ? D unbappy Pothers, what forrow thall pou fee, when your little . Chilozen fall be taken and bilmembred before pou ? D Hecuba. Caitiffe, and unhappy : where thalt thou take the Water that thou thalt weep forthe beath of thy Chilozen? D people blind and foolif, why fend you not Helen home again, and piclo ber unto ber Busband, before that the Iwogos of pour Cnemies tome and day pou with great forrow? Think rou that the Bingly Busband of He'en, will not fiek rebenge ? Des, which hall be your bolozous beftruction. D unhappy H. longthou thale be the caule of great forrow. As Caffandra cryet thus with great forrow, Bing Priames tearing it, entreated her to ceafe. but the would not. And then be commanded ber to be call in Paifon, Prison where the was kept many days. Dwhat pity was it that the Trojans believed not this warning and admonition; For, if they had believed it, they had prevented the evils that came after them, which hall be told in Tables, and made plain to them that will hear them unto the end of the world,

CHAP. IV.

How Menelaus was fore troubled for the ravishing of Helen his Wife. And how her two Brethren Castor and Pollux, pursued Paris in the Sea: and of their death: And of the condition and minner of the Lords, as well Greeks as Trojans.

A Free these things were bone, Menelaus (that sofourned at Epire with Duke Nessor) hearing tydings of the prize and taking of his Wife, and his people, was so perpleted with grief, that he fell to the earth in a swound. And when he was come again to himself: he complained crewbingly, and made the greatest sorrow of the Morlo. Above all other things he was most grieved so, his Wife, and could not be comforted.

When Duke Nestor heard the tydings, he came to him and comforted him the best manner he could, for he loved him entitley. But Menelaus could not leave his fortow that took his leabe and returned into his Country.

And sent unto laing Agamemon his Brother, to come and speak with him. And also unto Castor and Pollux, the Brothers of Helen, that they should come also to him. When Agamemon saw his Brother make such sortow, be said: Brother, wherefore grieve pe: Suppose that the cause be sust, yet a wise man ought not to make them thereof: sor it cause him friends to be sortowful, and his enemies to resource: therefore him thy sortow and make them as if thou did not regard it: for hysore row thou cause not attain to honour nor revenge, but only by sore of arms. Therefore awake the courage, so shall thou respect the injury bone unto the. Thou knowes, what sores we have, and what Afvers we shall sud; sorthis injury touches what the Bings and Princes of Greece, and as soon as me shall require their aid, there shall not be one but he will bely us with mich all his pomer, then we will go before Troy, and will be with our enemies as we lift and will beftrop the City. Anbif me take Paris that is ado; of thele hurts, we will hang bim, and make him bye a hameful beath. Ceale then thy forrow, and let us make it known to all the Kings and Brinces of Grecce, and require their aib to rebenge this infury.

Then was Menelaus comforted, with the words of his Bros ther and they fent their Letters unts all the Barons of Greece, and at their intreaties they all came: first Achilles, Patroclus, Dyomedes, and many others. As foon as they knew wherefore they were fent for, they fair, That they would go to Troy with all their frength for to revenge the fame, and to recover Helen. So they chole Agamemnon cheif Paince of their Bott, as be that was prubent and of good counfel.

1

Row it happened that Caftor and Pollux, Brethen of Helen, as foon as they heard their fifter was rabifhed, they took Chipping and purfued the Trojans, with a great Army to recover ber again. On the third bay, as they were on the bea, there arole a Mempett, Abunder and Bain, that their fhips were caft on the Bock, one bere, another there : and finally, they were all browned. 'And the Pagans fay, that thefe two Wiethien were translated with the Gods into the Beaben of Zos biack, and returned into the Sign of the Beatts, foralmuch as they were Brethien and twins. And thus ended their libes by the taking of their Sifter. Some Boets feign, that thefe Brethrenere translated into two Stars, (that is) the Rouths far, and the South-flar , which are named after them. Caftor and Pollux.

In this place bectareth Dares in bis Book, the fathions of the Greeks that were before Troy, fome of the mott Roble of them. as he that law them many times, buring the Siege befoze the City. And he began to Weak of Helen, and faith, That the was lo fair, that in all the world no man could find a fairer, nor bets ter formed in all members. Agamemnon was long, and white of body frong of members, and well formed, loving, viferiet, barby, and paffing well fpoken. Menclaus was of mean flature, hardy in Army, and couragious. Achilles was of great beauty beauty, black bairs, and crify, gray eyes, and great, of amiable fight, large Wiealts, broad thoulvers, great arms, his tieins high enough, a man of great flature, and had none like unto him among all the Greeks, befirous to fight, large in gifts, and libes ral in fpending . Tantalus was great of his boby, and frong . faithful, humble, flying quarrels,if they were not fuft. Ajax was of a big flature, great and large in bis foulbers, areat arms, and always well sleathed, and very richly? and was of no great enterprize, and fpake very quick. Thelamon Ajax was a marvellous fair Anight, be bab black bairs, be bab great pleas fure in Bulick, and he himfelf lung very fweetly: he was of great promets , and a baliant man of War , without pomp. Uliffes was the most faireft man amongit the Greeks, pet be was bery beceirfull and fubril, and belibered his fpeech forfully: he was a very great Lyar, and fo well fpoken, that he had no fellow like unto him. Dyomed eswas great, and had a broad breatt, and marbellous fronce, of fierce ficht, falle in his promiles, worthy in arms befirous of bidery bread and reboubted : he was greatly injurious to his Servants; and Lururious wherefore he luffered many pains. Duke Neltor was of great members, and well fpoken, bifcreet, and bery thaifty, gabe always good counfel fuddenly he would be very angry, a ftraights may pleased again ; he was the most true friend in the world. Prothefilaus was fair, and of a goodly fature, noble and active in Neoptolemus was great, he had black bair, and great eyes, but forfull and well cheared his everbrows fract, frame mering in his words, but he was wife in the law. Palamede the Son of Bing Naulus, was of fair hape and lean, fout ans amiable, a good man and liberal. Polidarius was valling great. fat and Iwoln, bardy and high minded, without truth. thaon was a mean fature, proud and harop, one that fleut little by night. Brifayda the Daughter of Chalcas, was paffing fair, of mean facure, well mabe, fweet and picifull, and many men loved her for ber beauty : For the love of her came the Bing of Perfia, unto the aid of the Greeks, unto the fiene of Troy.

Pow of them that were within Troy, the same Dares faith, firft

to to the first of hing Priarous, he was long, griefly, and fair, and had a loud boice, hardy, and that he bidgladly eat early in the more ning, a man without fear, be baced flattery, be was upright, and a good infter, had great belight to hear linging, and mufick, and earneftly loved his Dervants, and much enriched them. Df all his Sons, there was none to harpy an his eldeft, the worthy Hector. This was he that valled in his time all other laniobes in Chivalry, and futtered a little : be was great, and had harb members, and could endure much pain, and his bair curled, be tifped : there never iffued out of Troy to frong a man, not fo morthy: never came a billanous morb out of his mouth: he mas never weary of fighting in battel : there was never Inight better beloved of his people than he was. Paris was a fair be. and ftrong, feft baired, true, fwift, fweet of pecch, well brame ing a Bow, wife and hardy in battel bery refolute, and coverous of honour. Deiphobus and Helenus were both like the other. that a man could not know the one from the other, allo thep refembled Bing Priamus their father.

a marbellous wife Clerk. Troilus was great, and fout of courage, well mannered, and beloves of poung Baibens: in frenath and merrinels he relembled Hector, and was the fecond after him in Promels: there was not in all the Realm, a moze freng young man. Eneas hab a great boby, be was poils creet in his works, well spoken, perp courteous in his wo 2 s. full of good councel, and cunning. We had his vilage toyful, his eves clear and gray, and was the richeft man in Troy next Bing Priamus in Towns and Cattles. Anthenor was long and lean, and fpake much, and of great induftry, and one whom Bing Priamus lobed greatly, and gladly played among his company, and was a wife man. Polidamas his Son was a goodly young man, hardy and of good manners, long and lean like bis father, brown and frong in puillance of Arms, and of good and courtes

.

is

t,

-

e

r,

n

g

Œ

Deiphobus was wife and happ in arms. And Helenus was was a firong big woman, and feemed better a man than a wos ous morbs. Bing Menon was great, he had large shoulders, great armabe was bard in the breatt, and of great courage, one that brought many Unights unto Troy. I be Queen Hesuba

man :

man; the was mile, courteaus, and houelf, labing the morks of chartey. Andromache the wife of Hector was a fair woman and white, and had fair eyes and hair: the was bery honest and civil in her works. Cassardra was of a fair statute, clear, round mouthed, wife, the loved virginity, and knew much of things to come, by Askronomy and other Sciences. Polixenawas a very fair Paik, tenver, and the very ray of beauty, and whom Pature failed nothing, save only the made her mortal; the was the fairest maid that was in her time, and the best some. Pany more were within the Town and without during the Siege: but these were within the Town and without during the Siege: but these were the printipal and greatest of Pame. Therefore Dares declarth the fashion of them, and rehearseth, not of the other.

CHAP. V.

How the Kings, Dukes, Earls, and Barons of Greece, affembled with their Nivy before Arbent, to come to Troy: and how many Ships each man brought to help King Menelaur.

was passed, the lend of February, that the Winter was passed, the Brings and Princes of all Greece, assembled together at the Port of Athens, to go to Troy. It is not in the remembrance of any man since the braining of the Whold, that so many Ships and Unights were assembles, as there were at that time. First Agamembon, that was Prince of the Holds of the Greeks, brought from his Realm of Michmas, and hundred Ships full of armed Unights. The Uning Meneiaus his brother brought from his Realm of Sparta forty Ships. Archelaus and Prothenor from the Realm of Boccie, fifty Ships. The Duke Ascalapus, and the Carl Helmius, from the Province of Orconemy, thirty Ships.

The Bing Epistrophus, and the Bing Sedius, from the Bealm of Freide, thirty Ships: in his company, was the Duke Theuter, Duke Amphimacus, the Garl Polinene, the Carl Thebas, and many other Roblemen.

The ancient Duke Nestor to, his Province of Pi'on, fifty Shipe. The King Thois of Tholy, fifty Ships. The King Doxumois

2

Doxunois, fifty Ships. The king Thelamon Thyleus, fir and thirty Ships. Polibetes and Amphimaeus from his Province of Calidonie, two and thirty Ships. The king Idumeus, and the king Mercon of Creet fourscore and two Ships. The Duke Tynelus from his City of Friges twelve Ships.

Prothocathus and Prothessaus the Dukes of Phylica, brought with them two and fifty Ships. Colless brought four and twens ty Ships, from the Realm of Cresome. Ling Machaon, and the Ling Poly dris his Son, three and thirty Ships. Achtlis brought from his Poble City of Phaceatwo and twenty Ships.

The Bing Thephalus brought from Rhodes, two and thirty: Ships. Uruphilus from Orchomenie, two and fifty Ships. The Duke Anthippus and the Duke Amphymacus of Rufticane, thirteen Ships. The Ming Polybetes of Rithe, and the Duke Lopius his Brother in Law that hat webbed his Differ, threes frese and two Ships. The Bing Dyomedes of Arges, foure fcore and two Ships: and had in his company Thelamus and Eurialus : the Bing Polyphebus, nine Ships. Ehe Bing Enreus, thirteen fbips. The king Prothoylus of Chemnenfe, two and fifty thips. The Bing Carp nor of Parpadie, the Theorus of Breiffe, four and twenty Ships. and fifty Ships. The number of the Bings and Dukes come thicher, were firty nine. And there affembles at the Post of Athens, thelbe bundzed four and twenty ffips, without compaifing the Ships of Duke Pallamides, the Son of Bing Naulus, that came after mith his effate as fall be faib bereafter.

W.

H

33

s, etp.

m

he

rl

tp

ng

CHAP. VI.

How the Greeks fent Achilles to Delphos, to the God Apollo, to know the end of their War, and how he found Calchas fenter from the Trojans, that went with him to Athens.

Port of Athens, the Bing Agamemon was chief of all the Boil, and to conduct this Holl moetly, assembled there to connect on a plain without the City, all the Poblemen. And usen they were assembled counted about him, he said to

Them in this manner. D pe Roblemen, that by one confent are here affembled with fo great puiffance, pe know well, it is not in the remembrance of any man, that he fam eber fo many Poblemen affembled, for to atchiebe aup work, nor fo many vound Unights adibe in Arms, to affail their Cnemies. Is not be out of his mind that prefumeth to raile himfelf againft us ? verily 3 boubt not but one of an hundred in this company is fufficient to bring this work to an end, for which we be all allems bles. It is well known to each of pou, the great injuries and Damages the Trojans have bone untous, wherefore we have will taule to take bengeance by force of Arms, to the end, that from benceforth they not any other hall enterprize against us in any manner: for if we luffer luch injuries by billimulation, they might pet griebe us more than they have bone. And it is not the custome of the Poble men of Greece, to let pals luch wrongs , therefore it hould be to us great thame, that are fo many, and have affembed to great frength to biffemble in this quarret. and (pet) there is no Ration in the boilo, but that breabeth our puiffance, fave only thele foolif people of Troy, that by es bil counfel hath mobed them againft us, and enterpaised mar upon us : As firtt the Bing Laomedon that injured fome of our people, for little occasion : wherefore he received beath for his remard, his City beftroped, and his people flain, and foon brought Surely it is not to hard to us that are moze pus iffant, to take bengeance on the Trojans, than four Princip of Tels puillance, that came to get the better of them. For the Trojans, know we are affembled to go upon them, and they are Gronaly furnifhed with men of arms againft our coming : there fore it feemeth me good if it pleafe pouthat ere we bepart from this Bort, we fend into the 3de of Delphos our Special Wellens gers, for to have animer of our God Apollo of this our enter-1213e.

Then was there none but allowed the words of Agamemnon, and these Achilles and Patroclus to go into this Ase, to bear the answer of Apollo: So they departed and came soon thicker: so, the said ase is as it were in the midst of the ases of Ciclades, where Locana, Infanta, Apollo and Diana be. And there was a rich Temple, in which the God of the Panims was worthipped, and gave answer to the people of such things as they demanded. This Ide was first called Dalos, that is as much as to say in Greek, manifestation: foralnuch as in this Ide the Panims saw first the Sun and the Hoon after the Deluge: therefore they supposed they had been born there of their Hothers: for Apollo is the Sun, and Diana the Hoon in their language.

th ere

22

5

t

f

2

3

3;

m

15

rs

n-

to

no

£$

Un

37

Some call this Ide Ortigie: foralmuch as the Birds that men call Driges, in English they be Quaites, were first few there. The Panims gave to Apollo divers names after the dibers operations of the Sun. In this Temple was a great Is mage composed all of the fine gold in the worship of the God Apollo, and albeit the Image was deaf and dumb, yet where Is dolarly reigned at that time in the world, the devil put him in the Image, and gave answer to the Panions, of the things they demanded of him. This did the Pevil to abuse the foolish people, that at that time believed this Image was very God.

Upon this part the Author declareth, from whence came first Ivolatry. The find in Historia Ecclesiassica, that when Hered was deceived by thet tree Kings that returned not again to him, but worshipped our Lord Jesus Christ, as is contained in the Volpel, afterwards departed by another way, &c. Hered purposed to have sain the Child Jesus, therefore the glorious Tirgin our Lady, Saint Mary his Mother and Joseph bare him to Egypt. And as soon as our Lady entred into Egypt, all the Lools fell down to the Carth, broken and bruised, according to the Propheties of Isiah, that said thus, Ascendet Dominus in aubem levem, & engradictur Egyptum, & moveduntur simulachra Egypti. Shewing, that at the coming of our Sadiour Jesus Christ, all Joolatry should have an end. And amongst the Jews, Ismael was the first that made an Idol, and that was of earth.

Prometheus made the first among the Panims, and taught of there the manner how to make them: but the right beginning of Ivolatry, came of Belus king of Affria, that was Father of king Ninus, when he was veat, his Son Ninus did bury

him

Dim in a rich Sepulture, and did make an Image of fine gold to the semblance and likeness of his Father, to have memory of him, and worthipped him as his God, and compelled his folk to worthip him: after an evil spirit entred into the Image, and gave unto the people answers of their sundry demands. Thus by the example of him, the simple Panims made other in the worthip of their Friends, thus Proceeded they in Ivolatry, and that there were none but had their particular Gods, that gave unto them their answers of their demands, by the device of the Enemy, that deceived them, and brought them unto damnation, by the great endy he had against the Linage of men, which God made, to fulfil the places of Paradice, from whence he was cast out for his Prive, into horror and darkness: after the day of Judgment.

When Achilles and Patroclus were arrived in the Ale of Delphos, they went with great debotion into the Remple of Apollo: and there made their ediations with great liberality; and bemanded of him answer concerning their affairs. Then are swered Apollo with a low voice. Achilles, return again unto the Greeks, that have sent thee hither: and say unto them, It shall bappen so, certainty, that they shall go safely to Troy, and there they shall make many battels: But in the tenth-year they shall say the king Priamus, his Wife and Children, and most vart of the Country. And there shall none escape, save they only whom they will lave.

Of this was Achilles palling glad: and it happened that whitest they were yet in this Temple, a great learned Bishop of Troy named Chalcas, Son of a man-pamed I histram, which was a wife man, entrevinto this Temple, and howas frut also from the King Priamus, to have answer of Apollo for them of Troy.

As he then had made his oblations and demands for them of Froy, Appollo answered saying: Ch. leas, Chalcas, beware thou return not back again to Froy: but go with Achilles unto the Greeks, and never depart from them, for the Greeks hall have victory of the Trojans, by the agreement of the Gods, and thou hall be to them very necessary in councel. As Chalcas knew

Achill.s,

b ja

tr

ri

th K

th

no

Achilles, that was in the Temple, he approached into him, and made acquaintance with him, and accompanied together by faith and Dath: they told each to other what the Ivol had faid to them: whereof Achilles had great joy, and made great chear and countenance to Chalcas, and took him with them: failing so long, they arrived at the Port of Athens, and when they is sued out of their Ships. Achilles took Chalcas by the hand, and presented him to the King Agamemnon-and to others, and told unto them the answer of Apollo: How they should have victory of the Trojans, and hom Apollo bade him not return again to Troy, but hold him with the Greeks, during the Mar. Of these tydings the Greeks greatly rejoyced, and made a Feast, and received Chalcas into their company, by Faith and by Dath, and they promised to reward him and do him good.

CHAP. VII.

How the Greeks with a great Navy failed towards Troy : and how they arrived at Tenedon three miles from Troy, which they conquered and beat down to the earth.

P

ıt

p

m

of

ou

he

be ou

m

.5,

A frer this featt the Greeks had made for the good aufwers of Apollo, Chalcas went in a morning in the company of Achilles and Patroclus, unto the Tent of hing Agamemnon where all the Pobles of the Army were affembled, and he falus ted them courteoully, faying : Roble Bings and Princes, that be here allembled for bengeance of the injuries bone by the Trojans : wherefore tarry pou bere after the Gobs have giben their answer : Think pe not that Bing Priamus hath his Sppes as mong you, and whiles pe lojourn, he furnitheth not his Couns trep and City with vidual, with horfes, and with other necellas ries ? Is not great part of the Summer palled, and pe habe nos thing enterprized upon pour enemies. Beware pe be not ins grateful to the antwer of the Boos : and that by your negligence they change not their answer into the contrary. Therefore tars ry no longer, but embark your Borle, and go to Sea, and ceale not until the time the promites of the Gods be accomplished. Wilhen Chalcas had thus fpoken, each man faid he had well spoken Tuoken. Then the Ming Agamemnon fent unto allthe hoff and cave commandement with the found of Trumpet that every man Chould make ready to remove. And prefently they entren their Ships and vilanchozed , hopled up their fails aud failen a mile from Athens, the air that before was chear began to war troublous and thick, and a great tempelt arole of mine rain and thunder : infomuch that there was none fo bardy bue had fear to have bret, for their Ships were caft by the Sea. one here, and another there, and they supposed to have been browneb. Then faib Chalcas to them that were with bim, the raufe of the Tempelt was forafmnch as Diana their Bobbefs was andry against them, because they beparted from Athens and made her no facrifice : and for to appeale this wrath, it behoved Biur Agamemnon to facrifice to her with his own hand, Iphigenie bis Daughter a young Mirgin, otherwife the Mempett thould never ceale. And to fpeed this facrifice, be counfelled to turn the Raby, and apply it to the Hie of Andill.

where the Temple of the Goodels Diana was.

Wilhen Bing Agamemnon understood this thing he was pale fing forp in bis mind, for he loved his Daughter Iphigenie, with great love: on the other five he was required of all the other Bings and Princes of Greece, that he wonth make no bes lay in fo great a matter, or to withftand the Sacrifice : where, fore he was panguished by the Princes, for the love of his Country, be took his Daughter Iphigenie, and in the prefence of Dings and Princes, facrifices ber unto the Gobbels Diana, pre fencly the tempest ceafed, and the air became neat and clean, and the Dea well quieted and in tranquiliry. Then be went again into bis Ship, and all the other in like manner beem up their fails and failed before the wind to far that they arrived at a Bozt of the Realm of Troy, nigh unto a Cattle called Sarabana, Dares putteth not bown what was the caufe wherefore Bing Agamemnon mabe this facrifice unto Diana. But Ovid (in the twelfth book of Metamorphole) faith, it was Iphigenic bis Daughter. And when they of the Cattle law the great Ras by at their Post they armed them, and came unto the Post thinking to befend their Land against the Greeks, and affailed them that were come on Land, and being weary of the travel of Sea: But the Greeks issued presently out of their thips in great number all Armed and chaled them unto their Castle, and entred the Castle with them, and put them all to death, took the booties, after beat down the Castle, and then resented again into their Ships, and sailed to the Port of Tenedon, and there anchozed their fbips.

them

1

tp

ED

18

to

n'B

ut

a,

en

he

Ís

ns-

it

un:

he

be

ill,

rfe.

ie,

he 290

124

his

of 286

II.

ins

HD

at 016 vid

nic Bas

tça

ileb

ms

At this Post was a Caffle, well peoplet, and full of great riches being three miles from Troy. Wihen thepof the Caffle fam the Greeks, they ran to arms, and furnithed their Caffle with good fighters, the other iffued out, and came to the Post where they found the Greeks then iffued out of their Ships all armed, and took all that they could find. Thus began the battel perp fierce and mostal, and there were enough flain on both pars ties: more of the Greeks then of the Trojans. But as foon as the areat Arenath of the Greeks were landed, the Trojans coula no longer luffer noz abibe, but put them to flight, fome to cer Caffle and the other feb unto Troy. Then the Greeks befffre red them, and laid the Callle round about, and they within bes fended it palling well upon the walls and flew many by thot and Engines, but the Greeks Deffet their Engines about the Calle. and fet their Labbers unto the walls, and went up on all fibes. they within befended them valiantly, and made them fall in their Ditches, some bead, some burt. But the Greeks that mere fo areat in number, fent always new folk to the affault whereof they within were grown to weary, that they retired back from their befences : and then the Greeks entreb by force into the Caftle, and there flew all they found, without fparing of any man or woman, and pillaged all that was good, and after beat Down both the Caftle and the boules unto the Carth, and nut in fire, and burnt all up. After they resentred into thefr Ships joyous of their gain they has gotten in the Caffle.

CHAP. VIII.

How the Greeks did send Dyomedes and Vlisses again to the King Priamus, to have Helen and the Prisoners, and of their answer, Wen the Greeks had bestroped thus the Castle and Coissices of Tenedon: Then Agamemnon, that have the Ca charge of all the Holf, commanded that all the booty and gate of those two Castles should be brought forth, and it was done presently as he commanded, and he as a wise King distributed the gain, unto each man after his desert and quality. And cansed all the noble men to assemble on the plain of Fenedon beging Agamemnon: and when they were come, King Agamemnon spake in this manner. Py friends and fellows that he here now assembled, for so instance as each of you know eth, and in so great puissance, that there is and shall be tydings thereof in all the world; yet let it please the Gods, that it he without pride or selsony: for it is, that of the sin of pride grower all other vices, and the Gods resist and withstand the information and proud people, therefore we ought to put away all-pride from our works: and in especial this work here, and use the way of juffice that none may blame us.

De know that we are come thus far, to take bengeance of the injuries and wrongs that King Priamus hath Bone to us, and we have bone to him now great bamage. De may know for truth, that they have allembled into the City of Troy, great pows ers, to befend them against us : and also the City is great and frong : and ye know that they be upon their own beritage, that is a thing which troubleth their force and frength. 3 fap not thele things, for any boubt but that we thall have bidory. and pettrop this famous City , though it be frong : only for our worthip, to the end, we be recommended to have conducted this work by great difcretion, and without pride : for that of tentimes by over halty enterprizes, a thing of great weight, may come to a mischiebous end. De know it is long ago that Bing Priamus bib firft require us, by bis Special Deffengers . that we would render unto him his Sifter Exione: and that by our baughtinels and pride we would not beliver ber again:if we had then belibered and fent ber bome again, thele evils bad nes per happned in the Ifle of Cithar as they be. And the Duren Helena (who is of the nobleft of Greece) had never been ravilbed not led away : allo we had not enterprized the pain not las bour we now are in. And there is none of us that knoweth what thall happen to him good or evil : therefore if pe think good that.

that we hould return into our Country, without suffering of more pain, with our honour and worthip, we will send to king Priamusour special Bessengers, and bid him to deliver again to us Helen freely, and that he restore to us the damages that Paris hath some to us in the Isle of Cithar: if he will so do, our return shall be honourable, and we can ask no more of him by right. And if he refuse, we shall have two things that shall fight for us, that is, Justice and Puissance: and when men shall hear of our offers, they willgive the wrong and blame to the Tropas, and to us the land and praise: and we shall be excused of all damages that we shall no them, after these offers. Therefore advile you among your felves, what ye will bo.

There were some bad people, that blamed this counsel, and fome allowed it : finally, they concluded to do as Agimemnon had fait. Then they chole for their Dellengers Dyomedes and Uliffes, to go to Troy, and make their legation, which took their Porfes, and went incontinently, and came to Troy about mideday, they went fraight to the Palace of Bing Priamus, and then their Bogles to the Bate, after went up into the Ball, and in going up they marbelled greatly at the rich works they fawin att the Palace, especially of a tree that they faw in a plain which was mave by Bagick, marbelloudy compoled, and of great beauty, for the flock beneath, was no thicker but of the greatnels of a fpear, palling long and bigh, and above branches of gold and filber leaves that fpread over the Palace, fave a little, it covered all : and the fruit of the faid tree was of Dis bers precious fones, that gave light and brightnels, and allo bid much pleafe and belight them that beheld it. They went to far, that they came into the Ball where Bing Priamus was accompanied with noble men. And without faluting the ming or the other, Uliffes fait in this manner.

Bing Priamus, marbel nothing that we have not faluted thee, forasmuch as thou art our mortal enemy. Hing Agamemnon (from whom we be Hellengers) commandeth thee by us, that thou deliver and send unto him Queen Helen, whom thou hast caused most visely to be ravished and taken from her Husband, and that thou make satisfaction sor all damages that Paris thy

Son bath vone in Greece: if theu lo vo, I suppose thou hate them thy self a wise man: but if then vo not, behold what evils may come unto thee and thine: for thou halt ope an evil death, and all thy men, and this noble and famous City shall be be-

Aroved.

When thing Priamus heard Ulisses thus speak, he answered, without demanding any Counsel:) I marvel greatly, at thy words, that thou requirest of me a thing that a man vanquished and overcome, and one that could defend himself no more but with great pain would accord to thee. I believe not that the Greeks have such puissance which thou hast said unto me: they require of me amends, and Jought to demand the like of them.

Dabe not they flain my Tather and my Brethren , and leb away my Sifterin fervicuos, whom they beign not to marry hos nourably but to ufe ber as a common momen? and to have ber again I feut to them Anthenor, and would have pardoned them the fur plus: but you know the villanies they did use towards my Dellenger: and therefore I ought not to bear any thing that pe fay to me, but rather bye valiantly, than to agree to pour requeft; let Agamemaon know, that I belire not to have peace not love with the Greeks, that have bone to me fo many vilplealures, And if it were not pe be Bellengers, 3 hould make von ove an evil beath. Therefore go away quickly for I cannot behold you without bifpleafure in mp beart. Then bes gan Dyomedes to laugh for bilpight, and fait thus: Da Bing if without bifpleafure thou canft not fee us but two, thou wilt be displeased all the dayes of thy Life: for thou halt fee from benceforth before thine eves great armies of Greeks which thall . come before the City, and thall not ceafe to affail it continually, against whom thou canst not long befend thee but thou and thine finally thall receive bitter beath. Therefore thou foulbell take better neoufel in thy points if thou wert well abbileb.

There were many Trojans that would have run upon the Greeks, and drew their Swoods to have flain them: But king Priamus forbad them, and faid that they flould let two fools utter their folly, and a wife man to fuffer it. Da, ba, fir, faid E-seas, what is that ye kap a men must shew to a fool his foolishness, and truly if it were not in your prefence, this fellow that bath spoken so foolishly before you should receive his yearh by my own hand. It appertaineth not unto him to kay unto you such benesmous threatnings: therefore I advise him, that he go his way quickly, unless he cease to speak so absurd and foolishly.

Dyomedes of nothing was ababed, answered to kneas: Mharsoever thou be, thou thewest well by the words, thou art ill avoiced, and hot, and I wish that I may once find thee in a place convenient, that I may reward thee for the words thou balt fpoken of me.

8

potepf

t

t s xoe po A s Tt

î

1.

t

I see well that the Bing is softwate and happy to have such a counseller as thou art, that giveth him counsel to bo villany. Then Ulisses brake the words of Dyomedes wisely, and prayed him to hold his peace, after said to bring Priamus, we have understood all that thou hast said, and will go and report it to our Princes. Inconcinently they took their Porses, and testurned unto their host, where they found many assembled before hing Agamemnon and told them the answer of hing Priamust whereof they had great marvel, and conferred long together for the well ordering of their assirs, since they mere assured of the war of the Trojans.

CHAP. IX.

How Agamemnon affembled in council the Greeks to have victuals: And how they fent Achilles and Telephus to the Realm of Messes, where they slew King Thentran in battel: And how Telephus was made King: And of the Kings that come to aid and help King Priamus.

A free these thins, Agamemnon ralled his council in the plain of Tenedon, and said among all other things; It he hoveth us to be addiced how that buring the Diege before Troy, our host should be succoured with histual a therefore if he think good, we will send to the Realmost Messe, to have visuals from thence continually, so it is contrary very commodisus; and they that go thicker, stall take sursey of the County, that they fail not to fend vidual to the hoff, so long as we shall be in this Country. This counsel pleaseth the Greeks, and they chose Achilles, and Telephus the Son of Hercules to furnish this message, and to go with a great company of men of arms. In that Province reigned a king named Theutran, and had long reigned in peace, for his Country was peopled with hardy knights were arrived in the Ale of Messe, they issued out of their Ships, and went on Land. Then came against them the king Theutran mith a great company of men of Foot and Borleback.

Then began the battel fiercely, and at the skirmiff were many Bnichts flain on both fibes. Albeit the Greeks were lefs in number than the other they befended themfelves well : but their befence had not availed them, habit not been for the areat promets of Achilles that Did great miracles with his body. as the that was the most frong and valiant of the Greeks : for wholoeper he fmore he over, and there could no man Gand he fore him. Wihen Achilles elpped Bing Theutran, in the mioft of his people, Did great damage to his folk, he thruft into the greateft prels of his enemies, and beat bown before him all he found, till he came to Bind Thoutran : and hewed his helm. and fmote him down to the ground, and had dain him, had not Telephus been, which put himfelf between them, and praved Achilles humbly that be would not flap him, not bo him any more barm than be hat: Then the Bing creet to Achilles for mercy. Then fait Achilles to Felephus, what moveth thee to vity our mostal enemy, that is come to affail us with fo great furp : At is reason that he fall into the pit that he made ready Ba, ba, fir, fait Telephus, the Bing was bery familiar with my father Hercules, and also bid to me great honone in this Land, and therefore I may not fuffer to fee him flain. Well then (faid Achilles) cake him and bo with him what thou wilt. Then was their battet finifhen, the Grecks retired, and Thing Theutran carried into his Balace as a bead man f for Achilles had fore muifen bim. And the Bing praped Achilles and Telephus, that they would go with him : who went and were esceibed with great for and honour.

30

bom

It was not long after, that this Ming Theutras. Tent fol Achilles and Telephus, and faib unto them : Wo friends, 3 way not long libe : and after faib to Telephus : Sp friend. I may no longer live, and I have no lateful heles of my both m whom I map leave this Mealm, which I babe gorten with great labour, and had loft long fince, bab'it met been for the worthy of all worthies, thy Father Hercules, which was a Sheilb unto me, against all them that would have taken it from me : be bib often flabt with them. Do thy father by bic great promets, chafes them out ? fince that time I bave kept it peaceably, not by merit, but by che bertue of the fac ther. And fince it happened that thy Father conquered this Mealm for me, I having no beirs, it is a realon that thou be beir of my father : and with thele my las mojos, I leave this Realm unrother, and all my worldly goods, and make thee mine Deit, and therefore bury me bonourably, as appertaineth to a Bing. And as took as be had finifer thele words, he byed: then Telephus, and the Robles of the Countrey buried bim honourably, and laib bim in a bery rich Depulture, whereof was this Epitaph : Here lyeth the body of King Theutran, whom Achilles flew t who left his Realm to Telephus.

Demthis Telephus, that was before bie a Duke, was made hing of Melle, and all the Robles of the Country bib bim bes mage, and the people promiled him faleb and ferbice. Then Achilles bip furniff bis thins with victual, and oppained Telephus hould abibe in his new Realm (which be bib) and be commanbed, in the name of the Greeks, that he thouto bo his ville rence, to fend unto the Bolt of the Greeks probifion, and he promifed bim be would perform it wiebout any befault. Then Achilles took leave of him, and returnes into bis fbips, and failed to tong, that he and his company arribed at the Post of Tenedon, where they found the Bolt ver lajourning : when be was landed, he ment arright to the Went of Bing Agamemnon, where all the Bings and Princes were allembles : and they received him with great by, as he that all the Bott lover much, for bis great promets. Eben Achilles rehearlen to them, bow be arrived at Meffe , and of the battel, and how Telephus wer mave hing, who promiled to furnish the Doff mich birtuals on a true den der

Of thefe typings the Greeks had great top, and praifed the balour of Achilles, and after each man went unto his Papilion. Then was Achilles receibed, with great jop of his Mermidone that much love bines soul must fal sad des

Dere the Author nameth what Bings and Princes came to the aid of hing Priamus to Troy : not of all, but of the most notable : Firit, came unto their aid, Bing Pandorus, Bing Galier ann Bing Adraftus, with three thouland Bnichte armes, to perre od tut but fine four bings with fine thousand dinigues armed, the thing Carras, thing Amallus, Bing Neftor, a mighty frong man, and Bing Amphimacus. From the Bealm of Lycia, came King Glaucon, with three thous Land Brights, and bis Son Sexpedon, one of the Grongel Iniches in the worth, being Coulingto Priamus, to from the Mealm of Lycaphy came the Bing Ensemus, with a thousand Uniobis erpert in arms. From the Realm of Larilla came the Bings with afteen bundzed knighte, the Bing Miftor, and Bing Capledus. From the Realm of Thabory came Bing Remus this behan thouland, expert Louidiers, and in bis commany came four Dukes, and feben Warls, that were in League with Prismus: they were all in Armour of azure colour without other fign, thereby was Remus and his people known in the Batteli From the Bealm of Thracia, came Bing Pilex, and Duke Achamas, with eleben bunbred Unights. From the Mealm of Pannonie came Bing Peffemus, and the Duke Super his Couling with three thouland unights, ervert to full and thoot with the Wew.

This is a mile Country full of Forrells and Mountains. thereis but little neople, many wild Beaffs and Birbs. From the Probince of Borna, same three Dukes with twelve bune med Brights, the Duke Ankerimus, Duke Fortunus, and the Dute Sammus. From the Mealm of Burtin where grew good fpices came two Bings Brethren with a thouland Unichts, the MingBoctes, and Ming Epificus. From the Mealm of Papha-

gorie

sorie: that is at the Sunarifing, the rich hing Philemenus mith three thouland Anights, all their theilds of the bibes of Fiftes, covered with gold and precious Cones ; this wing was as great as a Grant. A from the Bealm of Ethiopes came the Bing Perfeus, and the Bing of Thickeon with bim, that was hardy and mile, with three thouland Bnights, that had in their company many a Duke and Carl.

There was with them, Simagon the Son of Bing Thickeon. From the Mealm of Cheres, same the Ming Theleus and Archilogus his son, that was of the affinity of Bing Priamus, and brought a thousand knights. From the Ide of Argust came the Kings, of whom I have not the names, with twelve buns bied Uniahts.

2

ı.

is 0

Œ

g:

$

90

15,

15.

1

Œ

30

10

ab :

¢-

np

th

ut he .

nd he

er

15,

m me

he

Dag the

ha-

TIC.

it is a real acrone lince for landed to the From the Realm of Eline, that is beyond the Mealm of Amazon, came an antient Bing, and bilcreet, named Epiftrophus, and brought a thousand Brights, and a marbellous Beaft called Sagittary, the middle was an borle, fore part a man, bis eyes red as a fiery coal, and thot like a man with a bow : this Beaft mabe the Greeks love afraid, and flew many of them with his Bom. In number all the Unights that came in air of hing Priamus, were two and thirty thouland, belides them of Troy, and of India the leffer. And it is not found in writing, that fince the Creation of the Wlorls, to many Boble Unichts were affembled in one place, that profecuted the quarrel for fo little occasion. Db how Bings and Princes ought to be abbiled how to hegin war, if they might avoid it by any other way.

CHAP. X.

Of the coming of Duke Palamedes, and how the Greeks departed from Tenedon, by the counsel of Dyomedes, and come and took land before the City of Troy, and how the Trojans received them in battel right vigorously.

Dw the Greeks were not beparted from Tenedon, when Palamedes the Son of Bing Naulus arrived at the Boat, with thirty Ships full of lanights armed, all Roble men. At bis coming the Greeks were joyful, who murmured before, bes

F 2

caute be tarries to long, wherefore be exenter bim by fichnels

that be bab.

This Palamedes was holden in grent worthis amongst the Greeks, and was the feegud nept bing Agamemon's pullant, discress in arms and very rich. And at his coming, he was chosen to be Councelly, of the Bost. Thus were the Greeks many a day and night at the Post of Fenedon, oftentimes altembling them; is addite of the best manner to bestege the City of Troy. At longth, after many opinions, they agreed to the councel of Dyomedes, that was this:

Row, faib be, all ve Bings, Winces, and Barons, that are here allembleb, me ought to babe great thame and billike, fince it is a yeare acone fince me landed in this Country, and babe not yet been before Prov. Mertly, in this we have gipen to. our Enemies great abbantage : that During this time they are purseved of great aibs, and all their City fortifieb and fenced mith Walls and Bulmarks, that they have leifure to make. and they think that we are not fo barby as to come unto them : therefore the more that we belay to go thither, the more encreafeth our hame and bamage: but if we bab gone thither. when we came firtt into the Countrey, we thould have more ealily cone a those, than we thall be now : for they are better furnithed than they were at that time, of all fuch things as he hoverb to befend them with a therefore 3 counsel pon, that to morrow betimes we put us in good orber, and lay flege firmly. as hallily as me may. Wile know that we hall not bo fo with out great labour : wherein it behoveth every man to employ himfelf, and to banify fear. For we can prebail no other way not more bonourably as I think.

The Countel of Dyomedes pleased all the Barons, and early in the mouning, they resentreding their Dhips, and failed to the Bott of Troy in good siber one after another.

In the first front they put an hundred Ships, furnished with Unights and Banners, that maved in the Mind, and after them unather hundred : and all the other by order, and they had not failed far, but they saw the noble Ciry of Troy, and approaches to thereto as hastily as they might. When the Trojaco saw the

Greeks

Greeks approach toward the City, they mounted upon their Poples all armed, and went forth without order unto the Port. Without the Greeks fam the Trojans come in to great number to beford their Port, there were none to hardy but was afraid, foralmuch as they could not go on Land, but they armed them incontinent, and bib their bell to take Land by fore.

Of the first hundred Dhips, was thief Captain the King Prothelilaus of Philord, that endeadoured with great diligence to bring his Dhips within the Port: but the wind being Grong blew them into the Port, to Grongly against the Goze, that many of them brake, and many Greeks were drowned, and they that might take land took it, and were flain by the Trojans with great torments, in so great number, that the ground was made ted with their blood. It is not in the remembrance of as my man, that ever Rady wan Land with so great damage as the Rady of the Greeks. After this first hundred Dhips, the other arrived that followed them: and they within were well provided of great Arbalesters, wherewith they hot and sew many of the Trojans, constraining them to go back.

Then the Greeks landed speedily, and successed the first that fought at deadly hazard. Then began a battel, The king Prothesilaus that landed with the sirst, did great markels with his body, and sew that day infinites of the Trojans. If he alone had not been, all the Greeks that were gotten on the land had been sain. But what might his desence help, when seven thousand Greeks sought against an hundred thousand Trojans. And that for the great danger wherein they felt themselves, they sold their lives dear, expeding the succours of king Archelaus and king Prothenor, that anon arrived, and would the Trojans or not, they went on a shore, took land, succoured their people walf-

antly, and began again a cruel battel;

After that arrived the Duke Nestor, and his folk, that thiustin among their enemies secrety. There was many a Spearbioken, and many an Arrow shot: Unights fell down dead on both sides, and their cry was marvellous to hear. There were sain many Trojans by Archelaus and Prothepor. After arribed the Ung Ascalus, and Bing Aglus with their Ships, and ment :

went a land, affailed the Trojans with great fierceneis, and in force made them retirer: then came to the battel plenty of new Trojans. Then began the battel to be greater than it has been all the bay before ? infomuch that the Greeks were recopled by force unto their Ships, then arribed Lliffes with a great company of his Buights, which thronged into the battel's and the Greeks recovered land, and affailed the Trojans furis oully. There Willes made great effulion of blood on his Enes mies, and immediately bis Enfign was made known among them. Bing Philomenus, feeing that Uliffes flein their people, he appreffed bimlelf unto bim, and beat bim off his Borle. 11liffes frace bim again, and wounded him in his throat, and cut alunder his prigenal bein, and fmote him as half bead. The Trojans ran and took bim from the Greeks, and carried bim up. en his Shield into the City, but hab not this mifabenture haps pened to the Bing, the Greeks had been discomfired. The Troins laboured much to lave him. Then arribed Bing Thaos, Bing Agamemnon, Hing Menelaus and Bing Thelamon Ajax, with all their forces, and fought very valiantly, and broke their Spears upon the Trojans, beat bown many, fome flain, and fome butt.

Wilhen Bing Prothefilaus beparteb from the battel, where he had been fince the beginning, to recover breath, when he came to the Wort, be found all his men nigh bead, for whom he went exceedingly, and cook again his courage, to revenge the beath of his men, and went again unto the battel, and flew many Trojans, and Imote bown many of their horfes. Then came to battel on the behalf of the Trojans Bing Perfes, with a come pany of Enights, at wheih the battel began to be mortal, and there were many Greeks flain, and many made to retire, and without boubt had biscomfited them, but the worthy Palamedes foon won footing, and at his coming the Greeks were recome forced , then Palamedes performed wonderful beeds with his hand and addreffed bimfelf againft Sagamon, the Boother of Bing Memnon, and Rephew of the Bing of Perfe, that fore greibed the Greeks, and he pierced him thosow the boby, and Imote him bead to the earth : afterwards he thronged into the great great preis, and heat bown all that he met, each man that knew bim made bim way. And then arole a cry upon the Troins. that they might not bear the frength of Palamedes. But the most morthies of all worthies . Hector , when he heard the cry, among his people illued out of the City, with a great company of baliant Brights and entred the battel in rich Arms, and boze in his field of Bold a Lyon of Bules. Dis ftrength mas anon known among the Greeks : he mer in his coming the King Prethefilaus, that all that day had not ceased to kill the Trojans, and froke him wich bis Smood, upon his Belm, that he cleft him to the note, whereof he fell pown beab to the ground. After, Hector thoug into the greatest preis, and as many Greeks an he reacht with bis Sword be few. Then each man fled from bim. making him way, and then bemanded the Greeks one of another what he was, but ffreight they knew it was H. Ctor, the ffrongeft man of the world, then was there none fo barby, that burft abide bis froke.

Then it happened, that Hector went out to refresh him, where upon the Greeks took courage again against the Trojans. This happened that day eight of ten times. It was about the hour of Evensong, when Hector departed from the battel and resented that the City: for the Greeks were withal discomfitted, then arrived from Achilles with his Myrmidons, and entred into the battel, with three thousand approved Buights that were with him: then were the Trojans on all sides beaten down and slain, for against Achilles endured no man, but he was beaten down

Then arrived all the Raby of the Greeks, and the Linights got a land, and skirmished with the other in the battel: wheresfore the Trojans had much to suffer, so that they must see into their City, and Achilles and the other slew them sleeing: there was a great cry of the hurt wen, so, Achilles was all dred with the blood of the Trojans, and there was a great saughter at the entry into the Citys. There saw the Fathers their Children dain: and the saughter had been ercreding great, if Troylus Peris, and Deiphobus had not come with a great company sixtee and new, who issued out of the City, and resisted the Greeks, and mabe the flaughter to ceale, for that the night was nigh, to beryman withbrem bim to bis place.

The Trojans kept close their City, and did make good watch, Achilles with the Greeks, returned to their Tents with great glory, which were not yet dressed; but hing Agamemnon did taule them to be dressed, and made each man take place meet after his state. And they that had no Tents nor Pavillions, they lodged under the leades, in the best manner they could, both themselves and their Boiles, and after anchored their Ships, and took out of them all that was necessary for them.

This the Greeks let Diege to the City of Troy, and made great fires in the Hoft. So they were lodged a night together and made good watch, although they had no assaults this night, and they had all the night Trumpets and Pinstrels great plenty, that Agamemnon oppained for to comfort the Host. And they reaso this night all armed the best they could: This was the first battel of the Greeks and of the Trojans at their soming.

CHAP. XI.

Of the second battel of Troy, where were many Kings and Barons slain, by worthy Hellor: and how the Trojans had been victorious of their Enemies, had it not been for the request of Tolomon Ajax, Cousin of Hellor.

Is the night passe, Heckor babing the charge of them in the City, ordered early his Battels in a plain that was in the City, and put in the first Battel two thousand Buights, and appointed swood his kinsmen to conduct them, Glaucon, Son of the King of Lycia, and Aliamolor his Bastard Brother, and aliagned them King Thesis of Thrace, and Archilogus his Brother, that was wife and valiant, and made, them issue out of the Oste named Dardan, which swo against the Post of the Greeks: In the scrow Battel he put three thousand good Anights, and appointed them to King Exampetus of Frigia, and the Bing Alcanus, that were Anights of great strength, and recommended them to the guard of the Gods, and made them issue out after the other.

The third Battel he gave his Brother Troylus, to conduct with three thousand unights, and said to them at the departing: My dear Brother, my heart putteth me in doubt of thy great hardinels: wherefore I pray thee that thou govern thee wifely in the Battel, that thou enterprize not such things as thou mayest not atchieve, therefore put not thy body into panger of death, by overmuch weening, whereby thou mightest give for to thine enemies. Go thy way in the name of the Gods, who conduct and keep thee from peril. Whorthy Brother, answered Troylus, you need not doubt of me, for I will, draw, you have commanded: And then he went south with his company after the other, and wore in his Shield three Lions of Gold.

Hector put in the fourth Battel three thouland Enights, and feven hundred, who marched under the conduct of Bing Huppon and Lariffa. This Ting Huppon was the frongest of all the Trojans nert H. dor, and had in his campany a baliant Unight a Baffard Brother of Hector, named Diamacus, The fifth battel Hector belivered to the conduct of Bing Cilaine, with all his people, that were frong, and as great as Cpants, and the lame Bing bare in his Shield all Agute, without any, Difference Hector put in commission in this battel, Polidanas his Ballard Boother with this bing, and iffued after the other. The firth battel the Bing Prengftus les , be hat his people well inftructed to thoot and bam the Bom, and went without Armoz to battet, mounted upon light Hogfes: Hector commiled Deiphobus his Brother to conduct them. Which this battel Hector forned all the worthy Bnichts of the Realm of Agrefte, under the conduct of King Eldras, and Bing Philon. This King Phylon had a rich Chair all of Juogy , Golo, Silver, and precions fones. This Chair was brawn by two frong Bnights. With thefe two Bings, Hector put Epitagorem bis baffard bios ther , and they iffued after the other. The leventh battel E. neas leb, and a noble Abnitral named Euftene, they went after the other. The eighth battel the Bing of Perfe named Perfes led : and Paris was the chief Captain, Hector intreated bis bios ther Paris, that he would not affemble unto the Greeks, until the time that be came himfelf, and laid that be would follow him him anon. The pinch and last battel, Hector led, and ten of his Bastard Brethren after him, all the best knights of the Cie to were chosen in this battel, to the number of sive thousand.

And when Hector was riehly arrayed, and armed with good harnels, he mounted upon his Hople named Galathee, that was one of the frongest hoples in the world. And so (armed and mounted,) he rode unto the king his Kather, and said unto him: Wear Kather, retain with you a thousand and five hundled knights, and all the men of this City, and stand with them in the face of the Greeks, move not till I send so, you, if we have need that you help us. And I will send Hessengers to certific you of the estate of the battel: take good heed and keep guard, that our enemies take not the City by policy. And the Ling answered him: My Son, I will so as thou has said : for next the aid of the Gods, thou art all my hope and trust, and I have no considered but by thy wit aud valour. I humbly pray the Gods to proceed and preserve thee from thine enemies.

After these words, Hector went forth after the other. This Hector was very contragious, strong and vidorious in battel, and a wife conductor of men of Arms, his shield was of gold, and in the mivole a Lion of Gules. Although he was the last that Mued out of the City, pet he alway passed the battels, and put himself before, in the first: the women that were in the City and all the other, went upon the walls to behold the battels: there were the baughters of the Bing, with Queen Helen, that had great boubt and bibers imaginations in ber felf.

Whites Hector ordered his battels, king Agamemnon mas not fole, but divided his men into fix and twenty battels. He put in the first, Pacroclus with his people, and with them the folk of Achilles, who was not that dap in the battel, for his wounds that he had, he remained in the Aent to cure them. This Patroclus was a rich and noble Duke, and loved so much Achilles, that they were both of one alliance. In the second bats tel was king Menon, and king Idumeus with three thousand knighes: there was the Duke of Athens with all his people. The third battel led the king Achalaphis, and his Son Phineus. The sourch battel led king Archelous, and king Prochenor.

thenor his Brother, with him was Securidan, the Arong Anight with all the people of Boetia. The Afth battel Aing Menelaus led with all the people of Sparta: The Arth battel the Bing Epistropus led, and the Ring Celidus with all their people.

The seventh battel led Thelamon Ajax of Salamine, and be had four Carls with him, which were Theseus, Amphimacus, Dorius and Polidarius. The eighth, led King Thoas, The ninth led Ajax Aleus. The tenth led King Philotes; The eleventh the King Idumeus and King Neron: The twelfth Duke Nestor: The thirteenth King Exiones: The fourteenth Uliffes : the fifteenth Ming Humerus.

In the firteenth were the folk of Prothesilaus, much dispaired ing to revenge the death of their Lod: the seventeenth led king Polidarius and king Machaon: the eighteenth the king of Rhodes; the nineteenth king Sampitus, and king Lidorus. The twentieth king Geripulus. The one and twentieth king Philoretes of Larisse. The two and twentieth Dyomedes: the three and twentieth king Ocneus of Cypres. The four and twentieth king Protholus. The sive and twentieth king Carpenor. The sir and twentieth and last battel, led king Agameranon, Emperos of all the Boft.

Withen all the battels were fet in orber en beth fibes , and there was nothing to bo but to meet, then Hector abbanced the first, and Patroclus came against bim, as fast as bis Dogle might run,and Imote bim fo frongly with bis Spear on his Shield, that he pierced it thosow, but bid no more harm. Then Hector affailed Patroclus with his Dwest, and gabe him a ftroke upon his bead, that he cleft it in two pieces, and Patroclus fell bown beab. When Hector fam bim beab, be covered bis Arms , foz they were exceeding rich and gozgeons, and lighted bown to take them, but the Bing Menon came upon him with three thousand Bnights, for to befend the Bing Patroclus against Hector, and faib to him thus, Wolf rabenous and infatiable, 3t behoveth to feek thy prey in fome other place, for here getteft thou none. And then they affailed him on all fibes, and would have taken from him his boste Galathee. But Hector by his Promets res mounted, would revenge him on hing Menon, but hing Glau-Ø 2 sion and Ming. Theseus and Archifogus his Son came with three thousand, then Hector laivon, and beat down all afore him:

-the first that he mer he gave so great a froke, that he flem him.

and after manymme he beat bown and flew. and die

Thus began the battel on both fiber, and Hector tame again to the body of Patroclus for to have his Arms, but Bing Idumeus of Creet came against him with two thousand, and Bing Menon (that has al ways his eyes on Hector) letteth bim . and mas to inthe map that Hector might not have his arms, that be le carneftip befires, and luffered great pain foralmuch as be was on foot, but be enforced bim with all his courage and beran so day man and borfe, to fmite off heads, legs, feet and arms. andflem fifteen of the Arongeft that affailed him. . In the mean time, hine Mepon took the body of Patroclus before him, and carried it unto his Ment. As the Geeeks contenbed to ariebe Hector, and to take away his Boile, there was among them a frong Bnight, named Creon de la Pierre, that griebed him mot then one of the Derbants of Hector abbreffed bim againft this Creon, and gabe bim a Groke with his Spear, that he fell'o bim bean to the earth, after he limote bown another, and then he Imote bown'a third, and cryed to the Trojans aloud that they Gould come and fuccour Hector.

thich this cry, first came Securabor, one of the Bastaro Bees then of Heror, and theuse into the greatest piels, so siercely, that he came upon them that most grieved Heror, who had sain more than thirty at them, and did bestir him, that by force he make the Greeks to recoyl: then was Hector resmounted and think in among them, and slew great plenty of them, so displeasure that he might not have the arms of Patroclus. Then he met with none but he seem, and cath man wade him way, and frared him.

Then came unto the battel Mepeltus Duke of Athens, and somed him to that battel whereas Troylus was, who performed marvels in arms, and had with him king Sempitus, king Machaon, and king Alcaous. Then began herce battels: blene cas addicted him against Troylus, and there fought him with to great force, that he beat him of his Porle, in the great wiels niels of the folk: and Menesteus laboured with all his strength, incomuch that he took him, and led him towards their Tents, with a great company of knights. Then Miseres of Troy cryed to the Trojans, that Troylus was prisoner, and that they should be dishonoured, if they suffered him to be led away. Then the king Alcanus took his Spear, and addressed him unto them that held Troylus, and smote the sirst to the earth, and smote ancether, and soze wounded him, and did so much by the aid of his men, that Troylus was rescued, and set again upon his Horse also, by the help of King Sampitus, that came on with all his people, he gave so great a stroke to Menesteus overthwart, that if he had not been well armed, he had been slain. Then Menesteus cryed to his people, and so began among them a mortal bate tel, there were many slain on both stoes.

Among these things, Menchlus was sorry he lost his Prisoner, met Miseres by whom he had lost him, and heat him down, and the same time smore down another knight. Then came to the battel Huppon and Hiripisus, with two thousand and against them came Menchaus and Prothenor with their solk, and there began a moztal skirmifb.

After came Polidamas the Son of Anthenor, with a great company, and thauft in on the other five ameng his enemies. After came Bing Remus from Troy, with three thousand men. and against them came Menelaus, with his people. Menelaus addreffed him againft bing Remus, and they Imote cach other to the ground. Then Polidamas the Dephew of Helen, a. young man of twenty years ald, addreffed him against Remus, and Remus gave him a froke with his Spear, that he fmore him to the earth, whereof Minelaus had great forrow, for he loved him much, and in revenge he gave fo great a froke to. Rends with his sword, that he Imote him bown as bead : Withen Bing Remus was to beaten bown, his men thought he. had been bead, and would have fled, had it not been for Polidamas that retained them, and bid fo much, that they took their. King fo burt as he was, and bose him home in fafety. Then: King Celidus, that was the most fair King of the world, address. fed bim to Polidamas , and fmote bim wich big Spear , but be: could:

could not remove him. Polidamas gave so great a stroke with his Sword that he smote him to the Carth. Among all these things Hector came beating down his enemies, and made way before him in slaying of worthy kinights, so far, that he came upon them of Salamine, that king Thelamon conducted, who sew many of the Trojans, and beat him down by his great prowels. Then king Theuter gave a stroke with his Spear of H ctor, that he made him a deep wound: and Hector in his great ire encountred an Admiral of the Greeks, and slew him with his Sword. Then was Hector closed with his enemies on all parts: there was of the Greeks, the king Theseus, and he spake to Hector, and warned him he should go out of the battel, and said, it were damage so, all the world to lose such a knight: and Hector thanked him courteously.

In this while Menelaus and Thelamon affailed Polidamas, and Thelamon that addressed him first, smote him with his spear, and after gave many strokes, insomuch that they brake the lace of his Helm, and took him and had led him away, had not Hector been, which was not far off, who smote among them that held him, and slew and hurt many of them, and by his valour slew thirty of them: and kept Polidamas with him. Then came together king Menelaus, and king Thelamon, with all their people, and smote in among the Trojans by so great sierceness, that they made them go back, notwithstanding the great prowess of Hector, that was with the other, that did markels in his person,

And then was his fierce and gallant warlike hopfe Galathee flain under him, and then he defended himself on foot so marvellously, that there was no man so hardy of the Greeks that durk approach him.

Then his Brethren knew the greater banger that he was in,

they ran all to that part. Then was Thelamon foze hurt, and Dynadorus (one of the Bastard Brethren of Hector) gave a a stroke to Polixenus, a Poble man, that he sew him, beating him bown from a great Porse, and took the Steep unto Hector, who forthwith mounted upon him. There were marvels of Arms done by the Bastards. Then came Deiphobus, with all his Holt, wherein he had great flose of Archers, that hurt and flew great flose of the Greeks. And Deiphobus gave to king Theuter a great wound in the vilage. Then began the battel as mortal as it had been all the day. There was These as assisted by Quintelenus, one of the Bastard Brethren of Hector, and of king Moderus, and was taken and led away: but Hector belis beet him, so, the courteste that he had done to him a little bestope.

all

Then came to the battel of the Greeks, Bing Thois, and Bing Philotes: but Bing Thoas addressed him against Cassilanus, one of the bastard Brethren of Hector, and gave him a stroke, that he sew him to the earth: Hector then smote so any gerly amongst the Greeks, that he sew many of them, and put the rest to slight. Then came to the battel Nestor, with six thous sand binights: and bing Esdras, and bing Phylon, that bidgreat marvels of Arms against them.

At this assembly there were many unights sain, of the one part and of the other. Using Phylon, that did great marbels in arms, was enclosed round with the Greeks, and had been sain, if Jecomas and using Esdras his father, had not delivered him. Hestor and his Brother did marbels with Polidamas, and had not all the Greeks to sight, but that Menclaus and Thelamon refifed them frongly.

a S . fth

Then came Aneas to the battel with his Holf, and put in with Hector and the other, and by force put the Greeks to flight,, whereof Ajax had much forcow: also as he looked behind him he law the Banners that came to the battel, which had not been there, where was all the chief flower of the Chivalry of Greece. Then prayed he them that fled, that they would abide, and begin a new battel. Ajix and Aneas encountred to hardy, that they fell both to the earth. And then came Philotes with three thouland knights, and made the Trojans go back, and smote Hector with his Spear, but he could not remove him: and Hector gave him a stroke with his Swood, that he sorely burt him. Then came to the battel king Humerus, and king Ulisses, with all their people in good order, and they had in their Dost tenshouland knights, which did she Trojans great hurt, that were weary.

weary: To their succours came Paris, and in his coming smore the king of Frigie, who was Cousin to Ulisses, that he slew him, whereof the Greeks had much so row: and Ulisses supposed to have smitten Paris with his spear, but he smote his Hopse and slew him, and Paris fell to the earth. Then Troylus gave to Ulisses a stroke, that he wounded him in the face, and made the blood spring out as the Wine runneth out of a Tun, and Ulisses hurt him again. And truly the Trojans had then sled, had it not been so, the great Prowess of Hector, and his brethren, so, Hector ceases not to put himself in the greatest press, here and there, and each man that knew him mabe him way.

Withen he faw that his people could not endure the areat Grength of the Greeks, he withdrew them, and told them what injuries the Greeks had bone them, and what they will bo if they come to their conquett, and then admonths them to bo well, and after brought them to a Walley on the right fibe, to affail their enemies. There was a great flaughter of the Greeks: there was king Thoas affailed of the baftard Brechren of Hector, to revenge the peath of Callibelanus their Brother that he bad flain : they beat him bown off his Bogle, and railed off his Delm from bis beat, and had flain him, if the Duke of Athens had not come on, that thruff in among them, and gabe a ftroke to one of the Baftaros of Quintilinus, that be fell to the ground fore burt: and Paris Imote the Duke with an Arrow on the five and gabe him a great woimd : but the Duke fet not thereby, but maugre them all he pelevered Bing Thoas from their hands. Then Hector endeaboured to put the Greeks unto flight, but the King Humerus thot an Arrow unto Hector, and hurt him in the face, and Hector ran upon him with fo great ire, that he Imote him upon the head and cleft it unto the teeth, that he fell Down bean.

Then with blowing of an horn came more than feven thousand Greeks to assail Hector that defended him against them marvellously. After this, he went a little off to his Father, and took three thousand unights and brought them to the backtel, and then made a very great saughter of the Greeks.

Ajax and Hector fought each with other, Menelaus flew at this

this torning an Admiral of Troy. Celedonus fiem Moles of Oreb, the Deubew of Bing Those. Maudon Impte out an eve of Bing Sedoneus, Sadeilus fem an Abmirat of the Grecks : Thelamon beat Margareton and fore wounded bim. Famuel beat Bing Prothenor to the earth. The Bing of Gaul Tuffen against Menefleus, but Menefleus burt him on the note with his Smord. Then Dianor freing bis Brother burt, aboreffeb bim Menefleus, and fmote bim bown to the earth : then fell mon him the three breibren, that would have flain or taken him but be bef enbeb bimfelf beliantly; and anon be was fuccoured by Bing Theuter. Witt Hector affailet them both, and without fail they had not escaped had not, Ajax the valiant Buight come to the refcue, with a thouland Bnights that be bab in his come pany. Then came on the Bing of Per'e with fibe thordand Bnichts that Paris led : and lo bie all the other Trojans and made the Greeks no back by force. Dares writerh in his Book. how that Hector few a thouland Enights in this affault.

Among all other things, H. Arrencountred Ling Mensing before a Tent, and faid to him: Par evil traitor, that thou destend me to take the Arms of Patroclus and more him a drocked that he fell to the ground. After Hector adighted bound and smote off his head, and would have taken his arms from him; but Menesteus letted him and smore upon Hoctor overthwart by such force that he gave him a wound, and went his way without more tarrying, doubting the surp of Hector. Then: Hackor went out of the throng and bound up his wound, that is laid no more, and went in again into the press, and sew many Greeks. Dares saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks. Dares saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks. Ourse saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks. Ourse saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks. Ourse saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks. Ourse saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks. Ourse saith, that after he had bound up his wound, be seeks.

0

B.

it

Ħ

31

11

tl=

m

er,

to

at

ris

Du this day the Trojans had bidopy of the Goocks if Forence had confented: for they might have flain them all, and elchemed great evils that after came to them. Sourcely it is not mis bom, when any man findeth his currenting cappered, to velice him thereof; for it happenerh aftennimes that he hall ge-

Ð

ber recover to have his enemy in the fame cafe, but that Fortune will turn ber back.

Thus it bappened this bay to the unhappy Hector, that has the better of his enemies, and micht have flain them all if he would, for they lought nothing but to flay. When by great milabbenture, there came before him in an encounter Thelamon-Aiax, that was son of bing Thelamon, and Exione, that was Coufin germane of H. dor and of his bectheen, which mas mile and valiant, he abbreffet bim against Hictor, and gabe him a furious affault, & Hector to him as both valiant Buights. And as they were fighting, they talked tegether, and thereby. Hedor knew that he was his Confin germane, Son of his Qune: then Hechor embraced him in his Arms, and offeren te him to be what he pleased, if he befired any thing of him, and prayed him that he would come to Troy to fee his linage of his mothers fibe : but Thelamon, that intended nothing but to bis belt advantage, faid, That he would not go at this time. But maved Hector, that if he loved him to much as he fait, he mould for bis lake, at his inftance, ceale the battel for that ban. and that the Trojahs fould leave the Grocks in peace. The unhappy Hictor accorded into his requelt, and blew a bern and made all his people to withonaw into the City. Then have the Trojansbeaun to put fire in the Offps of the Greeks, and has burnt them all, had not Hector recalled them from thence : wherefore the Troi is were form of their repeat.

This was the ranic wherefore the Trojans miffes to have the bidopy, unto which they might never attain: for Fortune was to them contrary: and therefore Virgil faith: Non off mifericordia in bello, that is to fay, there is no mercy in battel. A man ought not to be merriful; but take the victory when he may act to. And all the sound as a man all the victory when he may

CHAP. XII.

Of the first truce of two months: and of the three battels between them, in which Helior beat Achilles to the ground twice, and after flew King Prothener and cut him in two.

I D the morning besimes the Projects armed them to affail the Greeks : but the Greeks went bertimes to hing Priamus, and Bemanbed semantet truce for two months : and be agreed to them. mere the bead bodies gathered, as well of the one party as of the other, and fome were buried, and fome burnt. Achilles mas le ferrowful for the beath of Patroclus, that be could in no wife be comforted : be made bis body to be buried in a fair Depulcure, and looks they of the other; as of Bing Protheliaus, and other kings and Princes that were flain : they that were mounded they bid cause to be healed buring the truce. Prismus the Bing bib bury bis Baftarb Son Callibelinus honourably in the Temple of Venus, and the web great forrow for bis beach, to nib all that were there,

10

Ó

Withen Caffandra heard the fortow that the Trojans made for the beath of their friends, the cryenand laid: Dungracious Troians, make fortow for pour fetbes, for in like wife hall is happen to you, as it is to your friends: alas, why feek pe not veace of the Greeks, before thole evils come to you, and this no hite City be bettropto alan, why pielo pe not again Holenge that the bing my father bio taute to ravill by force, wherefore pe thalf all be beltroyet among all thete things , Palamides murmureb at the Seigniory of Agamemnon , laying, that he was not worthy to have to great bominion above all other; and that be himfelt was more worthy to babe the Seigniory of the Boll than Agamermon , and that he bab not the good will and content of the Princes, but only of three or four : then at that time there was norbing further proceeden.

tomben the Truce failed, King Agamemnon that bab the charine of the Bott, orderen early bis hattels, and gave the first to Actiffs, and the ferond to Decimedes, the third to Menclaus, the fourth to Meneficus the Duke of Athens, and ober all the other he orbained good Captaine. Hector ornered his battels likewife, and let in the first Troylus, and all the other be fet abou Captains, and made all the battels to iffue out : and be buntett in the from before. Tothen Achilles law him he ran against him, that they fmore each other to the earth. Hedor res mounted first, and left Achilles tying on the carth, and fmote in among the other, in the greatest prels, and be caught no Bnight bue he flew bim, or brat him bown, and went throughout the

battel

bartel all mabe red with the blood of them that he had flain. Thes Achilles was remounted be though in among the Troins and few many; and went lo far that he encountred He tor again: aub he ran to him, and Hector to him, but Achilles was born to the ground and Hector would habe taken bis Borle but he couls not for the great fuctours that Achilles hab. So foen as he mas res mounted, be affailed Hece or with his Sword, and gave frokes to Hector, that he had almost beaten bim : but Hector gabe to him a froke upon the Delm, that be oberthrew him, and mabe the blood fpring put of bis beap. Thus was the battel mount, the two Linights, it they has not been parced the one from the other, they had been flain : Then came. Dyomedes to the battel and Trovius on the other five, which Imote each other to the careli. "Bet Dyornedes re-mounted ficht, and affailed Troylusthat was on foot, and preented himfelf baliantly, and fiem the worke of Dyoricdes : but their men remounted them both by torce and they bedan arain to stirmith. Dyomodes had taken awayet toylus off the Tropos had not put them in peril of mach! for to retene bim': and many of them were flain, then same Menclaus on the Greeks the, and Paris on the other fibe; and this going and coming. Hector cealed not to beat bown the Unightes then there man a new Unight namen Briets, that adapted him ferrety, but Hestor with great tre Imore him upon ohe Delm that he cleft his head, and he fell bown bead: but Archilogus his Confin , feeing that Hector maula habe taken his Bogle, Archilogus befended him as much as be could, but Hector ran upon him, ang Imote his hony in the pieces note withflanding his Barnets. Bing Prothenogadnieffed bin to Hector that took no remard and friote bim to the carth,

And Hector re-mounten anon upon his Horle, and gape Ring Protherer a froke with all his might that he cleft his body in two halves: Achilles that was his Couffn, leeing that had fo great forrow, that he and king Archelous contented to repenge his beath.

But the Trojans bib come upon him with luch toutage and warlike ffrength, that the Greeks fainted, and mult nerne fice, the Trojans fellowed them unto their Ecnis, but the night

Came on, that made them bepart, and the Trojans returned into their City.

CHAP. XIII.

How the Creeks held Parliament how they might flay Hell's, how they returned to the fourth battel, in which Paris and Menelaus encountred, and brought King Thias priforer to Try.

fter this battel, when night was come, all the Eings, . Princes and Parons of the Greeks affembled at the Went, of Bing Agamemnon, and there held a Parliament how they' might flap Hector. They faid, hat as long as he came to the hats tel against them, they could never vanguist the Troj ns. Ard to bying this to end, they requested Achilles that he would take it upon him, as well for his trength as his wiftome: And Achilles enterpaised it gladly, as he that knew Hector befferto more his death than of any other: allo Hector was he by whom. be might foonest lofe bis life. After this Countel they went to reficill on the morrow betimes they armed them. And Hector then iffued out of the City well and biligently ordered, and was bimfelf befoge all orber in the firtt battel. And affer him came Eneas, then Paris, then Deiphobus, after bim. Troylus, and after bim the other following cach in his order. Then forned all the Trojans together, and were more than an bundred thous fand figheing men. Then began the battel to be horrible and mortal. Paris wich them of Perfe, that were good Bnighte flem with het many Greeks and wounden them, Hedor encountred Bing Agamemnon, and beat him, wounting him fore. Then Achilles affailed Hector, and gabe him fo meny frokes, that he broke his Delm. Then Encas and Treylus came to the refe que of Hector, and Dyomedes came upon that, who addie fed bim to Eneas, and beat him , and faib to lim in mockery : Ta, ha good Countellout, that gavelt cour f.I to thy bing to offend maknow for truth, that if thou come oft into thefe battels, aud I mert with thee thou falt not efcape mithout brath.

Among thele illings, Hector affailed Achilles, and gabe to bim to many froker, that be brake bis Belm, and weened to babe taken bim: but the Son of Guideus ran upon Hector, and nave him a froke with his Sword, that he burt bim bern fore. Hoctor in his ire encountred Dyomedes, and gave him a froke, that he beat him to the ground: Ehen Troylusal abted to fight with Dyomedes on foot: but Dyomedes befended hims felf fo valiantly, that it is marvel. And beffbes them, fought together Hector and Achilles. Then came to the skirmich all the Bings and Princes of Greece, and from the Trojans, came all the Barous that were come to ato them : There bedan the battel. Bing Agamemnon and Bing Pandolas fought tones ther: Bing Menelaus encountred Paris, and they knew each of ther well, Menelaus Imote bim with bis Spear, that be nabe him a wound, and Imote him town, whereof Paris was albamen. Uliffes beat Bing Araftous, and took bis Dorfe that was bery moad, and fent it to bis Went. Pollimetes affailed Huppon the ancient, and flew bim. Neoptolemus and Bing Archilogus fought together. Polidamas beat Palmedes and wounded bim bery forc, and after mocked bim by reproach. Bing Selenus and hing Garras encountred together, and Carras was fore braten and wounded. Philomenus beat Anthener, Philofeas and Bing Remus fought together. Bing Theleus and Bing Eurialus fought together, and both were fore burt. And the Was farbs of Bing Priamus flew many Greeks ; and furt many Bing Thelamon and Bing Serpedon fuffed one against the other, that they fell both lose burt, and afforted of the anguith they hab. Bing Thous and Achilles that were Coulins, affailed Hector, and gabe him many frokes and biew off his Delm from his head, and burt him in many places. Hector gave him a froke with his Sword that he rut off half his note.

To the refeue of Hector came his baffard Brethren, that flew many Greeks and took king Thous, and wounded king Agamemnon, that he was born to his Tent as bead, and king Thous was led prisoner to Troy. Menclaus endeavoured to griebe Paris, and Paris thot to him an Arrow endenomed, and wounded him, that he was born into his Tent, as soon as Menclaus

hab

had bound up his wounds, he came again to the battel to assail Paris, and he sound him and assailed him, but Eneas put himself between them both, so assauch as Paris was unarmed, and not able to prevent him: and so Eneas led him into the City, to the end that Menclaus should not sey him. Then Hector assailed Menclaus, and weened to have taken him: but there came to the rescue great plenty of Chivalry of the Greeks, where so record to the could not come to his intent, then he thouse in, and smote among the other, with help of his solk, that the Greeks sled. And then night coming on made the battel cease.

CHAP, XIV.

How Priamus would have had King Thous hanged, and how they fought the fifth battel, in which Heter flew three Kings, and how Dyomedes flew the Sagittary.

I & the mouning Bing Priamus would not fight that bay . I but fent for his council, to wit, Hector, Paris, Troylus, and Deiphobus, Eneas, Antheror, and Polidamas, and fair unto them : De know we hold Pailoner Bing Thoas, without any evil we have beferbeb, be is come to beftrop us: and therefore 3 think good that we make him bye an evil beath. What fap pe thereto ? Da fir, faio Encas, the Coos forbid that your no bles fould be fuch a villany, fince it is fo that Bing Thoasis one of the most noble Bings of Greece, for it might happen that the Greeks might take one of ours, to whom they might on the like whereof ve might take the greateft grief in the worlo. It is better as 3 think, that pe keep fafe Bing Thoas, without bos ing bim burt, that if by fortune one of ours were taken, we might make an erchange, and take one for the other. Ehis counfel fermed good and pleafing to Hictor, but Bing Priamus fato. If ye bothis, it shall feem to the Greeks that we boult them. and that we bare not put their folk to beath : notwithftanding I will bo by your counsel. This council finished, Encas took Troylus and Anthenor, and went to fee Helen, whom they found in a great Balt of Illeon , with the Queen Hecuba , and many other noble Ladies , where the made great forrow, and thep they tappoled to have comforted her, to did Aueen Hecuba, that haid the hould take no forrow, for they of the City would well before them.

among thefe things the Greeks complained of the death of their friends that the Trojans flew, and held themfelbes berp Chilogen that they had put themfelbes in fuch banger, wherefrom they hav well paffer,if they had had good countel : pet it happened that fame night, there came fo great a wind and rain, that their Wents were all turned uplide bown, and it feemed that the world hould have ended by the great form, whereof their forrow was boubled. When it came to the morning that the Ecmpel was paffed, they armed themfelbes throughout the Boff, and went against the Trojans, that then were iffuen to battel. Achilles addressed himself first to Huppon, that was as great as a Chant, and was hing of Lariffa, and Imote bim mith a Spear in the breaft, that be killed him, and bare him to the Hector flewin his company, Ting Anthoneus, Dvomedes few Bing Antipus. Then Bing Epiftropus, and Bing-Cedus affailed Hector, and Epiftropus jufted against Hector, and lake his Spear upon him and laid to him many billainous worth, whereat Hector was wonderful angry, and in his creede ing great ire gave him luch a froke that he flew bim and afters ward faid, that he fould got fap his willainous words to them that were beat, fuch as he was wont to fay to the living. Then was Cedus paffing forrowfull for the beath of his brother , and abmonified a thouland anights to flap Hector, and they affailed bim,and brat him off his Bosle, and crring to Bing Cedus, to flay him : when Hector perceived that, he gave him a Groke and cut off his Arm, wherewith he fell bown, then Hecror flew him. Encas Act in this stirmif hing Amp' ymacus. Then went together the most puillant of the Greiks and affailed the Trojans and flew many, and they went with to great force, that they put the Trojans in a chale, in which Achilles dew Bing Priles, whereof Hector had great foirow, and in his ire flew Bing Da'p ne, and Bing D reugthus by the puillance of Hector, the Projans recovered the field and flew many Greeks, at the San Then iffued out of Troy Ling Epithopus, with there chouse

fanb

min uniabts, and they brake ranks and thruit among the Greeks that recopled in their coming, be brought with bim & Sagitary, that before is made mention of. This Dagitary was not armeb, but be bare a ffrong Bow and a Duiber full of Are rows, and thet frongly. Withen the Antghts of the Greeks fam this mabellous beaft, they had no befire to go forth, and they that were before began to withdram. Among thefe things, Hector flew Polixenes, the noble Duke that fought fore againff him, for by the arength of the Trojans, and the horrour of the Danitary, the Greeks were bitben back to their Tents. 30 happened that Dyomedes before one of the Wents, was affaile en of the Sagitary, and had this beaft before him, and the Trojans on his back, to that it behober him there to them bis puils fance. The Sagitary thot an Arrow to him, and Dyomedes not well affured, abbanced nigh unto bim, and gabe bim a ftroke with his Sword not armed, that be flew bim, at that time is mas paft mib bay, then the Greeks recobered the field, and made the Trojans flee. Then encountred Hector and Achilles, and with force of their Speares they fought, and fell both to the earth : Andas Achilles was firft re-mounted be fuppoled ta have led away Galathee, the good Hople of Hector; but Hector cryed to his folk, that they thould not luffer him. Then they ran upon Achilles, and recovered Galathee, and rendzed bim again to Hector, that was bery glad of bim. At this skirmil mas Anthenor taken and fent to their Tents, not withftanbing. that Polidamas bis Son Did marbels of Arms to refeue bim but be could not : thus they fought to great bamage of both parties, until the night parted them.

CHAP. XV.

D

it

)-

it

g

w T, tru:

סוו

Of the Truce between them, after which began battel again from morn to even, with great damage to both parties, but the Trojans lost more than the Greeks.

I the morning the Greeks fent Dyomedes and Ulisses to Briamus to have Peace for three mouths. Bing Priamus assembled his council upon this thing, and eath man agreed lave

Tabe Hector, that fair the Greeks fetaned them to bury their beam hobies, and they lacked bidual, therefore required Truce, to the end, that during this time they might provide them of bidual. and we vaily made ours, whereof we may foon have frarcity; get be would not fand against the opinion of fo many wife men. but actreed and the truce was accorded for three months. This truce buring, Bing Thoas was belivered inffead of Anthenor. whom they fent to the Trojans. Chalcas, that by the commands ment of Apollo had left the Trojans, had a paffing fair Daughter. named Biffeide, which be praved thing Agamenmon and the other Princes, that they would require Bing Priamus to fend Brifida to him. They prayed carnelly to Bing Priamus at the request of Chalcas, but the Trojans blamed fore Chalcas, and called him falle Traitor, and worthy to die, that had left his own land and his natural Lozd, to go into the company of his mortal es nemites: per at the earnest beare of the Greeks, Bing Priamus fent Brifelda to her Father.

The Truce during, Hector went on a day to the Tents of the · Greeks, and Achilles beheld him gladly, fozalmuch as he never faw him unatmed, and at the request of Achilles Hector went into his Went : and as they fpoke together of many things, A. thilles faid to Hector, I have great pleasure to fee thee unarmed, foralmuch as I never law thee to before. Det I hall have more pleafure, when thou halt ope of my hand, which thing I mot For I know thee to be frong and have oftentimes proved it, to the effusion of my blood, whereof I have great anger, and much more for tow; foral much as thou flewell Patroclus, that Invertie most of the worlb. Then thou mavest beliebe that before this year be paff, his beath hall be avenced upon thee, by, my hand, and I allo know thou befirett to flay me.

Hector answered and faid : Achilles, if I befire thy beath, marbel nothing thereat : for thou art mine enemp, and art come into this land to bedrop me and mine, I would have thee know that thy words fear me nothing at all : pet I have hope that mithin two years, if I live and continue in health, and my fword fail me not; thou halt bye by my hands, and not thou only, but the greatelf part of the Greeks : for among you'ye have enters prized a great folly. And I am assured thou shalt vie by my hand ere I shall vie by thine. And if thou think thou mayest vefend thee against me, make it so that all the Barons of thy host vo accord, that we sight body against body, and if it happen that thou vanquish me, my friends and I will be vanquished, out of this kicalm and leave it unto the Greeks, therefore I shall give good pledge. And herein thos mayest profit many other, that may tun in danger, if they follow the battel: and if it happen that I vanquish thee, then all thy host depart hence, and suffer us to live in peace. Achilles chased with these words and offered to sight this battel, and gave Hector his gage, which he took and received gladly.

paigeb

Wilhen Agamemnon knew of this offer, he went hastily unto the Tent of Achilles, with a great company of Roble men, which in no mile would accord to this battel, saying, That they would not submit, so many Robles under the strength of oneman: and the Trojans said in like manner, save only king Priamus that would gladly agree, so, the great strength be sound in his Son Hector. Thus was the fight broken, and Hector departed and went away to Troy.

3

36

r,

at

at

£,

th,

me

ow hat

920

but

ized

ther, he made great forzow, for the was his Soveraign Lady of ther, he made great forzow, for the was his Soveraign Lady of two, in likewife Brifcida loved earnestly Troylus, and made also the greatest forzow of the world, to leave her Soveraign Lord in love. There was never so much sorzow between two Lovers at their departing. Who that list to hear of all their love, let him read the wook of Troylus that Chaucer writ, where in he shall find whole stories, which were too long to write here, but finally Brifcida was led unto the Greeks, and received how nourably.

Among them was Dyomedes, that anon was enclamed with the love of Briscida, when he saw her, and in riving by her side he shewed her all his mind, and made her many promises, desiring her love: when she knew the mind of Dyomedes, the creased her: saying, the would not agree to him, not refuse him at that time, so her heart was not disposed to answer otherwise. Of this answer Dyomedes had great soy, foralmuch as he was not

1 2

refuled

refuled utterly, and he accompanied her unto the Tent of her Father, and helpt her down off her Holle, and took from her one of her Gloves, which the held in her hand, and the luffered him sweetly. Chalcas received her with great foy, and when they were in privity between them bath, Briscida said to her Pather thefe words.

Da, ba, my Father, bow is thy wit failed that wert wont to be to mile, and the most honoured and beloved in the City of Troy, and governed allthat was within, and hadf to many riches and pollellions, and now balt been Traptoz, thou that puchteff to have kept the riches, and defended they Country unto Death ? Dow hall this turn to the fhame ? Surely thou fhalt neber met fo much honour, as thou haft motten reproach : and thou thall not only be blamed in thy life, but also ill spoken of after thy beath, and be bamned in Bell. And me feemeth vet, it has been better to have Dwelled out from the people upon fome The of the Sea, than to owell here in this bilbonour, thinkelt thou that the Greeks hold thee for true and faithful, thou are os penip falle and untrue to the people : Durely it was not only the God Apollothat thus abuled thee,it was a company of Des vils ; as the thus fpake to ber father, the west griebouffy for the bifuleafure that the conceives.

Ha, ha, my vaughter, said Chalcast thinkest thou it is a sit thing to despile the answer of the Gods, and especially in that that touches my health? I know certainly by their answers, this War shall not endure long, this City thall be destroyed, and the Pobles also and the Burgesles, and therefore it is better for us to be here safe, than to be said with them. Thus sinished they their talk.

The coming of Briseida pleased much all the Grecks, and they came and seased her, and demanded of her tydings of Troy, and of Blug Priamus, and them that were with him, and the answered courteously to all their demands. Then the Pobles that were there, promised to desend her, and hold her as dear as their Daughter: then each man went into his Tent, and there was none of them but gave her a sewel at departing: it pleased her well to abide and dwell with the Greeks: and the sogget the noble

mi hem

noble City of Troy, and the love of noble Troylus. D how foon is the purpose of a woman changed: Surely somer than any man can say of think: Even now Briseida accused her Father of treaston, which the her sets exerciseth in sozgetting of her Country, and true friend Troylus.

CHAP. XVI.

How the Greeks and Trojaus began the fixth Battel, that dured thirty dayes, in which were many Kings and Princes flain on both fides, and how Dyomedes smote down Troylus off his horse, and sent it to Briseida his Love, that received it gladly.

A fter the three Pouths Truce was expired, the Trojans provided for Battel. And when Hector had ordered alt his battels, he issued out fitst, and took with him fifteen thousand, and Troylus followed him with ten thousand Buights: after him came Paris with three thousand good Archers, and well Horsted. After came Deiphobus with three thousand: after him Eneas, and all the other in order, there were this day on the Trojans party, more than an hundred thousand valiant fighting men.

Dn the Greeks party, came firft Menelius with feben thous fand Enights, after him Dyomedes with as many, and then Achilles who led eleven thousand, then Ming Pampytus with a great multitude of Anights, and the other after, as they were appointed. The Bing Philes advanced bim firt, and Hector ran against him to frongly, that be flew him with his Spear. Then there arole a great cry for his beath among the Greeks. and the flaughter began to great, that it was an boarible fight to fee, as well of the one five as of the other. Bing Passeus. few many Trojans, for to rebenge the beath of his Uncle, and affailed Hector, but Hector gabe him a froke that be flemhim, and to revenge his beath, the Greeks few many of the Trojans. Achilles flew many Robte men, among whom he fem Duke Byraon, and Euforbe that was a great Robles man. Hector was this bay lose burt in the face, and knew not who had bone it, therefore the Trojans recopled to the Walls.

Tothen Hector apparently saw upon the walls, Queen Hecuba his Hother, and his Histers, he was ahamed, and surjously as sailed king Menon, Cousin of Achilles, and gave him so many krokes with his Swozd upon his Helm, that he sew him in the sight of Achilles, that was mad for anger, and took a strong spear and ran against Hector, and brake his Spear upon him, but he could not remove him: and Hector gave him a stroke that he made him tumble under his Horse, and said to him: Achilles, Achilles, thou contendes to approach me, but know thou approachest thy death. And as Achilles would have answered to Hector, Troylus came between them with a great number of knights. And there were sain more than sive hundred knights of the Greeks, and they put them back by some. Then Menelaus came to the rescue with three thousand sighting men.

And on the Trojans live came Bing Ademon, that justed as against Menelaus, and hurt him in the face: and he and Troylus took him, and had led him away, if Dyomedes had not come the sooner, with a great company of Bnights, and sought valis antly with Troylus at his coming, and smote him down, and took his Poese and sent it unto Brisida, and did cause to say to her by his Servant, that it was Troylus his Poese, her Love: and that he had conquered him by his prowels, and prayed her from thencesorth that she would hold him so, her love.

Brifeida hab great for of thefe tobings, and fait to che bers vant, that he thould fay unto his Lozd, the might not hate him, that with fo good a heart loved ber. When Dyomedes knew the answer, he was joyful, and thrust in among his Enemies: but the Trojans made the Greeks go back, and record unto their Tents, and had flain them all, if hing Agamemnon had not fue webthem wich great frength. Then began the battel mortal and the Greeks recovered the Field, and put the Troians back to their Ditches. Then came Polidamas to the refcue, with a great number of valiant Unights, and did goodly ers Dyomedes addreffed him to him, but be was ploits of war. beaten off his Borfe, by Polidamas, who took the Borfe and belis vered it to Troylus, that fought on foot, and be prefently mounts ed thereupon. Then Then came Achilles against Troylus, whom Troylus receis bed gladly, and beat down Achilles, which remounted lightly, and assisted Troylus with his Sword, Troylus defended him has liantly. Then came on H. Ctor, who had at this time sain more than a thousand knights: but the Greeks defended Achilles, and were so sopeesed, that they could hardly defend him as ny longer, he had been sain or taken, if king Thelemon and the Duke of Athens had not succoured him. They set him again on his Horse, then the night came on, that parted them. They sought thus thirty dayes continually, to the great damage of both parties: and there were sain six of the Bastard Sons of King Priamus, and Hector was hurtin the sace, therefore King Priamus demanded truce of the Greeks sor six months, and they accorded to him.

CHAP. XVIT.

How the Greeks and Trojons began the feventh battel, that dured twelve Dayes, and after began the eighth battel, wherein Hettor was slain by Achilles, and they were driven back into their City by force to their great damage.

Daring the fir months Truce, Hector fought to be healed of his wounds, and played in the noble Hall of Ilion, (as the History saith) the beautifullest Palace in the world. During the Truce, King Priamus buried his six hastard Sons, each in an honourable Sepulture. Among all other things, Dyomedes suffered great grief, for the love of Bristida, and could not rest for thinking on her, and many times requested her love, but the answered him wittily, still giving him hope without certainty, by which Dyomedes was more enslamed. When the six months were past, they began to sight for twelve dayes space from morning till night, there were many sain on both sides. And there happened a great mortality in the Host of the Greeks, by reason of the great heat: therefore Agamemnon required truce, which was accorded to him.

The night before the Truce was expired, Andromache the Mife of Hector had two fair Sons by him, whereof the one was named Laomedon, the other Astromates, this Andromache saw that night a marvellous vision, and it seemed to her, that if Hector went the day following to the battel, he should be sain. Asd she had great sear and dread of her Husband, mournefully requesting him, that he would not go to the battel that day: whereof Hector blamed his wise saying. That she should not believe not give faith to dreams. The next morning Andromache went to king Priamus, and the Queen, and told them the Verity of her vision: and praying them, that they would do so much at her request, as to till wase Hector, he should not in any wife that day go to the battel.

It happened, that day was fair, and the Trojans armed them, and Troylus issued first into the battel, after him Encas, after Paris, Deiphobus, Polidamas, and King Sarpendon, King Epistropus, King Croys, and the King Philomenus, and after all, the Princes that were come in aid of the Trojans, each man in good order. King Priamus sent to Hector, that he keep him that day from going to battel. Wherefore Hector was angry, and reproached his Wise, as he that knew well, that his commandment came by her. Rotwichstanding he armed him: and when Andromache saw him armed, she took her little Children, and fell bown at the feet of her Dusband, and humbly prayed him that he would unarm him: but he would not do it. Then she said, If not so, my sake, yet have pity on your little Children, that I and they dye not a bitter death, of that we be not led insto bondage into strange Countreys.

Then came Queen Hecuba, and Queen Helen, and the Sisters of Hector, and they all at once humbly entreated him with tears in their eyes, to unarm him, and come with them into the Pall: but he would not do it for their prayers, but descended from the Palace thus armed as he was, and took his Pople, and would have gon to the battel. But at the request of Andromache, king Priamus tame runwing, and took him by the bridle and said to him so much, that he made him return, but in no wife he would be perfmabed to unarm bim.

Among all these things, the battel was mortal on both Ades. Dyomedes and Troylus Zufted together, and had flain each each other, if Menelaus, had not parted them. The king Miferes of Frigia beat Menelaus, and had taken him, when Eneas came, he would have flain him, but Dyomedes belivered him, and flew many Trojans.

Then came king Thelamon with three thousand, and Auster against Polidamas, and unhorsed him. But Troylus succoured him, and made him remount his Horse: after came Paris and Achilles on the other side, that smote among the Trojans by so great force by the help of the people, that he put them to slight unto the City: in this case Achilles sew Mirgaretton, one of the Baffards of Bing Priamus,

When Hector knew that Achilles had flain Margaretton, he had great forrow, and did lace on his Helm, and went to the battel that his Father knew not of, in his coming he flew two noble Greek Dukes, and Duke Corriphus, and Duke Bastidus, and he thrust into the Greeks, and flew as many as he could reach, that the Greeks fled before him, and there was none to hardy that durst abide his strakes: thus the Trojans returned and slew the Greeks on all sides. Then the Greeks took Polidamas, and had led him away, had not Hector delivered him, and slew many Greeks. Then an Admiral of Greece named Le-ocides affailed Hector, and Hector fiem bim.

Withen Achilles fam that H cher flew thus the Robles of Greece, and many other, that it was marvel to behold be thought if Hector were not flain, the Greeks fould never have bictory. Foralmuch as be had flain many Bings and Brinces. be ran upon bim marvelloully, and a noble Duke of Grecce mith bim, named Policeus, that was come for the love of As chilles, the which had faithfully promifed to give him his Sie ffer in marriage. But Hedor fiem the fame Duke in the fight of Achilles. Then Achilles thinking to rebenge the beath of Policeus, affailed Hector furioufly : but Hector caft to him a bart fercely, and made a wound in his thigh : Then Achilles iffued out of the battel : and bid bind up his wound, and took a great Sugar on purpole to day H. Ctor if he might met bim. Among all thele things, Hector had taken a Boble Waron of Gie ce. that was richly armed, and to lead bim out of the Boft at his cale. ease, he cast his sheitd behind him, and lest his breast uncovered, and as he was departing, minding not Achilles, he came privily unto him and thrust his Spear in his body, and Hector fell dead to the ground. When king Menon saw Hector dead, he assated Achilles by great force, and beat him to the ground, and hurt him grievously, but his men carried him into his tent upon his shield. Then so the death of Hector, were all the Trojans discomficed, and resented into their City, bearing the body of Hector, with great so the day and same neation.

CHAP. XVIII.

Of the rich Sepulture of Hector, and great lamentations and weepings the Trojans made for his death: and how Palamedes was chosen Governour of the host of the Greeks.

T Dw Hector being bead, and his body born into the City. there is no tongue can express the forrow that was made in the City, generally of men and women : there was none but hab rather babe loft his own fon than him : every one fait, that from benceforth they had loft all their hope : thus they bemeans ed long their ertream grief. The nobled Bings and Painces carried the body unto the Palace of Ilion. Wiben Bing Priamus fam him, he felt bown in a Iwound upon the body, that they were conftrained to take bim away by force. There all his Brethen made great lamentations. What might men fap of the forrow the Queen his Bother made, and afterwards his Sifter? Dwhat forrom mabe bis Mife? There can no man erpress their feveral criefs. And foralmuch as the body might not long endure without corruption, Bing Priamus took counfet of wife Wafters, how they might keep the body of Hedor without Sepulture: then be Dib caule to be made by their adbice and councel a rich Sepulture upon four pillars of golb, lift upon high, upon the which was made a rich Mabernacle of gold and pretious fromes : and on the four corners of the Mabernacle, were four 3mages of gold, like Angels : and abobe the Tas bernacle, there was a wonderfull great 3mage of Gold, that was made after the femblance of Hector, and had the bifage tos marbs mards the Greeks, and held a naked sword, with which he meraced them: there was in the midst of the Adernacle a plate boid, where the Pasters sate, and put the body of Hector, slesh, and bones, clad in his robes, and stood up on his feet, and might endure a long time in this wise without corruption, by a certain bedice that the masters had set on the head of Hector: to wit, a Ressel that had a hole in the bottom full of sine balm, that distilled and dropped into his head, and spread down into all the parts of the body, as well within as without, and they often silled the Alest with balm. Thus the body did not impair so, the great vertue of this balm.

And all the people that destred to see H. Aor, saw him as perfectly as if he lived. To this Sepulture, the same Pasters made a Lamp of fine gold, burning continually without going out, and afterward, they made a closure, that no man should approach unto this Tabernacle without licence. In this Temple Ling Priamus ordained great plenty of Priests to pray unto the Gods without ceasing, for his Son Hector, and gave to them good rents.

Among these things king Agamemnon assembled all the kings and Princes of his Host, and said unto them: Morthy kings, Princes, and Barons, we ought to render thanks to the Gods with debout hearts, that have suffered our couragious enemy Hector to be sain by the hand of Achilles. For whilest he lived, we had no hope to overcome our Cnemies. What may the Trojans from hencesorth hope sor, but only their overthrow? And we may hope in Gott time sor, the vistory over them and theirs: sorasmuch as Achilles is grievously hurt, and may not go to battel, if ye think good, whiles that he may be healed, and the other also that be hurt, (of whom we have many, and also sor to bury the dead bodies) we will send to king Priamus, sor to have Truce sor two months. The councel liked them, and they sent to king Priamus sor a Truce, and be agreed thereto.

Buring this Truce, Palamedes murmured again at the Seigniory of Agamemnon, and as they were all together, Palamedes freaking of this matter, king Agamemnon answeres very discreetly, in the presence of them all, and said : Palamedes. thinkelt thou I have any pleasure in the Seigniory that was given to me at the beginning, and have bischarged unto this time? Know, it was not my leeking, neither habe Jany profit thereby: but great cares, and breach of fleeps, left by my neglis dence our Bolt hould be ruined og bifhonoured : I thall be well pleafed to be under the government of another : and I fear no man that can accuse me, for any negled of my buty, If thou gaveff not the confent to my election, thou needelt not revine thereat : for you were not at that time come, but it was two years after ere thou cameft. And if we fould have carried your coming. we should have been at the post of Athens, and foral much as you fiell not think I am Defirous of his honour. I befire another thould be cholen, and I am ready to gibe confent with the moft boyces. When Agamemnon had thus fpoken, they proceeded no further that day in this matter. And in the evening Agamems non caufed it to be proclaimed throughout the Boft, that each man thould affemble early in the morning, before the Beneral's Ment at the Warliament.

When they were all assembled, Agamemnon said unto them, Royal Princes and Friends, I have had until this time, the charge of this undertaking, to other it well: in such wise, that by the sufferance of the Gods, I have executed it with honour until this time. And sozasmuch as it is not sawful that an University be ruled alway by one Paster, but that every man employ him to the best, and sayalmuch as I have conducted this hold a long time, I desire ye to make thorce of another, that may like wise conduct it discreetly. When Agamemnon had finished his words, his speeches pleased every man, and they chose Palamodes to be their Governout: then he went to his Tent.

Achilles that lay fick of his wounds, was angry at the depoing of Agamemnon, and faid befoze all that would hear it, that Palamedes was nothing like unto Agamemnon, in wit and indoment, and that they ought not to change him for Palamedes; but foral much as the people had consented, he agrad also.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIX.

How King Priamus went to be revenged on the Greeks for the death of his Son Hedor: and of the Proweffes he did: and of the Anniversary of Hedor, in which Achilles was surpresed with the love of Polizena, the Daughter of King Priamus, in such wise that he might endure no rest.

1/ Ber the two months Truce were paft, Bing Priamus bearing to revenge the beath of his Son H. ctor, orbains ed with his own verlon his Battels : and fet in each battel good Conductare, and he himfelf led with him five and twenty thous fand good Enights. Dares faith there iffued out of Troy that bay, an hundled and fifty thouland men. Deiphobus was the foremoft, and then Paris, and after him came Bing Priamus, Troylus, Eneas, Menon, and Polidamas, and they marched upon the Greeks. Palamedes made ready his battalions. Then began the battel furious and mortal. Bing Priamus Imote bown Palamedes in his coming, and after Imore the Greeks, and flew many of them, and performed fuch beeds of arms that bay. that it is almost incredible, a man lo ancient and far in years as he was, could bo that which he bio. Bing Serpedon of Troy, affailed Bing Neoptolemus, who was a frong Bnight, and hing Serpedon was born to the earth, who befenbed hing valiantly, and gave a froke unto Bing Neoptolemus, that mabe a wound in his thigh. Then came Bing Perfe that that remounted again Bing Serpedon with the aid of his men. Menelaus and the Duke of Athens, affailed the Bing of Perfe, and enclosed him and his people amonget them, and flew the Bing of Perfe, and made the Trojans recorl : there Dio Bing Serpedon wondrous matters of Arms.

Ling Priamus and his Bastard Sons, that then followed him, ceased not to slay the Greeks: and there was none that day, that did so much in arms as Bing Priamus, for his sorrow and anger, made his strength to encrease. The Greeks addistrd to take the way, which the Trojans should return unto the City and they went thither in great number. And when the Trojan recogled to go to that place, they sound themselves in the mid vie of their enemies. Then began a mortal battel, there came upon them king Priamus, with a great number by a Wing: and Paris came crossing them with great plenty of Kighters, he had great stope of Archers that sew many of the Greeks: and they vid so well bestir them, that the Greeks were driven to recoyl to their Tents. Then the Trojans resented their City, and king Priamus sustained the worst of this battel. He sent to the Greeks, to demand Truce, and they accorded to him.

D

But me find not hom long this Ttue endured.

Among thele things, Ling Priamus Dib caufe tobe carried by land the body of the Bing of Perfe, to be buried in bis Country. Then was the weeping great in Troy, and efpecially of Paris, who loved him erceebingly. Dow buring this Eruce the Anniberfary o Hector approached, when men Gould mourn fifteen Dayes in great forrow, and after thould hallow the great Feat of the funeral, as then it was the cultom for Bings and Princes. Then buring the Truce, the Greeks went and came into the City fafely : fo bio the Trojans into the Tents of the Greeks : Then Achilles Defired to go to Troy, to fee the City, and the Fraft of the Anniverlary of Hector, whom be had dain : and he went unarmed to the Temple of Apollo, where was the Des pulcure of Hector, be found there great plenty of noble men and wemen, that made great forrow before the Depulture : and Hector a man might fee on all fibes whole, in like manner as he mas libing, by bertue of the balm. There was Queen Hecuba and Polixena ber Baughter, that was paffing fair, with a great company of Roble Labies, with their hair bilperled and hanne ing about their Boulders, making great lamentation. Albeit Polixena mabe great forrow, pet it biminifet not ber beaus ty, but the feemed fo fair in all parts, that Mature never formed fairer than the.

Mhen Achilles had viewed Polixena, he said in himself, he had never seen so comley and sair a woman, not better somed: and said she was one of the noblest women in the world. Then was Achilles shot with the Dart of love, that stroke him to the heart, that the more he beheld her, the more he desired her; And was so befored on her, that he thought on no other thing.

but

but above in the Temple, as long as the Dueen was there : and when the went out, he conveyed his eye after her, as far as he might: but this was the beginning of his missozume. Afterwards Achilles returned unto his Tent, and when he was faid to fleey, there came many things in his mind, he knew then the danger that Polluena had put him in, and thought in himself, that the firongest men in the world had no power to banquish him, yet the fight of a fair Mirgin had overcome him: he thought, that there was no Pedicine in the world might heat him save she.

Then he laid: Spentreaties, strength, and riches, cannot move her to have picy on me: what hard sozume hath put me in this danger, to love her that hateth me, and by right good cause: for I am come hither to slay her kindred, and have lately sain her noble Brother McCtor? Surely I see no remedy, since he is the noblest Lady in the world. Then he returned him to the wall and wept, and bethought himself how he might obtain the love of Polixena: in these medications he spent the mast part of the night.

CHAP. XX,

How Achilles fent a fectet Messenger to Hecuba Queen of Troy, to request her Daughter Polizena, and the answer to how for the love of her, Achilles assembled the Host of the Greeks, and caused them to depart, and make peace with the Trojans.

The night following, as Achilles was laiv on his bed, he chought that he would send his Pellenger betimes unromueen Accuba, to know if he might find that favour, that she would be from her Daughter Polixena on him so, his Wise, and he would no so much so, her, that he would make the Greeks to raise their Beige, and go again into their awn Countrey, that peace should be made between them. What he thought in the night, he put in execution, and sent a Pellenger unto the Duem to require her Daughter, and he related to her all that his look Commanded him. When the Duem understood the Pelsfenger.

fenger, the answered him discreetly: and although the hated Achilles more then any man in the world, yet the said: Friend, as much as in me is, I am ready to perform what your maffer requireth: but certifichim, that I cannot do this of my self, but I will theak to my Busband, and my Son Paris, if you return hither three bares bence, 3 will fully refolbe you.

When the messenger hearothe Queens answer, he returned to his Lood, and cold him all that he had heard: Then Queen Hechba went to king Priamus her Dusband, and cold him in the hearing of Paris, what Achilles had said: then the King hanged bown his head, and was a long time, not saying a wood; after he said: It is (I think) a hard thing, to receive into true strengthy, him that both done us so many injuries, that hath taken away the light of mine eyes, in slaying my dear Son Hector, and therein given hope to the Greeks to obtain the visions: Pet to eschew surcher perils, to the end my other Sons lose not their lives, and that I may rest in mine old dayes, I consent with you that he have what he requireth: alway sozeleen, that he vo what he hath promised without any deception. Paris agreed to this readily, sozasmuch as in the promises of Achilles was nothing spoken of Queen Helein.

The third pap after, Achilles fent his Wellenger again to the Queen and as pe was come before ber, the fait to him : 3 have Spoken to my Bufband, and my Son Paris, and tolo them the Requeft, and Promile of your Lord : and they are content that this his request be agreed unto : to that be first perform what he hath promifed : fo thou mavelt fay unto him, that he may obtain his beffre, if he conduct wifely this thing, as much as fir him lyeth. The Beffenger took leabe of the Queen and came to his Baffer, and related all that the Queen had faib to Then began Achille, to think how be fould perform what he bath promited to king Priamus, being diffigult; becaufe it was nor all in his power, But it is a bice proper to foolio Lovers, to promife things that are bare to bring about. And Achilles flatteren bimfelf, that for his not giving and to the Greeks, be mouflo make them to leabe their Siene. Aben Achilles by the counter of Palamodes, affemble attabo things and 13,3433 Doble?

Deblemen of the Doll in Parliament and faid as followeth.

By friends, that be bere affembleb, to baing this Warr to an end, think ve on your felbes, how by great rafbnels and follp, to recover the wife of Bing Menelaus, we have left our Countrys and Lands, our wives and Chilozen, and are come inco a ftrange Land, where we have mil-fpended our precious bours folifily, and put our bodies in banger of beath, to great and infinite labours : and fince me came bither, there are many Bings and Princes bead, and 3 mp felt have thed much blod, that never thould have happened if we had not begun this folly. Helen is not of to great price, that to many Boblesmen hould bye for her: there are enow in the world both as noble, and fair as the is, of whom Menelaus might have one or two, if he mould. And it is not a light thing to overcome the Trojnas, for they have a ftrong City, well furnifhed with good fighters, both of Bogle and foor: and it ought to luffice us that we have flain Hedor, and many other of their Dobles, wherfeoze we might now recurn with great bonour; and though we leave Helen, have we not Exione, to whom Hel a may not compare in noblenels ?

Then arole the Duke of Athens, and Bing Thaos, and constrarted frongly the words of Achilles: so did all the other: And said, that he spake neither reason, nor well. Whereat Achilles had great sortow, and commanded his Myrmidons, they hould not arm themselves any more against the Trojans, and that they hould give neither aid nor councel to the Greeks. Amongst these things, Michaels began to fail, and they had great samine. Then Palamedes assembled all the Bobles of the Host to counsel, and by their advice King Azamemnon was sent unto the City of Miss, to Using Telephus, that laided his Ships with bistuals, and came safely again into the Host of the Greeks, where he was received with great soy. Among these things, Palamedes caused their shipping to be repaired, and ready it thep had need.

CHAP. XXI.

Of the death of Deiphobus, the Son of Priamus, and how Paris flew Palamedes: and the Trojans chased the Greeks into their Tents, and set fire on their Ships: and how Achilles would not go to battel, for the love of Polizena.

T Wen the Aruce was past, they began to fight as before. Deiphobus in his coming affailed $. Creffus of Creece, and they juffed together: but Deiphobus beat Bing Creffus Dead to the ground, whereat the Greeks were put to flight. Then Palamedes and Dyomedes, came with fibe and twenty thousand men, that refifted the Trojans: with them was Bing Thelamon-Ajax, that abbreffed him against Eufronius, one of the Baffards of Bing Priamus, and Imote him bead to the ground, in the fight of Deiphobus, who in a great rage ran upon Thelamon, and wounded him. Withen Palamedes faw this, be tok a Spear, and ran at Deiphobus, and Imote him in the breaft; that the Spear entred into bis body, and breaking above in the boby of Deiphobus. Wihen Paris fam his brother mounded to beath, be led him to the Gate of the City, and appointed his men to kep bim. As Deiphobus ovened his epes and fam his Bother Paris, belaid: Brother, let me not fall without rebenging my beath:ere this Truncheon be taken out of my body, that thou wilt revenge me on bim that hath flain me. Paris promifed him to bo his beft : and returning into the Battel, faid in himfelf, that be beffred to live no longer, but till be had revenged the beath of his Brother: and fæking Palamedes, he found him in battel with Bing Serpedon, and Palamedes Des fended himfelf valiantly, and gabe to great a froke to Bing Serpedon, that he cut off his thouldier from his body, then Bing Serpedon fell bown beab.

Paris læing the great damage that Palamedes did to them, how with his prowels he had put the Trojans to flight, he bent a firing Bow, and aiming well at Palamedes shot to him an invenomed Arrow, and smote him in the throat, and cut in two the maker bein, and Palamedes fell dead to the erath: for mhole.

whose beath the Greeks mabe great forrow, and left the battel, and went unto their Tents, there held a parley against the Trojans, and befended them frongly. Eben belcended the Trojans a for, and entred their Wents, and tok all that they found : Then Paris and Tr vlus went by a fide way unto the Wort and fired their Ships. To the refcue of the Ships came Bing Thelamon, with a great company, and began the battel fo horribly, that there was great flaughter on both fibes, berily the Ships had ben all burnt, had it not ben for the promets of the Bing Thelamon, that did marvels with his body, and for all his res fiftance, there were more then fibe bundzed fhips burnt. There was great flaughter of the Greeks, many were fore burt. There was Ebes the Son of the Bing of Thrace, burt with a Spear, and the Aruncheon remained in his body, and in that manner browent to the Tent of Achilles, where he refted him that day, and refuled to go to the battel, for the love be had to Polixena. Ebes reproached Achilles greatly, because be suffered the people of his Country to be bestroped laving, that he might have belped them if he would: And as foon as he had finished these words. one tokthe Aruncheon out of his body, and he byed prefently.

After came from the battel one of the Servants of Achilles, and Achilles Demanded of him the tydings of the Hoft. D fir faid he, it is this bay mifhapened to our folk, for the great multitude of Trojans that are come upon them and they have flain all that they met with, and I think there is not one Trojan left at home. but every man is come to the battel, if it please you now whiles the Trojans be weary, to come to the battel pe thall gain a perpetual memory. For by your promets you thall in little space banquifh all, and they thall not bare to befend themfelbes as gainft you that are fo weary. But Achilles would neither for the words of his Warler, nor the beath of Ebes change his purpole, for the great love be had to Polixena.

10

During thefethings, the battel was cruel, and endured unto night, to the great damage of the Greeks, and the night parted them; pet D iphobus was not bead, but brew toward his end: when Paris and Troylus faw him in that grief, they began to make great lamentationg. And then Deiphobus opened a little his his eyes, and demanded of Paris with a fæble voice, if he were dead that had flain him? Paris answered yes. Then Deiphobus did cause to draw out the head of the spear, and dyed. There, fore the Trojans made great sorrow. It is nædless to hold long talk of the sorrow that King Priamus his Father made, not his Wise, and his Sister: also for the death of King Sarpedon. Of the other party, the Greeks made great sorrow for the death of Palamedes, and buried his body worthipfully. And as they that might not be long without a Governour, by the grave counsel of Duke Nestor, and others, Agamemnon was set again in his dignity as he was before.

Carly the next morning, the Trojans issued out in good of ber, and the Greeks came against them. Then began the back tel to be mortal there was a great saughter on both sides: but it rained so that day, that the Greeks with drew them to their Tents, and the Trojans followed them: but the rain was so great, that they lest the battel and reurned to the Cicy. The next day they began to sight, and sew that day many Barons of the Greeks, and sought till evening: so they continued seven days where was great saughter on both sides, so almuch as the Greeks could not suffer the stench of the dead bodies, they desmanded truce so, two months, which was granted by B. Priamus.

During this truce, & Agamemnon fent Duke Neftor, Uliffes, and Dyomedes, to fpeak to Achilles, to request him to come to the Boft, and befend them against the Trojans. When they were come, he received them with great foy. And then Uliffes faid unto bim : Sir Achilles, was it not by your agreement, and allo ours, that this Boft left their Country ? And now yee are come upon Bing Priamus, and habe beftreped him and his, by force of Arms ? From whence cometh this flacknels, after fo many hurts we have received by the Trojans, that have flain fo many Bings and Princes, robbed our Tents, and burnt our fhips. and we are now in hope to have vanguiched them, after you by your valour had flain Hector, that was the true befender of the Trojens: allo that note Deiphobus is bead, the Trojans are but under for, have now you gotten by your valor a worthy renown. will ve lole allat once, and fuffer your people to be flain cruelly, that that you have to long defended with the effulion of your blod ? Pleate it you from henceforth to keep your good kenown, to the end, that we may obtain the vistory by your prowels, by the

which we hope to attain and come to it.

Sir Wiffes (fais Achilles) if we are come into this land for thefe caufes pe have declated me map fanchat accat folly was as mong us, that for the wife of Menelaus fo many Bings, and Princes be put in Peril of beath. Bad it not been much more wilbom for Palamedes to have remained in peace in his Country, than to be flain bere, and other Kings and Princes in like manner ? For mott part of the Robles of Greece bebere, and if they ove, (as many be already bead) it must note follow that the Countries hall be governed by Elillains. Hector that was to voliant, ie be not dead . Likewife & map ove fortly, that am no fo frong as he was. Therefore fo much as pe require mee to go to battel, fo much labour you tole, for I have no intention to put any more in Danger; and had rather lofe my renown that my life : For there is no prowels but will be forgotten. Nettor, Dyomedes and Agamemnon, fill increated Achilles, but couis not obtain his confent. And he perswaded them to make peace with the Trojans before they were all flain.

Then thefe three princes returned, and made it known to the Princes of the Holf, whom they affembled for this cause, and des manded their advice Then food up Menelaus, who faid : It would be a great thame now to feek for peace with the Tropos; fince Hector and Deiphobus are flain, that by their bearb. the Trojans repute them as banquifted : and without Achilies they fould maintain their wars against the Trojans, To that ans fwered Uliffes and Neftor, and faib, it was no marvel though Menelaus befired the wars to recover bis Wife, and that Troy was not fo diffgarnifed but that they had a new H ctor, which was froylus, who was little less frong and valiant than He-Gor, And there was also another Deiphobus, that was Paris, whom we ought to boubt as much as the other : therefore they counselled to conclude a peace and return into Greece. Then ftood up the falle Traito, Calchas, and faid : molt noble Ders. think ye to be against the commandement of the Babs ! Babe not they promised the victory to you, and will ye now leave it? Surely that would be great folly: take your wonted courage, and fight against the Trojans more strongly than ye have done before: and cease not till ye have the victory, that the Gods have promised. With the words of Calchas, the Greeks tak heart to them, saying: they would maintain the war against the Trojans, whether Achilles helpt them or not: and not leave the war so, him.

CHAP. XXII.

Of many battels that were fought on both sides: And of a certain Truce, of the dearh of Noble Troylus, whom Achilles slew against his promise, and drew at his horse-tail through the Holt, how Achilles slew King Menon.

Dw when the Tence of two months was past, they began to fight in battel harpely. There Troylus did revenge the death of his Brother. Dares saith, he slew that day a thousand Unights, so the Greeks sed: the day following began the fourstenth battel. There Dyomedes slew many Trojans, and addedled him against Troylus, who smote him to the ground, and deeply wounded him, reproaching him with the love of Briseyda. The Greeks with great strength two Dyomedes up, and bare him upon his shield to his Tent. Menelaus swing Dyomedes wounded, address himself against Troylus, Troylus having his Spear whole, smote him to the earth sore hurt, and was carried to his Tent on his Shield. Then Agamemon thrust in as mongst the Trojans, and sew many, but Troylus came against him and smote him off his Horse; but he was quickly remounted by the help of his men.

Thus ender the battel that day, and Agamemnon required Truce for six months, king Priamus agreed thereto. Howbeit, it seemed unfit to some of his Counsel, he should grant it for so long; among these things, Briseyda against the will of his fasther went to see Dyomedes, that lay wounded in his Tent, and the knew that her Love Troylus had hurt him. Daving no hope to recover Troylus, the determined when Dyomedes was cured of bis wounds, to embrace bis lebe.

Among these things, Bing Agamemnon and Duke Nestor, went to the Tent of Achilles, who received him joyfully, and Agamemnon prayed him to come to battel. But Achilles would not hearken thereto: pet because he loved Agamemnon, he consented that his men should go to battel without him: whereof Agamemnon and Nestor gave him great thanks, and after they returned into their Tents.

Withen the Truce was paft, Agamemnon ordained his people to battel. Achilles fent him his Myrmidons, marked with a red fign, to be known by it. Then the battel began to be megtal. Then Troylus beat bown the Duke of Athens, and flew many of the Myrmidons and fought thus until the night parted them. On the morrow betimes began the battel, in which King Philomenus and Polidamas tok Bing Thoas, and had led him as may, had not the Myrmidons rescued him. Then Troylus smote in among them, Aew and burt many of them, but they flew bis Boste, and would have taken him. Then Paris and his Baffard Brethren fmote in among them, and remounted Troylus: then there was a fierce fight. The Myrmidons flew Emargeron one of the Baffards of Bing Priamus, whereof Troylus has great forrow, and by the aid of his people, fmote in among them, and dem and burt many, but they befended themselves baliantly. Then came to the battel bing Agamemnon, Menelaus, Thelamon, Uliffes, and Dyomedes, with all their people, and began a hot skirmith. There the Greeks did make the Trojans to luffer. but Troylus fuccoured them most baliantly, and put himfelf always where most need was, and beat down all be found in his may, that the Greeks fled into their Tents, and Thelamon bes fended them valiantly, and made them recover the dap. This was the firteenth battel, in the which there byed many Unights of both fibes. Troylus ceafed not to grieve the Myrmidons; he bib fo much, that he put the Greeks to flight, and tok an hundled Boble-men, that he brought into the City.

When the battel was finished, against the Chen the Myrmidons returned unto the Tent of Achilles, and there was found many of them burt, there were an bundled of them dead, where at Achilles had much forrow: when it was night, he went to bed and there he had many watering thoughts, once he purpofs es to go to the battel, to rebenge the Death of his men, and ano. ther time be betbought bim on the beauty of Polixena, and thought if he went, he mould lole her love for ever, for he had promifed them, that he would aid the Greeks no more, and when he thought how he had fent his men unto their aid, he was forely griebed:then the day approached on which the febentanth battel began, being very horrible, that bured feben dayes continually, wherein were many Grecks flain. Agamemnon requireb truce: but the Trojans acreed no longer to the truce, but till they had buried their bead bodies, and when those bays were expired, the viahtenth battel began, Menelaus and Paris Juffed, and fought valiantly together. Alfo Polydamas and Uliffes fought together a great while. Meneficus overthrew Eneas in Auffing. Philomenus beat Agememnon, and had forely wounded him, if Thelemon had not come, who Imote Philomenus to the ground, Archilogus Son of Duke Neftor, offatled one of the baffards of King Priacrus names Brom, and few him. Whereat the Trojans had great forrow, above all other Troylus was angry, who thrufting in among the Greeks, had put them to flight, if the Myrmidons hab not frongly refiftet him.

Therefore Troylus smote in among them, and sew many, that he made the Greeks to retyre into their Tents, and alighting on for, entred into their Tents, and slew them on all sides: there was so great cry, that the sound came to Achilles, who rested in his Tent, and he demanded of one of his Servants, what it was, he said to him: that the Trojans had vanquished the Greeks, and slew them within their Tents, which were no more able to defend them: and think you to be sure here, said be May be sail see anon more than sorte thousand Trojans that shall slay you unarmed, for they have slain most part of your Myrmidons, and unless you succour them they are all soft.

At these words Achilles quaked for ire, and forgetting the love of Pol x na, presently armed him, and mounting his Horse, he smote among the Trojans, and sew many of them. When Troylus saw Achilles, he appressed him to him: and gave him a wound,

I

t

'n

۵

wound, that for many dayes he came not to battel. Troylus was hurt also by the hand of Achilles, and both fell to the ground, and the battel dured till night, on the morrow they began again and endured till the evening: and thus they fought he dayes. Using Priamus had great sorrow that Achilles came to the battel against his promise, and thought he went about to deceive him, reproaching his Mise to believe him so lightly: Polixena grieved erceedingly, for the was then contented to have Achilles to her Dufband.

D

it

5,

to

H

DU

nd

the se.

nen

m a

mo,

Achilles during the fir months Truce, healed the wounds that Troylus gave him, and purpoled to be revenged on him. After thefe things, the nineteenth battel began with great flaughter, and before Achilles affembled his Myrmidons, and befree them only to inclose Troylus, and keep him till be came, who would not be far from them. They promifed him to bo fo : Then he thronged into the battel. And on the other fibe came Troylus. who flew many of the Greeks that about mid day he put them to flight: then the Myrmidons (being two thousand fighting men, and remembring their Lords command) thauft in among the Trojans and recovered the field. And they beld together and fought no man but Troylus, so they found him, who fought bas liantly, and was enclosed on all parts, but he flew and wounded many. And being alone among them, they flew his Borfe, and burt him in many places, plucking off his Belmet, pet he befend ed him the best he could. Withen Achilles fam Treylus unarmed. be ran upon him furioudy, and Imote off his head, and tok the body and bound it to his Hogles tail, and brew it after him. throughout the Hoft. D what Willamp was it to the Son of a noble Bing, that was fo valiant. If any noblenels had been in Achilles he would not have done it.

When Paris knew that Achilles had villainously stain Treylus, he had great sorrow, so had Encas and Polidamas, and they laboured to recover his body, but the Greeks resisted them, that they could not. Also King Menon was grieved for the death of Troylus, that he assailed Achilles, and said unto him: Tillian, what cruelty hath moved thee to bind to thy horsestail, the son of so noble a Prince as King Priamus? Then he ran and smoce him with his Spear on his break, that he gave him a wound, and after gave him to many strokes, that he beat him to the ground, then was the body of Troylus recovered. The Myrmidons remounted again Achilles, and as soon as his strength came to him, he returned into the battel, and encountered ling Menon, who befonded himself valiantly, and wounded Achilles in many places: but there came so many of both sides, that they parted then the night approached, which caused the battel to cease, and they fought thus for the space of feven dayes.

SH

The seventh day, when Achilles was healed of his wounds, be string to revenge him of Bing Menon, he said to his folk, if they might encounter him, they should enclose him as they did Troylus. Then began the battel, Achil'es and Menon fought toges ther, and beat down each other on foot. Then the Myrmidons enclosed him, and took him by force, who had no man to succour him. Then Achilles seeing king Menon in this danger, ran upon him, and slewhim: but Menon gave him many wounds herefore, whereof he say long after. Among these things, Menclaus and Mencheus with a great company of kings, Princes, and many Fighting men, thrust into the throng, and put many Trojans to slight, which entered into their City, with doing great mischief, forasmuch as the Greeks chaled them so nigh, that they seem and hurt many of them,

CHAP. XXIII.

How Paris by the perswasion of Hecuba his mother, slew Achilles and the Son of Duke Nestor, in the Temple of Apollo, and how Paris and Ajax slew each other in battel.

Et the death of Troylus, Bing Priamus and his Wife and Children and all the Citizens made great lamentation: freing they had loft Hector, Deiphobus, and Troylus, they had no more hope of their lives, Then Bing Priamus demanded Truce and it was agreed to by the Greeks: during which time, they buried the bodies of Troylus and Bing Menon honourably. The Ducen might not be appealed for the death of her Children and thought of many wayes, how the might be revenged on Achilles,

chilles, that had thus flain her Sons. Then the called Paris, and meeping, said to him secretly these words. Bear Son, thou knowest how this Traitor Achilles bath flain thy Brethren, the solace of my life. And because he bath siain them by treason, I think it just reward that he should fall in the same manner, and will tell these how it shall be done. The undappy man bath many times required me to have Polixena so, his Wise, and I have given to him good hope thereof, I have purposed to send to him the keeper of my signer, to bid him meet me in the Temple of Apollo, and I desire thee Son, to sye there in wait with a company of knights, and when he shall enter therein, ye may run upon him and slay him, and besure he escape not wich life. Paris made answer that he would do this thing, as she had devised, thereupon he assembled twenty knights, in whom he put much considence, and went sorth into the Temple of Apollo.

As foon as Achilles heard the Wellenger, that came from Queen Hecuba, the Fool being evil counselled, took with him the Son of Duke Nettor, and they went both to the Wemple, and as foon as they were come, Paris and his Buights ran upon bim; Paris caft at bim three Darts, wherewith be burt bim fore, Achilles bret bis Sword, and having no Armour, and wrapped bis arm wich bis Dantle, and Imote, and flew feben of them: But in the ent, Archilogus Son of Duke Neftor, and Achilles, mere both flain within the Temple : Paris commanded his boop thould be caft unto the hounds, but at the request of Helenus, thep were put in a place before the Temple, to be kept. And the Trojans had great top, and faid they had no care of the Greeks. miben Agamemnon knew he fent unto King Priamus, for to babe the bobies to bury them. Then Bing Priamus mabe them to be belibered, and they were boyn bown to their Tenes : then arole a great forrow among the Greeks, and faid, they had lot The Duke Neftor might not be comforted, for the beath of his Son. They made for Achilles a noble Sepuleure, which by the confent of Bing Priamus, was laid at the entry of the Bate of Tymbre.

After thefe things, the King affembled all the Bobles of the Boft, and hewed unto them, for the beath of Achilles, the most part were pilcouraged from the war, and therefore bemanded if it were good to leave the war or to continue it. Then there was among them divers opinions Tome allowed the war others blas med it, and at last they concluded all together, to maintain the war, laping : If Achilles failes, pet the promiles of the Goos mould never fail. Then flood up Ajax and faid: If Achilles be pead let us fend for his Son, whom Bing Nicomedes his Grands father nourisheth, and teacheth the feats of arms : for without him we can have no victory of the Trojans. His counsel feemed god, and by the agreement of every man, Menefteus was chofen to go fetch Neoptolemus, Son of Achilles, that was named os therwise Pyrrhus.

Among these things, when the Truce was expired, the Trojans began the twentieth battel against the Greeks, tharp and hard : this day went Ajax by great folly to batttel unarmed, and had nothing but his Sword.

The Trojans that had loft their best Defenders, were not for hardy as they used to be, but to lave their lives, they foughtua. liantly. Paris with the people of Perfe, who were and Archers, flew many Greeks, King Philomenus fought frengly and thep of Paphlagony came on, and flew many Greeks, that they made them recoyl. Menefteus Jufted against Polidamas, and hab tas ken og flain him, had not ting Philomenus belibered him, Ajax thus unarmed as he was, flew many Trojans, and was not pet hurt. In the end be Imote among them of Perfe that Paris led, and flew fo many, that he put them to flight. Withen Paris law his people flain, he thot an enbenomed Arrow to Ajax and wounded him between the back and the five : when Ajax felt himfelf wounded to beath, he would not peilo to ope till he had revenced him on him that flew him : and bid when be found Paris, be faio unto bim, Thou halt flain me with thine Arrow, but before I ove I will be rebenged. For by thee and for the caufe, many Poblemen habe been flain. Then be gabe bima freke, that he cut in two his face, and he fell bead to the earth : and Ajax after him. Then the Trojans took the boop of Paris with weeping tears, and carried it unto the City, and were chafed to the Gates. The night following Agamemnon mabe the Bolt .a. 101

to approach near to the City, and there to pitch their Tents. And the Trojans kept their Malls day and night. Then had the Trojans no more hope of their lives, when they faw all the Sons of Ming Primus dead: there is no tongue can express the lamenstations that Hing Primus made with his wife and daughters: and above all others, Tucen Helen made the greatest. The Ling did bury Paris in a rich Sepulture, and set it honourably in the Temple of Juno.

CHAP. XXIV. .

How Queen Penthefile a came from Amazon with a thousand Maidens, to the succour of Troy, and flew many Greeks, and after was flain by Pyrebus the Son of Achilles.

During two months together, the Gates of Troy were not opened, the Trojons did nothing but go into the City and lamented. Bing Agamemnon fent oftentimes unto Ling Priamus, that he hould fend his men to battel: but Ling Priamus fearing his destruction would not do it; because he waited for the Queen of Amazon, that was on her way to come to the success of him.

Amazon is a Wovince, where dwelled none but women, that were brought up to war. They had nigh their Country an 3de where men dwelt, and they were accustomed three times a year to go thither : in April, May and June, to have their company: after they returned into Amazon and they that conceived, if they were sons, they gave them fuck for a time, after fent them to their Fathers. If it were a Daughter they kept it, and burnt off the right pap, to bear a fpear the better, and taught her the feats of Arms. Df this Province, a noble and baliant Wirgin was Queen, who was called Penthafiles, and the loved Hector for his good Kenown. Withen the knew that the Greeks had befreges Troy, the went to fuccour it with a thouland Wirgins for the love of Hector. Withen the came and knew that he was bead, the made great forrow : and befired Bing Priamus to let ber iffue out upon the Greeks, that the might few them bow her Baidens. could bear Arms.

at the request of Penthesiles, the next morning the Gate was fet open, and there iffned out Bing Philomenus, with them of Paphlagonic, Eneas, Polidamas, with their people, and Duen Penthelilea with ber Baibens. The Greeks being ready, began the Battel fiercely. Menefleus abbreffet bim to Penthefiles, and the in like manner to him : the Imote Menefleus to the ground. took his Boile, and gave him unto one of her Baidens. Then came Dyomed's against ber, the Imote him fo frongly, that he turned un fibe bown, and the took his thield from his neck, and belivered it to one of her maibens. When Thelamon fam ber to luch brave beede, he encountred with her fiercely, and Thelamon was born to the ground, and the had led him into the City, but that Dyomedes came to his refeue with great befence, then the called to her Paidens, who Imote amongst the Greeks, fo fiercely, that the and they put them to flight, they chafed them unto their Ments, and hab flain them all, if Dyomedes hab not fourly refilled, who maintained the skirmif unto the night, that parted them. Queen Penthefika returned into the City with glozy and honour : where Bing Priames received her with toy, and gave her many rich jewels, and be hoped the would rebenge bim of his enemics. They fought thus many times afterwards. Meneficus returned from thing Nicomedes, and brought Neoptolemus the Son of Achilles otherwife named Phyrrus.

This Phyrius was received with great glozy, by all the Farrons of the Hoft: and the Mormidons rejoyced erceedingly, and held him for their Lozd. Then was delivered to Pyrrhus, the conduct of the men, and king Thelamon knighted him, praying the Gods to give him strength, and courage in guiding of his Sword, and that they would strengthen him to revenge the death of his Father: then two Princes let on the Spurs of Gold, and king Agamemnon gave him the arms of Achilles his Father, and all his other precious Pearls and Jewels: and for this new knight and Feast of Chibalry, the Greeks made many days great gladnels.

After these things came the day of battel, and they prepared themselves on both sides. Then began the battel, Pyrrhus being armed with proper arms of his Father, encounted Po-

lidamas,

Adamas in his comin g, and had flain him with the great frokes of his Sword, but that king Philomenus belivered him : then Pyrrhus Imote from off his Boile Philomenus, and had led him away, had not they of Paphlagonie rescued him. Among these, Queen Penthefilea entred the battel with ber Baibens, and fie Imote among the Myrmidons and flew many of them. Then came Bing Thelamon, who fmote Penthetilea to the ground, and the gave him a ftroke with ber Sword, that the beat bim bown, and then ber Baibens relieved ber, and fet ber again on Bosleback, the Imote among the Myrmidons, that helo Bing Philomenus in great banger, and the flew many of them. When Pyrrhus fam bis men evil entreated, he cryed unto them, and faid they migh be ashamed to suffer themselves to be banquished by momen : then he left king Philomenus to befend his men from the Paios. Then Ducen Penthefi'ea Drew nigh to Pyrrhus, and reproached bim because his father had flain Hector, and faid. the morly ought to pefpife him. Pyrrhus had fo great forzom at her words, that he addreffed him againft ber, and the beat him to the earth: then he arole again and affailed Penthefiles with his Smort, and the him by great frength : then Pyrrhus was again remounted by the aid of his Myrmidons. Then came the battel Agamemnon, Dyomedes, Menelaus, and Menesteus, and all the other Winces and Warons.

Among these things, king Philomenus was belivered sate from the Myrmidons, and he gave great thanks unto Nucen Penthesilea, and said, had not the been he had been sain. Then came all the Trojans and the skirmish was sharp and mortal: Pyrshus encountred Glaucon the Son of Anthenor, and Brother of Polidamas by another mother, and gave him a stocke, that he fell vead to the earth. Then addressed Penthesilea unto Pyrshus, and he to ber, and beat down each other to the earth: but they were quickly remounted and began to sight again. Then came people on both parts, that they were parted. Polidamas (so to revenge the beath of his Brother) sew that day many of the Greeks, and hurt them, and did so much in arms, both he and Queen Penthesilea, that they put the Greeks to sight. Then came to the rescue Pyrshus, Dyomedes, and Thelamon, and made them that fled, to flay till night, that each man went into his place: they fought thus a month together, in which time were flain more than ten thousand of both parties, and Penthaliles lost many of her maidens. When they had rested a Month, they began the bats

tel again.

In this battel Pyrrhus and Penthafilea met, and brake their Spears without falling, but Pyrrhus was fo burt, that the trung theon of her Spear above within his body : wherefore the cry arose among the Greeks, and they ran upon Penthasilea mith areat frenath, and brake off the lace of her Belmet : then Pyrrhus, taking no beed to his wound affailed Penthalilea, who thought to have Imitten him, but Pyrrhus prevented ber, and cabe her a froke with his Sword, that he cut her arm off by the boby, whereat Duen Penthafilea fell bead to the ground : and Pyrrhus that was not pet fatisfied, Imote the body, and cut it in two veices: with the great effusion of blod, that ran from his mound he fell down as bead among his veorle, and they took him up and laib him upon his Shield, and carried him to his Went. Then the Maidens of Penthalilea, to revence the Death of their Queen, fmote amongit the Myrmidons, and few many of them: but it could not much profit the Trojans, as they that were but a fem against a great multitude of Greeks. There were flain by the Trojans at the day of the battel, more than ten thouland, and withozew themfelves into the City for their own lafeguard, and thut fast their Bates, and has no more intention to iffue out in battel againft their enemies.

CHAP. XXV.

How Anthenor and Eneas consulted together to deliver the City unto the Greeks by Tresson, and did it under colour of peace: and how King Priamus withstood them, with some of his Baftards, by great and rude words,

Mw the Trojans had great forcow, when they faw they had no more hope to have any fuccours from any place, and they endeavoured nothing, but to keep their City, and to furnish them well with viduals: for they feared not any affault. Among these thefe things, the Greeks would have cast to the dogs the body of Penthesilea, foralmuch as the had fain so many Roble men of Greece, but Pyrrhus would not for the honour of nobleness: six nally they concluded, that they would cast it in a pond that was nigh the City. Anchises with his Son Polidamas, went to counsil, to advice them, how they might have their lives saved as aginst the Greeks, and their gods, and rather than fail they would betrap the City.

Then they concluded to fpeak unto ling Priamus and gibe bim countel to make a peace with the Greks in reftozing of Duen Helen to ber Dusband, and the bamage that Paris old in the 3de of Citharis. Db, if the Bing Priamus had been fo happy to have bone this, and have pleafed the Greeks at the beginning, be had labed bis own life, bis Witbes, and Children, Cirp,and Citizens, and efchemed all those milcheifs that befel them afe terwards. Therefore men fay in a prober b. That peace fon taken is god, for it is a bard thing to appeale luch bamages to bim that bath abbantage of the mar. for with great pain would the Greeks babe been content with thefe offers, forafmuch as they had fuffered as many bamages before Troy, tor it fremen they were at the point to bestroy the City and all the Inhabis tants. But thefe afore named Araitors (pake, but to the end that under colour of peace, they might betray the City: if otherwife they might not fave their libes.

Then they went before king Priamus and Amphimacus (one of his Baltard Sons) and spake before many Moble men of the City: and as king Priamus heard them speak of purchasing peace with the Greeks, he thought they spake this thing by great fury, and began to laugh: saying, that he would be adviced first then they spake unto him in this manner: If thou will hear our counsel upon this thing, if it please thee not, use the counsel of others. The king said he would hear their counsel, and topula

Do what feemeb gob.

Then spake Anthenor, saying: King, you may well dissemble, but that you and yours be compassed with your enemies, who be here by your City desiring your destruction, and ye may not issue out: there are more than sitey Kings beste nothing but to de-

ffrom

Arop this City, and you, and all that dwell therein: pe may no longer result them, neither date pe any more set open your gates, and thus to let us be inclosed herein. The ought of two evils to thuse the less: therefore for to have peace with the Greeks, if ye from good, we will render Helen to Manelaus her Husband lince that Paris is dead; and also restore the damages that Paris bid to them in Greece, rather than we will be put to death, &c.

At these words arose up An phimacus, one of the Fastard Sons of Ling Priamus, and reproved eagerly the words of Anthonor, and said to him: What trust map my 102d, and Anthonor, and said to him: What trust map my 102d, and Anthonor, and we have in thee, since thou oughtest to have good will unto him, and to this City, and we see the thus recant, thou oughtest to live and one with us: and thou counsellest, us to make peace with the Grocks to mer hames Trusy, before the thing shall bothis, there said one twenty thousand men; the thing that thou countetted the hing comes hof Areafon.

Sany other meros fait Amphimacus to Anthenor : and Eneas began tointerrupt bim, faying : pe know well that from benceforth we may not go to hattel againgt the Greeks, and me Dare un mort open our Betes, Aberefore ie beboberh us to find mebnisto babe meace wirh them. Then Bing Priso us with great ice fait to Anthenor and Arras : Dave ve not hame in pour felucs to freak to me ? We make me ove with forrow; for all that I have bone hicherto | 3 have Done it by your countel. Anthenor, at thy return from, Greece, whither & fent thee to res duire my Softer counfelledit thou not me that & found fend Parisited Gmeccato enbantage the Greeker and 3 bab never tas hen mon me to have moved war against them, had not the falle counfel been, which meved me to fend thicher, And thou Eneas, alas when I fent thee with Paris into Greece, walt not thou mineipal of the Counfet that Paris foula rabith, Helen, and minmber intachis Bealm, and thou helpedit chereco with thy perfon : If thou woulded have been but contrary thereto, Helen had never feen the walls of Froys And now after this they bave Bain all mp Children and done me fo much hurt, not pe counfel me f againft honour) to make peace with the Greeks ? Surely, your countelatinitheth my lite with great farzow and Ωt Diffenour.

At thefe words was Encas erceeding wroth, and anfwered the Bing tharply, and be and Anthenor Departed from the Bing es vil content. When they were gone, the wing began to were as he that preaper they would beliver the City into the bands of the Greeks which would flay him. Then be thought that he would make them bre firft, and called to him Amphimacus, and laid unto him : Dear Don, 3 am thy Father, we ought to luppost each other unto the Death. 3 know certainly, that Anthenor and Eneas intend to flap us by the Greeks, and beliber to them this City: therefore it Goulo not be ill to make them fallings the nit that they babe made ready, before they bo fuch ebil and I will tell thee in what manner: To morzow at even they will come to take countel, then thou halt be ambufbed bere within. and thou thatt have with thee good Bnights, and when they be come in thou halt run upon them and flay them. Amphimaeus made anfluer, and faid be would to fo with a good will; albeit there were no more affembled at this countil but the Bing and his bon ; vet there is nothing to fetret but otherwhile is known. Eneas knew the truth of this thing, and it was not known by mbom he knew it:anon he and Anthenor and fome other of their complices, fooke concerning the Wreaton of the City, and they Emore each to other: then they fait, if they went any inviero couns cil to the Bing, they would go with a great company of men of Arms : for Eneas was of the most noble of Troy, and most rich nert to the bing, and Anthenor was also rich, and had great friends in the City : and their treason was this, that they mould deliver the City uncotheir enemies : fo as they and all their Lis neage thould have their lives and roods faved, thereof they tok good furety of the Greeks. ife mai

Among these things king Priamus sent so, Anthenor and Eneas to counsel, to perform the thing he had promised, but they came with a great company of men of Arms: therefore the k. sent to Amphimacus that he should leave off his enterprize. The day following, the King sent so all the Trojans to counsel, and when they were assembled before him, Eneas Good up and willed them to make peace with the Greeks: to whom all the other agreed save the King; then Eneas said to him, Sir

Bing, wherefore boest not thou consent with the other, so, whee ther thou will or not, we will treat for peace, and will make it in despight of thee. When the king saw this his contradiction could not avail, he had rather consent with the other, than be the cause of his destruction, and said to Eneas, Let it be done that it may be most expedient to the peace. Then by the counsel of them all, Anthenor was chosen to go to the Greeks, to treat for peace: the Trojans took branches of palm in sign of peace, and went upon the walls of the City, and showed the sign to the Greeks, which showed well that they would encline to peace. Then was Anthenor let down from the walls, and brought before Agameranon. Agamemnon commised all the work to the King of Creet, Dyomedes, and Ulisses, that whatsoever these three Princes should decree with Anthenor, all the Post promised to accomplish.

Milen they were assembled, Anthenor replenished with sury, promised to deliver the City by treason, to do with it their will and pleasure, so they would save him, Eneas and all their Dascentage, and all them that he would chuse, that Eneas should have all his possessions without any loss. These three Kings swore to perform it: then said one to the other. This must be kept secrettill it be brought about: and to keep this treason more secret, Anthenor descretthe Greeks, to let King Cassilius an antient man, go with him to Troy, to the intent he might be the better besieved: and Anthenor demanded the body of Penthesistan.

and it was belibered to him.

After these things Anthenor and Bing Cassiius entred the City and made their coming known to the King. On the most row king Priamus assembled all the Trojans, to hear the answer of Anthenor, who said to the king otherwise than it was, using god words to cover his treason. He spake long of the puiss fance of the Greeks, and of their truth in their promises, and have they had believe the Aruce that they made, lying before the City, and had been sathfally governed, without breaking of them: after spake of the Trobleness of the Trojans, and of the dangers they were in then concluded, that it were profitable to such peace, and that they were come thereto: and said, that it could not be unless they gave a quantity of gold and filter to the Greeks, to reffere to them the great damages that they had in the war. After they addiced the King and the other to employ themselves in this thing. Forasmuch (Isid Anthenor) as I can not know all their will at this time, I would have ye let Eneas go with me unto them to know more, to the end, that they bestieve us the better. Every man allowed the words of Anthenor: and so went he and Eneas to the Greeks, and the King Cashlius with them.

When the counted was finished, Bing Priamus entred into his Chamber and began to weep grievously as he that perceived well the treason, and complained soze of the death of his Sons; and that worse, he must buy his peace of them that had done him all this hurt, and give them all the treasure he had in long time gathered together, and become poor in his old dayes, and yet not sure of his life, but must needs do the will of them that betray him. On the other, side when Helen knew Anthenor should go to the Greeks, she prayed him that he would make her peace with Menelaus her Dusband, and that he would take pity onher; and he promifed her that he would bo to his nower.

Tahen Eness and Anthenor were come into the Holl of the Greeks, they created of their Treason, with the three Kings: and there they made peace for Helen, and took good surety. After their communication, the Greeks ordained that Dyomedes and Ulisses should go with them. There was great for when they heard of their coming into the City, thinking the Trojons had the peace they so much desired. On the morrow by the commandment of King Priamus, all the Trojans were assembled at his Palace, then spake Ulisses, saying unto them, that the Greeks demanded two things, to wit, restitution of the damages, also they required that Amphimacus should be banished sor ever out of Troy, (this purchased Anthenor sor Amphimacus, sorale much as he had contrarted him before.) They have great peril is it to speak lightly in time of perturbation and sedition

As they were all affembled in Parliament they heard a marbellous cry: at that Dyomedes and Uliffes were in great fear, that the people would have flain them: then the other fain they would take these two kings in the stead of Amphimacus, to the intent, that he should not be banished, yet there could no man know from whence this noise-came, therefore they departed.

every man to his place.

An henor biem apart Dyomedes and Uliffes, to fueak of their evil practices. Then fair Uliffes why tarrieft thou fo long, and Delayeft to bo that thou haft promifed ? Anthenor answered, the Coos oo know, that Eness and I intend no other thing, but to bo what we have promifed to you, but there is a thing that hindreth us, and I will tell you what it is. Certainly when the Bing founded firft the Walace of Illion in this City, be established in the name of Pallas a great Temple, and when it was all mabe ready faving the Mower a marvellous thing befrended from the Deapens, and fluck in the wall of the Temple within the great Alear, and it hach been there until this time, and none may bear it away fave they that keep it: the matter is of tree or of moot. but there is no man knoweth of what wood not how it is made: but the Cobbels Pallas, that fent it thicher, and gabe to this thing a great bertue, that is , that as long as this thing hall be within the Temple, the Trojans cannot lofe their City Ring not Beits and this is the thing that holdeth the Trojans in fee And this thing bath to name Palladium, fozalmuch es the Bobbels Pallas hath fent it. Then faib Dyomedes, if this thing be of fuch vertue as thou fpeakel, we bo but lofe our labour .

Then said Anthenor, I have but late spoken to the Priest that keepeth it, to the end that he may deliver it by sealth: and I have sure trust that he will deliver it me so; a great sum of gold that I have promised him: as soon as I have it, I will send it out of the City to you: and then we shall perform that which we have promised, and ere you go hence, so; to cover our work, I will go unto king Priamus, and will tell him, that I have spoke long to you, to know what quantity of gold you demand: and it was so effected as Anthenor had determined.

CHAP. XXVI.

How the Traitor Anthewer bought of the Priest the Palladium, and gave it to Vlisses: and of the Horse of Brass, that was by the Greeks brought to the Temple of Pallas being full of men of arms: and how the City of Troy was taken and burnt, and the King Priamus slain, &c.

Men Dyomedes and Ulisses were returned into their host, Anthenor went unto king Priamus, and said, that her should assemble his folk to councel: so, to come to their peace with the Greeks, they must needs pay twenty thousand marks of gold, and that in good weight, and as much in silver, also an hundled thousand quarters of wheat: and this must be made ready within a certain time, then they will give surery to hold the peace without any fraud og fubtilep.

Then it was ordained how this sum should be levied: and whiles they were busie thereadouts, Anchenor went unto the Price that kept the Priladium, whose name was Thomas, and bare to him a great quantity of gold, there were they at council. Anthenor said to him, that he should take this sum of gold, wherewith he should be rich all his life, and that he should give to him the Palladium, and that no man should know thereof: for I have (said he) as much dread as thou, that any man should know thereof. And I will send it to Ulisses, and he shall bear the brame upon him, and every man shall say, that Ulisses hath solution we shall be both quiethereof.

Thoant the Priest resisted strongly the words of Anthenor? but so, covetoulness of the great sum of gold, he consented be should take the Palladium and bear ir away. Then Anthenon took it, and sensite to Ulisses the same night, and after the voice ran among the people, that Ulisses by his substity had stolk away the Palladium out of Troys. D what treason was this of a Priest of that loved better to betray his City, than leavethe gold that was given him? surely it is a foul vice in a Priest therein of covetousness; but sew have been before this time, and sew are yet, but, they be attained therewith, whereof it is great pity fince that avarice is the mother of all vices.

Millit the Trojans gathered together their gold and filver and brought it into the Temple of Minery, to keep until the time that it was all collected, it pleased them to offer Sacrifice unto their God Apollo; and when they had flain many Beafts for their folemn Sacrifice, and put them upon the Altar, and fet fire unto them for to burn them, it happened there came two unexpected markets.

The first was, that the fire would not burn, for they began to make their fire more than ten times, and always it quenched.

The fecond marvel was, when they had appointed the entrals of the Beats for their facrifice, a great Cagle befrended from the air crying greatly, and tok with his clawes the entrals, and bare them into the thips of the Greeks.

De these two things were the Trojans troubled, and said that the Bods were angry with them. Then bemanded they of Casandra, what these things signified? She said that the Bod Apollo was worth with them, for the essuling of the blod of Achilles where withat his Temple was desiled and violated: and ye must go fetch fire at the Sepulture of Achilles, and sight your Sacrifice therewith, then it will quench no more: and they did so, and the Sacrifice burnt clear: For the second miracle, the said, so, certain, treason was made of the City with the Greeks. When the Greeks heard of these miracles, they demanded of Chalca: what it might signifie: he made answer, That the City would thortly be yielded up.

Amongst these things, Chalcas and Criss the Priest countels ted the Greeks that they should make a Borle of Brais so great, as might hold within it a thousand knights: and they said unsto them, that it was the pleasure of the Gods. This Borle was made by one whose name was Sinon, and he made it subtilely, that no man could perceive any entry of Mue, but within it was easte for them that were enclosed to Mue out when they would.

Withen the great Horle was fully made, and the thouland buighes therein, by the countel of Crifis, they prayed king Priamus, he would lufter this Horle to enter into the City, that it might be let in the Temple of Palls, foralmuch as that they hav mave it in the honour of Pallas, for a bow that they made for reflicution of the Palladium, which they had caused to be tas

ken out of the fame Temple.

Among these things the Princes within Troy, when they saw that the king had so hamefully treated with the Greeks, they went away out of Troy, and took their men with them, and king Philomenus led no more but two hundred and fifty men, and threescore Paidens of Amazon's, that were left of a thousand that came thicher with the Duwn Pentheska, and carried the tosdy of her with them, and travelled to their own country.

Then came the say that the Greeks hould swear their peace feignedly upon the plain field upon the Sanduaries. King Priamus issued out of the City and his people, and sware each party to hold the peace firmly from thenceforth: and Dyomedes sware first to the Greeks: after, when they had broken the peace they had treated with Anthenor of that thing, they concluded after, therefore they maintained they were not forsward by that costour, as the proverb saith, He that sweareth by decit, by malice forsweareth himself. After that Dyomedes, sware likewise all the Kings and Priamus of Greece, then King Priamus and the Trojans swore in good saith, as they that knew nothing of the treason: after their oaths thus made, King Priamus delivered Helen to Menelaus her Husband, and prayed him and other Kings and Princes of Greece, that they would do her no harm, but pardon her, and they promised him seignedly they would.

Then prayed the Greeks, that they might fet the Porle of brais within the Temple of Pallas, for restitution of the Palladium, that the Boddels of Pallas might be to them friendly, in their resturn. And as the King Priamus answered not thereto, Encas and Anthenor said to him, it should be well done, and that it should be an honour to the City. Howbeit King Priamus accorded it with evil will. Then the Greeks received the gold and filter, and the wheat that was promifed, and put into their Ships.

After these things, they went all in Devotion with their Priests and began with strength of Cords, to draw the Porse of Brass before the gate of the City, foralmuch as by the Gate it might not enter into the City, it was so great: therefore they brake the wall in length and height, that it entred in the town and the Trojans received it with great joy; but the custom of Fortune is, great joy endeth with heavinels. The Trojans made foy of this Porle, wherein was inclosed their death, and they know not of it. In this Porle was a lubtil man named Sipon, that bare the keys of the Porle to open it. When the Trojans were assepting the night, forthwich they issued out of the Porle, and gave a token of fire to them that were in the sields, that they

2

Mould come into the City to put it all to beffruction.

The same day the Greeks seigned to go unto Tenedon, and said they would receive Helen and set her in safety, because the people should not run upon her, so, the great evits that were done so, her; thus they departed from the Port of Troy with their Sail drawn up, and came before the Suns going down to Tenedon. Then had the Trojans great soy when they saw the Greeks depart: and the Greeks as soon as they were come to Tenedon, armed them in the evening, and went privily towards Troy, And when the Trojans went to bed, then Sinon opened the Porte, and went out and lighted this sire, and shewed to them that were without, and without, delay, they that were said in wait, entred into the City by the gate that was broken. And the Unights issued out, and they sew the Trojans in their houses where they sent.

Thus entred the Greeks into the City, and flew men and women and children, and tok all that they found in their houses, and flew above twenty thousand ere it was day, They robbed the Temples, and the cry arose hourible. When King Priamus heard the cry, (he knew that Eneas and Anchenor had betrayed him) he arose hastily and went into his Temple of Apollo, that was within his Palace, and kneeled before his high altar. Cassandra fled on the other side, as one out of her wits, into the Temple of Minerva, weeping with great sozrow: and the other Roble woo men abode ftill in the Palace in weeping and tears.

When the mouning came, the Greeks (by the conduct of Eneas and Anthenor that were open Braitous to their City, also to their Bing, entred into the Palace of Illion, where they found no defence, and put all to death that they found. Then Pyrrhus entreb.

entred the Memple of Apollo, and found there Bing Priamus : then be ran uvon bim with a naked (word (in fight of Encas and Anthenor) he flew there Bing Priamus before the bigh Allar. which was fprinkled with his blod. Queen Hecuba and Polixena fled, and knew not whither to go : and it happened, that the met with Encas, and then the faid to him in great furp : Ba, ba, Felon. Eraitoz, from whence is come to thee fo great cructey, that thou haft brought them with thee that have flain Ding Priamus, that bath bone to thee fo much goo, and fet thee in mage nificence, also half betrayed the country where thou wert boan, and the City that thou oughteft to kep: at the leaft let it fuffice and refrain thee now of thy intent, and have vity on this unhave py Polixena, that among to many evils as thou half bone, thon mayelt have grace to be one good beed, for to lave her from beath before the Greeks flay ber. Eneas (mobed with pity) received Polixena in his quard, and conveyed ber into a fecret place.

Among these things king Thelamon set in the Temple of Minerva in keeping Andromeda, the wife of Hector and Cassandra, and set the City on fire in all places, and hurnt it all except only the houses of the Traitors. When the City of Troy was all burnt, king Agamounch assembled the most noble of Greece in the Temple of Minerva! and when they were all alsembled, he required them two things: one was, that they should keep their promise with the Traitors: the other, that they should take god advice to part the prey of the City.

The answer of the Greeks was. That they would hold their faith with the Traitozs, so; the first point: and so; the second, every man should bring all the prey in common, and there part to each man after his desert. Then Thelamon said they should burn Helen, so; whom so many worthy brings and Princes had died. And there was a great murmure thereupon, that Agamemnon, Ulisses and Menelaus, had much a do to save her. Fut Ulisses with his fair speech said to them so much of divers things, that they were content Helen should have no harm. Then Agamemnon did so much to all the other, that so, his reward, Cassandra the Daughter of Jing Priamus was delivered unto him. Whilst that the Greeks held yet their Par liament, there came tame to them Eneas and Anthenor, and advertised them hom Helenus had alwayes blamed the Trojans of the enterprize that they made against the Greeks, and counselled them to put the body of Achilles in a Sepulture, which they would have given to the Bounds, and belought them therefore they would save his life, and they accorded to them. And then Andromeda and Helenus intreated for the two Sons of Hector, which were saved.

After this upzoar, they ozdained, that all the noble women that were escaped from death, should go whither they would fræly, ozdwell there kill if it pleased them. And after these things done, they purposed to depart from Troy: but a great Tempes began to artie, that endured a whole month before they could go to Sea. Then the Greeks asked of Chalcas the cause of this trouble; and he answered, that the puissances Infernal were not pet appealed for the effusion of the blood of Achilles, that was shed in the Temple, for the love of Polixena: and to appeale the Goog it behoveth to sacrifice Polixena, for whom Achilles dyed

Then Pyrrhus enquired diligently where Polikena was, that was cause of his Fathers death? Agamemnon demanded of Antheror: which said he knew not where the was, whereof he lyed not: pet so, to make an end of all edils, he enquired so much, that Polixena was found in an ancient Tower; then he went and drew her out by soice, and presented her unto King Agamemnon, which sent her to Pyrrhus, he sent her to the Sepulture of Achilles to be sain: and as they led her, there was no Kingnor Prince but had great sorrow, to see so fair a woman soft, without she had deserbed it, and they had desivered her; if Chalcas had not said, the Tempest, would not cease until she were dead.

When Polixena was before the Sepulture of Achilles, the excused her of the death of Achilles, and laid that the was much forer for his death, and the Kings and Princes of Greece suffered her to dee against Justice, pet the had rather dee then live with them that had flain all her friends. When the had finished her words, Pyhrrus smote her with his Sword, (in the fight of the Queen her mother) and cut her in peices, and cast them all about the Sepulture. When Hecuba saw her daughter slain, he fell in a fwound, and after went out of her wir, and affailed with her teeth and nails all the might come by, and hurt many of the Greeks. Then they took her by force, and led her into an Ide, and flowed her to death. Thus the Duen Hecuba ended her life, and the Greeks made for her a noble Sepulture, which Sepulture appeareth yet in the same Ide to this day.

CHAP XXVII.

Of the differtion that was moved because of the Palladium, between Thelamon and Ulisses: and how Eneas and Anthenor were exiled out of Troy: and how the Greeks returned, and of their adventures.

A 7 Wiles the Greeks fejourned at Troy, and could not des. part for the great Tempett after they had beftroped the City, Bing Thelamon mabe bis quarrel before Bing Agamemnon for the Palladium that Uliffes had, faving, that he had not fo well beferbed it as he had bone, that be had fo many times Succoured the Boll with vidual," and allo had befended it by his great promets : whereas the Boft of the Greeks had been in Dans mer to have been loft, had not be been;and fait, be had flain Bing Polimneftor, and after flew Polidorus, and brought a great treafure be found, to the Boft of the Greeks. Allo be had flain the Bing of Frigie, and brought his goods to the Boff, and als lebred then that be had gotten many Realms to the Seigniogy of Greece, and many other valiances be had done to the bonour of the Greks; and fais mozeover, that Uliffes had no promels, but only fubriley, and fair fpeaking to occeive men, and by him we have gotten great thame, that where we might have banquifted the Trojans by Arms, now we have banquifted them by peccit and fallhood.

To these words answered ulisses, That by his valour and wit the Trojans were vanquished: and if he had not been, the Trojans had been yet in glozy in the City. And said to Thelamon, Surely the Palladium was never conquered by your prowess, but by my wit: and the Greeks knew not what it was: and I knew that Troy could not be taken as long as it was in the same. I went secretly into the City, and did so much that it was delivered unto me, and after we took the City. To this anfweren The amon futurioully, and Ulifes to him in like manner, that they became mortal enemies each to other: Thelamon menacen Uliffes unto beath openly : Det after this matter was well bile cuffed, Agamemnon and Menelaus funged that Uliffes thoula keep the Palladium : (fome laid they made this judgment, fors almuch as Uliffes by his fair fpeaking had faved Helen from beath, that Thelamon would have had bead.) And with this subament they could not be content, for the greatest part of the Doff fait, that Thelamon ought better to have the Palladium than Ul. ffes : therefore Thelamon fpake to Agamemnon and Menelaus many injurious woods, and faid, that he would be their mortal enemy from thenceforth. For this caufe Agamemnon. Menelaus, and Uliffes, kept all three together, and had alway with them a areat company of valiant linights. And on the moze row after, early in the morning, Thelimon was found flain in his bed, and had wounds in many places of his body, whereof as rofe a great cry in the Doft, and gave all the blame to the three Lings before rehearfed.

Pyirhus that loved King Thelamon, said many injurious words to Ulisses: Then Ulisses doubted, and the next night following he and his men entred into their Ships secretly and left the Palladium with his friend Dyomedes. Pyrrhus did cause to burn the body of Thelamon, and put the askes in a vessel of gold, to carry with him into his own country, to bury it honourably. The hate was great between Pyrrhus and King Agamemnon, and his brother: but Anthenor made the peace, and after gave a dinner to all the Robles of Greece, and gave them sair wifts.

Among these things, the Greeks reproached Eneas, that had fallisted his oath, because he hid Polixena: for this cause they banished him out of Troy sor ever. And when Eneas saw he might not abide there, he prayed them earnessly that he might have the two and twenty ships which Paris had with him into Greece, and they granted to him his request, and gave him sour months space to surnish them of all such necessaries that they lacked. Anthenor departed after from Troy, and led with him a great number of Trojans: but the History telleth not whicher

the would go. Eneas greatly bated Anthener, forafmittch as by him he was banished out of Troy: and was in great forrow why Anthenor was not as well banished as he. for this cause Eneas affembled all the Trojans and faid to them: By friends and bace thren, fince that fortune bath put us wherein we be, we cannot live without a Cobernour : and if we will bo by my counfel. ve thall chufe Anthenor, your Ling, for le is wife enough to go= This counsel seemed good to the Trojans, and thep fent after Ant ener, that returnet: and as foon as he was come. Encas affembleda great number of people to run upon bim, as he that was the most mighty in Tr.v. Then the Troins prayed him that he hould ceale, fince that the war was finished and that be Mould not begin it again. (Daid Eneas) thall we fpare fo hais nous a Traitor, that by his villany bath caused Polixera the fair Daughter of King Priamus to buc, by him I was banifico out of Troy, that thould have counfelled you : and now I must needs leave you? Encas fait fo much to the Trojans, that they banished Anthenor for ever out of Troy, and constrained him to do prefently out of the Town.

Anthenor went unto Sea with a great company of Tr jans, and fell among Pyrates, who ran upon him and flew many of his men, and hurt and robbed his Ships: in the end Anthenor escaped from them, and sailed so far that he arrived in a Problem to named Gerbandy, whereof Terides was Lord and King, a just man and a courteous. In this Land arrived Anthenor with a sew flips, and resed on the side of the greater Ile, that was nigh unto the Port. He saw the Country fair, full of woods and fountains, and there he builded a City, and sortified it with Malls and good Nowers. And when the Trojans knew thereof, many went thither and dwelt there with Anthenor, and the City grew and was full of people, and Anthenor governed hims self so wifely in this Land, that he was in grace with Ling Tetides, and was the second person after the King in his Kealm, and named his City Cortiremetralum,

Caffindra that was left at Troy, had much forrow for the mischeis that were fallen to her friends: and ceased not to weep: and the Greeks demanded of her their estate in their resturning.

turning home: the faive othem, that they thouse suffer many great perils ere they got into their Country: and after faive Agamemnon, They of his own house thoulo kill him. So it happened to him after, and to all the other, like as Cassandra had sozestold. Of King Thelamon were test two Sons of two Musens, the elvest named Hermicides of the Nucen Glausta: and the other of the Nucen Thimiss, had to name Anchystas, these two Children Ling Teuter nourished till they were able to bear Arms.

Amena thele things, Agamemnon and Menelaus Demanded Teabe to return into their Lands : and the most part of the Dost mabe them leave, being fore vered, foralmuch as they had bein Sulpeded of the beath of Thelamon with tiliffes, which was foln away like a theif, wherefore it thewed that he was culvas ble of his beath. Thus thefe two Brethren went to Sea to return home, in the beginning of wincer, when the Sea is moft pangerous : foon after, the other Greeks went to Sea as folks evil adviced for the doubts of the Dea, and had their Ships all laden with riches of the Cicy of Tray : and for the befire they had to be at home in their awn Country, they returned back in the mioft of the winter, and fee apart all bangers which fell unto them. About the hour of noon came a great Tempet and furs prifed them lubbenly with thunder and rain, with wind and great maves: that caft their Ships bere and there: and bake their maffs, and rent their fails. And when night came, which was long and bark, the Ships left each other in failing before the wind fome in one place, tome in another, and many were burnt with Lightning and Thunder, and many funk in the bea : and the great riches of Troy loft. Oylus Ajax that had trit fhios in this company, had all perifhed and be himfelf by force of his arms and legs all naked Iwimming, arribed a land all Iwollen with the water he had brunken, and lay a great while upon the grabel, moje looking for beath than life : and after came others likewife, that were faved by fwimming. This mifcheif came to Ajax, foralmuch as he brem Caffandra out of the Temple of Minerva. And it happeneth oftetimes, that many be punifped for the fin and trefpals of one man. CHAP.

CHAP. IIXX.

How King Naulus and Cetus his Son did spoil many ships of the Greeks in their return, for the death of King Agamennan, and of the exile of Dyomedes, and of his calling back by Egee his wife.

A this time there was a king in Greece named Naulus, very rich and puillant, and his kealm find upon the five of the Sea of Greece toward the South. In the which Sea were high klocks, and many Hountains and Hills of land which were perillous. This king was Father of Palamedes that was kain before Troy, and had a Son named Courthere was not a kinight in Greece to rich nos fo puillant.

Rowthere were fome chil people there, that could not being cale without annoying of others, which mave bing Naulus and his Son Bing Cetus to unbertand, that Palamedes was not flain in battel, fo as the boice ran, but he was flain cobertly by Uliffes and Dyomedes, Agamempon and Menelaus had made and conceibed a falle Letter, wherein was contained that Palamedes mould have betraven the Bott of the Greeks, whiles be was Emperour of the Bott, for a great quantity of gold : and they made this Letter to be put by be fighe of a Enight that was flain. Then Bliffes treaten with one of the Secretaries of Palamedes, for a great fum of money, fuch as the Letters contained : this Secretary by the industion of Alliffes, put this fum of money under the beat of Palamedes, mules be flepe. And as foon as the Decretary laid to Uliffes he bad done : then Uliffes dew this Secretary paintly, and bid fo much that this Letter came into the bands of the Greeks, that read it, and were all as balbed when they law the treaton in writing, and the fum contained in the lame, laid unber bis bead. They went then in-to his Ment and found the cruth of this thing, and prefently they would have run upon Palamedes : but that he offeren himfelf to befend it against whomloever would prove it : fo there was none to barby that burft fight agains bim. Then by Uliffes siglait language, this thing was appealed ; and Palamedes continued Mill in bis bignity.

After this thing was appealed, Uliffes and Dyomedes told Palamedes, that they knew a pit wherein was much Treature, and that they would be foodlo have his wart : and go the next night following. Withen night was come they went all three without any more company, and offered Palamedes to go down into the nit first, and fair that they would follow : as fron as he was within, the other two caft fonce upon bim and fem him after recurned to their Tenes privity. This thing bone, thefe men charged withe Naulus and Cerus of the beath of Palamedes : Moen the Mind and his Son began carnefly to bethink them. how they might avence them of the Greeks. They knew well that the Greeks were upon teturn in the heart of the winter : and they must valy along by his Bingtom, then Bing Noulus Did proclaim in all his Realmithat men fouto make great fires every mabt ifport the Bountains by the Sea fibe. And this pin bes that when the Greeks though fee the fires, they thouto come thicker, thinking to find lome good Baben : and if they came they Mould find hard Rocks and Wills of fand. So they flouin not eleape without beath. It was thus bone as Naulus had bebis Ted to there were high two hundred thips of the Greeks Iplit and broken thainft the Bocks: all that were therein were browner. Wahen The other thins that followed them, heard the noise of Hem that were bisken, they returned on the other board, and mabe to Seas wator and favet themlelbes. Df them that ef rapes bere Aginecknon, Menelaus, and Dyon edes, and others tenicematine admit bereatiet! 20 17 manne de com that Agun eine de de ettaped i then he thought long how he might adding thinker. This when he thought long how he might adding thinker. This when he was arrived in his own land, he while a terfer of Agamemoon; and this wellest this airly; iballity tertain Agamemoon for huis south the ettain Agamemoon is and this wellest this airly; iballity tertain Agamemoon for huis south this ettain on the build south had ettained one of the Wanghiers of thing Product, and to him bounds hat the first one of the Wanghiers of think Product, and the bounds her thinkers on the best of the middle of the time product to the left. Clytomaches he were the the think and than ked the cost, and thought that the compile south the the cost of the Wanghiers of the Clytomaches he cost the Wanghiers Correction that he cappille south the feet of the Prustain which clytomaches he cost the Prustain who cape the the of the Prustain who cape the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the cost of the

moula

fence of her Husband loved a man named Egifius, by whom she had a Daughter named Erigona: the loved more Egiffus, than ever she did her Husband, though he was come of low blood. But it is the custom of a woman that both amils, to take unto her one of less value than her Husband is. She had treated with Egiffus, that the first night Agamemon should come and lye with her, he should run upon him and say him. This thing besing done as the purposed: King Agamemon sain, and said in the earth: Clytempetera shortly after, took to Husband her Love Egiftus Bing of Michmas.

Agomemnon thus flatu, hab a Son of this Clytemnestra nas men Horeftes, a poung Chilo, which Calfibus his Coufin hat in kerving, and tok him from his Bother, to the end the thould not flay : him and after fent him to the Bing of Creet, Idumeus, that was his Uncle. We had great joy of him, to had his wife Tharafis allo, that loved bim as much as Clytemneftra her baughs ter, that had no moze. Children but her, the was a fair young Baib. Thus as Cetus had waitten to Clytemnestra the wife of Agamemnon, in like manner he wrote to the wife of Dyomedes, named Egee, who was Daughter to Ming Polimites of Arfimens, and fifter of Affandrus, that returned from Troy with Dyomedes his Brother in law, it happened in their recurning. that they went into the land of hing Telephus, with a great company of men of Arms, and affailed them : and they befended themselves frongly. Allandrus flew many of the unights of Telephus, wherefore he was fore bilplealed, and tok a great fuear, and abbreffed bim againft Allandrus, that he fem bim. Dyomedes to avenge his beath, fem many Bnights of Telephus, and recovered the body of Affandrus and bare it into his whip.

Thus pred Assandrus, but it was not so reported to Egee his Sister: it was told her, that Dyomedes her Husband had sain him to have all the Seigniory of Archimens, whereof Assandrus had the one half against his sister Egee. Of these exprings, and of them that Cetus had written, Egee was angry with Dyomedes her Husband, and wrought so with her people, that they promised they would no more receive Dyomedes so, their Lord. Thus when Dyomedes returned, neither his Wife nor solk mould receive him, but banilbed him out of his country for ever. Then he happened to arrive in Salmine, where Bina Theuter the brother of Bing Thelamon was. This hing heard fay, that Dyomedes was culpable of the beath of his Brother, with uliffes: lobereupon be commanded that Dyomedes thould be tas ken. But Dyomedes hearing thereof fled from thence. Bing Demophon and Bing Athmas being arrived in their own Lands. were banithed in like manner. Then thep arrived in the Land of Duke Neftor, which received them with great foy. Thefe tmo Bings purvoled to go into their Lands with men of Arms, and take bengeance on their people. But Duke Neftor blamed them thereof : and counfelled them, that they hould first receive them for their Lords, and promite them great liberites. Thus bib they as Neftor counselled them : and it was not long after, but their people receibed them.

10 2

Webild Eneas abobe in Troy to repair his Ships, he enburen many affaults of his neighbours, that would have taken the remnant of the Trojans. Fozalmuch as he could not abibe longer than his term affigned by the Greeks, be affembled the Trojans and counfelled them they thould fend for Dyomedes to be their Bing, and faid, be would come willingly, foralmuch as he mas briben out of his Country: and he was both wife and has Tiant. So they lent to feek Dyomedes and found him : who came and found the Trojans beffeged by their neighbour Rations. Eneas then menared to battel:in which Dyomedes bare himfelf fo valiantly, that he tok fome prifoners, and hanged many as Thieves. In the fifth battel be behaved himfelflo, that he mot the upper band of his enemies, and conquered them all: fo as there was none of his neighbours that burft affail the Trojans.

During thefe things the Raby of Encas was made ready. mbereuvon he cook thipping with Anchifes his father: and he ing at Sea they refolbed to go and fek an habitation where the Gobs and fostune would allign them. During their abbentures. many perile bappened, and rowing at random, they failed by Hellespont, from thence to Tuskany in Italy. From whence they failed to Carthage, and again to Italy. The floap whereof who lift to perule, let him read Virgil.

bab entertained Dyomedes, and that he had discomfited their es nemies, she boubted that Dyomedes would take vengance on her. She counselled with her people, and by their additement sent for him to come unto her: who came, and had good entertainment. In like manner did sundry Lords that had been existed return again to their Mives, and enjoyed their old Seigniories as many as had escaped the banger of the Sea.

CHAP. XXIX.

How Horestes Son of King Agamemuon, cruely avenged himself for the death of his Father. And how King Utiffes after sundry perillous adventures, returned to his Country.

Then Horestes Son of Bing, Agamemnon, who was about twenty four years of age, and brought up under Bing Idumeus, was by Idumeus mabe Bnight, at whole Emighting was great feating. Then Horeftes praped him that he would help him to revenge the beath of his Father, and to recover his Lands again. Whereupon Idumeus Delibered to him a thouland armed men. And Horeftes gathered out of other places, another thouland : fo going toward Michmas, he went by Trafim where Forenfis was Cobernour, of whom be got an hundged foulbiers : this bid Forentis for the hatred he bare to Egiffus, because the faib Egiftus having elpouled his Daughter, forlok ber for the love of Clytemnettra. So he joyned with Horeftes, to make war against Egiftus. This expedition was taken in hand at the beginning of May. Waben they came before Michmas, those that kept the City would not peilo it. We then beffeged it round: for Horeftes had answer from the Bobs. that he thould be abenned of his Dother with his own hands, albeit the was cloted within that fortified City. Egiftus was not at this time in that City. but was done to procure aid from other places, againft the coming of Horeftes, by the infligation of his wife Clytemneftra.

When Horenes underftood thereof, he fecretly laid a great Ambuth of Armed men, to furprize Egistus in his return, and therewith gave fresh assaults to the City: which being but ill fortified .

forcissed was taken after sisteen days siege: who appointing his men to keep due watch, that none should go out not in at the Bates, went himself to the Palace Koral, where he took his Bother, committing her to prison, and caused to be apprehended all that were any way guilty of his Father's death. The same day returned Egistus, with his new aids, thinking to have gone to the rescue of the City: but by the way he was taken by the Ambush, of Horesies, who sew all his men, and bound his hands behind him.

On the morrow, Horefics caused his mother Clytemnestra to be brought before him stark naked, with both her hands bound, whom as son as ever he saw, he ran at her with his dword, and first he cut off her two Paps, and after sew her, then he caused her body to be drawn into the fields, and there to be lest for the Birds of the air to debour. Then he made Egistus to be stripped, and drawn naked through the City afterwards to be hanged; in like manner dealt he with all those that were found to have been culpable of his Father's death. This bengeance took Horestee for the beath of god king Agamemnon his Father.

Menellus having endured many perils by Sea, at length arrived in Creechaving with him Helen his wife; who hearing of the beath of his hother, and howeverly Horefies had put his own Gother to beath, was love displeased with his Rephew. At that time came unto Menelaus the greatest Robles of Greece, to see her, so, whose sake all the Greeks had suffered so much trouble and veration. From Creet, Menelaus sailed to Michmas, and told Horefies that he was not worthy to be veither king nor Covernour there, so, that he had so cruelly put to beath his own Society. Whereupon Menelaus assembled at Athens all the cheif Robles of Greece, to deprive Horefies of his Keign and Copernour for the tyrannous matthering of his Pother. Horefies, excused himself chereof, saying: that the Gods had appointed himself chereof, saying: that the Gods had appointed himself chereof, saying: that the Gods had appointed himself chereof, saying:

At this the Duke of Athens role up, and offered to be chams pion, in maintaining Horefles his caute against any that would withstand it: which Challenge of his being by no man accepted, Horefles was judged as guiltless, and lustered fill to enjoy his king.

Ringbom. But upon this quarrel Horestes concided such mozetal hatred against Menelaus his Aucle, that he afterwards have great evil will to him. Postwithstanding king Idumeus came within a while to Michonas, and reconcided them each to other, that Hor. It is took to wife Hormione the Daughter of king Melnelaus and of Helen. Whereat Erigene the daughter of Egistus and of Clytomoestra had great sozrow, that she hanged her self,

being griebed that H reftes profucred fo well.

During thele affairs, Uiffes came into Creet, with the Derchant thing for he had loft all his own, and the chief of his goods by Pyrates. After which loffes, be arrived in the Country of thing Thelamon where he loft the reft of his goods, and then of that Country would have hanged him, if he had not by his cunning efcaped their hands. After that he arribed in the Country of Bing Manlus who tated him for the beath of his Sen Pa lamedes: yet there he fo handled the matter by his industry that be got from thence. At last coming again into Creet he mass kindly entertained by Bing Idumeus, who wondged to fee him in fo poer a cafe demanding of all his adventures how he had fued fince he laft bevarced from Troy. To which Uliffes replyed how great perils he had paffed by Sea, and bow he had loft all his men and goods that be brought from Troy. B. Idumeus had bie ty on him, when he heard thefe things, and cabe him honourable entertainment, as long as be would fap. When be would pepart into his own Country, Iduracus gave bim two thins furhither with all things necessarp for his boyage, and with great plenty of riches, requesting him that he would take his way by the Bing Alcinous to whom he mould be very welcom.

This Ulisses beparing from Ceeet, came unto king Alcinous, who received him joyfully, and was much delighted with his communication. There Ulisses told of Penelope his wife, how many Roble men had requested her love, pet none could obtain it, but the still above constant and how certain of his lands were unjustly detained from her, during his absence: the truth of which, his Son ulisses. The lamonius coming thicher assured him thereof. Whereupon Ulisses prayed Alcinous that he would accompany him to his kealm with a great company of armed men, to help him again to his right. To which Alcinous willings ly agreed. So they satted by Sea, and on a night arrived in his Country, and coming to the houses of his enemies, sew them all. Du the morrow after, ulisses came to his Palace, where he had Royal entertainment, of all sorts of people: but especially Penclope his wife made great joy sorthis coming, which she had song destred. His people then came from all places, with many rich presents, to welcome him home. Great was the soy, and most honourable the entertainment that Ulisses had at his resturn shewed him. Then he dealt with king Alcinous, that he gave to his Son Thelamonius, his Daughter Nausica to wife. The wedding being reservated with great solemnity, Alcinous departed home again into his Country, seaving Ulisses quietly possessed in his Realm.

CHAP. XXX.

Of the dealings of Pyrrhus after his return from Troy: and how Horestes the Son of Agamemnon slew him at Delphos, for that he had goten away Hermione his Wife.

Pyritus the Son of Achilles, and of Dyadamis, daughter of Lycomedes, which Lycomedes was Son to Acastus an old King, and greatly hated of Acastus his Grandsather by the mosthers side. It is not recorded how this hatred grew: But this Acastus, having driven Pelus out of his Kingdom of Thessay, laid wait to bave sain Pyrrhus in his return from Troy.

Pyrrhus passing through many perils at Sea, was briven by foul weather, to cast most part of his riches he brought from Troy into the Sea: and arriving at Molosse, he going albore, was given to understand, that H. Peleus his Grandsather, by the Fathers side, was exised from his Kingdom by Acastus, and that many Ships were hired to sye in wait to say him: whereat he was sore displeased. King Peleus then knew not how to save himself, because Philistines and Menalippus the two Sons of Acastus, sought by all means to say him. In the end Peleus resmembred him of an old building, that stood half a mile from the City of Thessay, between the Sea and the City: this place was encompassed about with Rocks and walls, having great Cellars unper ground, into which by a little hole grown over with bufbes a man might go.

Into thefe Maules Bing Peleus got him, and there be abobe until the return of his Rephem Pyrrhus from Troy, by whole god belp be trufted to avenge himfelf of bis enemies. For whose coming be often went to look on the Sea coaft. When Pyrrhus mith bis Ships were landed, be addrelled himfelf to Theffaly, against king Acastus:and the better to atchiebe his purpole, be fent bis two Secretaries, the one called Crifpus, and the other Adraftus, to one Affandrus, a man of great honour in Theffaly (which Affandrus was a great friend both to bim and to Peleus) for to have his countel and help. The Wellengers having been with Affandrus, returned to Pyrrhus, affuring him of his friends Ip aid. Withereupon Pyrrhus boiled Sail, and making tomarbs Theffaly, they were by a funden Tempett Driven in at the Post Sepeliadim, half a mile from Theffaly near about where Peleus kept in the Wautts. Then Pyrrhus went a hoge to reft bimfelf. and take freih air, and by chance be went walking to the Cabe where Peleus was hidden; and palling along the bulbes he fell into the bole, where was the becent into the cave, where he found Peleus his Wannbfather. Peleus knowing bim by his countenance, for he refembled much his father Achilles, eme braced him forfully, and made known unto him all his misfore tunes, and the wrongs that he had fustained by the means of Acastus and his Sons. Tpbings bereof came to Philistines and Menalippus, the Sous of Acaltus, who were an hunting in a Frozeff there by. Then Pyrrhus apparelled himfelf in beggerly apparel, and leaving his Grandfather with his fhips, went alone with his Swood into the Forest where he met with Philistines and Menalippus, who bemanded of him, what he was ? Pyrrhus fait, he was a Grecian, that returned from Troy, in company with 500 more had escaped his life from Shipmrack. and loft all that be bab in the Sea, being now briben to beg for his luftenance: wherefore be bid beleech them, if they bab brought any viduals with them, they would give him fomething to eat. The two brethren laid, that be thould abibe with them: which thing be granted. Muon

Myon this parley a great Bart came running by them, at the and thereof Menalipous put fours to his Boste and follomen on the chafe: and immediately Philiftines allighting off his house to rell himfelf. Pyrrbus ran him thozow and flew him : and Menalippus afterwards returning again, was also flain by Pyrrhus. Thus Pyrrhus flew his two Uncles, the brethren of Theris the Bother of Achilles bis Father. Paffing from thence, be met with Chinaras, one of the houshold of Acastus, of whom Demans bing where the B. Acaftus was, and unberffanbing that he was hard by, he flew Chinaras, and going in haft to his thips he are raped him in precious robes, and to came back again to the fore reft : and meeting with Bing Acaffus, the Bing asked him who he was ? Tam (faio be) one of the Song of Bing Priamus of Troy, who now am Prifoner to Pyrrhus. Where is Pyrrhus (fair the Bing ?) De pointed him toward the Dea. And as he was loking toward the Deascoll, Pyrrhus Dem his Sword and would have flain him, had not Thetis been, who knew Pyrchus and cryed out, faying : Ah bear Rephew, what will thou bo ? Will thou kill my father as thou haft killed my two brethren. thy Uncles ? and thus faying, the caught him fall by the arm that he was about to frike withat. Then Pyrrhus replyed, fave ma! The Bing Acastus thy Father, bath wrongfully exiled Bing Pelcusthy Busband : let him reftoze him unto his right, and T will fave his life. Bing Acastus was content therewith : then a peace was concluded between them all thie, and they loved well together. After this Acaffus fato to Pelcus, 3 am olo; and can no longer govern this Realm : and thole are gone that foulb have Succeeded me in this Bingdom. Therefoze if it pleafe thee, let Pyrrhus my bear Dephew take on him the Boberns ment. Peleus was well-contented:and then was commandment given to all the Barons of Theffaly, that they fould bo homage to Pyrrhus as their Bing and Soberaign : whereto the Barons with great for and liking accorded. Thus wasPyrrhus crowned Bing of Theffaly, and effeemed the molt redoubted Ima in all Greece. Idumeus Bing of Creet byed hortly after, frabing behind him two Song, Merian and Loarca. Loarca byed fhorely after bis Pather, and Merian enjoped the Bingbom. Thelamonius the Son of uliffes had a Son by bis Wife Naufica, named

Deichobus.

After all thefe things accomplisht, Acaffus went and buried his two Sons in Theffaly, by the confent of Pyrrhus : and when Pyrrhus was promoted to his Koval bignity, be became ename. red of Hermione, Daughter of Helen, and wife to Horeltes. Der be fo courted, and allured by fo many enticements, that be got ber away from her Busband into Theffaly, and tok her to his wife. Horeftes was fore greived at this injury: pet he durft not affail bim with battel in bis own Realm, but fait be would ere long be avenged of this indianity, as foon as time would ferbe: shortly after that, Pyrihus went to Delphos, to give thanks un= to his God Apollo, for the god luccels be had obtained in Theffaly, in revending his father's beath, and getting the Kingbom: and leaving in his Palace behind him Andromache, fometime the wife of Hector, and Laomedon her young son ; in his abs sence it was found, that Andromache was with child by Pyrthus, whereat Hermione took difpleafure, and fent wood to Menclaus her father, how Pyrrhus for the love of Andromache had follaken her, requesting him, that buring the above of Pyrrhus at Delphos, he would come and kill Andromache and Laomedon her Son. At her request Menelaus came, and with a Imord ran at Andromache, who caught in her arms Laomedon her poung Son, and run into the City crying for aid.

Apon fight hereof the City role in Arms, to befend Andromache and her young Son from the flaughter: whereupon Menelaus was forced to tetite into his Country, without archieving his purpole. When Horestes understood of Pyrrhus his being at Delphos, he went with all speed thither, and sew him with his own hand. Thus did Horestes recover again his wife, and carried her into his own Realm. When Pyrrhus was dead, Peleus and Theris took Andromache that was with Child by Pyrrhus, with her little Son Laomedon, and sent them to the City of Molossa, where Andromache was delivered of a goody Son, which she named Achilleides. This Achilleides when he was grown to years, holpe his Brother Laomedon to be King of Thessay, and willed so, his sake, all the Trojansshould be set free. Here the flory laith, that the Sifter of King Menon (which Menon, Achilles flew before Troy, and whom King Priamus buried by his Son Troylus) came in very colly apparel to Troy, and opening her Brothers Sepulture, tok out his bones: which to son as the hav, the with them vanished suvdenly, no man knew which way: and it is said, that either it was a Goddels, or the Daughter of a Goddels.

CHAP XXXI.

Of a Vision that Ulisses had in his sleep: and how Thelagonus the Son of Ulisses by Queen Circe, came to seek Ulisses and slew him, not knowing who he was.

& Uliffes was fleeping on his bed, he faw a Willion in which 1 there feemed before him, a wonderfull fair creature, the moft beauciful that ever be law, which be would fain have ems braced, but the 3 mage would not luffer bim. And be going after it, the Image asked him what be would have : be answered, that he was befirous to forn with it in carnal copulation. Then faid the Image: Dh, a woful confunction will this be, for thereupon one of us must bre. Porcober, to him feemed, that the Image beto a Spear, about the head was a penfil cunningly wzought alf ober with fifes. And to bim feemed, that the 3mage bevarted away and faid : This fight betokeneth beltruction that fhall happen to us two. Withen Uliffes awaked, he was troubled to think of his bream, and being beffrous to know what it might Agnifie : be fent to the Southlayers of bis Realm, to enquire what this Wiffon might prelage : who havingconfloered thereof. faid: That bis own Son Bouls kill him. Apon this be fearing his Son, caufed him to be apprehended and furely kept. Afters wards he mabe bim to bwell in a Caffle that food alone, where with a fem of his trufty Friends and Berbants, he fpent the time: and this Caffle none might come unto but thole few of his own retinue : and they not to pals of re-pals but at certain times by a bramebriog by a wicket, the Caftle being watered round as bout. Row it had to fallen out before, that in his return from Troy, Uliffes had arribed in an Alle where Circe was Duen and Co bernour

Sobernour, which was the cunningest woman in the world in enchantment.

This Circe by her witchcraft, made ulisses stay with her a time at his return, and conceived by him a Son, whom the nasmed Thelagonus. And about the time of ulisses his dwelling in his Castle; Thelagonus being grown to ripe years, and being a sout young man, would needs know of his Pother, who was his Father. After much intreaty the told him who was his father, and where he did dwell.

Thelagonus very glan bercof, and beliring to fee his father. travelled forthwith to Achaia, and hearing where Uliffes Dwelt, be went thicher: and coming on a Bunday mouning, he requests en those that kept the bribae, that they would let him go in to freak with ul.ffes. The Porters would by no means peilo theres to, but thauft him back churlifily; whereat be taking bifpleafure, Aruck one on the neck with his fift, and beat him bead and fetting upon the other, caft them all off the Bringe, whereupon they made a great cry : infomuch that the people of the Caffle arns en themfelbes and came and affailed Thelagonus. De feeing that, frept to one, and wrung his Sword out of his hand, where with he dem fifteen in Coat frace, and was himfelf burt in many plas ces. Bereupon the upzoar grew more and more : and Uliffes. Doubting it was his Son Thelagonus, who had broken out of prison came running out with a bart in his hand, which he flung at Thelagonus, and hit him not knowing who he was, and hurt Thelagonus a little.

The lagonus feeling himself hurt, sung it again at ulisses (not knowing who he was) with so great sozec, that hitting himbe fell down to the earth. Then ulisses being in great pain, (resmembring himself of his sozesaid Tisson. (demanded of him what he was staying, I am ulisses. The lagonus hearing this, fell to great lamentation, and said; Alas, wheth that I am, I came hither to see my Father, and to live foyfully with him, and now I have sain him. Thus saying, he fell down in a swound; and when he was come again to his understanding, he rent his cloaths, beat himself about the face with his siss, and went to his Father, and sell down weeping before him, and said: I am

The-

Thelagonus thy unhappy Son, whom thou begottest on Queen Circe: I pray the Gods that they will suffer me to dye with thee.

Milhen Uliffes understood this, he fent for Thelamonius his lawfull begotten Son, who prefently coming would babe flain Trelagonus, to revenge bis father's beath. But Uliffes fait. Po: fo, for he is thy brother; be pe reconciled together, and live and love as brethren. Then was uliffes carried into Achaia : where within three dayes he doed, and was by his Son honous After whose beath, Thelamonius his Son fuce rably burieb. creded in that Bingdom, who kept with him Thelagonus his brother for the frace of a year and a half, making him Bnight. and bonouring bim greatly. At length being often fent for by Circe his mother, be returned to ber into the 3fle Aulides bas ving received many rich prefents at the hands of his brother. And Circe bying hortly after, Thelagonus enjoyed ber Bingbom. and reigned in the fait Ife threefcore years. Thelamonius was fourfcore and thirteen years old at the beath of Uliffes his father. and reigned afterwards, much encreafing his Deigniozy, their fcore and ten years.

In this wife Dares finished his book of the siege of Troy, and speaketh not of their further adventures: and as much as is constained in the History before written, is also found to have been recorded by Dictes, the Greek: and in most things both their Looks agree.

Dares in the end of his book writeth thus, That the siege of Troy endured for the space of ten years, ten months and twelve days: and that the number of the Greeks there sain was eight hundred and six thousand sighting men: and the number of the Trojans, sain in defence of themselves and of their Countrey, was six hundred and sixty six thousand sighting men. He saith, moreover, that when Eneas departed from Troy into exile, he carried with him two hundred ships: and that Anthenor had with him away sive hundred Souldiers, and all the rest that were escaped went with Eneas.

The faid Dares furthermoze reported in the latter end of his Bok, by whom the most noble kings and Princes of the one part and of the other were flain: and he saith, that Hector the most samous Prince of Chivalry in the world flew with his own hands in god and loyal sight, eighteen Lings: not with treaschery or subtil devices, but by his prowess and valour: the names of which Kings do here follow: That is, King Archilogus, B. Prothesseus, B. Patroclus, B. Menon, B. Prothesor, B. Archimenus, B. Polemon, B. Epistropus, B. Ecedius, B. Daccius, B. Polixenus, B. Phybus, B. Anthypus, B. Cenutus, B. Polibetes, B. Humerus, B. Fumus, and King Exampitus. And Paris he sew Palamedes, who was Emperour of all the Greekish Post, B. Achilles, and at last B. Ajax: and therewithal Ajix stew him also. Eneas sew B. Amphimacus, and Ling Nercus. Achilles sew B. Cupemus, B. Yponeus, B. Plebens, E. Austerus, B. Cimoneus, B. Menon, and Ling Neoptolemus.

Also he new Hector at unawares, and Troylus, whom hee caused his Myrmidens to beset round about. Pyrrhus the Son of the said Achilles sew the Quien Penthesiles in fight: he new also cruelly and tyzannously, the noble King Priamus. He sew mozeover Polixens, the fairest Paid in the world. Dyomedes sew King Antipus, & Escorius, & Prothenor, and Ling Obtineus. Dow thus 3 am come to the finishing of this prefent beok. which I have translated (though rubely) out of French into English, at the commandment and request of my right gracious and redoubted Lady and Diffress, the Lady Mirgiret. Durchess of Burgony, Lotherick, and of Brabant &c. and forasmuch as A am weary of tedious writing, and worn in years, being not able to write out feberal boks for all Centlemen, and fuch as thers as are befrous of the fame, I have caufed this bok to be Printed: that being publifed the more plentcoully, mens turns may be more cafily ferbeb. And as for the funtry Authors that have written of this matter, namely, Homer, Dictes and D.r.s; albeit their wittings in many circumftances bo bifagre, pet in deferibing the Deftruction of Troy, they all affirm is to babe been in menner ag is fait, neterly ruinaced and laid wafte for ever, with fuch a wonderfull Chufton of the blod of fo mes ny worthy laings Princes, Dukes, Carls, Barons and Enights, and such an exceeding number of souldiers, as here is mentioned. And look what pleasure of commodity men reap by perusing this Book, let him transfer the praise and the thanks due therefore (nert to Almighty God) unto my sociaid right gracious Lady, who not only caused me to undertake this translation, but hath also bountifully rewarded me for my labours. To whose good liking I humbly dedicate this work: teseeching her Grace, and all that should read the same, to accept in good part my simple endeabour herein. And I most humbly pray unto Almighty God, that the example of these cruel wars and desolation of this famous City, may be a warning to all other Cities and People, to see Adultery, and all the other vices, the causes of Wars and Bestruction: and that all true Christians may learn to live godlily, and in Brotherly love and concord together.

PErgama ficre volo, Fata Danais data solo, Solo capta dolo: capta, redacta solo.
Causa mali talis, Meretrix fuit exitialis: Fœmina lethalis, Fœmina plena malis: Si sucris lota: si vita sequens bona tora, Si eris ignota, non eris absque nota.
Passa prius Paridem, Paridis modo, Thesea pridem. Es sactura sidem, ne redeas in idem.
Rumor de veteri, faciet ventura timeri, Cras poterunt sieri, turpia sicut heri.
Scæna quid evadis, morti quæ cætera tradis?
Cur tu non cladis, conscia clade cadis?
Fœmina digna mori, re-amatur amore priori: Reddita victori, delicissque thori.

FINIS.

The Table of the Third Book of the Destruction of TROY.

Chapters.

Pages.

I. H Ow King Priamus re-edified the City of Troy more strong than ever it was before: of his Sons and daughters. And how after many Counfels, he sent Ansbewor and Polidamas into Greece, to demand his Sister Exione, that Ajax kept.

2. How King Priamus affembled all his Barons, to know who he might fend to Greece to get again his Sifter Exione. How Helior answered: and of his good counsel: how Paris declared to his Father, the vision of the Goddess Venus.

3. How Paris and Deiphebus, Eneas, Ambenor and Polidamas, were fent into Greece: and how they ravished Helen out of the Temple of Venus, with many prisoners and riches, and brought them to Troy, where Paris espoused Helen.

4. How Menelans was fore troubled for the ravishing of Helen his Wife. And how her two Brethren Castor and Pollux, purfued Paris in the Sea: and of their deaths: And of the condition and manner of the Lords, as well Greeks as Trojans. 24.

5. How the Kings, Dukes, and Earls, and Barons of Greece, affembled with their Navy, before Athens, to come to Troy: and how many Ships each man brought to help King Menelaus. 28

6. How the Greeks fent Achilles to Delphos, to the God Apollo, to know the end of their War, and how he found Chalcas, fent from the Trojans, that went with him to Ashens.

7. How the Greek with a great Navy faild towards Troy: and How they arrived at Tenedon three miles from Troy, which they conquered, and beat down to the earth.

8. How the Greeks did fend Dyomedes and Uliffes again to K. Priomus, to have Helen and the Prisoners, and of their answer. 35

9. How Agamemnen affembled in council the Greeks to have victuals:

victuals : and how they fent Achiller and Telephus to the Pages.

Chapters.

Realm of Mife, where they flew King Thentray in battel ; And how Telephus was made King : And of the Kings that came to a dand help King Priamus. 10. Of the coming of Duke Palamedes, and how the Greeks departed from Tenedin, by the counsel of Dyomedes, and came and took Land before the City of Troy, and how the Trojans received them in battel right vigoroufly. 11. Of the second battel before Troy, where were many Kings and Barons flain, by worthy Heller; and how the Trojans had been victorious of their Enemies, had it not been for the request of Thelamon Ajax, Coulin of Hector 12 Of the first truce of two months; and of the three battels between them, in which Hellor beat Achilles to the ground twice, and after flew King Prothenor and cut him in two. 12. How the Greeks held Parliament how they might flay Hedor. how they returned to the fourth battel, in which Paris and Menelans encountred and brought King Thoas prisoner to Trov. 14. How Priamus would have had King Thoas hanged, and how they fought the fifth battel, in which Hellor flew three Kings: and how Dyomedes flew the Sagittary. of the truce between them, after which began the battel again from morn to even, with great damage to both parties, but the Trojans loft more than the Greeks. 16. How the Greeks and Trojans began the fixth battel, that dured thirty days, in which were many Kings and Princes flain on both sides, and how Dyomedes smote down Troylus off his Horse, and sent it to Briseyda his Love, that received it gladly. 17. How the Greeks and Trojans began the feventh battel, that dured twelve days, and after began the eighth battel, wherein Hector was flain by Achiller, and they were driven back into their City by force to their great damage, 18. Of the rich Sepulture of Heller, and great lamentations and weepings the Trojans made for his death; and how Palame-

Chapters. Pages. des was chosen Governour of the host of the Greeks. 40. How King Priamus went to be revenged on the Greeks for the death of his Son Hellor: and of the Proweffes he did : and of the anniver ary of Heller, in which Achilles was surprised with the love of Polizena the daughter of King Priamus, in fuch wife that he might endure no reft. 20. How Achilles fent a secret messenger to Heenba Queen of Troy, to request her Daughter Polizena, and the answer; how for the love of her Achilles affembled the hoft of the Greeks and cauled them to depart, and make peace with the Trojanis. 21. Of the death of Deiphobus, the Son of Priamus, and how Paris flew Palamedes: and the Trojans chased the Greeks into their Tents, and fet fire on their Ships : and how Achilles would not go to battel for the love of Polixena, 22. Of many battels that were fought on both fides: and of a certain truce of the death of Noble Troylus, whom Achilles flew against his promise, and drew at his horse tail through the host, how Achilles flew King Menon. 23. How Paris by the perswasion of Hecuba his mother, slew Aebilles and the Son of Duke Nestor, in the temple of Apollo, and how Paris and Ajax flew each other in bittel. 24. How Oucen Penthefilea came from Amazon with a thousand Maidens to the succour of Troy, and slew many Greeks, and after was flain by Pyrrbus the Son of Achilles. 25. How Anthenor and Eneas consulted together to deliver the City unto the Greeksby Treason, and did it under colour of peace: and how King Priamus with food them, with fome of his Bastards, by great and rude words. 26. How the Traitor Anthenor bought of the Priest the Palladium, and gave it to Uliffer: and of the Horse of Brass that was by the Greeks brought to the Temple of Pallas, being full of men of Arms: and how the City of Trey was taken and burnt, and the King Priamus flain, Oc. 27. Of the diffension that was moved because of the Palladium.

between Thelamon and Uliffes: and how Aneas and Anthenor were .

Chapters: were exiled out of Troy: and how the Greeks returned, and
of their adventures.

28. How King Naulus and Cetus his Son did spoil many Ships of the Greek, in their return, for the death of King Agamemnon, and of the exile of Dyomedes, and of his calling back Egee his wife.

29. How Horester Son of King Agamemnon, cruelly avenged him self for the death of his Father. And how King Willer after fundry perflous adventures, returned to his Country.

30. Of the dealings of Pyrrbus after his return from Troy: and how Horestes the Son of Agamemnon, slew him at Delphos, for that he had gotten away Hermisus his wife.

31. Of a vision that Uliffer had in his sleep: and how Thelagonus the Son of Uliffer by Queen Circe, came to seek Uliffer and slew him, not knowing who he was.

Dmon

FINIS. Myzofor

by the Greate be noted to the Tarple of Puller, being fall of to wage to have to will word but to fill to but same for more red

37. T/

